MINERS APPEAL TO THE COUNTRY ALLEGING AUTHORITIES OF NOVA SCOTIA MISREPRESENTING FACTS

Say Premier's Statement That Conditions of Distress Exaggerated Is False and Calculated to Defeat the Miners in Their Struggle.

READY TO RESUME AT 1924 RATES.

Miners' Executive Says Their Offer To Protect the Pits Was Rejected by the Provincial Government.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 21.—The following statement with respect to the conference on the wage question, held at Halifax Thursday between the Executive of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, and Premier Armstrong and the Minister and Deputy Minister of Mines, representing the Government, was issued to the press last night from U.M.W headquarters, Glace Bay:—

"The result of the conference held between Provincial Government and District 26, U. M. W. of A., on the 19th instant, was that the Government did not accept the offer of the miners to provide protective measures for the Nova Scotia pits under the authority of the Provincial Government, as outlined in the proposal in that regard made by the Union on March 16th.

In addition, while the conference was proceeding with the deputy minister of Mines, the premier deliberately stood up in the House and insinuated that conditions of distress in Cape Breton had been exaggerated. We take direct responsibility for chamacterizing this insinuation of the premier's as false and misleading and tending to assist the corporation to beat us in our present wage struggle. In the past, the provincial government of Nova Scotia has spent vast sums of money for the single purpose as they alleged, of protecting property of the people of Nova Scotia. They spent these sums upon measures calculated to drive us back to the pits at the company's conditions. Now we have offered to protect the property on behalf of the government, which measures would entail far less expenditure than measures adopted heretofore by the provincial government in this behalf. This should forever dispose of the contention by the provincial government that they interpose on behalf of the property of the people of this province. We emphasize their invention is always on behalf of corporation.

Government Has Control.

"We were repeatedly told by representatives of the government that the 'government had no control over the British Empire Steel Corporation.' We were quite well aware of the falsity of this contention, for Sections 56, 57 and 58 of the Coal Mines Regulation ct of Nova Scotia expressly provide for the government taking over protective measures whenever by reason of mining operations having ceased upon any areas comprised within any lease.'

"The government's refusal is due in our opinion to the absolute control maintained over it by the British Empire Steel Corporation.

"The present situation, therefore, is that the government alleges it is considering with the corporation procedure along the lines of our proposal to Dr. Robertson, under date of February 6th, namely, continuation of the 1924 rates, pending full investigation. We still adhere to our offer as contained in that communnication, but must point out to the country at large that this will not prevent women and children from starving.

Appeal to Country.

The corporation has locked us out. The government refuses to take action and deliberately misrepresents conditions. We, therefore, urgently appeal to the public of the Dominion of Canada and pray to them to bring pressure to bear on the government to force some action to prevent the government of Nova Scotia further misrepresenting the unparalled conditions of distress that exist here. We have done all we can with the corporation and government and can proceed no further to meet the conditions of horror now impending.

1695 FAMILIES RECEIVED HELP

Indication of Distress in Colliery Districts of South Cape Breton.

GLACE BAY, N.S., March 21. — (Canadian Press). — The following statement was given out Friday by Rev. M. A. Macadan, chairman, and Rev. A. MacLeod, secretary of the Glace Bay Relief Committee:

"Referring to statements made in the press this morning re action of Legislature and relief situation in Cape Breton, the Government representative (Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Minister of Highways) was here this week and saw samples of destitution and relief stations and operations. Accompanied by Councillor Alex. Campbell, he was taken to see some of the homes in Glace Bay. Three families were visited. In the first house there were five children living in three rooms, one of which was toilet and bedroom combined. There were two beds in the house, neither of which had any covering or clothes. The second house visited had two children. Father found it impossible to support them on wages earned last year, paying twenty dollars per month for three rooms. Arriving at the third house one could not get in front door. Six children, mother only about half clad, baby two months old, another child, about three years old, not able to walk. There were two rooms in this house. One bedroom used by entire family of eight. No bedclothing of any kind. The only food they had was received from the Relief Committee. On leaving the house the representative said:

"My henhouse is far superior to that house. That is all I want to see. If you have anything worse I do not want to see it."

"Saw Enough."

To Councillor Campbell's suggestion that he could show him something worse than that, he answered:

"I desire to see no more. I have seen enough." These homes were not particularly selected but were representative of needy sections of the town. The statements are verified by Councillor Alex. Campbell. The representative arrived at Dominion No. 6 and got facts and figures from Rev. A. J. MacDonald, who offered to show him relief stations, but he did not think that necessary. The situation in the colliery districts of South Cape Breton Thursday was as follows:

"Sixteen hundred and ninety-five families, representing ten thousand five hundred and twenty-nine people, received aid. Cash receipts to date $13,676.36; expenditures to date $8,601.40. Our estimated requirements until Saturday $4,547.00; estimated balance on hand Saturday evenig $437.96."

This statement covers only requirements from basic food stuffs, giving nine cents per day per person. The people's resources are decreasing daily.

DRIVER EXONERATED.

Passenger of Taxi Killed in Montreal Crash.

MONTREAL, March 21. —Leon Allaire, tax driver, was exonerated Friday by a coroner's jury in connection with the death of P. Beausoleil, who was killed Wednesday night when Allaire's taxi, in which he was a passenger, struck a tram car at the corner of Notre Dame and Convent Streets. Immediately following the verdict, he was released from police custody. Later, Judge Monet dismissed the charge of speeding which had been placed against him.

Brazilian Firms Cut Wages As Crisis Grows

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, March 21. — The Brazilian industrial crisis is becoming more serious. The Sao Paulo factories, which normally produce goods to the value of about $115,000,000 in a year, have been cut to eighteen hours a week, one-third normal capacity.

The firms are making an effort to avoid heavy losses by the employment of all possible means to generate power in the individual plants, including the installation of engines and tractors.

It is feared that the employes must continue on a limited basis of working hours, receiving greatly reduced wages.

WOMEN DROWNED NEAR BANCROFT

Inquest Monday Into Deaths of Mother and Daughter at Fort Stewart.

SUICIDE PACT ?

BELLEVILLE, March 21 (Canadian Press).—Details late Friday from Fort Stewart near where the double tragedy of death of Mrs. Nettie Wilson and her daughter was discovered Thursday state that the mother was found about four thirty and the daughter at five thirty Thursday afternoon.

The husband of the unfortunate woman and father of the dead girl had not felt well and had laid down after lunch and was awakened at two o'clock in the afternoon by the cries of a younger daughter, calling for her mother. Mr. Wilson got up and discovered that the mother was not present in the house. He looked about the premises and found tracks outside leading in the direction of the lake.

Fearing that something was wrong he went back into the house and there discovered three letrs—one to her husband one to her mother, and one to a girl, written by Mrs. Wilson. Mr. Wilson and his son then followed the tracks to the lake shore where they found marks entering the water. The men secured a boat and started to search for the trace of the wife. About four thirty o'clock the search was rewarded by the finding of the body of the woman. Indications having pointed to the death of the daughter in the water, the search was resumed, with the result that one hour later the body of the thirteen-year-old girl, Shirley, was found. Indications point to a double suicide or suicide pact. There appears no indication of foul play. Provincial police authorities have the mystery in hand, and the inquest which has been called for Monday next at Bancroft will probably clear up the mysterious occurrence.

TRIAL ON MANSLAUGHTER.

Dr. Joseph Govin Said to Have Performed Illegal Operation.

The physician is charged with causing the death of Pearl O'Keefe, alias Pearl Laviolette, aged 19, by an illegal operation.

LYONS COMPANY STOCK HELD BY SELF AND WIFE

Minister of Lands and Forests Had Legal Right to Sell to Government.

MANY QUESTIONS.

Doctors Prescriptions For Liquor Reduced From Fifty to Thirty a Month.

TORONTO, March 21.—The government yesterday supplied information to the House in answer to about forty questions submitted by private members. Hon. Jas. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, informed the members that he and his wife held the majority stock in the Jas. Lyons Fuel and Supply Company, which sold goods to the Government valued at $14,202. It will be remembered that the merits of this matter were discussed last week, and although Mr. Lyons was declared to have been legally right in the transactions, the Premier made a request that no member of the House hereafter do business with the government. The goods sold were cement and other material for road making and were purchased on a competitive basis with other firms.

The Progressive had several questions asking if the defeated Conservative candidates in half a dozen ridings were in control of local patronage, and if they had any special influence in recommendations for government appointments. The Premier replied that all appointments were made by the government, and that recommendations were not in the control of any particular person. He also stated that there was no list of newspapers for patronage purposes.

Has More Authority.

Hon. Mr. Price informed the members that Mr. Turnbull, the new deputy treasurer had more authority than the previous deputy, because he was also financial controller. The House was informed that an effort had been made to sell part of the farm in connection with the Ontario Hospital at Brockville, but that no sale had been made. It was explained that the farm cost more to operate than the hospital could make out of it. Mr. Sinclair suggested that the agricultural committee be sent down to operate it.

Hon. Mr. Lyons explained that McNamara Construction Company was paid $279.66 for construction of roads from Sudbury to Coniston and from Timmins to South Porcupine. The contract was let by tender, and that of the McNamara firm was lowest.

Scripts Are Reduced.

It was explained that John Crowe, a disabled war veteran, had not been dismissed from his position as issuer of auto license markers at Owen Sound. The House was also informed that under the late government there was a limit of 50 prescriptions for a doctor per month. This is reduced to 30 by the present legislation. It was also explained that the government advances sums to immigrants only in special cases. There were six cases last year, and there were no failures to return the loans. The Premier explained that the evidence taken on the Settell charges against Hydro was available to the public.

The Premier told the House that in the timber inquiry, Mr. Justice Riddell was paid $13,000 and Mr. Justice Latchford $12,000. Mr. Henry explained that no new automobiles had been bought for the use of cabinet ministers and that there were four cars now available for the use of ministers, and thereafter for the departments of the government.

Hon. Mr. Price said that the following issues of treasury bills had been made by the present government: $5,000,000 at 5½; $3,000,000 at 5½; $10,000,000 at 5; $6,000,000 at 5; $3,000,000 at 3.90; $5,000,000 at 4½; $5,000,000 at 3½; $5,000,000 at 4¼. There were no brokerage fees.

Complete Law Revision.

Premier Ferguson announced that it was hoped that by next session the law revision commission would have completed its work and that suggestions would be received from the municipalities on the municipal and assessment acts so that these would become permanent and not subject to the innumerable changes which are made in them each year. The Premier also announced that the government would not allow municipalities to seek private legislation in the guise of public bills. He made this announcement when a Toronto bill making special provision of the financing of North Toronto sewers was being discussed. To get the rights desired Toronto sought to change the assessment act and the Premier declared emphatically it should have been a private bill and then the legislation for other municipalities would be undisturbed. W. E. N. Sinclair Liberal leader agreed with him that there was too much legislation introduced as public bills

HALIFAX URGES EXECUTIONS IN CENTRAL PLACE

Petition to Dominion Government From the Legislature of Nova Scotia.

DISTRICT PRISONS.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Expected to Fall in Line.

HALIFAX, N.S. March 21.—A motion to petition the Federal Government to enact the necessary legislation to provide that all executions of offenders sentenced to capital punishment in the Maritime Province be carried out in Dorchester Penitentiary, was carried unanimously in the local legislature Friday. It was moved by Hon. W. J. O'Hearn, Attorney-General for Nova Scotia, and seconded by Hon. William Chisholm, Minister of Public Works and Mines.

Under the present law throughout Canada, Mr. O'Hearn said, capital punishment must be carried out in the county in which the offence is committed, although for good reasons a change of venue can be obtained through the courts when conditions indicate the necessity for such action. In England, he believed, and in the United States he was sure, executions were all carried out in the district penientiaries. He believed the same law should prevail in Canada. It was disagreeable to have executions occur in the community, and he believed justice was sometimes obstructed by jurors who shrank from bringing in a verdict calling for capital punishment because it would result in executions being carried out in that particular community.

The Federal Parliament was the only body that could enact the necessary legislation, he said, and he was of the opinion that if the question of expense entered into the question that the counties, which now bear the burden of expense for executions would continue to do so, providing the sentence was carried out in the Maritime penitentiary. The Attorney-General of New Brunswick had assured him that a similar measure would be moved in the New Brunswick House, and he felt sure that Prince Edward Island would also fall in line.

UNEMPLOYED MARCH UPON GOVERNMENT

Alberta Out of Work Men Will Camp at Parliament Buildings.

CALGARY, Alta., March 21. — (Canadian Press).—The unemployed of this city will commence a march to Edmonton by trail to-day, via Drumhellier, in an effort to get the Provincial Government to demand relief for single unemployed men in this province. The contingent expects to reach the capital within a week's time, and on route they will link forces with a contingent of unemployed at Drumhellier, who will also march to the capital. The Calgary contingent, it is said, will be reinforced by delegations from Lethbridge and the Crow's Nest Pass, and they plan to stay in the vicinity of the Parliament Buildings until the Government decides to extend relief.

MRS. DENNISTOUN UNABASHED BY LAWYER'S BITTER DEUNCIATION OF HER CONDUCT

Divorcee Shrugged Her Shoulders and Smiled at Scathing Epithets—Her Action Only Blackmail, Defence Counsel Declared—Case Continues on Monday.

LONDON, March 21. — Rarely has a woman of social standing been subjected in an English court of justice to a more scathing denunciation than was Mrs. Dorothy Muriel Dennistoun by Norman Birkett, when he addressed the jury yesterday in behalf of Lieut.-Colonel Ian Onslow Dennistoun, her former husband, whom she is suing for money which she alleges she loaned him before they were divorced.

Mrs. Dennistoun bore the ordeal without flinching, except when reference was made to Sir John Cowans' "going to his grave with curses on his lips for the woman who deceived him," when she was visibly affected.

(The name of the late Sir John Cowans, Great Britain's war time quartermaster-general, has been brought into the trial through allegations by Mrs. Dennistoun that Col Dennistoun encouraged her relations with the quartermaster-general to further his own military career.)

The dowager countess of Carnarvon, widow of the noted Egyptologist, who married Col. Dennistoun after his divorce, often appeared on the verge of tears during the address of Counsel Birkett. She held her handkerchief to her eyes, and leaned for support on her son.

An Ingenious Liar.

"Whatever might be said of Col. Dennistoun," said Mr. Birkett, "he is not a liar, whereas on every fact you can test her, Mrs. Dennistoun is a liar of the first rank. She has lied with resource and ingenuity."

"Pointing to this woman," he exclaimed, "to use her own conduct as a means of geting money from Lady Carnarvon, is the lowest degree of unforgiveable sin."

"Traitress," "extremely dangerous woman," "heartless," were some of Mr. Birkett's other comments at which Mrs. Dennistoun merely shrugged her shoulders and smiled. "This action is blackmail, and she knows it," the lawyer thundered.

Questions for Jury.

Justice McCardie intimated that he would put ten questions to the jury regarding the agreement which Mrs. Dennistoun said her former husband made at the time they were divorced. Some of these questions the court pointed out, would be exceedingly difficult as there were more grave issues involved in this case than many have realized.

Besides a decision whether the alleged agreement was too vague to be enforced, the justice added, there was the interpretation of the word "collusive" and the question whether the statute of limitations would apply with respect to some of the sums in dispute if they were gifts.

Sir Ellis Hume-Williams will address the jury on Monday in behalf of Mrs. Dennistoun.

25 KILLED AND 200 INJURED AT FUNERAL SERVICE DURING STORM

A Few Glimpses of the Ruin and Suffering in Towns Wrecked by Cyclone—Like War Zone in France.

BENTON, Ill., March 21.—The tornado which swept this section Wednesday perpetrated some ghastly freaks.

At Murphysboro 25 persons were killed at a funeral service being conducted in the basement of the Baptist Church. Two hundred others attending the service were injured.

Nearby, a severed human arm was found imbedded in the trunk of an uprooted tree.

At West Frankfort, Ill., in an improvised morgue, are the bodies of eighteen babies. All are under two years of age.

Nine Bobies About Stove.

Nine bodies were found huddled about a coal stove in a Griffen restaurant, partly cremated. In one Illinois town the fine engine itself was burned into uselessness. Murphysboro, Ill., had to improvise a pumping plant on the ruins of its water works before the fires could be extinguished. At Annapolis a quick-thinking station agent used his cash drawer successfully as a bucket to extinguish fire.

So tremendous was the force of the wind that in Murphysboro eleven locomotives were reported wrecked, six of the heavy type. Heavy objects were found several miles from their original positions, and papers were carried fifty miles.

Freakish dips of the twister left the usual safe spots in the path of the storm. Only a few persons had yet been able to report unusual escapes, but one mine clerk saved himself by crawling into his office safe which protected him from fire and falling walls. One family crept under their motor car when the house fell and tumbed over the machine.

Like War Zone.

A former war chaplain said it could be likened to the war zone in France; there was no other comparison.

Human bodies in most every form of cremation and butchered or crushed were being removed from the debris. Only a comparative few have been found intact. Identification is being made by rings on detached arms in some instances. Bodies pierced with splinters of wind-driven wood are frequent.

The little hamlet of De Soto probably suffered the heaviest single catastrophe inflicted by the tornado, for it was here that 118 men, women and children died, many of them in the schoolhouse which was razed in the twinkling of an eye.

All but one of the seventy-five girls employed in a Heinz plant at Princeton escaped unhurt. The town's $2,000,000 Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad shops were a total loss at Murphysboro, as well as a new $267,000 addition to its high school and an $85,000 Baptist church.

A school house near Cape Girardeau, Mo., was carried away a short time after its pupils had been discharged. Fate was not so kind in other places where schools were demolished. Another strange freak of the storm was reported from Princeton Ind. where four miners en route to their home from work were lifted bodily from the small automobile in which they were riding and deposited unhurt at the roadside by the wind. Their car was swept away.

A 17-year-old Princeton boy was credited with saving the lives of his mother and two brothers whom he huddled on the floor of their home and covered with a rug. The rug was strewn with broken glass and debris when the roof was blown away.

A letter bearing a Poseyville postmark was picked up near Bloomfield, more than 100 miles away.

Finds Baby Girl Unhurt.

A rescue worker, noticing a baby's shoe protruding from the debris of a miner's home, grasped it to find Becky Reed under the wreckage. She was unhurt.

A grain elevator was moved intact to the middle of a road forty feet away.

In only one instance was damage to a train reported.

W. E. Lemley, the inspector for a Poplar Bluff, Mo., lumber company, was in a restaurant eating when the storm struck. "The roof went off first," he said, "and then all four sides were swept away. I was left sitting on the floor with nothing around me. Then I left."

The Missouri Pacific dept at Annapolis was hit by the storm. The bay window at which the agent, W. C. Gunther, sat, remained intact and timbers supporter the window still stood upright after the storm. Several persons were pinned beneath falling timbers in the waiting room.

A mother at De Soto lying in bed with her two-weeks'-old baby escaped death when her home collapsed and the timbers fell across the bed in such a manner as to protect her and the baby.

The Illinois Central bridge on the Zeigler branch shifted six feet from its concrete pillars.

The death total at Gorham was estimated by railroad officials at seventy-five, with 150 injured. When the storm struck Gorham a physician was giving a woman patient a hypodermic. The woman and her husband standing nearby were killed but the doctor suffered only a broken collar bone.

The Scene at West Frankfort.

Here is a hasty picture of West Frankfort viewed on entry from the north. Huge trees and small shrubs in the bottom land of the middle fork torn up by the roots or stripped of their branches and twisted in two half way to their tops. The wire stripped from a steel fence around the C. W. and F. Coal Company's Giant Mine, Orient No. 2, the second largest coal mine in the world. The steel posts are bent to the ground and the tipple and working of the mine destroyed. Several men lost their lives in the tipple wreck.

Seven hundred miners were under ground when the tornado ripped their homes to splinters in a terrible slaughter of their families. These miners climbed up from the bowels of the earth to witness this sight. Most of their homes were laid low and many of their loved ones were dead and mangled in the wreckage. Dozens of automobiles which carried these men to work in the morning were twisted pieces of wreckage, scattered over the fields with the debris from the houses.

ABBEY FUNERAL FOR CURZON AS FINAL TRIBUTE

Royalty and Statesmen at Obsequies in Westminster Abbey Next Wednesday.

NATION'S HONORS.

Injury in Youth Left Permanent Affliction of Almost Continuous Pain.

LONDON, March 21. — The honor of a funeral service in Westminster Abbey is to be accorded Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, one of Great Britain's most distinguisher statesmen, who died early on Friday after a brief illness.

The ceremony will be attended by representatives of the Royal Household, members of both houses of parliament and a great gathering of prominent personages in all phases of national activity.

The funeral ceremony will take place Wednesday, and immediately afterwards the body will be conveyed to Kedleston where it will be buried on Thursday in the presence of the family of the Marquis and personal friends.

As a mark of respect the House of Lords, in which Lord Curzon was government leader, will not carry out its usual business on Monday. A motion for adjournment will be the signal for funeral orations.

Well Known Abroad.

The dead statesman, who was the lord president of the council in the present British cabinet through his long occupation of the office of secretary for foreign affairs and his world wide travels, was better known abroad than most of the other British statesmen. As a consequence at his London residence yesterday there was a constant stream of messengers bringing telegrams of condolence and sympathy from all parts of the world. These included messages from numerous heads of foreign governments.

Rather unusual reticence still is being observed by the family of Marquis Curzon concerning cause of his death. None of the official bulletins of the physicians in attendance upon him ever mentioned the nature of the operation he underwent, and only in the final stages of his illness was the news that congestion of the lungs had supervened allowed to be mentioned."

The fact that one of the surgeons who performed the operation was Sir John W. Thompson-Walker, a famous urologist, allowed the nature of the malady to be suspected, but no real indication of its actual nature has been announced.

Ridden by Pain.

Sir Herbert Barker, a specialist in manipulative surgery, and who had known Marquis Curzon for many years, said to-night:

"The real tragedy in Lord Curzon's life was the incurable injury to his back received during his childhood, which rarely left him free of a dull, wearying pain and doubtless did much gradually to sap his vitality. But he always rose above what would have reduced most men to chronic invalidism or irritability, and courageously continued to render the world noble services that we all must feel proud of."

Dr. Barker was referring to the injury Curzon received which necessitated the constant use of braces for his back."

THE WEATHER

According to the almanac to-day is the first day of spring. This morning robins could be heard merrily inviting the world to "cheer up!" while the song sparrow's more delicate and, perhaps, more musical litany of praise floated through the air. I was also shown a pansy in full bloom and lusty growth that had survived the rigors of our Canadian winter. Naturally it had been in a sheltered place, but there it was nevertheless, seeming to say "Spring is here!" Let poets, and others who so desire, sing the praises of the Canadian winter, its snow, its storms, its ice, I desire none of it. Welcome little spring and may it prove worthy of its name.—W. P.

DOG SEARCHES FOR MISTRESS

And Finds Her in Cot in Emergency Hospital in Storm Area.

BOY RESCUED.

CHICAGO, March 21 —(Canadian Press).—Many unusual stories are being told througout th storm swept area of Wednesday's tornado as first aid and salvaging work continues today. From the debris of Logan Grade school at Muryhyboro, Ills., yesterday, lad of twelve years, who had been entombed since the school collapsed in the twister was uncovered. Seemingly dazed when he first reached the light and air, the boy soon recovered and evading photographers, who wanted his picture, he quickly dashed for his home.

Rescue workers re-doubled their efforts in the hope that others might be found alive in the school wreckage. At Griffin, Ills., a little dog badly crippled in one foot came hobbling into the temporary hospital, enquiringly searched the faces in the long line of cots bordering each wall finally found the one it looked for and dashed for a bed where five year old, Ellen Gregory lay. A joyous reunion followed, and now when the physicians remove the little girl to dress her wounds the dog follows and has his bruised limb re-bandaged.

TWO BROTHERS AT PRINCETON RIVALS FOR FRESHMAN LEADER

PRINCETON, N.J., March 21.—Announcementa was made at Princeton University yesterday that Charles T. Elliott Jr., 20 years old, and his brother, William P. Elitt, both of Plainfield, N.J., were candidates for President of the freshman class (Princeton, '28).

Both boys started at Hil Preparatory, but Charles left after the end of the first year to go to Exeter, so that the brothers represent the choice of the two most popular prep school groups in the class. Both are good athletes.

ONE OF CECILS IS TO FOLLOW CURZON

Is General Impression in Political Circles—Must Not Offend Die Hards.

LONDON, March 21 (Canadian Press).—Prime Minister Baldwin will not have great difficulty in finding a successor to the late Marquis Curzon as Lord President of the Council, but his real task will be the selection of one of the many available Conservative leaders without offending the "Die-Hards," or other factions of his party, it was said in political circles today.

It is considered almost certain that a Cecil will assume the office as Earl Balfour, Viscount Cecil and Marquis Salisbury, all members of the famous English family, are the most prominent candidates.

A few weeks ago when Earl Balfour was invited to take a prominent part in the cabinet deliberations on the Geneva protocol, it was rumored that he would be asked to join the Baldwin cabinet.

PERCY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY REGRETS RESIGNATION OF ITS SECRETARY, J. A. ARMSTRONG

Has Been Director For 21 Years—Secretary-Treasurer 6 Years.

NEW POSITION.

A. B. Armstrong is Appointed to Succeed—Committees Named For Year.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, March 21. —The directors of the Percy Township Agricultural Society at a meeting held in the Community Hall, Friday afternoon, accepted with regret the resignation of J. A. Armstrong, who has been a hard-working director for the past 21 years and who for the past six years has filled the dual position of secretary and treasurer. Mr. Armstrong has been appointed deputy license inspector for Northumberland County and will be obliged to make his head-quarters in Cobourg, although he will retain his residence in Warkworth for the present.

The resignation was accepted on motion of Directors W. S. Nelson and W. A. Kelly. Mr. Armstrong spoke of the regret with which he gave up active connection with the Fair but promised to continue to give the directors all the assistance in his power. H. S. Nelson and other members of the Board expressed appreciation of the value of Mr. Armstrong's long years of efficient service.

New Secretary Appointed.

A. B. Armstrong, brother of the retiring secretary and who is serving his first year as a director, was elected to the vacant positon on motion of W. A. Kelly and W. S. Nelson. On the retiring secretary's suggestion, the offices of secretary and treasurer were separated and H. S. Nelson was chosen for the latter position on motion of Directors George Hutchinson and C. Sherwin.

The New Committee.

President, George Poole, the first and second vice-president and the new secretary were appointed a committees for the year and after committees for the year and after retiring brought in the following nominations:

Advertising—H. S. Walker, J. S. Phillips, W. E. Hermiston, F. H. Moore and Secretary Armstrong.

Racing—W. S. Nelson, H. B. S. Skinkle, Harry Aylesworth, Elmer Oliver.

Track—C. H. Sherwin, President Poole, Harold E. Skinkle, Freeman White.

Grounds—W. A. Kelly, George Hutchison, President Poole, Fred Moore, Henry Watters.

Finance.—W. H. Nelson, John Leonard, J. F. Freure, Secretary Armstrong.

The members of each committee will elect their own chairman.

Grounds Are Free.

When the suggestion was made that a charge be made for the holding of games on the Fair Grounds, W. S. Nelson vigorously combatted the idea. The people of town and township, he said, supported the Fair and the grants and special prizes more than offset anything in the shape of rent. He moved, seconded by Freeman White, that the use of the grounds for recreation purposes be free, and this was agreed to.

Prize List Unchanged.

The prize list for the Fair this year, which will be held on Thursday and Friday, October 8 and 9, will be the same as the list of last year. Very few changes were made in the rules.

The owners of prize winning colts must furnish the judges with the names and register number of the sires as well as the names of the proprietor of the latter. All exhibitors will be required to send to the secretary within 10 days after the Fair, a written list of their winnings, so that a proper record can be kept and the lists checked off on the books.

Two hundred prize badges will be ordered from Secretary Lockie Wilson of the Ontario Fairs Association if the price is satisfactory.

Directors of Departments.

The following directors of the various departments were appointed:

Heavy horses—Henry Watters.
Light horses—William J. Ross.
Poultry—W. S. and H. S. Nelson.
Beef cattle—Freeman White.
Dairy cattle—C. Sherwin.
Grain and seeds—W. A. Kelly.
Sheep—W. E. Hermiston.
Pigs—George Hutchinson.
Apiary and other products—J. L. Phillips.
Domestic needlecraft — H. L. Walker.
Oil painting—J. F. Freure.

Overalls For Everybody.

At the Fair last fall one of the special features was a tug-of-war between a team of Percy Township stalwarts and the champions from Burnbrae in Seymour. Each side won a round, but in the pull-off a dispute arose. George A. Kinsgley of Cobourg, the best known starting judge of horse races in Eastern Ontario, was arbiter of this event. Mr. Kingsley has amicably adjusted many a tangle in the finish of a horse race, but the dispute over the tug-of-war was beyond him, and he refused to give a decison. The matter has been settled by the Warkworth Board of Directors by the presentation, to each of the twenty men on both teams that took part of a pair of overalls, the prizes offered to the winners. This cost the directors a matter of $40, but they regard harmony as cheap at this price. The Burnbrae men, arrayed in their new apparel, have thanked the Warkworth directors for their generosity.

In the meantime the Percy tug-of-war men thirst for satisfaction, and offer to pull the Burnbrae team at the celebration to be held by the Seymour Agricultural Society at Campbellford on the 24th of May.

HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George, Ont., writes: "After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the day time I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about so decided to try them.

After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H. & N. Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

MANY NORWEGIAN PULPITS EMPTY.

OSLO, Norway, March 21.—The government department responsible for the administration of religious affairs is showing concern over the shortage of clergymen in Norway. The latest figures issued set forth that, calculated over the whole country, one church in every five is without an incumbent. Although the number of theological students who are coming forward for ordination shows an increase, it will be many years before every vacant church can be filled.

RIORDON PLANT MAY BE SOLD TO PAPER COMPANY

Shareholders of International Pulp and Paper Company to Vote on Project.

VAST PROPERTY.

Look to Canadian Resources For Increased Output—Tariff Removed in 1911.

MONTREAL, March 21. — Next Tuesday, the shareholders of the International Paper Company assemble to vote on the proposal of their directors to purchase the properties of the Riorden Pulp and Paper Company. In this connection, a statement just issued says in part:

"This step by the International in buying the vast Riorden properties and ultimately building a new paper mill in the centre of them, is regarded as marking official recognition on the part of leaders in the United States Paper industry of the fact that hereafter the United States must look to Canada for increases in its supply of the paper upon which its newspapers are printed.

"The timberland holdings of the International Paper Company will constitute an area equal to that of the States of Massachusets, Connecicut and Rhode Island, if the shareholders of that company adopt the proposal of their directors to buy the properties of the Riorden Company at their special meeting called for March 24. They will also definitely recognize the trend of the newsprint manufacturing industry from the United States to Canada.

"There is thus marked another milestone of the progress of the industry in Canada ,which received its greatest impetus when, in 1911, the tariff was removed on newsprint paper entering the United States, since then, the adavntage to Canada of free entrance of its newsprint into the United States market has been growing more and more evident.

"In orderto preserve the position of the cmpany and to insure its growth as a newsprint producer, it has been necessary for the International Paper Company to develop in Canada."

MOTHERS LIKE TO TREAT COLDS WITH VAPORS

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Inflamed Air Passages.

It is no longer necessary constantly to dose the children in treating croup, bronchitis, sore throat or deep chest colds. Many Canadian mothers now use the 'outside' remedy, Vicks VapoRub, for the cold troubles of all the family, because it is just rubbed over throat and chest—there is nothing to take. When so applied Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled directly into the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and making the breathing easier.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

HORTICULTURISTS MET AT HASTINGS

Report of 195 Members This Year Is Encouraging—Protect Park Flowers.

HASTINGS, March 21.—A meeting of the Hastings Horticultural Society was held this week. The chair was occupied by the Reverend Father Bretherton, president of the Society.

The secretary, Mr. G. Marryatt, gave a very satisfactory report, and one hundred and ninety-five members had so far this year, paid their fees. This is a large increase over that of last year.

The president gave a report of the recent Ontario Horticultural Society Convention, held in Toronto in February. An outline was given by the president of the topics which were given by different speakers at the convention. A deputation, namely Mr. C. B. Plant and Rev. D. A. Thompson was appointed to be present at the next council meeting and ask that they, the Council, find some means of protecting the public flower beds at the Town Hall Park.

The list of the options for the flowers have been in circulation now for some time and an excellent list has been selected by the commtitee for the members' choice of flowers.

PICKED JOHANNESBURG.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 21. —(United Press).—A cablegram received at the Yale University Observatory from Dr. Frank Schlesinger, director of the observatory, who is in South Africa to choose a site, for the new Yale Observing Station, states that it will be located in Johannesburg. Dr. Schlesinger sailed in January to choose the site and make the necessary preparations for the foundation of the photographic telescope, which is 36 feet in length and the largest ever placed in the Southern Hemisphere and the third largest in the world.

CAMPBELLROD COUNCIL

A. J. Meyers is serving his fifth term as Mayor of Campbellford, having been given the position by acclamation three times in succession and having been twice endorsed by the electors. He offered to withdraw at the end of last year, but his friends were insistent, satisfied as they were that the majority of the voters appreciated his public service. If the Mayor cares to remain in the field he is almost certain to eclipse the seven year record of ex-Mayor Church of Toronto.

In private life Mayor Meyers, as head of the local branch of the Peterboro Cereal Company, holds one of the most important business positions in Campbellford. He is interested in sports and prominent in fraternal circles. As a presiding officer at the meetings of Council he is patient and eminently fair, a lover of harmony on all important issues. His training and experience as an engineer has been of practical value to the municipality in the extensive sewer construction programme that has been carried on for the past two years. Economy is his watchword and to him every financial problem is transparent, as he possesses all the gifts of an expert accountant. The Mayor is a good "mixer" and his friends predict for him a still wider experience in public life.

CANADIAN FINDS LARGE DINOSAUR

African Exploration Reveals Largest Skeleton Yet Discovered—80 Feet.

DID IT DROWN?

WINNIPEG, Man., March 21. (Canadian Press).—Professor W. B. Cutler of the faculty of the University of Manitoba, now leading a research expedition in British East Africa, has found the largest dinosaur skelton, according to word received in Winnipeg.

Prof. Cutler's scientific explorations are being conducted on behalf of the British museum, near Tendaguru, 60 miles north of Lindi, in Africa, where German scientists before the war, found specimens of skeltons of gigantic prehistoric reptiles.

Prof. Cutler left Winnipeg about ten months ago, going first to England and sailing from there to Africa. He has as chief assistant L. S. B. Leaky, a Kenya-born Cambridge student, who preceded him to Africa to handle the transport and make general arrangements for the expedition.

Mr. Leaky has now returned to London with specimens, photographs and the story of the results so far.

Prof. Cutler's party took up the exploration work of the German scientists, and members of the group are of the opinion that the field of research at Lindi has only been touched by earlier efforts.

The dinosaur skelton, is believed to be between eight and ten million years old. It had a probable height of twenty feet and an estimated length of eighty feet. A shoulder blade, the largest bone so far unearthed, measured 74 inches across and needed sixteen men to lift it. A femur measuring 65 inches and a tibia 54 inches are among the other bones reclaimed.

The presence of the giant reptiles at the spot at Tendaguru is attributed to drowning. The subsoil is soft clay. In long forgotten ages, Prof. Cutler believes, these giants wandered in herds along the sea coast. Now and again one would step into clay too sielding for such a large animal, sink and smother to death.

Prof. Cutler before he undertook the expedition was laboratory assistant at the geological branch of the Manitoba university. He first came into prominence through his discoveries of fossil vertebrae in the Red River Valley.

WARKWORTH LIGHT COMMISSION HAS SCORED COMPLETE SUCCESS

Surplus Will Be Returned to Patrons Through Cheaper Lights.

USERS GROWING.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, March 21—The Warkworth Electric Light and Power Commission, the members of which are W. A. Kelly, chairman; Dr. C. C. Armstrong, George Walker, and A. M. Smale, secretary, have by careful and efficient management scored a financial triumph ever since the lights were turned on in the autumn of 1923. The total revenue for last year amounted to $4,234.79. On the operation of the system, there was a surplus of $1,543.17 after the debenture payment was provided for. On the sale of the $11,000 debentures last year, a bonus of over $550 was secured.

Means Cheaper Light.

The surplus will be returned to the patrons of the system in the form of cheaper lights, a reduction of about one-third being the cheerful prospect. The number of users is increasing as the advantages of the new illumination become more generally understood.

Different From Campbellford.

The disposal of the light and power surplus here is different from the plan recently announced in Campbellford, where $6,000 of the money on hand was turned over to the general fund of the town, instead of being applied to a reduction in the cost to consumer. In Campbellford all the ratepayers are taxed to pay for the plant. In Warkworth only the actual users of light are responsible for the debenture payments.

The Shout, Not Whisper, of Death.

The Hydro system was not installed in Warkworth without a bitter fight. The question was the main issue in many a hard-fought municipal election, and more than one promising civic servant went to an early political grave on account of the stand he took. Prominent citizens made gloomy forecasts of municipal disaster, and more than one prophet of gloom has been discredited by actual results. Orators at the annual town meetings almost shed tears as they pictured the widows and orphans turned out into a cold and unfeeling world, their homes sold for taxes to pay the debenture debt of $11,000 created by the installation of Hydro in the village. And now all is serenity. Light burns on the streets of Warkworth and in the homes of those who care to use it, 24 hours a day if required. The juice is always on tap, and the most aggressive critics sidestep the electric light question in the municipal campaigns.

LONDON HOTEL SPEEDS UP TO HOLD AMERICAN TRADE

LONDON, March 21.—One of the few London hotels which still retains an old world atmosphere has recently been modernized in so far as radio is concerned as head sets for listening-in waves have been installed in every room in the house.

In the summer 80 to 90 percent of the patronage of this hotel is made up of American travellers. Until a few years ago, when the hotel was sold, it had belonged to members of one family for nearly 80 years.

CANTON FARMER DROWNED BY FLOOD

Drove Off Flooded Road Into Deep Water in Stream.

PORT HOPE, March 21 (Canadian Press).—Mistaking his way through flooding of the highway at Canton, four miles northwest of the oldest settlers in Canton district, Port Hope, Charles Yeates, one of met his death by drowning when his team of horses and rig were swept down stream. The horses got out safely, but it is thought that Yeates, in attempting to turn around after he found that he was in the stream, upset the box on the wagon. The body was found half a mile from the place he had entered the water.

The deceased was close to 70 years of age and leaves a widow and two sons.

MARQUIS CURZON.

The British Empire has lost one of its most prominent citizens in the death of Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, Lord President of the Council.

It is said that statesmen are born and not made, but Marquis Curzon was both born and made a statesman.

He was the very epitome of the ruling aristocrat.

Educated with a view to going into public life, he completed his training first by extensive travelling and investigation in practically all parts of the world, and then returned to embark in politics.

His career was a brilliant success. Although he never reached the highest pinnacle—the post of Prime Minister—he held at one time or another almost every other great office in the gift of the crown.

His passing removes a world figure, a personality such as may never again be found in such prominence in governing circles in Great Britain.

THE REAL CAUSE.

The argument as to the causes of the defeat of the Government of Sir William Hearst continues unabated, with one side claiming that Mr. Hearst was "knifed" by the temperance forces and the other that he was driven out of office by the wets in revenge for the passing of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Both factions stoutly maintain that their version of the debacle is correct.

As a matter of fact, does not all the evidence point to the real cause of the overthrow of the Hearst administration being found half way between these two conditions?

It is undoubtedly true that the wet vote, or a large part of it, was registered against Mr. Hearst.

It is equally true that the dry vote split along party lines, and was not thrown in behind the man who was responsible for the Ontario Temperance Act.

In other words, it was not either one or the other of the two elements that overturned the Hearst Government, but a combination of them both.

The dry forces, if they had united behind the Government, might have saved it in spite of the desertion of wet Conservatives, but the temperance army split into two or three camps on political lines, and there could only be one result under the circumstances.

RELIEF NEEDED.

Impressed with the necessity of saving a large number of women and children from famine conditions, the Local Council of Women is arranging to secure local subscriptions to the relief fund for the families of the striking Nova Scotia miners.

Whatever may be the real facts as to the quarrel between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its employees there is no disguising the truth of the situation that thousands of Canadian people are in dire circumstances, very close to starvation, unless relief comes from somewhere.

Those who are on the scene and know the conditions thoroughly declare that the situation is desperate.

The Mayor of Glace Bay declares that he never wants to see again such conditions as exist in Cape Breton.

Rev. Father Macadam, parish priest and Chairman of the Relief Committee, and Rev. A. McLeod, Presbyterian pastor, the Secretary, report that the $12,000 fund at the disposal of the committee will be wiped out by the end of the week, and that there is nothing with which to start relief next week, pointing out that even if a settlement were reached now there would be urgent need of relief work for at least two more weeks.

THE O. T. A. AMENDMENTS.

The amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act announced by Attorney-General Nickle will undoubtedly ge passed by the Legislature and become law, and it will be the duty of the people of Ontario to see that the new regulations are obeyed.

Hard-shell prohibitionists will find it hard to accept Mr. Nickle's declaration that the changes are a move toward real temperance, but they and their fellow-citizens should give the new system a chance to show what it is capable of in dealing with that vexed question—the liquor problem.

The amendments are not as sweeping as many people seemed to fear.

The new beer is not to be sold over the bar, but by standard hotels and certain approved restaurants and cafes at tables provided for the purpose, following the European system, which the Attorney-General believes to be much superior to the sale over the bar.

Groceries on permit may also sell the 4.4 beer, but only for home consumption, while its sale to boys under eighteen years of age is prohibited.

As for the other changes in the O. T. A. they will in all probability be approved by the majority of people. The jailing of bootleggers on their first conviction, while, of course, not popular with the men engaged in the traffic, will be hailed as an improvement by almost everybody else.

The reducing of the minimum fine for being found in possession of liquor illegally to $50 will also be regarded as a step in the right direction, as will the decrease in the number of prescriptions that may be issued by doctors.

Tightening the coils on bootleggers and cutting down the "scripts" will materially aid the enforcement of the Act, the lessening penalties for minor infractions will do much to remove a very bitter cause of resentment against the measure, and the providing of facilities for the furnishing of a better quality, more palatable beer should lessen the demand for more intoxicating beverages.

The extremists on either side of the question will not be satisfied, but nearly everybody else will be content to watch the effect of the amendments.

THE DISARMAMENT HOPE.

President Coolidge's offer of another disarmament conference has not aroused the enthusiasm which he perhaps expected. A considerable part of the British public is openly skeptical, says the London Advertiser.

The difficulty seems to be that while the Washington Treaty has been successful in limiting armaments, it has placed little or no check upon competition, and the race for naval supremacy has continued as furiously as ever within the limits set forth.

According to the treaty, for example, new cruisers are limited to 10,000 tons in size and to eight-inch guns in armament. Keeping within this limit, the Japanese have promptly planned carrying twelve eight-inch guns on their new cruisers, an unprecedented gun power for such vessels.

Similarly, the last two years have been occupied by American agitation over reports that Britain intende d altering gun elevations on her battleships to increase the range.

On the part of each nation there is a disposition to squeeze the maximum of offensive power out of the treaty's limitations. The nations are observing the letter but not the spirit of the law, and it seems unlikely that any disarmament agreement can accomplish its real purpose under such conditions.

Competition for offensive power will not be ended by Washington treaties or by Coolidge conferences. There will have to be a change in the hearts and minds of the nations which will permit disputes to be settled with confidence by international authority.

THE COMING THING.

We hear today much of the progress of aviation as a commercial aid. Those who have watched the development of aerial transportation are prophesying a time close at hand when aeroplanes and airships will occupy an important place in the world of commerce. Indeed, they are already being put to fairly wide use. There is one means which would aid their advance immeasurably, and which is being neglected by most cities and towns, the Border Cities among them. It is the matter of landing fields. This was stressed by Mr. W. A. Mara, Assistant Secretary of the Detroit Board of Commerce, in an address here this week. He gave the Border Cities something for consideration.

Practically the only factor that is today holding back aerial transport is that of finances. Companies which would be glad to resort to this means for rapid transit of men and merchandise are deterred to no small extent by the great expense necessitated were they to establish landing fields in every city in which they desired to call. Even the rental of a chain of such open spaces would be out of the question, as it would increase the overhead of a transportation system so greatly as to prevent it operating profitably. Herein lies a chance for cities and towns to do something of benefit both to themselves and to human progress. Furnishing suitable fields would not be an expensive proposition for municipalities; in fact, it could be made actually profitable. All that is needed is a space of a few acres on the outskirts of the corporation, equipped with a service station for aeroplanes, and with one or two good mechanics in attendance or available on short notice. In a few years to come, when aerial transport, encouraged by the efforts put forth in its behalf, had become general, the field would pay for itself out of nominal fees charged for servicing and refueling machines that called. If a few hangars of an inexpensive type were included in the equipment, which could be rented for storing aeroplanes over night, the revenue would be added to.

The West has been quicker than the East to recognize the value of such places, and many cities in the prairie country are now equipped with municipal landing fields. The result has been that flying has attained much more popularity there than here, and few are the cities that cannot boast at least a few owners of aeroplanes, all encouraged by what their municipalities have done for their convenience.

There is also a Federal consideration which is probably doing its part to hold back aviation's progress. Those who have had experience state that the qualifications which the Dominion Government demands before granting flying licenses are entirely unreasonable. A case in point is that of a local man who a year or so ago began a commercial flying business. He purchased an aeroplane and rented a landing field in the east end, but Government regulations demanded so much expense that he was forced out of the game. This aviator was one with several years' experience at the front, during which time he had brought down a number of enemy machines. He was a product of Royal Flying Corps and Royal Air Force training, and had had a thorough course in engine fitting and aerial rigging, and knew when his machine was safe for flying. Undoubtedly he had enough experience to know that it was foolish to fly in an unsafe "bus," and naturally would not risk his life by doing so. But after this experienced pilot had taken all precautions, a Government inspector is said to have demanded safeguards out of all reason, and ordered changes in construction that could not be made without heavy expense, so heavy, in fact, that carrying on business would have been a losing proposition. Safeguards must be insisted upon, and no one but thoroughly competent pilots should be allowed to fly, certainly, but when Government regulations go so far that they become unreasonable "red tape," then there is little hope of progress. Flying does not demand any great encouragement. Given two things—a good systme of municipal landing fields and sane regulation—it will look after its own development. And it is coming rapidly. Twenty years from now should see aircraft in almost as extensive use as motor cars and trucks are today.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Spring officially arrives today—it is hoped to stay.

The 4.4 beer amendment will at least stimulate the sale of tables and chairs, even if foot-rails will not be in demand.

It was perhaps poetic justice to remind Mr. Raney that in failing to attend the sessions of the Public Accounts Committee last year he did not display any signs of the interest he is now showing in the Home Bank transactions.

Maplewood is boasting about not having felt the recent earthquake. That is more in the nature of a confession than anything else.

It is reported that when Madame Tassaud's famous wax works were burned the other night some of the figures ran.

A THOUGHT.

BRAVE MEN.

Ah, men are strong! Men can endure!
Men stick their chests out very far!
They strut about the world, secure
In knowledge of how brave they are.
You watch them; they impress you much
Till you have married one of such
And nursed him through an illness; then
The tale is something else again.

Gone is endurance! Gone is strength!
Sick men like fretful babies lie,
Reciting woes at endless length,
Regarding you with bleary eye;
They are reluctant to believe
Their illnesses aught can relieve,
They always think they're sicker far
Than, as a fact, they really are.

When men have inward ache or pain
From too much food or too much drink,
They'll always tell you it's ptomaine,
They never will survive, they think;
If errant razor gouges chin,
They look for gangrene to set in,
And swollen glands to them denote
Malignant cancer of the throat.

So, little bride, I bid you not
To worry, nor in grief to sit,
No matter what he says he's got,
You may be sure that isn't it;
Dispel your fears and your dismay,
He'll live to strut another day,
For he is brave, and he is strong—
Has he not said so all along?

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 20.—Supplies of cattle this week have been nicely proportioned to requirements, receipts being neither too heavy nor too light. The fact the usual export buyers would be practically out of the market for the week, due, it is understood, to there being no boat scheduled for sailing, was made widely known to cattle shippers, who governed themselves accordingly. The result was that comparatively few heavy export cattle were shipped in, and the few that did arrive were well taken care of by the local packers at about the same prices, if not a little better than the exporters themselves would have paid for them under normal conditions. There was in fact all through the week, except for the usual slowing up in Tuesday's buying, when the packers are busy clearing up their yards after Monday's bigger market. In Wednesday's market buying was actively resumed, and prices were easily maintained, and in spots a shade firmer. Choice butcher steers and heifers covered a steady range from $7 to $7.75, with a few extra choice heavy beef steers, around 1,200 lbs. up to $8 and $8.25. Fair, medium butcher stuff ran steady all week around $6.50 to $6.75, and common butcher $5.50 to $6.

Any possibility of easier prices in the calf market was stopped by purchases made for Buffalo and an additional buyer for this market was ready to operate if the opportunity offered. Prices are firmed by 50 cents a cwt. for the week and medium calves are up more than this. Choice calves have sold from 13 to 14 cents, good calves, 11½ to 12 cents and medium calves 9 to 11 cents. Common calves and grassers are selling from 5 to 8½ cents a pound.

The lamb market has been very quiet owing to the small offerings. Choice 80 to 95-lb. lambs have sold from 16½ to 17 cents a pound and heavy lambs and bucks at 14 to 15 cents. Sheep are steady at 9 cents for choice. Spring lambs of good weights are realizing $14 to $17.

It has been difficult to keep track of the hog market as there has been no stipulated daily prices. Sellers have taken advantage of the short supply and prices are up 75 cents a cwt., with week-end prices $13 a cwt. f.o.b. and $14 a cwt. off cars.

Sterling cables $4.78 5-8.

EGG PRICES.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 20. — Rusher to buy wheat today followed a stampede to sell and the market whirled skyward. From the bottom of 5 1-2 cents collapse at the outset, prices flew up nearly 10 cents at the last. Reports of surprising scarcity of Canadian wheat available for export did much to swing the market completely around, notwithstanding earlier news of financial difficulties among grain firms in Europe. The wheat market here closed strong at the day's top figures 1-4 to 4 3-4 cents net higher, May 167 3-4 to 168 1-4 and July 145 to 145 1-2. Corn finished unchanged to 1 1-8 cents lower, oats unchanged to 3-8 cents up, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to 17 cents advance.

Word of a startling drop in wheat quotations at Liverpool reached traders here before the Chicago market opened. Almost simultaneously reports became current that a big grain house in Antwerp was embarassed and that there had been a heavy failure of a grain firm at Berlin. Under such circumstances many owners of wheat threw their holdings on the market and prices plunged down 5 1-2 cents during the initial transactions. From that point on, however, despite many swift changes the market was on the rally and in the final half hour went up in good earnest.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 20. — Despite the weak and discouraging advices from Europe and the absence of an important export business here a high stronger feeling developed today in Winnipeg cash wheat market, with prices closing 2 3-4 cents higher per bushel. No. 1 Northern was quoted at $1.68 3-8. No. 2 Northern at $1.62 7-8, and No. 3 Northern at $1.58 3-8 per bushel, ex-store, Fort William.

The export business in the grain market was exceedingly quiet on account of the fact that there were few firm bids from foreign buyers for supplies. In sympathy with the renewed strength in oats at Winnipeg, local prices for oats advanced 1cent per bushel, but business was quiet with No. 2 Canadian Western quoted at 68 cents, No. 3 quoted at 60 cents, No. 1 feed at 57 cents and No. 2 feed at 53 cents per bushel, ex-store.

Reports were current locally today that Russia was again after Canadian flour, but apart from this the market was very quiet, there being a

THE Mutual Life of Canada is a company of approximately 110,000 policyholders bonded together for mutual protection and support in time of trouble. They obtain the insurance practically at cost. Surplus profits over and above provision of necessary reserves are divided among participating policyholders.

Last year, the sum of $2,689,000 was thus distributed to Mutual policyholders as dividends.

Mutual profit-participating policyholders have three options: (1) They may apply their profits to increasing the face value of their policies; (2) They may apply them to reducing premiums; (3) They may take out their profits in cash.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Then she dragged herself to her knees and turned to the men, and Pierrot, even in the blood-red fury of his desire to kill, must have heard the sharp cry of joy that came from her when she saw that it was the Factor from Lac Bain who was underneath. With a tremendous effort she staggered to her feet, and for a few moments she stood swaying unsteadily as her brain and her body readjusted themselves. Even as she looked down upon the blackening face from which Pierrot's fingers were choking the life, Bush McTaggart's hand was groping blindly for his pistol. He found it. Unseen by Pierrot, he dragged it from its holster. It was one of the black devils of chance that favored him again, for in his excitement he had not snapped the safety shut after shooting Baree. Now he had only strength left to pull the trigger. Twice his forefinger closed. Twice there came deadened explosion close to pierrot's body.

In pierrot's face Nepeese saw what had happened. Her heart died in her breast as she looked upon the swift and terrible change wrought by sudden death. Slowly Pierrot straightened. His eyes were wide for a moment—wide and staring. He made no sound. She could not see his lips move. And then he fell toward her, so that McTaggart's body was free. Blindly and with an agony that gave no evidence in cry or word she flung herself down beside him. He was dead.

How long Nepeese lay there, how long she waited for Pierrot to move, to open his eyes, to breathe, she would never know. In that time McTaggart rose to his feet and stood leaning against the wall, the pistol in his hand, his brain clearing itself as he saw his final triumph. His work did not frighten him. Even in that tragic moment as he stood against the wall, his defence—if it ever came to a defence—framed itself in his mind. Pierrot had murderously assaulted him—without cause. In self-defence he had killed him. Was he not the Factor of Lac Bain? Would not the Company and the law believe his word before that of this girl? His brain leaped with the old exultation. It would never come to that—to a betrayal of this struggle and death in the cabin—after he had finished with her! She would not be known for all time as La Bete Noir. No, they would bury Pierrot, and she would return to Lac Bain with him. If she had been helpless before, she was ten times more helpless now. She would never tell of what happened in the cabin.

He forgot the presence of death as he looked at her, bowed over her father so that her hair covered him like a silken shroud. He replaced the pistol in its holster and drew a deep breath into his lungs. He was still a little unsteady on his feet, but his face was again the face of a devil. He took a step, and it was then there came a sound to rouse the girl. In the shadow of the farther wall Baree had struggled to his haunches, and now he growled.

Slowly Nepeese lifted her head. A power which she could not resist drew her eyes up until she was looking into the face of Bush McTaggart. She had almost lost consciousness of his presence; her senses were cold and deadened—it was as if her own heart had stopped beating along with Pierrot's.

What she saw in the Factor's face dragged her out of the numbness of her grief back to the abyss of her own peril. He was standing over her. In his face there was no pity, nothing of horror at what he had done—only an insane exultation as he looked—not at Pierrot's dead body, but at her. He put out a hand, and it rested on her head. She felt his thick fingers crumpling her hair, and his eyes blazed like embers of fire behind watery films. She struggled to rise, but with his hands at her hair he held her down

"Great God!" she breathed.

She uttered no other words, no plea for mercy, no other sound but a dry, hopeless sob. In that moment neither of them heard or saw Baree. Twice in crossing the cabin his hindquarters had sagged to the floor. Now he was close to McTaggart. He wanted to give a single lunge to the man-brute's back and snap his thick neck as he would have broken a caribou-bone. But he had no strength. He was still partially paralyzed from his fore-shoulder back. But his jaws were like iron, and they closed savagely on McTaggart's leg.

"She turned and faced McTaggart."

With a yell of pain the Factor released his hold on the Willow, and she staggered to her feet. For a precious half-minute she was free, and as the Factor kicked and struck to loose Baree's hold, she ran to the cabin door and out into the day. The cold air struck her face; it filled her lungs with new strength; and without thought of where hope might lie she ran through the snow into the forest.

McTaggart appeared at the door just in time to see her disappear. His leg was torn where Baree had fastened his fangs, but he felt no pain as he ran in pursuit of the girl. She could not go far. An exultant cry, inhuman as the cry of a beast, came in a great breath from his gaping mouth as he saw that she was staggering weakly as she fled. He was halfway to the edge of the forest when Baree dragged himself over the threshold. His jaws were bleeding where McTaggart had kicked him again and again before his fangs gave way. Halfway between his ears was a seared spot, as if a red-hot poker had been laid there for an instant. This was where McTaggart's bullet had gone. A quarter of an inch deeper, and it would have meant death. As it was, it had been like the blow of a heavy club, paralyzing his senses and sending him limp and unconscious against the wall. He could move on his feet now without falling, and slowly he followed in the tracks of the man and the girl.

As she ran, Nepeese's mind became all at once clear and reasoning. She turned into the narrow trail over which McTaggart had followed her once before, but just before reaching the chasm, she swung sharply to the right. She could see McTaggart. He was not running fast, but was gaining steadily, as if enjoying the sight of her helplessness, as he had enjoyed it another way that day. Two hundred yards below the deep pool into which she had pushed the Factor—just beyond the shallows out of which he had dragged himself to safety—was the beginning of Bule Feather's Gorge. An appalling thing was shaping itself in her mind as she ran to it—a thing that with each gasping breath she drew became more and more a great and glorious hope. At last she reached it and looked down. And as she looked, there whispered up out of her soul and trembled on her lips the swan-song of her mother's people.

Our Fathers—come:
Come from out of the valley.
Guide us—for to-day we die,
And the winds whisper of death!

She raised her arms. Against the white wilderness beyond the chasm she stood, tall and slim. Fifty yards behind her the Factor from Lac Bain stopped suddenly in his tracks. "Ah," he mumbled. "Is she not wonderful!" And behind McTaggart, coming faster and faster, was Baree.

Again the Willow looked down. She was at the edge, for she had no fear in this hour. Many times she had clung to Pierrot's hand as she looked over. Down there no one could fall and live. Fifty feet below her the water which never froze was smashing itself into froth among the rocks. It was deep and black and terrible, for between the narrow rock walls the sun did not reach it. The roar of it filled the Willow's ears.

She turned and faced McTaggart.

Even then he did not guess, but came toward her again, his arms stretched out ahead of him. X,f yards! It was not much, and shortening swiftly.

Once more the Willow's lips moved. After all, it is the mother soul that gives us faith to meet eternity—and it was to the spirit of her mother that the Willow called in the hour of death. With the call on her lips she plunged into the abyss, her wind-whipped hair clinging to her in a glistening shroud

CHAPTER XXII.

A moment later the Factor from Lac Bain stood at the edge of the chasm. His voice had called out in a hoarse bellow—a wild cry of disbelief and horror that had formed the Willow's name as she disappeared. He looked down, clutching his huge red hands and staring in ghastly suspense at the boiling water and black rocks far below. There was nothing there now—no sign of her, no last flash of her pale face and streaming hair in the white foam. And she had done that—to save herself from him!

The soul of the man-beast turned sick within him, so sick that he staggered back, his vision blinded and his legs tottering under him. He had killed Pierrot, and it had been a triumph; all his life he had played the part of the brute with a stoicism and cruelty that had known no shock—nothing like this that overwhelmed him now, numbing him to the marrow of his bones until he stood like one paralyzed. He did not see Baree. He did not hear the dog's whining cries at the edge of the chasm. For a few moments the world turned black for him; and then, dragging himself out of his stupor, he ran frantically along the edge of the gorge, looking down wherever his eyes could reach the water, striving for a glimpse of her. At last it grew too deep. There was no hope. She was gone—and she had faced that to escape him!

He mumbled that fact over and over again, stupidly, thickly, as though his brain could grasp nothing beyond it. She was dead. And Pierrot was dead. And he, in a few minutes, had accomplished it all.

He turned back toward the cabin—not by the trail over which he had pursued Nepeese, but straight through the thick bush. Great flakes of snow had begun to fall. He looked at the sky, where banks of dark clouds were rolling up from the south and east. The sun went out. Soon there would be a storm—a heavy snowstorm. The big flakes falling on his naked hands and face set his mind to work. It was lucky for him, this storm. It would cover everything—the fresh trails, even the grave he would dig for Pierrot.

It does not take such a man as the Factor long to recover from a moral concussion. By the time he came in sight of the cabin his mind was again at work on physical things—on the necessities of the situation. The appalling thing, after all, was not that both Pierrot and Nepeese were dead, but that his dream was shattered. It was not that Nepeese was dead, but that he had lost her. This was his vital disappointment. The other thing—his crime—it was easy to cover.

PRIEST CENSURES PARENTAL CONTROL

Says Parents Should Restrain Children's Actions and Require Obedience.

WINNIPEG, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—Vigorous censure of parents for lack of restraint over their children, permitting them to wear immodest dress and to frequent public dance halls was voiced in a sermon given by Right Rev. Msgr. J. W. Jubinville at St. Boniface, Man.

"If there is one thing in the world which is to blame for many prevailing evils, it' is the public dance hall," declared Msgr. Jubinville. "To publicly condemn a public institution is a serious matter but I am compelled to denounce the dance halls, where every night young women, half dressed, their faces covered with rouge and powder, may be seen all to intimate with young men.

"It is on the parents of these young folk that the blame must fall. You parents are too easy-going. When you hear of these things you say, 'what does it matter, everybody is doing it.'

When you say that you cannot manage your children you admit that they have got beyond your control, that they are too independent.

"I would advise you then to put them out of your home that you may safeguard the younger ones," Msgr. Jubinville said. "When you have shown your children that they must obey, they will return and do as they are told."

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN MEET

Plan to Open Subscription List to Help Striking Miners.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held Thursday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., the president, Mrs. A. Stevenson, in the chair. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Joseph Wearing, and Mrs. A. Mowat read the correspondence.

A letter was read from Mrs. Thorburn, of Ottawa, referring to the visit to Canada to be made shortly by Lady Aberdeen, president of the International Council of Women, who will be in Canada for a short time on her way to the quinquennial convention of the International Council, which commences on May 4th in Washington, D.C. The National Council wishes to present Lady Aberdeen with an I.C.W. pin, and the various Local Councils are asked to contribute a small amount toward its purchase. The Local Council decided to make a contribution to the fund.

Jottings from old minute books were read by Mrs. Mowat, giving an outline of the work accomplished by the Local Council since its inception in Peterboro.

Nominations for the Executive of the Provincial Council were discussed and it was decided to endorse the nominations as they stand at present.

Various resolutions which will come up for consideration of the Executive which meets at Ottawa in the latter part of the month were discussed. One from the West Algoma Council, asking that a letter of congratulation be sent Premier Ferguson for continuing the grant to the Social Hygiene Council, was endorsed by the Local Council, which also endorsed a resolution from the Toronto Council, asking the National Council to forward a letter of appreciation to the Federal Parliament for efforts in the way of amendments to the Pensions Act. Regret was expressed that these amendments had later been killed by the Senate, and it was suggested that the Federal Government bring in the matter as a Government measure at its next session. Mrs. W. R. Morris spoke at some length, explaining the scope of the proposed amendments.

Several suggestions with regard to amendments to the constitution of the National Council also came up for consideration. It is recommended that, in order to save the expense of engaging a travelling secretary for the Executive meetings of the Provincial Council, that a secretary be appointed locally, assisted by a stenographer.

It is also suggested that, in election of officers for the National Council, no candidate be allowed to stand for more than one office, also that the National Council re-affiliate with the Social Service Council, the matter of the affiliation fee to be decided by the National Council. Another amendment would recommend holding of biennial conventions of the National Council, instead of the present system of annual meetings.

Mrs. Stevenson announced that a vote on the budget of the National Council would be taken at the April meeting, and also brought up the question of the condition of the coal miners in Nova Scotia. Mrs. W. R. Morris was appointed to interview The Examiner with a view to opening up a subscription fund for the men and their families.

EXTRAORDINARY.

An eminent professor, who had achieved world-wide fame, was incredibly absent-minded. Returning home one night from a dinner held in his honor, he imagined that he heard a sound in his bedroom.

Making his way to the room, he entered and called out:

"Is anyone there?"

A thief lay concealed under the bed. Hearing the question, and perhaps knowing the professor, he shouted in reply:

"No!"

"That's exceedingly strange!" remarked the professor. "I was positive I heard someone in this room."—Answers, London.

FLOATING ISLAND

PARIS, March 21.—Four floating islands each costing $12,000,000 and equipped with hangars, repair plants and hotels—this is Henri Defrasse's vision of what is needed to make practicable and easy a regular hydro plane service between Brest, France, and New York. Moreover, some of the best minds in France have put the seal of approval upon the dream of the young architect, because he has been awarded the first prize by the Institute of Science for his plans.

Defrasse proceeds upon the assumption that the hydroplane is the air bus of the future, so far as rapid transit across the Atlantic is concerned. And he at once doped it out that in the present state of things it would be very difficult to make the crossing in one sustained flight if the machines were to carry passengers, mails and freight. Accordingly, he thinks the thing to do is to construct floating islands built of reinforced concrete. The side turned toward the direction of the wind would have a praw like a ship. The opposite end would be open to the water of the sea. The sides would be protected by reinforced barrages.

He does not think it would be possible to anchor such a structure and outside the high waves. So he thinks the best thing to do would be to let it float like a ship and to keen it going by means of huge propelling machines. In this way the prow could always be turned in the direction of the wind This would also turn it in the direction of the waves, so that the rear end, which was open, would always have comparatively calm water in which the hydroplanes could descend.

In the prow and at each of the horseshoe ends there would be powerful lighthouses for guidance of hydroplanes coming along in the dark. The prow part would be plentifully supplied with hangars.

One of the horseshoe sides would have machine shops for the repair of any parts that got out of whack in the transatlantic air 'buses. The other horseshoe side would have dining rooms, lounges and sleeping rooms for the passengers where they would get all the comforts of a modern hotel in case of delay to flight.

His figures show that the island would be 500 feet long and about 250 feet broad. The inner basin of quiet water would be 330 feet long by 100 feet broad. It would thus afford ample room for alighting or departing hydroplanes.

Defrasse also figures that the dimension of the island would be such as to avoid any very great or unpleasant rocking by ocean swells so that seasickness would not be one of the things that disembarked passengers and crew would suffer from.

A company owning and constructing such a series of islands would, of course, have to maintain a service by steamship which would carry the bulky supplies that the islands needed, such as coal, oil, machinery, food supplies, etc. Fresh water supplies could be secured by distillation of sea water. The islands would all be supplied with powerful wireless stations which would thus be in touch, not only with the air 'buses, but also with France and America. The temporary guests at the hotels on any of the islands would be able to keep posted on everything going on in the world.

ALL ENGLAND DISTURBED OVER CONDITION OF KING GEORGE V

State of Health Brings Up Group of Important Questions.

NO DANGER.

Question of Carrying on the Government During King's Absence Discussed.

By P. W. WILSON.

For the first time in a strenuous reign of fifteen years' duration King George V. of England has been ordered by his doctors to take a complete holiday. He is to proceed to the South of France and is to enjoy leisure on his yacht. For Britain and her empire, an indisposition of the Sovereign, even if it be happily not serious, ranks among those universal topics of discussion about which every one everywhere talks every day. The head of the King is imprinted on every stamp. It is engraved on every recent coin. It decorates every Treasury bill, every warrant for an old age pension and every money order sent through the post.

To his subjects, numbering one-quarter of the human race, the British Sovereign corresponds to what the Stars and Stripes have become in the United States. If the union jack is Britain's flag, the King is her standard bearer; a symbol above and beyond party; about whose person no controversy should ever arise; a symbol of unity and a link between the immediate present and a past that extends for centuries before the accession of William the Conqueror. In the landscape on which every boy and girls looks as life begins, the throne, like Windsor Castle, is the central landmark. It may be an anomaly, but it has survived.

Here I may say a few words about the King's physical condition. Throughout a vigorous career on land and sea he has enjoyed robust health. But this Winter it happens that England has been hard hit by what she still calls influenza—what Americans now term the grip. It is the grip from which King George has suffered. It gave him a touch of bronchitis and slightly affected a lung.

Doctors Taking No Chances.

The doctors are not, it seems, uneasy, but they have their own reasons for taking no chances. The King is in his sixtieth year. He has worked very hard. His grandfather, the Prince Consort, neglected a chill on the chest and it cost him dearly. When King Edward caught cold he defied the doctors, declined to be made into an invalid, left the warm climate of Biarritz, walked about in the cold drizzles of Norfolk and smoked his usual ample cigar. King George has always held that the doctors—as he playfully puts it—should have been impeached for their failure to insist on his father "giving in." He now practices what he preaches. He is sent on furlough to France and forbidden to smoke. Queen Mary is at hand and her husband remarks, "Even kings must obey." The Queen knows that in earlier days she was betrothed to King George's brother, the Duke of Clarence, who also had a chill, with influenza.

There arises the question, What difference will the King's absence make to the working of the largely unwritten British Constitution? With Prime Minister Baldwin firmly installed in office, and no likelihood of the Government being defeated, it is the simple truth that of ultimate power the King has none. If Parliament were to pass an act cutting off his head, he would have to add his royal assent or abdicate. He cannot negotiate a treaty or appoint an Ambassador, or make a speech, or select a valet, except by advice of his Ministers. But, in practice, he can exert a continuous influence, discussing nominations and policy and expressing a view which, coming as it does from the head of the State, can scarcely be ignored. For the final decision the Ministers must take responsibility. But before the decision is reached the King can insist on being heard. This personal influence is, for the time being, interrupted by the coming vacation.

Absence of Less Consequence.

It will matter far less than it would have done under Queen Victoria, who insisted on being "informed" and "consulted"; or even under King Edward. The war and the extension of the franchise, with the rise of Labor, have made it impossible for Ministers to submit even large decisions to the King. The machine must go on. No one brain can expect in these days to keep pace with its progress.

The King will be, of course, within call. The Mediterranean is not far distant from the River Thames. While his signature is wanted for certain purposes, it has been eliminated from many documents where the "sign manual" was merely a matter of form. For instance, the Sovereign no longer endorses commissions for officers in the army or navy, nor, I think, does he sign a death warrant. During the later years of her reign Queen Victoria used to sign letters patent in advance, her final sanction to the use of these parchments being intimated by telegram. There are thus ingenious devices whereby legal procedure may be adjusted. Indeed, for several weeks before she died Queen Victoria suffered from loss both of sleep and of memory, and her correspondence accumulated. Nothing, however, happened beyond a little delay. After his serious operation King Edward also was a recluse, but somehow—though his coronation was postponed—the empire managed to jog along.

It should be made clear that in matters affecting Government neither the Prince of Wales nor any other member of the royal family has any authority whatever to act for the King in his absence, unless Parliament, by statute, confers such authority. The question, then, is whether Parliament, led by the Government, will hold that the emergency requires "an acting monarchy" during the King's vacation. By statute, a regent could be endowed with the duty of exercising sovereignty. When King George III. went mad the then Prince of Wales was thus appointed regent. During Queen Victoria's minority an act was passed making her mother, the Duchess of Kent, prospective regent if the King died before her daughter became of age. The Prince Consort was so nominated prospective regent during the boyhood of King Edward. And until the Prince of Wales came of age, Queen Mary was prospective regent. No regency is today as much as hinted at. There is, however, a much less drastic device which was adopted when King George went to India. The Crown was put by Parliament "in commission"—that is, four peers, including the Duke of Connaught, were empowered to carry through formalities which could not conveniently await the King's return. Such a commission must not signify the royal assent to any act altering the succession, nor would it presumably have the authority to dissolve Parliament or "send for" a new Prime Minister. But there is no likelihood that during the King's convalescence Prime Minister Baldwin will be upset.

The Succession and Lascelles.

As a matter of fact, it is not the few indispensable legalities of his office that gives the King of England work. All that kind of thing could be cleared up on a yacht with a score or two of signatures per diem. It is the unofficial correspondence that takes so much time and strength.

Napoleon used to say that letters, if unopened for a fortnight, answer themselves. The British King's correspondence largely comes from people who want things done. Much of it is handled by secretaries. The doctor's orders enable these secretaries to answer politely in the negative, and with an admirable excuse. The King will be absent from Ascot, from house parties, from innumerable social functions. He will give no dinners, grant no audiences, confer no knighthoods. All his special functions are hereby canceled.

The Court will, however, soon permit the King's especial show, and Parliament leaves him, as a rule, to run it in his own way. Over decisions affecting his family and ceremonial functions his voice is decisive. And he can thus nominate his own deputies to act for him. It was the former Prince and Princess of Wales (afterward King Edward and Queen Alexandra) who thus acted for Queen Victoria during the early period of her widowhood; indeed, the Princess Royal of that time, afterward the Empress Frederick of Germany, used to "receive" in London, although she had been married to the Crown Prince of Prussia. If King George and Queen Mary be absent, their places could be taken, even at a levee or an investiture of orders, by somebody else. As long as the Prince of Wales remains in London he is available. When the Duke and Duchess of York return from Africa they also will be able to represent the Sovereigns. Other royal reinforcements are Prince Henry, now 25 years old, and Prince George, a year or two younger. Princess Mary is also entirely eligible. But not her husband, the Viscount Lascelles. Whereas the Duchess of York takes the royal rank of her husband, Viscount Lascelles gains no such status by his marriage with the King's daughter.

It is merely by way of completing the subject that I here state briefly what is today the line of succession to the British throne. The heir-apparent is, of course, the Prince of Wales. Since he is unmarried, the heir-presumptive is the Duke of York, his next brother. Until the Duke of York has a child, boy or girl makes here no difference, the next heir is Prince Henry, and after him Prince George. Princess Mary would then succeed, either herself or through her elder of two sons, George Henry Hubert Lascelles. Nor is that prospect so remote as it seems. King George III. had fifteen children. Two of them, Kings George IV. and William IV. ascended the throne. But the grandchildren were very few. And Queen Victoria, an only child, ascended the throne. The desire that Prince Henry marry without delay can be, therefore, easily understood. It is stated that for some time he has been interested in Lady Mary Scott, a daughter of the Duke of Buccleuch.

A Denied Romance.

It was in 1910 that King George succeeded his father, King Edward, and no period of fifteen years in the long annals of Britain has witnessed changes so momentous as those which have transformed, during his uncompleted reign, the British throne. I shall never forget how, at King Edward's funeral, we watched nine emperors and kings, including the Kaiser, and at least as many heirs apparent, including the Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand, killed at Serajevo, as they paid homage to the dead. Where are they now? With the single exception of King George, the greatest of those potentates have fallen from their high estate. The Czar of Russia, the Emperor of Germany and King Constantine of Greece were all not only his cousins but his first cousins. And they have vanished from the scene, leaving him alone in his glory. Millions to whom monarchy had been a law of God have seen monarchy shattered. Neither Queen Victoria nor King Edward ever had to face an upheaval so terrific as this.

Yet King George started on his task with nothing of the prestige that surrounded his predecessors. Queen Victoria may have been inexperienced at her accession, but she was a girl, and a halo of romance was woven around her personality. King Edward was a citizen of the world, ample in physique, trained by years of contact with monarchs and statesmen, a good mixer, something of a bonvivant, a sportsman, a dictator of etiquette and the idol of the multitude, who loved him for his very failings.

But King George was a second son, who had stepped into his elder brother's heritage, married his elder brother's fiancee and lived a life as correct as it was uninteresting. His only alleged romance was dispelled by his own action in defending himself in open court against the suggestion that, as a sailor, he had, in earlier life, cherished an affection for the daughter of an Admiral, an affection which, if it had been a fact, the public would have most readily pardoned. Queen Mary did not hesitate to reorganize the court on lines more closely drawn in many ways than the easy tolerance of King Edward's brilliant regime. Not every lady of aristocratic pretensions was now welcome at Buckingham Palace. And those who did come were bidden with peremptory discipline to add inches to the length and yards to the circumference of their skirts.

The German Blood Complication.

There was raging, moreover, a first-class political crisis, in which the King had to promise Prime Minister Asquith enough of new peers to overcome the resistance of the old peers to the Parliament act which limited, and to some extent abolished, the veto of the House of Lords. And yet the hereditary peerage was the bulwark, so people believed, of the hereditary aristocracy.

Then came the Irish crisis, with "loyal" troops in mutiny at the Curragh Camp, near Dublin, against Home Rule. And amid it all, there fell on the royal family the thunderbolt of war. And what was worst, the war was against Germany. The villain of the piece was one who had always claimed to be Queen Victoria's grandson, Prince Louis of Battenberg, the First Sea Lord, was driven from the Admiralty because he was of German blood. Figuring in the German Army were British Princes actually holding peerages which entitled them to sit and vote in the House of Lords. And a statute was demanded and ultimately passed, disinheriting them of this ancestral status.

What saved the throne? The answer is in two words—the King.

When the storm burst he made no attempt to create for himself a favorable sensation. He allowed Earl Kitchener's name, not his own, to be used for recruiting. He was content to recede into the background. He sought no applause. Nor did he receive much. But there is in nations an instinct which tells the people whom they can trust.

Britain knew that the King was of German blood. They also were convinced that his brain, his sympathies, his very being, had become utterly and entirely at one with his country. By simple, unassuming sincerity he won the battle. In his tactics there was no cleverness—no ratifice. He was content to be no more and no less than himself.

Lloyd George Modifies Monarchy.

During the period of reconstruction he was advised by David Lloyd George, whose fertile imagination and daring strategy were seen in a complete transformation of the monarchy. Hitherto it had been a branch of an international caste in Europe. No Prince and few Princesses had ever been permitted to marry except royal blood—which, for England, meant foreign blood. The royal house was known in every history book as the house of Hanover, and Hanover had been made by Bismarck into part of Prussia. By strong strokes of the pen the dynasty was named the House of Windsor; royalties began to marry into aristocratic families in Britain; the Battenbergs became the Mountbattens; Serene Highnesses were changed into good English Marquises; the throne ceased to be European; it began to be exclusively imperial in the British sense of that word. King George had traveled in the dominions. He liked "colonials." And so did Queen Mary, whose domestic instincts had always drawn her away from the scintillations of society and into the broader, saner fellowship of the bourgeoisie.

When Labor took office, King George rose way above the prejudices which usually constitute the atmosphere of a court. He welcomed the new Government. He paid for their official uniforms. He accepted them as the ornaments of his hospitality. And they emerged—that is, the Ministers of the Crown—more royalist than royalty itself.

And finally there was the Prince of Wales. He added just the touch that was needed. King George is of necessity an institution. But the spectacle of the Prince trying to persuade his mother to tolerate, even if she could not admire, the music of syncopation at State balls, entertained Britain. The contrast between King George, sitting firmly on his throne, and the Prince, falling frequently out of his saddle was, of course, denounced in the clubs, but with a certain secret enjoyment. And when the King's own horse ran away with him during a review at Ascot, while the Prince kept his place in line, the entire nation was filled with happiness. People love gossip. And the house of Windsor made most delightful publicity. King George never failed to keep a serious face. But it was suspected that he also saw the joke.

Add to all this a solid background of hard daily toil for the people and among the people, and you have the reasons why, after the unprecedented stress and strain of war and revolution, King George V. still reigns over the British Empire.

SOB SISTER IS LOSING RESPECT

Tears May Bring Success on Screen. But Not in Home.

THEY DON'T PAY

By CYNTHIA GREY.

If you are one of the women who meet all the worries of life with tears, this editorial is for you.

Tears have washed the gleam and glamour from countless love affairs . . . even those between husbands and wives. Particularly those between husbands and wives, I should say!

For married women resort to crying fits more often than any other class of human beings, to get their own way . . . except babies, of course.

Do tears pay?

Yes, perhaps they do, for a little while. But in the long run they are disastrous. For, after a while, a man gets used to them and they have no more effect upon him than the buzzing of a mosquito . . . or any other annoying trifle.

"All right, I" he will probably say to his wet-eyed wife, "have your mother down for a visit if you want to . . . but stop crying!"

And the wife thinks she has won a victory, when she got her own way.

But did she, really? Didn't she just lose a little more of her husband's love by letting him see her in a tantrum, with her eyes red and her nose swollen from crying?

We love what's lovable . . . and a woman in raging tears is not a lovable person or a lovely sight.

I sometimes doubt that women as a whole have learned what every little chorus girl in the world knows . . . that a smile is a girls' greatest charm!

Look over the audience at a musical comedy some night. More than half of it will be men.

For men love gayety and jollity.

Right up to the bald-headed age they will pay three dollars for a single seat at a show that exploits smiles and laughter.

It's the women who go to the high-brow plays . . . the weepy Ibsen dramas that end in death, divorce or despondence. Men detest them, juts as they hate gloom in their daily lives.

There was a bride I knew, who was the weepiest girl imaginable.

When she burned the steak she cried. When her husband refused to rhapsodize over the stony biscuits she had baked for him, she cried again.

She was like Tennyson's Marianna. . . . "Her tears fell with the dews at evening—her tears fell ere the dews were dried!"

Tears brought her the opera cloak her young husband couldn't afford.

Tears made him give up his one night "out with the boys" every two weeks.

But that was during the first year of their marriage.

Then he became firm. Tears began to lose their effect.

When his wife cried he walked out of the house, and didn't come back for two or three hours. At last, he gave her something real to cry about.

And she stopped! She learned her lesson. She was one woman in a thousand. For we women are very slow to profit by experience!

There is a poem called "Tears" by Lizette Woodworth Reese, said by critics to be the most beautiful American sonnet ever written.

And many a "sob sister" would do well to past it up over the kitchen sink or her desk at the office!

This is what it says, in part:

"Ye, old, old dead, and ye of yesternight,
Chieftains and bards and keepers of the sheep,
By every cup of sorrow that you had,
Loose me from tears and make me see aright
How each has back what once he stayed to weep:
Homer his sight, David his little lad!"

MEDICINE SNAKES.

Snake Catcher Says 4,000,000 Are Used Every Year.

TOKYO, March 21.—The demand for snakes for medicinal purposes in Japan is so great that Zen Sau, Japan's most famous snake catcher, says between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 snakes are used for such purposes yearly.

Eighty per cent of the reptiles are charred and powdered, or dried and made into capsules and pills. Only 20 per cent appear on the table boiled, baked or roasted.

In the vicinity of Mount Iouki and Shiva-Ken, the most snake-haunted regions of Japan, more than 200 men make their living by serpent catching.

KISSES AND CROSSES.

Mark of Illiterate Was Origin of Present Kiss by Letter.

Why are crosses used to represent kisses? Centuries ago very few people could write, so in signing legal documents they simply made their mark, usually a cross.

After doing this the document was made binding by both parties kissing the cross they had made. And so a cross marked on a paper became associated with kisses.

MAGIC OF RINGS

Many Queer Beliefs Still Held About Their Powers.

LONDON, March 21.—The action of a British woman in halting her marriage ceremony because of superstition regarding the queer shape of the wedding ring has recalled many old beliefs regarding rings.

King Solomon believed that his wisdom was attributable to a certain ring, which he always wore in handing down his decisions. Pliny records that jet rings were supposed to have the power to drive away servants. As late as 1815, it was believed that a silver ring, worn constantly, would cure epilepsy.

GOLD OF MISERS.

Stove Bought For $2 Yielded Store of Gold Coins.

PARIS, March 21.—Here are stories you dream about. A man bought an old stove for about $2 and when he started to load it on a wagon gold coins rolled out. The dealer claimed them, but they were awarded to the purchaser, because he had already paid for the stove. They were worth $10,000.

Two sisters living near London found about $1000 secreted in an old chest of drawers which had been in the family for many years.

A money lender near Messina, Italy, died recently and more than $100,000 was found secreted around his home.

SHORTHAND NOT NEW

War Correspondents Practised the Art 2,000 Years Ago.

ROME, March 21.—Shorthand generally is believed to be a development of modern commercial life, but students of ancient history say it is at least 2000 years old.

War correspondents with Cæsar's armies are said to have practiced the art about 50 years before the Christian era. One of Cicero's freed men employed an excellent system which was taught in Roman schools. In the sixteenth century new systems were developed by Protestant teachers, and many crude attempts were made to perfect a system in the eighteenth century, before Pittman perfected his system in 1837.

SLOW AS A SNAIL

LONDON, March 21.—How fast does a snail really move? Is the average office boy really that slow?

Recent experiments are said to prove that a snail progresses at the rate of a mile in ten days.

If you place a snail on a sheet of glass and watch the under side, you will see a series of ripples along the animal's foot. This foot is a network of muscles, and the rippling is produced by these muscles lengthening the foot in front and shortening it behind, which is the snail's mode of progression.

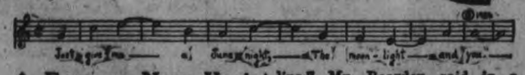
The New Good MAXWELL

Fox Trots To Be Useful As Well As Ornamental

WILLIAM REARDON DOROTHY CLARK



A Famous New York Team Creates Convenient Proposal Dance

June nights, sacred to lovers the world over, have been immortalized still further by William Reardon and Dorothy Clark, who have invented a "June Night" fox-trot in honor of June brides and grooms.

"We have tried to put into this new dance all the questions in a young man's heart and all the answers on a bashful maiden's lips," Mr. Reardon said in a lyrical description of the new steps.

"I have always felt that a dance should tell a definite story. This one does. We have arranged the steps so that every little movement really has a meaning of its own. We named the dance from 'June Night,' the only song I have ever heard that tells a story a dancer can interpret in steps."

Mr. Reardon was formerly a partner of Irene Castle, and Miss Clark, in addition to being America's premiere danseuse, is also an accomplished pianist.

FIRST PHOTO OF RUSS-JAPAN TREATY AGREEMENT—This photograph of the signing of the treaty renewing diplomatic relations between Russia and Japan was taken at 2 a.m. in the private bedroom of Minister Yoshizawa of Japan at Peking, China. GERMAN PLANS?—What Germany may be planning, none can tell. But deprived by the peace treaty of her formidable high - powered war planes, the German Government has turned its attention to the development of low-powered planes and gliders, and in furthering this, has offered huge rewards for successful flights. Photo shows a Junker low-power plane, flying over Mt. Zuppits, the highest peak in Germany.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN THIS TEAM OF GIRLS IN CAMPBELLFORD WON EVERYTHING IN SIGHT?

CAMPBELLFORD GIRLS' HOCKEY TEAM 1920-1921.

Miss WINNIFRED ARMSTRONG, B.A., captain of the team, was at that time teacher of English in the Campbellford High School, 1921-22.

She then went to Medicine Hat and was commercial teacher there for two years. For the past year she has taught in one of the Collegiates in Quebec City, and is still there. Miss Armstrong's home is in Campbellford. She is a sister of Mr. Simon Armstrong, city clerk in Peterboro. She was the star player of the team.

Miss HELEN CARNAHAN received her education in Campbellford Public and High Schools. She took her first University year in the school here. The family moved to Toronto over two years ago, and Helen has been attending Victoria College. She will graduate this next summer. She is taking an arts course and also specializing in household domestic science.

Still on Team.

Miss HELEN WOOD has always lived in Campbellford and attended the Public and High Schools. In the summer of 1921 she went West, to Wayne, Sask., to visit her sister, and on her return she attended the Ontario Ladies' College at Whitby during 1922-23. Since then she has been at her home on Front Street. This winter she plays left defence.

Miss EVELYN IRWIN is also a Campbellford girl, and with the exception of one year (1923) at Toronto Normal, she has been in town. She visited at Wayne with Miss Helen Wood. For over a year now she has been a teacher on the Public School staff.

She and Miss Wood are the only two girls of the 1920-21 team who are on the Campbellford team this winter, and Evelyn has the honor of being captain of the present team and has done splendidly this winter. She plays centre.

Miss NORMA NADOO, Iakerman Street, is also a town girl. She attended High School, and in the spring of 1922 she went to the Ontario Business College at Belleville and was there till October of the same year. Since then she has been at home.

Miss HELEN KERR, also a town girl, attended High School till, in October, 1922, she left for Brooklyn, N.Y., to train as a nurse in one of the hospitals there, but after eleven months she had to come home as her health failed her. In 1923 she tried it again, this time at Saginaw, Mich., but, after two months, she had to return home on account of her ill-health. She was confined to her bed most of the winter of 1924 for the rest cure. Since then she slightly improved, but is still at her home here.

The 1920-1921 hockey team was successful in all the places they went that year; and all the girls of the team were royally entertained wherever they went and enjoyed the social spirit shown at all times. Out of the six girls, four are living in Campbellford at present.

HER MOST THRILLING MOMENT — Miss Lorraine Liggett of Brookline, Mass., probably got the thrill of a lifetime when her mount, Chicken Coop, took a header on missing a hurdle. Miss Liggett fell heavily but escaped serious injury.

A VANDERBILT HEIR — The stork is soon expected to visit Biltmore House, the palatial residence built by George Vanderbilt at Biltmore, N. C., for the second time. The first visit was 24 years ago when Cornelia, only child of the Vanderbilts, was born. Now the daughter, who in April, 1924, became the bride of the Hon. John Francis Amherst Cecil, then first secretary of the British Embassy, is about to become a mother. Mrs. Cecil is shown above.

HOUSE SHOOTS THE CHUTES!—Rains which flooded Marin Co., Calif., swept down Mill Valley and hurled this house with its three occupants down the mountain side. The occupants, a mother and two children, were rescued by the sheriff.

Broadcasting the Spring Fashion Harmonies

WE ARE going to be feminine—and graceful once more. Not that we are forgetting the lesson of charm which has been taught us by the slender simplicity of the last few years. Rather, we are taking those same slender lines and developing them with more grace and sophistication—with more variation and individuality.

The tailored frock maintains its straight beltless symmetry, but many a model has cleverly added an inverted pleat in the front for greater ease as well as beauty in walking. Other models also preserve a flat back but are circular across the front.

Some of the tailored frocks, but a great many of the softer models, are distinguished by a shirt which flares gracefully from the knee down. In the softer fabrics it seems to give the loveliest floating effect when you walk or dance.

However, all our frocks have learned that simplicity is the straight pathway to smartness and the smooth lines are not broken.

The two newest thoughts for the afternoon frock are the jabot and the attached scarf. The jabot is usually of a fine soft lace or chiffon or crepe, falling in the most graceful folds down the side front of a dress, or on either side of a center front closing. The attached scarf which may be worn across the shoulders or carelessly thrown about the throat gives an unusually graceful charm.

Chiffon.

Never was chiffon more popular. And what a charming fashion it is. Soft, lovely, graceful, it floats about the figure with a fairy-like charm yet clings enough to show the lithe grace of slenderness. It is a happy choice of loveliness to get a chiffon frock.

And the very newest is the daytime chiffon frock. Simply made with a long sleeve or one softly flowing below the elbow, they will be seen at even the most informal of luncheons and afternoon affairs. It is such a delightful mode that it is only surprising that we have not followed it before.

Many of these frocks are black trimmed with white or a very delicate shell pink chiffon. Slim of line with a soft ruffle extending from just a little above the knee they are utterly becoming. The neck is sometimes finished with a type or a jabot of the lighter chiffon or a smart scarf collar—these scarf collars just fastened across the back of a round neck are extremely smart on frocks for evening as well as afternoon wear.

But she who wishes a daytime chiffon need not confine her desires simple to black and white, for printed chiffons have taken the smar world by storm. For more informal wear there are soft novelty plaids —some most amusingly copied from the designs commonly found in their more humble sister, gingham. These frocks are frequently trimmed with a plain chiffon of harmonizing tone and sometimes with softest jabots of lace.

But for dressier occasions and for warm summer days, chiffons appear in the loveliest and most varied of brilliant hues and gay patterns. Yet these frocks are made with the same deft simplicity.

For the Evening.

The vogue of chiffon for evening will be welcomed by the woman who realizes how cool, dainty and ethereal it makes her seem on the hottest of summer nights. These chiffon dance frocks favor the simple round neck rather than the more elaborate decolletage of winter.

For tailored wear kasha and the ribbed silks lead the field far in advance of all other materials. The kasha frock is frequently seen in the ever-present two piece frock. These frocks are very smart when they feature the new inverted pleat or the circular front. The blouse is straight, slim and boyish — very charming for the slender, supple figure. The ribbed silks fashion trim coat frocks, which open down the front over a crepe de chine slip of a contrasting shade.

The jabot is the mark of smartness on many a slender silk frock. Sometimes the jabot falls from the neckline to the foot of the skirt, or sometime just to the waist. These jabots are marvels of simplicity, falling in long graceful folds, never in fussy frills.

Simple Frock Favored.

For warm days of summer the soft simply made frock of crepe is a charming favorite and several of them will be included in every woman's wardrobe.

The smart world is weary of all white costumes which were such a leading mode the past year. Now the lovely soft pastel tones which are so becoming, so flattering, are the great favorites. Peach especially, then pale lilac, pale green, pale yellow and blue. An old ivory or an oyster shade are the nearest shades to white which the smart woman wears.

As a contrast and a change from these light shades every wardrobe is certain to include some gaily colored printed effects either in crepe or chiffon.

Practically everything that is smart is ensemble. The evening frock has its matching cape, the chiffon frock its silk coat, chiffon lined. Of course, few of us can afford this profusion of wraps, but every smart wardrobe should boast at least one ensemble. Probably the most practical is the silk frock or cloth coat for the occasions for wearing such a costume are innumerable.

The New Coats.

As straight and slim of line as ever are the coats which fashion has chosen as her smartest models. Some follow the mode of dresses with a light fullness below the knee but they fit closely about the figure.

The honors are fairly evenly divided between the fur trimmed coat and the one finished with collars and cuffs of the material.

The satin or heavy silk coat sometimes trimmed with a long haired fur is particularly good for rather dressy occasions. But for general utility the coat of soft cloth will be more frequently seen.

The Blouse.

The blouse is still on the crest of the wave of popularity and when you see the utterly charming models which the shops offer, you will not be at all surprised.

Of course, the newest ones are tunic blouses, some of which come to within six or seven inches of the bottom of the skirt. They are worn with ensemble suits or with the simplest skirts.

These blouses show the gayest of prints in some of the smart models while others are of smartly simple ribbed silks.

The Younger Generation.

While the types for children are somewhat influenced by grown-up fashions, still extreme simplicity is the rule. The child who is most suitably dressed for strenuous hours of play is the best dressed child. So straight, colorful little gingham frocks with their matching bloomers are the most popular.

For parties the well dressed child usually wears a softly simple little frock of a light chiffon, voiles or any other delicate summery material.

THREE BOOKS SURE OF SUCCESS

"Arrowsmith," By Sinclair Lewis, Maintains Standard of "Main Street" and "Babbit"—Hamilton Gibbs and Sabatini Complete List.

From the mass of fiction released within the past two weeks rise three books that are almost certain to be numbered among the best sellers of the present season.

They are: "Arrowsmith" (Harcourt-Brace) by Sinclair Lewis; "The Caralinans (Houghton, Mifflin), by Rafael Sabatini, and "Soundings," by A. Hamilton Gibbs, which the Little Brown Co. has been ballyhooing with lusty voice.

"Arrowsmith" might be termed a "Main Street of medical science." It will be heatedly dicussed over teatables and in club meetings; in chemical laboratories and between operations.

Sinclair Lewis has run the medical gamut, from the small town pill mixer to the surgical marvel who breaks into the newspaper stories.

He invades the laboratories and pictures the dabbler and the fame seeker and the fanatical hunter of truth and the germ isolatfonist. And there is Gottlieb, an artist in the world of micro-organisms; the skeptic and scoffer at materia-medica who, in one passage, says to Arrowsmith when the latter is embittered at discovering that years of research have led him to a discovery already made by another: "My boy, that is science: to work and not to care—too much—if somebody else gets the credit."

Arrowsmith's picture starts in his college days and here he is surrounded by figures who reach heights and depths in the later years, but in all of whose veins runs red blood and not printer's ink. They are real people. We recognize most of them at once.

Arrowsmith is a fresh, talky, selfish kid, moulded by the example of Gottlieb—a remarkable characterization, dragged through years of endeavor into a West Indian plague belt and finally into laboratorial hermitage.

The pathetic and intensely humann figure in the novel is Leora, the nurse whom Arrowsmith marries. She is both intelligent and slangy, extremely rational and commonsensy, loving and sacrificing, but jutted into the background by the greater attraction of scientific interest, careless and altogether human. More than one tear will be shed for her, particularly when her carelessness brings death in the plague zone.

Meanwhile innumerable people pass back and forth. And it is in the drawing of these that Lewis continues to prove himself the present-day Dickens.

Among these will long be remembered Condelitis, who tries to be his unaffected self and who winds up by exclaiming: "It's a great mistake to be natural. One should always be a stuffed shirt, like Tubbs."

A forenote in the book announces that the author was aided by Dr. Paul De Kruif, which accounts for the vast amount of accurate scientific language and reference the book contains.

It is a novel to topple Gopher Prairie right off its chair.

Sabatini has been inspired by the "Spirit of '76."

In "The Carolinans" he undertakes the type of historical romance that made the Winston Churchill books so popular. Harry Latimer is the eternal swashbuckler, without which type Sabatini would not be Sabatini. Harry gets himself shot at, duelled with and all but hung. But in the background is some accurate American history and many persons who do not read deeply will be surprised to learn how haphazard a thing the American Revolution was; that the aristocracy and upper bourgeoisie were the leaders of the struggle; that Washington was almost in a "no pair" position; that England's military men were frequently gentlemen and that sex was as "modern" and complicated then as now.

"Soundings" presents a "modern problem, dressed in gingham and aprons. It is widely advertised that it "escapes the sordidness" and "substitutes for jazz and cocktails a flavor of the out-of-doors."

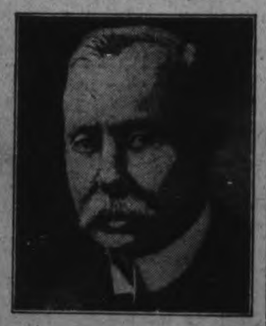
No this is hardly a glorification of the sex question. What Gibbs sets out to do is to write a 20th century novel and still differ from the so-called "modern" stuff. Essentially it is a love story and there is great tenderness and sympathy. The crisis develops from the desire of the young heroine for motherhood, wed or unwed. It seems to her that no husband is coming into her life, but she would have a child just the same.

Here is presented a fine scene with the artist-father who has reared her. A war-bride situation saves her and in the end, the reader is given to believe that the more wistful chapters have passed. Nancy is a fine, clean character.

This book will be particularly popular with women readers.

TORTURED BY A "DEAD" STOMACH

"Fruit-a-tives" bring relief from Chronic Constipation



MR. FRED LUDLOW

"For a great many years, I was a martyr to Constipation and Indigestion; nothing I tried ever did me any good. I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and they brought relief with the first tablet; and by taking this splendid medicine at regular intervals, I suffer no more. I CAN NOW EAT ANYTHING WITHOUT FEELING THE SLIGHTEST PAIN OR DISCOMFORT AFTERWARDS."

So writes Mr. Ludlow, a former U. S. Vice and Deputy Consul in Great Britain, and now of 161 West 36th Street, New York.

Thousands have been relieved of the miseries of Constipation and Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives", the famous natural remedy made from the concentrated and intensified juices of fresh oranges, apples, prunes and figs. 25c and 50c at all dealers.

WORD'S DONT FIT THE JAZZ MUSIC

Enterprising Modern Syncopate Old Masters' Works and Add Word Jumble.

The present day dance music, "jazz" is raising a storm against it from eminent music masters because these masters declare that the modern jazz artists are merely adopting and despoiling the great masterpieces of the past. They say that the jazz writers thief an especially pleasing line of melody from Beethoven's and other geniuses work and they weave this into a syncopated jazz. One master holds that the music of that historical and longed-to-be-forgotten piece, "Yes, We Have No Bananas" was snitched in this way.

So much for the music. If a bright young man of today who can make the saxaphone sob and moan is enterprising enough to use his talent to adopt the great music of the past into such a form that the youth of today will listen to it he has done something.

But what of the words that go with this music? Did you ever look at a sheet of music? The words to these songs read like a cross-word puzzle and have just about as much connection with each other. They do manage to get a rhyme in but there is no reason.

Few of them contain the sentiment that coursed through the songs of a few years back; most hold forth on the "charms" of some "hot baby" who is now out of reach.

It is not necessary to explain that the music was written and then the words "slapsticked" together to fit, but not to suit, the music.

FUNCTION OF THE HEART.

If Valves Fail to Work on Schedule, Something Happens.

Mr. and Mrs. Ma n learned that the heart is a pump, consisting of several cavities which receive the blood brought from all parts of the body brought from all parts of tre known as veins and arteries.

It is made up of a mass of muscles. These enclose several chambers. When the muscles contract they force the blood out of the heart. Each chamber of the heart is equipped with valves which keep the blood moving in the right direction.

Much of the heart trou'le is the result of these valves failing to work properly. Many disorders of the body affect these valves. The edges of the small pieces of tissue, composing the valves, may become pitted, which prevents them from closing tightly, and the blood, instead of passing out of the heart, as it should, may remain in the heart, or may run into another chamber.

Every automobile owner knows what poorly seated valves do to his gas and oil.

Often, also, the muscles of the heart become weak, and the pumping is not strong enough to force the blood to the limbs farthest from the heart.

The blood is a fluid in which floats the cargo of food and other body requisites. Passing through the lungs this blood picks up oxygen In the stomach and intentines it picks up food.

Along through the body the blood picks up the worn-out cells and impurities and carries them to the proper organs for expanision.

HAD BOILS ALL OVER HIM

There is only one way to get rid of boils and that is by going right to the seat of the trouble—the blood—as the bad blood must be made pure before the boils will disappear.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

cleanses the system and removes all the foul matter from the blood in a way that few medicines will do.

Mrs. Chas. Rankin, Bulyea, Sask., writes:—"A few years ago my husband had a terrible time with boils. On one arm he had 16 between his elbow and wrist; five on the back of his neck, and several more on different parts of his body. He tried everything he could think of, but got no relief until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, and to his surprise it completely relieved him of his boils in a very short time."

ATTACKS GRAMMAR

Member of Legislature Says Teachers Stuff Pupils' Heads With Rules.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 21.—(Canadian Press).—When William Ivens, labor member in the provincial legislature, atacked grammar as part of the school curriculum, he sure started something. The ball was kept rolling at a meeting here recently of the cirriculum revision committee, when several rural school inspectors held that grammar was absolutely useless. The teachers, they claimed, just stuffed a lot of useless rules into the pupils' heads for examination purposes.

Major C. K. Newcombe, chairman of the committee, related an experience he had as rural examiner. A youth came into the examination room at the close of the trails.

"Well, my boy," said Major Newcombe, "how did you fare in the examinations yesterday?"

"I didn't do much in arithmetic," the boy replied, "but I done good in grammar." The Major said that he checked the boys marks later and found that he had received 88 per cent out of a possible 100 marks.

ENGLAND'S NEW AIRSHIP TO BE 700 FEET LONG

Streamline Body Will Increase Its Speed to 90 Miles an Hour.

SHAPED LIKE CIGAR

Everything But the Engines Will Be Inside the Hull.

By JOHN GUNTHER.

LONDON, Eng., March 21.—(United Press).—Imagine a great silver cigar, about 700 feet long, with a displacement of some five million cubic feet.

Then you will get some idea of the new air liner Great Britain is building, said to compromise the most revolutionary advance in the whole history of air navigation.

For this new dirigible will contain the crew in the hull and the passengers in the hull—there will be no hanging gondolas or outside saloons—the pilot's window will be in the nose.

This streamline body will extend the cruising radius of the giant ship by thousands of miles, decrease its fuel construction, and increase its speed to ninety miles an hour. Construction has already started.

First news of the new airship was given by the United Press in a series of mail articles some months ago. The current announcement is made possible by official information divulged by the Air Ministry.

Will Build Two.

The new ship will be one of a pair to be built. They will be called R-100 and R-101.

Each is about twice the size of the American Los Angeles. The new design is the work of Commander C. D. Burney, M. P., who is in charge of the construction of one of the ships. The Airship Guarantee Company is building it, with the Air Ministry in close supervision.

Commander Burney, in common with many airship designers, realized that a perfect steamline body was the ideal in such construction. He has been working toward this ideal for many years. And now it appears that it is achieved.

Pilots, navigators, crew and passengers will all be accommodated in the actual body of the craft. The only projections below the airship will be cars containing the engines, placed far back.

The pilot and navigating officer, instead of being located as at present, below the hull, will be in an observation compartment in the nose of the airship, curved windows providing them with a clear view.

Passengers and crew will occupy the interior portion of the airship, amidships, in the space which has hitherto been waste or utilized by gas bags. From the sides a clear view will be obtained through windows of double glass.

Increased Cruising Radius.

"This simplification of design," says the official statement, "as proved on behalf of the company by experiments in the National Physical Laboratory, ensures a considerable increase in the range of flight. With a greater flight range it will be possible to place bases for stops on the England-India-Australia route at greater distances to one another."

Comment which has appeared states that a trip will be possible from London to Capetown in 5 days, London to Bagdad in three and London to Australia in seven.

"If all goes well and we realize our expectations," said an official of the company, "a regular airship service should be in full swing two years from now."

The ship will be finished, it is hoped, before the end of 1926, with trial flights on the program immediately thereafter.

The subsidiary invention which has made Commander Burney's work possible concerns an improved mooring mast.

It is rapidly being discovered that the question of mooring masts is the crux of the whole airship-aviation problem and the enclosed superstructure such as planned for the new ship would be impossible with the mooring masts at present used.

But researches to which both the American Goodyear Zeppelin Company and the German Zeppelin Company contributed have resulted in a British invention—of a new type mooring masts—of the utmost importance.

This mast will receive the whole nose of the airship in a swivel arrangement.

What is more, this mast can be attached t oa floating base.

This fact is considered of supreme importance. It means that masts no longer need be permanent, cumbersome affairs. They can be attached, for instance, to battleships.

Imperial Air Port.

The English Government places such an extreme importance to these twin corrollary discoveries—the new mast and the new airship—that not the least considerable interest in the situation comes with the official announcement that an imperial air port is soon to be built by the Government.

It will be exactly what it says—an imperial air port. That is, it will be an airship station, an airship station exclusively, and one built and maintained by the Imperial Government.

The site selected is at Karachi, near Bombay, about half way between London and Australia.

It is already disclosed that the cost will be about seven million dollars.

PROFIT FROM RABBITS

Jack Rabbits Killed and Sold to Fox Farmers in Alaska.

CORDOVA, Alaska, March 21 (Canadian Press)—Washington and other states of the Union might profit from the jack rabbit pest if they killed the animals, powdered the meat and sold it to Alaska fox farmers for summer feed, in the opinion of J. Williamson, owner of the largest fox farm along the Russian River on the Kenai peninsula.

More than 5,000 rabbits were slaughtered by Williamson last winter. The meat was ground, placed on racks over a stove where it was died and then pulverized and stored in sacks.

The rabbit powder was mixed with water and vegetables, boiled and served to foxes during the summer, making an agreeable change of diet from fish and porcupine.

Another form of preserving the meat is to pack it when fresh into five-gallon oil cans. About 35 rabbits are put into one can. Water is poured over the meat and the can set outdoors until its contents freeze. The can is then thawed loose and removed from the block containing the meat. The block is stored in ice houses that prevent it thawing until feeding time in summer.

USE RARE INSTRUMENTS

Lute, Recorder Viol and Others as Ancient Used in Festival.

HASLEMERE, Eng., March 21 (Associated Press)—A festival of the chamber music of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries is being arranged for August at Haslemere, where instruments will be used representing those of olden times. The festival is to be staged by Arnold Dolmetsch, who with other members of his family and pupils will play numerous rare instruments virtually unknown to the average music lovers of today.

The lute, the recorder, the viol, the virginal, the viola d'amore, the harpsichord, the clavichord, referred to by Rossetti as the "seven sweet symphonies," will be used in rendering the music of the old masters English music of "the golden period" (the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries) will have a prominent place on the festival program.

TO MAP HUDSON BAY BY PLANE

Aviators Will Fly Along Proposed Railway Line to Coast.

TO FORT CHURCHILL

WINNIPEG, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—Two remarkable air flights will be undertaken in the season of 1925, by members of the Canadian Air Force, from their base at Victoria Beach, Man.

First an attempt will be made to fly down the Hudson Bay railway line to the bay, then north to Fort Churchill, then return to the base by a wide sweep inland. In the second flight, the country east of Reindeer Lake and extending to a point where it has been photographed on the return trip from Fort Churchill, will be surveyed.

On all flights this season, the country will be mapped, and at the end of the 1925 season, the federal government will for the first time, be in possession of reliable maps of all the territory north of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, from the Hudson Bay to the source of the Churchill river. The flights in 1924, accomplished the western section of this undertaking.

SUNDAY PAPERS DESCRIBED AS PAGAN AND UNGODLY

LIVERPOOL, March 21.—Sunday newspapers in England have an aggregate circulation of 11,000,000, according to the Rev. J. J. Armitage, who finds the influence of those journals to be lacking in Christianity. To their readers they say in substance, according to the investigator: "You can do without God; let us be pagans."

Dr. Armitage declares that in 887 columns of reading matter, only six columns mentioned anything suggesting the Christian religion.

BRITISH DRYS UNITED FOR CONCERTED EFFORT

Approach Prohibition By First Winning Local Option.

LONDON, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—A new movement to make Great Britain dry is reported by the Daily Express. A secret conference of 117 delegates representing 37 prohibitionist and temperance organizations was held a few days ago at Hoddesdon, the paper says, resulting in a decision to bury all differences and present a solid front to the enemy. Straight prohibition is not the first aim of the movement, but local option, and committees have begun drafting a preliminary bill towards this end.

STUDENTS RESENT FOREIGN CONTROL

College in China Closed to Forestall Students' Strike.

FOOCHOW, March 21 (Associated Press)—To forestall a proposed strike by students, the Anglo-Chinese college, a middle school here, supported by the Methodist Episcopal church, has been closed, the faculty declaring that it intends to maintain control rather than surrender to student domination even if it results in permanent dissolution of the school.

The proposal to strike was the result of the faculty's refusal to observe a holiday which none of the government schools in Foochow recognizes.

The school has recently made long strides in the direction of Chinese control. Fifteen months ago there were 15 foreigners on the staff. Now there are only five, the places been filled by Chinese. One of the latter was stabbed last spring, supposedly by students who were angered by one of his rulings. The students in their propaganda are promoting an anti-Christian sentiment.

COAL WAS KING IN GOLD CAMPS

In Early Days in Alaska Was More Precious Than Gold.

MINING METHODS

NOME, Alaska, March 21 (Associated Press).—In the early days of Nome coal was more precious than the yellow metal panned from the mountain streams and on the Bering Sea beach.

The only places of business that had enough coal were saloons. An old-timer prospector made a coat with a sack inside. Each evening he would go to the "North Star Wine Palace" and sit down by the coal box. When no one was looking, he would place a lump of coal in his sack, go to the bar for a drink and return to his cabin. He did this until the proprietor, Pat Cleary, noticed his coal supply dwindling. One night the prospector stayed too long and filled his sack too heavily so that when he tried to rise the weight dragged him down. Cleary pounced on him, made his disgorge the coal and drove him outdoors.

Laughing heartily the saloonkeeper called out: "Everybody step up, the drinks are on me. It's the first time anybody ever mined coal in Pat Cleary's camp."

PROFITS REPORTED BY CO-OPERATIVES OF SYDNEY MINES

$42,295.44 To Be Distributed Among 2,767 Participating Needy Households.

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 21 — (Canadian Press) —The British Canadian Co-Operative Society. Ltd., of Sydney Mines, N. S., having branches at Glace Bay, Florence, Cranberry and North Sydney, has just issued its financial statement for the half year ending Februray 4th. George Keep, general secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada here says its sales were $681,943.63 and notwithstanding the prevailing poverty and unemployment they show an increase of $26,215.57, compared with the corresponding term of the previous year. A net profit of $88,-031.97 , is disclosed, but part of this amount was disbursed in a return to the members as interim purchase dividends for the first three months of the term. The statement, however shows there will be available for distribution in cash, as a 12 per cent. purchase dividend, on March 24 to 26 inclusive, the substantial sum of $42,-295.44, which should do much to ameliorate conditons in the 2,767 households which will participate. The participants will also have no one to thank therefore. It is the result of their own associated self-help. The fact there was an average increase of sales over one thousand dollars per week during the six months would indicate, say Mr. Keen that more of the miners are being weaned away from credit trading in the company's stores. During the term 260 new members joined, but 152 withdrawn or had their names deleted, there was a net increase of 108. The balance of $3,536.13, while liabilities to trade creditors outstanding only amounted to $4,049.79, or less than one day's sales.

The Co-operative Union of Canada Brantford, Ontario, with which the society is affiliated, has issued an appeal for funds to Canadian Co-operative Societies and individual co-operators in aid of the distress in Cape Breton. The Union intimates it will gratefully acknowedge and forward, without any deduction for expenses, to the local society any contribuitons which may be received from the general public. The British Canadian Society is operating two soup kitchens and making considerable distributions of clothing at points where the distress is the most acute.

FIX FOREVER EMPIRE STATUS

Calling of Imperial Conference Advocated by Australian Visitor.

MEET REGULARLY

WINNIPEG, Man., March 21. (Canadian Press).—The calling of an Imperial conference during the latter part of the coming summer, to fix once and for all the position of the dominions with relation to the Mother Country was strongly advocated by J. E. Thurlowe, of Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, in an interview here. He further suggested that such conferences be held subsequently every seven years, with all diplomatic relationships, in the interim carried through the medium of the various high commissioners.

"It is absurd," Mr. Thurlowe said, "for the British government every time it wants to test out the opinion of the dominion conference. The same results could, and should be achieved through the high commissioners as ambassadors, and, if they are not qualified, for the work, men should be appointed who are. "At present, the high commissioners are glorified trade commissioners, Mr. Thurlowe asserted, and this he maintained was not in keeping with the dignity of the dominions.

Mr. Thurlowe thought the trade agreement between Canada and Australia would operate to the mutual benifit of both countries, but he did not like the preference extended to dried fruit.

"The preference, for instance on raisins, will probably boost the price to Canadians. It certainly will not stop the California raisins from finding its way into the dominion," he declared.

Keep Strong and Healthy.

Sufferers from Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Headache frequently are uncertain as to the remedy they need.

Experience has shown them that harsh purgatives, if not positively harmful, give no permanent help.

In the Spring season it is particularly necessary to cleanse the system with a gentle tonic and laxative, restoring stomach and liver to healthty activity. You then look forward to Summer with new vim and energy.

The ingredients of Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets are printed on the label. Doctors and Druggists will tell you that if you require a tonic and laxative they know of no preparation so effective as Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets.

The Dr. Norvall Tablets are sold throughout Canada at 25c. a bottle. If your dealer cannot supply you at once we will mail them to any part of the Dominion or Newfoundland at 25c. a bottle.

We frequently receive orders for five bottles, which we send for one dollar.

We refund your money if the tablets do not give you full satisfaction.

ANNUAL PARTY.

Tuesday and Thursday Gymnasium Has Meeting at Y.W.C.A.

The annual part of the Tuesdy and Thursday Ladies' Gymnasium Classes was held on Thursday evening at the Y.W.C.A., when ladies to the number of about forty had a jolly evening of games and dancing in the gymnasium followed by refreshments served in the green room. Music was supplied by Madeline Willis at the piano, and Wilson Dunlop, playing the traps.

The costumes worn were original and interesting, and added much to the jollity of the gathering. Among the most notable were those of Miss C. Large, as a Danger Signal; Mrs. J. Goodwin, as Lightning; Miss F. Williams, as a representative of When Knights are Cold, and Mrs. R. M. Waddell as an English Golf Sport. Four ladies who came in a group as the Ku Klux Klan got a good deal of merriment out of the court-martialling of Miss Mae Jory, who was dressed as a French Soldier.

SPRING — HAL COCHRNA'S DAILY POEM

Hi, there, Ol' Natlre—you seem at you rbest
When first wafts of spring breeze around.
Treat to the eye is the way you are dressed,
As life bubbles out of the ground.
Right glad to meet you
As once more we greet you;
A blessing you quickly are crowned.
All of us sing, with the coming of spring,
And our pulses, with pep start to pound.

Outdoors is telling us, come out and play;
Yea, hie to the open and free.
God's very best things are put on display.
Come out and enjoy what you'll see.
Green grass is greener,
And spirit's much keener.
Why shouldn't we all shout hurray?
Nothing's more pleasin'; we have every reason
To welcome the springtime to-day.

AUTOMOBILE ENGINEERS PLAN FOR FUTURE 25 YEARS AHEAD

Think Far Ahead in Automobile Construction—Specification of Perfection.

BY H. F. BLANCHARD.

It is easy to set down the specifictions of the perfect car. It will make no noise beyond a slight pounding of the tires on the road. The running of the engine will be imperceptible. It will climb any hill on high gear. A single pedal will control its forward speed, whether accelerating or decelerating, and it will be possible to set the hand throttle so that it will travel at constant pace uphill and downdale. It will do a hundred miles or more on a gallon of fuel and its oil consumption will be negligible. It will cover a hundred thousand miles with but slight repairs and few adjustments. Neglect will be almost unknown because its care will be simplified. It will be beautiful, undimmed by age, and comfortable, and smooth riding on the roughest roads. Tires will run a hundred thousand miles. Nearly every individual will have a car since the first cost will be moderate, the upkeep slight and the life long. Roads will be developed to handle the traffic.

The engineer is thinking far ahead, and, being an idealist, he is developing a wonderful car. As an illustration, one of them said to me recently:

"We're not satisfied with our anti-friction bearings. They're giving too much trouble."

He mentioned the name of a well-known and skilled-bearing maker.

"That's terrible," I replied, and pressed him for details.

"One car in 3000 develops bearing trouble," he said seriously. I thought that was pretty good and felt relieved—it put the bearing maker back on the pedestal where I'd kept him for a score of years. Then, the climax:

"We have fourteen of these bearings on our car. That means that one bearing out of 42,000 gives trouble. It's too much!" I gasped, for it looked like super-perfection to me but it wasn't good enough for him, and fundamentally he's right. Now, this man is on the engineering staff of a company which does not build Rolls-Royces but a line of cars in the $1000-$2000 class!

Another example: A few weeks later I was talking to the chief engineer of an old, established company in the medium price class regarding a new model. This man, by the way, is noted for the extreme conservativeness of his statements.

"You know," he said, "there is something very peculiar about our new engine. It won't wear in. You can run one a thousand miles and it is just about as stiff as the day it was made. Take it apart and you can't measure the wear. It is notably better in wearing quality than any other engine I have examined. I can't explain it, but it is a fact. It may be due to an unusually heavy crankshaft which practically eliminates vibration, or to this in happy combination with light reciprocating parts and a specially efficient lubricating system.

Obviously an engine which wears in so slowly will take a proportionately long time to wear out, and this incident suggests that there is still a great deal to be learned about wear, and that although present engines are very long lived, those of the future will be infinitely longer, and so with the whole car.

This incident suggests that there is still a great deal to be learned about wear, and that although present engines are very long lived, those of the future will wear infinitely longer.

It appears that there is still much to be learned regarding the effect of vibration on wear, and a better understanding of this phenomenon, plus the development of lubricating systems which are proof against oil dilution, plus the use of air cleaners, and more skillful combination of materials, workmanship and design will make the future car almost wear-proof.

It is difficult to predict the dimensions of future engines. There is a certain tendency to shorten the stroke as the speed increases. There are a number of engines with 4-inch stroke, as well as many with 4¼ or 4½ inch strokes, whereas a few years ago the average was about 5 inches. And there is one car, which may be announced soon, with a stroke of 3¾ inches. Shortening the stroke tends to make a smoother engine, other things being equal and at the same r.p.m., cylinder, piston and ring wear are reduced.

Engine speeds are likely to increase. There are a number of stock cars in Europe with an engine maximum of 5,000 r.p.m. and in one case 7,000 r.p.m. was recorded, whereas American engines average 3,000 or a little less. Problems of manufacture and maintenance increase rapidly with engine speed and therefore it is difficult to say to what extent American manufacturers will follow this trend. It is doubtful wher the supercharger will ever be generally adopted although it may find a place on an occasional expensive car. Since it has the ability to cram more mixture into the engine, an engine of a given size will develop more power. The new six-cylinder Mercedes, for example, yields 100 h.p. without supercharger and 140 h.p. with. However, it is questionable whether it isn't a better plan to obtain power increase by enlarging the engine dimensions, or conversely, present engines are likely to be preferred to smaller engines of the same power with supercharger.

There is every evidence the six will continue to be the popular type, although there will always be a few good fours,—and eights in the higher price classes There is no indication that valve mechanisms will change, yet engineers are continually experimenting with new types. As crankshafts increase in weight, the flywheel becomes smaller, having a face just wide enough for the starter gear teeth on some cars.

Duraluminum and other special light, but strong aluminum alloys are likely to be more generally used when they become less expensive. Duraluminum is as strong as mild steel and can be forged. It is now being used successfully for connecting-rods and it is conceivable that eventually aluminum alloys will largely replace steel in motor car construction. When this happens the weight of the car will be halved, and car performance maintained with half present engine power, while fuel economy will be doubled.

The use of high-compression engines in connection with anti-knock compounds will also have a marked effect on fuel economy, improving it 25 to 50 per cent.

The tendency is slowly but certainly toward the production of cars which will climb any hill on high gear, and several 1925 cars already come very close to this ideal. These models should certainly be able to negotiate any hill on second, which means that first is mainly of service in crawling through traffic. The practice of starting on second gear is gaining ground. All of which leads up to the thought that some saving might be made in the weight and strength of drive shaft and rear axle parts by the elimination of first speed, since these parts are now designed to withstand the excesive torque which the modern, high-gear engine is capable of exerting when low gear is used with throttle wide open.

This tendency is also likely to force us to revise our ideas regarding the transmission. A well-known German car, a high-grade six, is made with a two-speed and reverse planetary transmission somewhat similar to the Ford, high-gear being used on all but the steepest grades, when low gear is obtained by pressing a pedal. The clutch is not used when starting, since the car has a starter and a battery large enough to start the car from rest. Starting therefore consists in manipulating starting pedal and accelerator, which are close together, while the clutch is engaged. Whenever the car is stopped the engine is stopped. Other very high-grade cars have been built recently with just two speeds forward. There is no reason why a planetary transmission should not be quiet when carefully made.

Automatic transmission of some sort will eventually replace the conventional sliding gear type. These transmissions fall into two classes: Those which provide an easier method of gear shifting and those which change the gear ratio between engine and rear wheels automatically as road conditions demand. At least twenty different designs have been brought forth in the last year or so, and more are on the way.

Sir Herbert Austin, who may be described as the English Henry Ford, recently suggested that the engine of the car be placed in the rear under a hood. It sounds radical, but the fact is, that it is in the minds of quite a few automotive engineers as a possible future development. Incidentally, the Rumpler, made by one of the leading German automobile companies has this feature. There is much to recommend it. With the engine in this position, its noise and heat are least objectionable, and the passengers would be most comfortably placed between the wheels.

Four-wheel brakes will be perfected and simplified and balloon tires will probably add as much to tire life as they have to passenger comfort, since there is no getting away from the fact that the balloon is a super-size tire, and eventually it must give proportionally high mileage. Considering that there are instances where standard cord tires have run 60,000 miles, it is fair to assume that some time in the future the balloon will deliver 100,000 miles.

While the balloon has added much to comfort, car springs and upholstesy have still something to contribute. At least on 1925 car possesses a seat back which is mounted on guides so that it moves up and down with the cushion, thus preventing the back from giving you a kick every time that the cushion yields for a bump. The comfort of the car is actually greatly improved by this simple feature.

HEAD HUNTERS KILL FOR TOURIST TRADE

Explorer Tells How Shuaras Slay Even Tribesmen to Sell Human Heads as Curios.

NEW YORK, March 21.—C. Lester Liddle, who has just spent a year with the head-hunting Shuara Indians of the upper Amazon country in Ecuador, presented to the American Museum of Natural History a collection of weapons, jewels, ceremonial garments, musical instruments and other characteristic articles of the South American head-hunters, including the technical outfit used in converting the heads of enemies and strangers into ornaments for formal wear.

With medicine and gifts, Mr. Liddle established himself on an exempt basis with the head-hunters in the Province of Oriente in Ecuador and lived through a year while study ing the economic resources of the country.

"A little iodine, some fish-hooks and beads and other articles put me on a footing of safety," said Mr. Liddle. "It was my second visit. I had been in the country in search of a gold mine a year before. This time I was making a more general survey.

"I found that one is fairly secure when he comes to regard you as a friend, although I was accidentally endangered twice. In the first place I attracted too much attention to my head by wearing black sunglasses. They had never seen glasses before and it was supposed that they were an organic part of my head. I became nervous when I found they were studying me so closely. It is a very unpleasant sensation to find an intense interest taken in your head by such connoisseurs.

Like Variety in Heads.

"They place a high valuation on heads that are different. One of the men who fell a victim of these people some years ago was a white-bearded man said to be a German professor. They were particularly excited about that because all of the Indians are beardless.

Formerly the killings all took place in obedience to the tribal law of revenge. When a man was killed in one tribe, his kinsmen could not rest until they had evened it up by killing a member of the other tribe. The head was always taken, the skull removed and by an elaborate technical process the head was reduced to the size of a fist, still perfectly preserving the features of the slain one. Originally this was a matter of law and religion with them, but to-day it has become a matter of supplying the tourist demand for such relics. There is a regular market for such things. A skilfully reduced specimen sells today at Quito, Guayaquil and other South American ports for $300 to $400. Heads with certain singularities command higher prices. The head of the scientist, I was told, eventually sold for $1,000.

"As soon as I was warned that it was the sun glasses that caused a peculiar interest in my head, I took them off. I wore them subsequently, but always took them off a few times when I met a stranger so that he would not have any misconceptions.

Another Precarious Moment.

"The second danger was at a ceremony during the early days of my stay with the Shuara. I took a snapshot of one of the Indians and almost immediately afterward he fell over a low cliff into a yucca patch. He was found unconscious. Twenty-five Indians surrounded me and told me through an interpreter that I had stolen his soul and had it in the black box I carried. I poured half a cantee of whisky down the man's throat and he revived. Then they called me a 'bruza,' or witch-doctor, and begged me to go to some of the most recent graves of the tribes and resurrect dead men. I excused myself."

Mr. Liddle said that the Ecuadorian Government was endeavoring to suppress the traffic in the only manufactured product of the Shuara Indians, but the tourist demand was so great that little headway had been made. Ecuador has laid an embargo on these souvenirs and has made it punishable by fine and imprisonment to sell or possess one.

"I believe Peru has taken some similar measures," said Mr. Liddle, "but there was a party of twenty Peruvians at Macas in Ecuador, when I was there, buying these relics for resale to the tourists. In return for heads they offered the Indians clothing, ornaments, beads and other articles, including a very deadly poison, which the Indians use for smearing their spearheads.

Even Kill in Own Tribe.

What to the artless Indians was formerly a sacred rite has become so thoroughly a sophisticated institution, according to Mr. Liddle, that they are secretly despatching unnecessary members of their own tribes. In the towns commercialization has become complete, he said, as the technical secrets have got into the hands of curio-makers, who pay cash for heads of any kind. Mr. Liddle showed photographs of the work of these inferior craftsmen which are sold, he said, for $100 apiece to tourists who lack taste.

Ecuador was having difficulty in suppressing the practice, according to the explorer, because it had never been able to enforce its laws among the Shuara. He illustrated this by telling of an incident which occurred when he was at Macas. The local authorities brought in a Shuara who had darted a poisoned javelin through his wife. It was said to have been the first time they had ever arrested an Indian for anything, but orders had come from Quito to punish breaches of order by the Indians.

Incarceration Surprised Him.

The astonished Indian was kept in jail for a week and never learned the cause of his arrest, according to Mr. Liddle. In his native tongue the Shuara kept repeating, "Why? Why? Why? Why? Why have you put me in here?"

"You have killed your wife," he was told.

"Yes, I know," replied the Shuara "but why have you put me in here?"

Fifteen of his fellow Shuara finally came to the jail with poisoned javelins and embarrassed the Spanish authorities.

"Why have you imprisoned our brother?" asked their spokesman.

"He killed his wife," replied the officer.

"Yes, but why have you imprisoned our brother?" persisted the Shuara leader.

"He has broken the law by killing his wife," explained the officer, patiently.

"Yes, but for what reason have you put him in there?"

By hours of explanation the officials made them understand that the idea was that the man ought to be punished for darting a poisoned spear through his wife. Black looks and ominous mutterings followed. The leader of the Shuara then replied that it was clear that their relative was being held on a shallow pretext, and demanded to know the real nature of his offence. In the end the Macas officials decided that they probably had gone too far, and they released the prisoner.

HERE'S SOLUTION TO RADIO DIFFICULTY

United States Stations May Adopt New Plan of Assigning Lengths.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 21.—S. M. Kintner, research engineer of the Westinghouse Company, has the solution to the problem of assigning wavelengths.

This has been stumping the Department of Commerce in its efforts to give every broadcasting station an equal opportunity to broadcast.

Kintner's idea is to divide broadcasters into four classes, and instead of separating all by an arbitrary allowance of 10 kilocycles, as the Commerce Department has tried to do, he would give the super-power broadcasters a large allowance of 20 kilocycles and the rest could be separated by 10.

Thus, argues Kintner, there would be less chance of interference among the larger broadcasters or by them with the smaller ones.

According to Kintner's table, broadcasters of from 5 to 50 kilowatt power, allowing for higher power in the future, would be in Class 1, between 300 and 416.6 meters. There would be room for 15 of these large broadcasters, each separated by 20 kilocycles.

Class 2 would contain stations down to 500 watts power, between 428.5 and 555 meters, separated by 10 kilocycles. Seventeen channels would be available in this band, but two assignments could be made in the same time area and there could be two time areas, one for the east and another for the west coast. Thus there would be 68 possible assignments in this band.

Class 3 would include stations of 100 to 500 watts power, whose influence is mostly local. There would be 45 channels of 10 kilocycles between 205.5 and 94 meters.

Three time divisions could be allotted for these, and there could be three assignments of the same wavelength in each time division. Thus 540 assignments could be possible in this class.

The fourth class would include all stations below 100 watts power and higher powered stations that would have to await assignment when any of the other classes is filled. This class could hold an unlimited number of assignments.

CELEBRATE BIRTH OF PALESTRINA

Fourth Centenary of Great Composer's Birthday Falls This Year.

ROME, March 21 (Associated Press)—The fourth centenary of the birth in 1925 of Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina, the father of modern musical nomenclature and composer of a considerable amount of the most magnificent sacred music of the Roman Catholic church, is being celebrated this year in Rome and is being made the occasion for the rendition for the first time of many little known non-religious works of the great master.

Although Palestrina's sacred music is universally known, almost nothing has been known of his profane music, of which he left about 200 madrigals and canzoni. Since the "vocal orchestra" ceased to exist as a lay form of 'instrumentation," no copies of Palestrina's profane music have existed. Of the entire body of his work, Richard Wagner published a first edition in Germany, but after such Italian musicians as Alberto Cametti, Monsignor Casimiri, Giovanni Tebaldini and Domenico Alaleona had pointed out that the German edition was very faulty the work of compiling a complete edition was undertaken in Italy. This, it is stated, will be ready some time during the current year.

The first of a series of commemorative concerts took place recently at the Royal Academy of Santa Cecilia under the direction of Domenico Alaleona, who had copied from the original manuscripts the works included in the program. The magnitude of the task successfully accomplished by Alaleona is easily seen when it is remembered that the original works were written with uniform notes without any indications of movement, color or expression. The program included a canzone to the words of Petrarch's "chiare fresche e dolci acque," and a madrigal written on the occasion of the battle of Lepanto in 1571, when the united Christian armies defeated the Turks.

CALIFORNIA FACES FORCED INSURANCE

Five Bills Introduced Would Compel Insurance for Motorists.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 21.—Five bills introduced before the California Legislature seek the adoption of compulsory insurance of motorists. The amount of insurance ranges up to $10,000.

One bill would make the owner of a vehicle liable for death or injury of a person through negligence of operation.

Another bill calls for suspension of an operator's license for six months on third conviction for violation of the motor vehicle act.

A third bill calls for a mechanical governor on all trucks to control their speed. Several other bills aim specifically at commercial vehicles, one of which would impose a tax of 4 per cent. on the gross receipts of their owners.

Several other bills have been introduced, most of them calling for some financial return to the state for the use of a motor vehicle.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Millions of people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

BRADLEY'S BAY IS MECCA FOR FUR TRAPPERS

Unusually Large Number Attracted by High Prices Offered.

ARRIVE EARLY.

The Regulations Have Many Transgressors—To Be Heard in Police Court.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 21.—The present and prospective high price of furs has drawn to the trapping grounds of Bradley Bay and Hoard's Station, an unusually large number of hunters, many of whom reached the scene of operation before the opening of the season and long before the ice was out of the river, the early arrivals seeking out the desirable locations. The trappers this year have found themselves confronted by new local regulations and the result is that the officials are finding it more difficult than ever to enforce the law and life among the campers at both points to little short of a turmoil. Several trappers have been summoned for failing to take out licenses and Inspector John R. Allan, of Campbellford, has seized 10 pelts from one man who failed to comply with the law. The cases of these alleged delinquents will be heard in the police court in a few days. Other trappers including whites and Indians, have left for new fields rather than submit to conditions here.

Farmers Exact Tribute.

For years white men and Indians have trapped muskrats in Bradley Bay and in Hoard Creek, a tributary of the Trent River, without let or hindrance other than the payment of the $5 license fee. No one questioned their right to trap or camp where they would.

It seems, however, that the farmers who own land upon which the trappers worked have reached the conclusion that the latter were growing rich at the business, and decided to exact toll for the privileges hitherto free. These farmers appear to have formed a union for all levied a charge for the use of their property, this levy being as high in some cases as $50 for the season. Other farmers let their properties for a percentage of the season's catch.

The Legal Issue.

The legality of this new move on the part of the farmers is a point yet to be settled. Some of the trappers secured legal advice in Campbellford, and were told to go ahead as they enjoyed certain riparian rights. All they had to do was to see that they did not trespass on land beyond the distance from the river prescribed by law.

Farmers along Hoard's Creek, which is not navigable, say that they have been advised by their lawyers that they own the property down to the edge of the water, and that no person other than the owner has a right to camp or even to land on it. Walter L. Anderson, who owns land on both sides of the creek, claims that strangers cannot even trap from a canoe opposite his land, as his deed gives him possession of the water as well as the adjoining property.

Rights of Indians.

Indians have always claimed the right to trap without molestation, a right secured by treaty on either government or private land. The new farmer regulation has caused considerable complaint among the class although some are now working on a percentage basis. Special privileges for Indians have generaly been observed by the officials in times past.

For several years past a number of Indians have come to Bradley Bay and Hoard's Station from St. Regis, Que, these visiting trappers including John and Paul Thomas, the well-known lacrosse players. While the price of a license is $5 to an Ontario man, it is $50 to any one residing outside of the province. That with the farmers' tax proved too much for the St. Regis men and six of them left the neighborhood yesterday in quest of new hunting grounds.

Other farms at Hoard's Station, besides Mr. Anderson, who have leased land for traping purposes, are James Dunkley and Harry Parr.

Why Farmers Acted.

It is said on behalf of the farmers that for years they have been imposed upon by the visiting trappers. The government recognized the right of farmers and their sons to trap on their own land in season without the payment of a license fee. In this way father and sons were able to earn a little extra money at the time of year when farm work was slack. The more experienced trappers, however, invaded the farmers' private preserves and carried off the spoils, besides in many cases seting up tents on his lands and stealing his fence rails and other timber for fuel. The back of the long suffering camel broke at last.

A Village of Tents.

Whether it is the money to be made or the excitment of the pursuit, the fact remains that the business of trapping muskrats induces human beings to face hardships and endure discomforts so long as the law permits them to carry on. Tents are in evidence everywhere at Bradley Bay, flimsy canvass structures barely sufficient to turn the rain and intercept the wind, yet such tents in many cases are the temporary home of not only the trappers but his wife and children. White families and Indians live under similar conditions throughout the trapping season. The tents are heated by small stoves, the pipes from which protrude through the walls or roofs. Supplies are brought in from a distance and few cases of illness are ever reported among the campers. The Eskimos in their huts of snow are certainly better protected from storm and frost than are the muskrat trappers of this district. And yet year after year finds them enduring the same trials in the reckless pursuit of wealth.

Some of these tents are erected on strips of government land, for which there is none to exact a rental. Others are located on ground leased from the farmers under the new regulations. In the Hoard's Station district the only known strip of government land adjoins the farm of Wallace Hoard. At least Mr. Hoard, or no one else, has been asked all these years to pay any taxes on the property.

Critical Times in Woman's Life

Mrs. James Muir, Anten Mills, Ont., writes:—

"I suffered from nervousness and despondency, and at 65 lost all control of my limbs, so that for two years I was unable to walk. The doctors thought I would never get better at my age, but I read of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and bought and used a dozen boxes. In a short time I was able to walk again. I am now 79 years old and have enjoyed good health for the past fourteen years, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

IN woman's life there are periods of excessive nervous strain. If she can safely pass these times the chances are good for happiness and long life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is woman's best friend from childhood to old age because it comes to her aid during these critical periods.

Headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion, irritability, tendency to worry are the symptoms which tell of a failing nervous system.

Rest and the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most rational and most effective treatment for the building up of the nervous system. Many thousands of women willingly verify this statement.

PLAN BUFFALO PARK

Manitoba Old-Timers' Association Asks Federal Government for Herd.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 17.—(Cahadian Press).—Application for the establishment of a buffalo park in Manitoba, either directly under the control of the national park commission or by the gift of an embryo herd to an organization that would open a park, is being sought by the Old Timers' and Lord Selkirk associations.

A petition has been prepared for submission to the federal authorities at Ottawa. The interested organizations are asking for the concession as a step toward a plan aiming at the preservation of historical features of the Western plains.

THAT TIRED FEELING IN SPRINGTIME

Not Sick, But Not Up to the Mark Need the Help of that Sterling Tonic

Dr. William's Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality---and more

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. No particular disease, but the system lacks tone. You find yourself tired, low-spirited, and often unable to get sound sleep at night. All this is the result of in-door confinement of the winter months, and shows that the blood has become thin and watery. New, rich, red blood is what you need to put you right, and there is no other medicine can give you this new blood as surely and as speedily as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood goes to every part of the body and quickly improves the general health. Digestion is toned up, you have a better appetite, nerves are strengthened and sleep is sound and refreshing.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down is shown by the experience of Mr. William Mitchell, R.R. No. 1, Bedford, P.E.I., who says: "A few months ago I found myself in a badly run-down condition. My appetite was poor, I was easily tired and did not sleep well. I tried several so-called tonics, but did not get any relief. Then I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and soon found that I had got the right medicine. Gradually my strength came back, the dull, tired feeling disappeared, and after using the pills for about a month, I could eat heartily and was as strong and active as ever I had been. I can most cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as an unsurpassed tonic."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DELORO MINSTRELS PUT ON FINE SHOW

Large Audience Highly Pleased with Entertainment Supplied.

MARMORA, March 21.—A packed house greeted the opening chorus of the Deloro minstrel show at the hall on the evening of March 17. Early that evening, a troop of local men in perfectly ordinary attire had entered the portals of a makeup parlor and later, behold, out emerged a minstrel troupe with individualities lost behind a mass of grease paint and a regalia most flowery. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde had nothing on the local ebony boys, each of whom stared at the other with astonishment or consternation. As the curtain rolled back the twelve good men and true of the chorus broke out snappily with the refrain of "Make Believe," followed immediately by "Linger Awhile." With the subsiding of applause, the interlocutor commanded, "Gentlemen, be seated," whereupon he delivered an opportune speech. Words scarce describe the idiosyncrasies and vagaries of minstrel apparel. Suffice it to say that the negro fondness for color was more than realized in a dazzling display of red and green with a background of white.

As jest and song held intermittent sway the darkies rose to superb heights of eloquence and syncopation. Many a skit, general and personal, contributed to the merriment of the audience. "Tiny" Yates, as "Bones," sang "The Little Old Smelter," to the tune of "Little Brown Jug." Various local executives and individuals found themselves immortalized in verse. A big hit of the evening was "O, Susanna," sung by Finn Melvaer, a shining Rastus. Finn showed great adaptability in his part, sending the audience wild with his gestures and facial contortions. As his last chorus ended, Tambo (A. R. Pengilly), became suddenly inspired and taking the banjo from the tender clasp of Mr. Green (W. L. Rigg), proceeded to pick out the notes of "O, Susanna," with evidence of supreme disgust. Bones snatched the instrument away to give his own interpretation of the melody. Indignation on the part of Tambo resulted in a compromise whereby they played the piece together. Mr. White (Frank Chapman), sang as the solo for the evening, "Sally In Our Ally." Then followed a quarette by the following artists: Mr. Black (R. Hunter), Mr. White (F. Chapman), Mr. Green (W. L. Rigg), The Interlocutor (R. A. Elliott). The selection rendered was, "Kentucky Babe," fully meriting the encore it received.

Mr. Rufus (Frank Seal), was then called upon by the interlocutor to sing, "Balm of Gilead." He sent the house into roars of laughter in describing the old horse coming from Jerusalem. Archie McCallum was a host in himself in his portrayal of southern humor. The programme wound up with that appealing plantation song, "Ise Gwine Back to Dixie." It was rendered with all the force and vigor left in the colored gents. It was the unanimous verdict that the show had indeed been creditably put on. The house numbered well on to two hundred and the receipts will go to the music fund out of which the purchase of a new piano for the hall is being effected.

Those taking part were: Chorus—A. V. Yates, K. B. Patterson, A. R. Pengilly, C. Quinn, F. Chapman, W. L. Rigg, R. A. Elliott, F. Groves, W. Kerr, F. Leal and R. Hunter; musical accompanists—F. Paquet, piano, S. B. Wright, violin, R. Parker, traps. Mr. Ross Hunter was the director of music and Mr. Robert Parker carried out the duties of manager. The entertainment was followed by dancing, for which a large number stayed. Lunch at midnight brought the event to a close. It is expected that the troupe will visit Marmora in the near future when a crowded house would again have to be recorded.

Capt. J. M. MacDonald, of Toronto, visited Marmora on Monday and Deloro on Tuesday on behalf of the Navy League.

A dance was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. Matthew McGarvey.

STRICTLY BUSINESS.

Mark Street Ladies' Aid Stage a Very Successful Play.

On Thursday evening the members of the Mark Street Ladies' Aid presented a very charming little play. It was staged in the Victoria Assembly Hall and was greatly enjoyed by the capacity house.

The plot had to deal with the work of the Ladies' Aid in the rural districts and more particularly with the question of refurnishing the parsonage of the new minister.

There were many amusing discussions and interesting debates before the matter was finally settled. The play had the benefit of a splendid cast and the various actors are to be congratulated because of the feeling of naturalness which they managed to convey. Mrs. John Speer, as Mrs. O'Grogan, by her quaint Irish witticisms lent the greater touches of humor.

The success of the play was assured by the untiring efforts of Mr. Wesle , who cast the characters and assisted in the proper interpretation of the roles.

M.. Wesley was aided by M.. Lush, who secured the essential stage settings. Prio. to the presentation of the play an impromptu orchestra played a number of popular airs. It consisted of: Piano, Miss R. Rose; sax., R. Allen; banjo, W. Cowling; traps, R. Reid.

Between acts a number of songs and recitations were presented which added the spice variety and were well received by an appreciative audience. Mrs. Smith acted as accompanist for the singing.

MUNICH, Germany, March 21.—A clock made entirely of straw is on exhibition here. It has been keeping good time for nearly 17 years. WEDDING BELLS.

GORDON—McKINLAY.

COBOURG, March 21.—One of the prettiest of early spring weddings was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. McKinlay, of Plainville, on Wednesday, March 1 , when their second daughter, Marguerite Alvena (Dolly), became the bride of William Chisholm Gordon, only son of John Gordon, also of Plainville.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, beautifully rendered by Miss Ida McKinlay, the bride entered the room on the arm of her father, who gave her away, and took her place beneath an arch of evergreen and roses, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. J. Horwood, pastor of Plainville Methodist Church. The bride looked charming in her wedding dress of poudre blue flat crepe prettily draped and trimmed with ornaments of beads and embroidery. She also wore the customary veil and orange blossoms a d carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern.

Miss Marie McKinlay, neice of the bride, dressed in a butterfly gown of canary colored silk brocade, acted as ring bearer, carrying the ring in a tiny crystal slipper with bows of satin ribbon. She received as a favor from the groom a pretty gold brooch. The groom's gift to the bride was a grey fox fur and to the pianist a pearl set onyx ring.

After the signing of the register the guests, numbering about twenty-five, repaired to the dining-room where the wedding dinner was served. Later, amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the young couple caught the afternoon flier for Toronto and Burlington, where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride's going away dress was a beautiful tailor-made suit of navy tricotine and grey hat trimmed with blue ostrich and veil.

Upon their return they will reside near Bewdley, where they have the best wishes of a host of friends. On Monday evening, previous to her marriage, the bride was made the recipient of a miscellaneous shower by neighbors and co-workers in the Plainville church, where she has been a faithful and valued member of the choir. The numerous gifts testify to the esteem in which the young couple are held in the community.

BROWN—CHAPMAN.

COBOURG, March 21.—The marriage of Evelyn Georgina, daughter of Mrs. George Brown, Bond street, Cobourg, to Saxon Patterson Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Chapman, Brantford, took place quietly at the manse here Wednesday afternoon, Rev. W. A. Bremner officiating. The bride wore a pretty gown of satin-faced canton crepe trimmed with gold brocade with hat to match. She was attended by her sister, Miss Grace Brown, and Mr. Wm. Brown, the bride's brother, was groomsman. After the ceremony luncheon was served at the home of the bride's mother, where the rooms were prettily decorated with daffodils and fern. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman left later for a trip to Brantford before taking up residence at Iroquois Falls, Ont. The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls. The bride was also the recipient of a shower given by her girl friends prior to her marriage when a very delightful time was spent.

A SURE RELIEF FOR KIDNEY TROUBLE

So Says Mr. L. Soucy of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Quebec man recommends them to all who suffer.

St. Antonin, Que., March 20. — (Special.)—Once once Dodd's Kidney Pills have proved their inestimable value in the case of Mr. L. Soucy a well known resident of this place. He writes: "I can tell you that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me much good. I have suffered for two years from bad kidneys. One of my friends advised me to take them. Two boxes have restored my health. I advise all those suffering from kidney complaints to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, they will surely relieve them."

To avoid disease the kidneys must be kept in good working order. The kidneys are the scavengers of the body. Their work is to strain all the impurities out of the blood. If the kidneys are wrong the impurities, the seeds of disease, remain in the blood, and serious trouble is bound to follow. At the first sign of trouble try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

FACTS ON CONTAGION

Danger in Books, Etc., Does Not Persist Very Long.

Mrs. Mann continued with her story about germs by telling her husband that there was no need of being afraid of many things which our fathers feared in the early days of germ theory of disease.

"Clothing, books, toys and other objects, handled, by a sick person, are dangerous if they have recently been handled, but the danger will not persist very long.

"If a person, suffering from a cold, coughs in his hand, and then with that hand passes me an apple, I shall be likely to contract that cold.

"If he puts the apple down, and I do not take it for a day, the risk is less, and if I wait a week there is little chance that I will catch the cold."

For the same reason, it seems probable that dust in the past, has been overrated as an agent for the transmission of disease.

Some germs are harder to kill. It is possible to find tuberculosis germs in the dust of dark rooms where a patient has been.

The principal danger from tuberculosis sputum is that the germs may be transferred while fresh and virulent by shoes, skirts, fingers flies or in other ways.

TOGO'S FLAGSHIP SAVED

TOKIO, March 21.—The battleship Mikasa, Admiral Togo's flagship in the battle of the Sea of Japan when the Russian fleet was destroyed, is to be preserved as a monument. When the famous ship was sentenced to the scrap heap a national movement was begun to preserve her, with the result that she will be imbedded in concrete halfway up her hull, and gangways will connect her with shore.

TRICK STEAMER WILL ELUDE LOW BRIDGES

BERLIN, March 21.—Low bridges span the river Spree, and interfere seriously with the passage of excursion steamers loaded with holiday makers from Berlin. Hence a new steamer is being built, to carry 1,000 passengers, that will be equipped with large tanks which, when filled with water, will submerge the hull sufficiently to pass under the lowest bridge on the river.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE WEE FREES.

To the Editor, Examiner.

Sir: During the discussion of Church Union considerable prominence has been given to the case of the Free Church of Scotland, very commonly known as the "Wee Free" Church. It has been asserted that it has made very wonderful progress since it declined to go with the Free Church into the union of 1900, which resulted in the present United Free Church of Scotland. The issue of the Church and University Almanac has been issued in Scotland for this year. The number of congregations reported as belonging to the Free Church is 137, with 21 mission stations, making a total of 158 preaching places. In 1923 the number of congregations reported in the same almanac was 135, with 20 mission stations, making a total of 155. In the year 1923 there were 57 vacancies, with all the mission stations vacant, and now, in 1925, there are 47 vacancies, with all the mission stations still vacant.

Scotland is noted as the country which provides an educated ministry. It is not without siguificance that among the ministers, 89 in all, there are only 29 of them who have any university degree. There are no statistics published as to the generosity of the congregations, but there are three mission fields reported, one in Kaffraria, with 16 stations reported, but only one missionary, and 5 of the places reported as charges, and all of them vacant; another mission stationis at Lima, Peru, with two missionaries, while the third is in India, with one missionary.

These facts do not afford any great inspiration to those who take up the same attitude to church union as the leaders of the minority of the Free Church did.

There is another body in Scotland which has an even closer affinity to our Canadian situation. The only document which the opponents of church union have filed so far as I know up to the present time is the writ which lies in Toronto. The free Presbyterian Church of Scotland came into existence in 1892, as a protest against the Declaratory Act adopted by the Free Church of Scotland at that time. Their doctrine is a rigid adherence to the confession as the writ referred to above, and they have the same affection for the name "Presbyterian" as our Presbyterian Church Association.

It is of interest to observe that they had 22 charges when they formed themselves into a separate body and that they have the same number of congregations still, but that 7 of them are vacant. They have one foreign mission station, in Rhodesia; one minister in Canada, at Chesley, with student stations in Winnipeg and Vancouver.

St. Elmo, Glengarry. G. WATT SMITH.

MODERNIST TEACHING.

To the Editor, The Examiner.

Sir: Some denominations having no liturgy are entirely dependent upon the pulpit for their prayers and general information. In fact, the pulpit is the sole source of education of the majority of listeners. What must we think will be the idea of miracles held in the future by people who hear that they are only suspensions of natural laws by interference as when we present the operation of gravitation? Or as when the doctor suspends bloodpoisoning?

This is the modernist teaching in a nutshell. Christ had no supernatural power. He was simply a great man. It is really pitiful that our people should be at the mercy of such stuff.

READER.

OF THE WORLD.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—We often hear said that it is on account of the world going mad for amusement that our churches are so poorly attended, but why this state of affairs? I have never read anywhere if a picture show be lifted up it would draw all men unto it, but I have read that the Master said, "And I, if I be be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me." The fact of the case is that we, who are professing Christians, are not lifting up Christ as we should in our daily lives. We have lots of pastors who will grasp the hand of those who hold high positions in the land and are able to contribute largely to the schemes of the church, but we want more pastors that will go down to the lonely homes in the back alleys and lanes and make such feel that they are precious jewels for the Master's crown. We have lots of men who will take their car and take the preacher and his wife joy-riding (and I have no objections to that), but the world wants men who will take their car and go out and look up that poor cripple man or woman who, by the misfortunes of life, are unable to enjoy earth's pleasures, and let them enjoy such pleasures with you. We have lots of people who will skid around the real truth in their preaching and teaching for fear they will offend some one, but we want more people that will preach and teach the real truth as it is written in the new dispensation without fear or favor. We want consecrated leadership and broad officialism in all our churches. We want officials on our boards who are living examples and who are looked up to and honored from a pure Christian standpoint in their community as well as their church life. We want leaders for our young people, who are not frivolous, but who will always in their word and action have something for those young people to feed on. Now, in closing this, as one who knows something of the ups and downs of life, and my life's work is nearly done and the evening shades will soon settle around, I want to say that I do appreciate the true and honest young manhood and young womanhood of our country, be it on the street or in the shop or office or on the farm, and I would say always—Stand for the Right, be in the Church or in the Tammany Hall, and if this is done we will soon have our churches filled to the doors. Thanking you, I remain, yours, etc.

Fish Miles Down In Sea Have Their Own Torches

Among the marvels of the life at great ocean depths are the mysterious, self-illumined fish, provided with light furnished by their own bodies. One of the important researches of the Beebe expedtion to the Sargasso Sea will be directed toward solving the problem of the production of this luminosity.

Five-sevenths of the earth's surface has never been explored. This represents the vast area covered by the oceans. While oceanography embraces quite a wide field of investigations of the resources of the sea, one o its most interesting and fascinating branches is dredging and trawling on the ocean floor, hauling up th strange and fantasic-loking creatures dwelling several miles below the surface. The physical features of these abysmal waters cause the sea life to adapt itself to many adversities.

Among the remarkable types are those that can beaptly termed deep sea electricians with organs for projecting light. They are super-adepts in radiant illumination. Neither sun nor moon leand sthem light Yet, at wil, equipped with their mysterious internal dynamos, they can create ample floods of light to serve their purposes.

One wonderful speciment brought up from a depth of three sea miles in the Pacific Ocean, carries a lantern. It is provided with a rod which is hinged so that its tip can be swung immediately over its back or in front of the mouth. At the end of this rod is a luminous lure or searchlight

This enables the fish to blaze a pathway, avoid foes and capture prey. Carrying brilliant lamps, they plow through waters like flaming torches, and light up the dark depths

Some of the deep swimmers have long rows of lights on each side of the body and resemble little ships with shining portholes, which pass in the night. In most deep sea fish their lamps or searchlights can be turned on or off at will.

The story of two brothers who lived on $9 a week

A BANK MANAGER may never intrude himself into the business affairs of a client, but when he is invited to act in an advisory capacity, frequently there is an inspiring story of achievement to be told as a result of the union of practical ability and expert financial direction.

Two brothers in their twenties, living in an eastern city, possessed a "Shoestring" of $1,500, a supply of Canadian pluck and a knowledge of the manufacture and sale of a certain commodity. They went into business for themselves, and were assisted by their father in the purchase of materials. Then they sought the best financial advice and co-operation and were directed to the Bank of Toronto.

Our manager immediately got down to brass tacks with these two boys. They put their cards on the table, face up. Their "strong suit" was then honesty, energy and willingness to sacrifice. They were drawing only $9 a week each from the business; every other cent made was going back into the business.

The Bank of Toronto manager enlisted the resources of the Bank in the interests of these young men. Reasonable advances were made; the financial standing of new accounts was carefully checked; fluctuations in prices of supplies and labor were carefully checked. And the young firm grew on the strongest of foundation stones.

The relationship continues to this day. The young men are now leaders in Canadian business, their names known and honored from coast to coast;; they are worth $250,000 each, and the daily output of their factory runs into thousands of units of the commodity they are making.

While their development is almost entirely due to their own initiative and energy, good judgment in seeking sound financial co-operation from a bank that gave more than mechanical service played an important part in their success.

WRITING BY WIRE NEXT MOVE SAYS A BRITISH ENGINEER

Quick Communication by Way of Typewriter Keys and Connections.

ALREADY USED.

By CLAIR PRICE.

NEW YORK.—Developments of revolutionary importance that in the next twenty-five years may make the telegraph as conveinient as the telephone and as universal in the business world were described by Donald Murray, M.A., M.I.E.E., a prominent British engineer, in a paper which he read recently before the Institution of Electrical Engineers in London and which attracted wide attention among British scientists.

The perfection of printing telegraph machines with a typewriter keyboard at which any stenographer can send from forty to eighty words a minute over distances up to 5,000 miles will bring the telegraph, like the telephone, to every business man's elbow, Mr. Murray believes. The printing telegraph will become the Ford car of telegraphy. Printing telegraph exchanges will give telegraph facilities similar to the present telephone facilities. Telegraph offices will become automatic switching exchanges, like an automatic telephone exchange. Telegraph operators, like the telephone girls, will disappear and their places will be taken by a few telegraph engineers and mechanics, wandering about in the deserted telegraph operating rooms, looking after the switching apparatus.

This will be the result, Mr. Murray declared, of developments now taking place in the United States, where both the Western Union and the Bell Telephone Company have supplied telegraph typewriter service to business men for several years. If this proves commercially profitable it will lead to the establishment of printing telegraph, or teletype, exchanges in all the American cities, and they will be linked up by long distance telegraph lines and ocean cables. This will put business men all over the American continent in touch not only with one another but with European business men, by printing telegraphy. "In this way," says Mr. Murray, "the new telegraphy will be born."

Morse ethods Inadequate.

Mr. Murray described present-day telegraphy as suffering from what he calls defective te minal facilities. By this he means that the telephone is at one's elbow, the telegraph is not. The business man has only to take off the receiver in order to use the telephone, but to use the telegraph he has to send his message to a telegraph office, where a Morse operator telegraphs it for him. "That," he says, "is quite satisfactory for the occasional telegram and for the private and domestic message; but big users of the telegraph require something better. They need a telegraph linkage that will put them directly in touch with their correspondents, just as the telephone does."

The Morse key, he believes, will always be with us, just as pens will always be used. But if we now use pens for the purpose of signing letters, the letters themselves are typed, and this typewriter keyboard should be as supreme in telegraphy as it is in business. That condition is coming rapidly and is already in full flood in America. The era is beginning when typewriter keyboards in the offices of business men will not merely type letters but will type and transmit telegrams direct to correspondents in any part of the world. At last the telegraph service will secure the direct connection with business that has been so long the monopoly of the telephone.

"For the past ten years, at least, the distribution of news has been linked up directly from the news centres to the newspapers, and the news-distributing network in English-speaking countries is cheap, quick and highly efficient. Also, stock and exchange brokers in big centres like London and New York have not much to complain about, though the telegraph service will be improved even in their cases by the increasing use of the typewriter keyboard. It is in connection with the banks, the big financial houses, large hotels, big stores, the railways, great industries and manufacturing plants, and, above all, the great farming industry, that a quicker, cheaper and more accessible telegraph service is badly wanted.

"It is true that the telegraph has already been brought into offices and factories, but only to a relatively small extent. There are many firms using rented telegraph wires with Morse key and Morse operators, especially in the United States. In this country stock-brokers and other firms use the telegraph to some extent; but they are hampered by the necessity of employing a skilled Morse operator at each end of the line, and they cannot ring up anybody by telegraph, as they can by telephone. In other words, their telegraph service is poor. It is cribbed, cabined and confined to one correspondent. Even now stock brokers, for instance, in Glasgow, are each glad to pay nearly $20,000 a year for a private telephone line to London, though the telephone is notoriously bad for transmitting figures. A telegraph wire with the Morse key would be cheaper, but it would be too slow. Competition is keen and a delay of two or three seconds in getting prices from London results in business going to a competitor."

In addition to the supreme advantages of speed and cheapness at distances above fifty miles, Mr. Murray sees a third great advantage in the new telegraphy. "A telephone message," he said, "is a voice and nothing more—a sound leaving no record. Nothing is more evanescent. There are sound-recording machines, but the sounds are still sounds, and there is no conceivable mechanism, outside of the human brain, that will translate a sound-message into a sight-message. It is sight-records and not sound records that we need for business purposes, because they can be read at the rate of 300 words a minute. Business demands speed and we must type and teletype when records are needed."

Since the printing telegraph records its messages automatically Mr. Murray sees still another advantage in it. Business men will not have to drop their work to attend to it, as they do when the telephone has to be answered in person. The recorded messages can wait upon convenience, just as the day's letters do. Messages can be received on the printing telegraph in a silent and deserted office all night, to be attended to in the morning.

"One remarkable idea," he added, "which the Bell Telephone Company is urging upon business men in Chicago is the use of the printing telegraph for conferences in which the teletypes at each point could be linked up so that all would record the messages transmitted at each station. Half a dozen business men, ten or twenty or 1,000 miles apart, could get together by teletype for a conference at very short notice. The teletypes in each office would record the minutes of the conference, including the discussion and the full text of the resolutions passed or decisions arrived at, and each member of the conference would have in his office a complete typed record of the proceedings. Also the conference would be secret. There would be no overhearing or eavesdropping. The teletype language is spoken and understood only by teletypes, and the code-bars can be mixed at will to scramble the messages and make them doubly secure against overhearing by outsiders. There is something deeply impressive about this idea of a conference taking part between men hundreds or even thousands of miles apart, with no sound but the slight tapping of the typebars, the men in silence, each alone, watching the words being recorded or transmitting on his own keyboard.

"Not even a secretary need know about it. Vital decisions might be made in this way possibly a week sooner than would otherwise be possible. Take, for instance, the British Government, an urgent meeting of the Cabinet could be held and decisions arrived at with the members of the Cabinet scattered all over the country. Even international conferences could be held in this way with every advantage of 'secret diplomacy.' The only parallel to such a teletype conference would be a wireless telephone conference between heads of Governments, to which all the world would listen in, and we would have 'open covenants, openly arrived at.'"

An Aid to Decentralisation.

A number of far-reaching political and social results, Mr. Murray believes will in time flow from the invention. "Two may be briefly referred to as illustrations. One will be the upsetting of the present balance of telegraph and telephone interests in the United States, the probable result being consolidation under the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The new telegraphy will lead inevitably to competing teletype exchanges in each city. This development will be as great a nuisance as competing telephone exchanges and the public convenience will be best served by consolidation, the result being a telegraph and telephone organization in the United States by far the largest and most remarkable in the world. Another result will be increased impetus to the garden city movement and decentralization.

"Obviously the great bookkeeping department of industry can be carried on in low-rental premises in pleasant surroundings in the country just as well as in London city offices, dirty, smoky and dark, and costing exhorbitant sums for rent. The teletype and the telephone will bring the garden city bookkeeping offices alongside the London city office, which will contract into a showroom and calling place for visitors. This process of decentralization in connection with factory work has been going on for years and the teletype will extend and accelerate it."

Regarding the printing telegraph machine itself, Mr. Murray said that the idea of such a machine is as old as telegraphy, "but it is an astonishing fact that it is only during the last year or two that real success has been achieved. The requirements of the business man's printing telegraph are very severe. In brief, it must fulfill these conditions: (1) it must be a start-stop printer, that is to say, it must start operating as soon as a key is depressed on the keyboard and it must stop as soon as a letter has been printed; (2) it must have the standard typewriter keyboard, with an easy touch; (3) it must have a speed of from forty to eighty words per minute; (4) it must be able to work over any distance, from 50 feet up to 5,000 miles; (5) the option of tape or page printing is desirable; (6) it must be simple, compact, strong and durable, and able to print at least 5,000,000 words without an error; (7) it must be able to run for at least one month without attention, apart from the supply of fresh paper and ink; (8) maintenance must be possible without highly skilled labor; and (9) the manufacture must be strictly on the interchangeable mass-production basis to insure cheap maintenance, quick repair and moderate prices.

Types Now in Use.

"For fifty years," he added, "the Hughes printing telegraph has been practically the sole one-man machine that would work successfully even in a large telegraph office with skilled attention immediately available, but it is quite unsuitable as a business man's teletype. It is big and clumsy, with a piano keyboard instead of a typewriter keyboard, and it takes a skilled operator to reach even thirty words a minute, while sixty words a minute is far beyond its powers. A girl typist cannot sit down and work it forthwith.

"The first really successful printing telegraph was the Morkrum start-stop printer, which was put into commercial service in 1910. It was a typewriter keyboard machine with a typewheel page-printer very similar to the Blickensderfer typewheel typewriter. It came into extensive use in America, but it required much maintenance attention and is being superseded by later Morkrum machines, most recently by the little typewheel 'teletype,' which was put on the market in 1910 and proved highly successful. The teletype is the first machine of the kind that has had a wide sale outside of the United States, and from the date of the established success of this new machine the era of the new telegraphy may be said to have begun."

Mr. Murray entered at considerable length into the problem of cutting down the cost of the printing telegraph machines, which ranges now from $450 to $900 apiece, and which he hopes to see brought down ultimately to a little more than the cost of a good typewriter. The question of tape-printing versus page-printing also remains to be settled, as well as the technical problem of fixing standard operating speeds.

Wider interest, however, will attach to his description of the manner in which the machines will be worked. Until their use has become popularized, he expects them to be limited to big hotels and factories in which private printing telegraph exchanges are operated like private telephone exchanges. Ultimately, as the use of the printing telegraph spreads, he expects city telegraph exchanges and to bring into the growing teletype system the man with only one machine. He believes that provision can be made for these men to work their printing telegraphs through their telephone wires.

Linking on Telephone Wires.

"Although there are engineering difficulties," he said, "in working telegraph apparatus through telephone exchanges, it ought to be practical for a subscriber having one telephone line and a teletype to ring up the telephone exchange and say 'teletypes.' He would then be plugged through to the teletype section and it would appear to be a simple matter for the teletype section to cut off his telephone loop completely from the telephone exchange and connect it to the teletype section. He would then teletype to the teletype exchange stateing his requirements, exactly as he would ask for a local number or for a long distance call by telephone. Once he was put through to his correspondent, his typist would type his message direct to its destination, and if she did 80 words a minute 240 words would go in a three-minute call."

In the case of a big factory with a private teletype exchange, any department could telegraph direct to any other department or to any other subscriber anywhere in the country and could receive telegrams direct, with a substantial saving in time in both directions. "In future days," Mr. Murray said, "when there will be a dozen of the new permalloy Atlantic cables in use, each working at 300 words a minute in each direction simultaneously, there will be no difficulty in sending a message direct from any department of any big British plant to San Francisco or any other American city and getting a reply within ten minutes, subject always to the conditions of daylight between Europe and America. The circuit facilities will be still greater when half a dozen wireless beams work across the Atlantic, each at 300 words a minute."

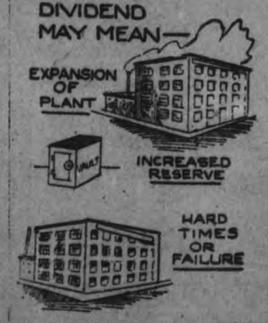
NEW BOMB CHASES AIRPLANE PILOTS

Plane Cannot Escape Since Its Magnetic Influence Is Attraction.

LONDON, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—The Westminster Gazette, reports that secret experiments are in progress with one of the strangest anti-craft weapons ever devised. Experts believe that it will be infinitely more potent in aerial warfare than torpedoes and submarines in naval fighting, the newspaper says. It consists of a bomb which within a certain radius of an airplane, "responds to magnetic influence set up by the meta lparts of the airplane which influence gives the bomb immensely increased velocity towards the airplane." No amount of maneouvering by the pilot it is said, will enable him to escape.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



Sometimes very good companies pass dividends because of particular conditions that do not affect the value of the stock in the long run.

Sometimes money that might be paid out to stockholders as dividends is needed for the improvement of the business. Sometimes general business conditions are such that it is wise to hold the money in reserve — that very amount may avoid a failure later.

On the other hand, the passing of a dividend may mean that the company is poorly managed, in which case the value of the stock will get lower and lower.

Immedaitely on the receipt of word that a dividend is being passed, one should seek the advice of one's banker as to possible action. If still in doubt after talking with him, get further information and advice. Be guided by authoritative advice only, and come to a decision. Deciding, not worrying, is what counts.

ENGLAND AND THE GOLD STANDARD

Fear of United States Causes Opposition To Its Resumption.

By C. T. HALLINAN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, March 21 (United Press.—Nine-tenths of the powerful, underground opposition to the resumption of the gold standard in England is due to fear of the United States.

Uncle Sam has four and one-half billion dollars of gold in his vaults. John Bull has less than 1 billion—to be exact, he has ony $775,000,000 worth of gold.

Those Englishmen who are afraid of America say that it is too risky adopting the gold standard.

(1) Because England will have to get gold for the payment of her international balances, and she will probably have to get it from the United States, paying for it in goods and services whatever the United States demands.

(2) Because England must pay to the United States every year until 1968 about 30,000,000 gold sovereigns, and these sovereigns she must purchase in the United States with goods and services; why then should she dream of adopting the gold standard, thus enhancing the value of gold (as measured in goods and services) and increasing the burden already almost more than she can bear?

Both of these arguments assume that America will put the screws on Great Britain whenever her bankers feel so disposed. Both of them assume that America takes short views of world finance, looking out sharply for immediate profits and carelessly letting the distant world future take care of itself.

But it is a striking—not to say dramatic fact — that the Bank of ESngland sharply dissents from this view.

The Bank of England says to the numerous and powerful critics of the gold standard:

"America is all right; don't worry. It is to her interest to have England and as much of the world as can get back to the gold standard. She knows it cannot be done without her steady co-operation and that co-operation she has promised. So don't worry, and don't yap! But carry on."

This argument, in one form or another, appears from time to time in the financial page of The Times which, by one of those curious conventions of English life, is the usual vehicle for the expression of the views of the Bank of England. This argument will probably carry the day eventually, but no one need be surprised if the fear of the United States which prevails in many influential quarters should force Winston Churchill, after consultation with Washington and New York to call an international conference on the standard in which the United States principally and the others in lesser degree, should agree to disturb as little as possible the new price levels based on gold.

MINERS' STRIKE IN THIRD WEEK

Hardship Prevalent—Relief Funds Will Last Only a Few Days.

NO SETTLEMENT.

SYDNEY, N.S. March 21 (Canadian Press)—The strike of fourteen thousand Nova Scotia miners for a ten per cent. increase of wages and against the decision of their employers, the British Empire Steel Corporation, for a wage cut of ten per cent., today enters upon its third week. All efforts to settle the trouble have met with failure. The colleries have been protected from damage by the company's clerical staff, who have manned the pumps and equipment.

J. E. McLerg, vice president of the corporation arrived in Halifax this morning, and it is understood he will visit Premier Armstrong of Nova Scotia to confer on settlement proposals.

In the meantime, a great number of miners and dependents are being fed by public charity, over ten thousand dollars having been donated to date, together with large quantities of material, not enough, however, relief committees report, to carry on the work adequately for more than a few days.

You are invited to the Laura Secord Shop, 380 George Street, to see the dainty morsels made daily.

WIDESPREAD DEFALCATIONS ARE ALLEGED IN THE CIVIL SERVICE

Hospital For Insane Now Subject of Inquiry—Burwash Prison Farm Next.

ARRESTS EXPECTED.

TORONTO, March 21—(Canadian Press). — Information received at Queen's Park yesterday would seem to indicate that the province is on the eve of disclosures of a Civil Service scandal with ramifications hitherto unthought of.

It was authoritatively announced yesterday that A. Rattery, clerk of works, and George Barron, supervising plumber, both of the Provincial architect's department—which comes under the direction of Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary—have been suspended from office, pending further investigations by Government auditors. Since the arrest a few days ago of Willard W. Dunlop, inspector of prisons; Fred. H. Williams and Robert G. Kyle, Provincial Inspector Boyd has been at work on this branch of the case, and as a result of his inquiries has laid new information before General Williams, upon which these three men will be arraigned when their cases are again called in police court.

Audits of accounts of Queen Street Hospital for the Insane are said to have disclosed improper disposition of supplies, including groceries, blankets, utensils and general Government property. Arrests are said to be immediately pending. It is said a detective was introduced at the asylum in the guise of an insane patient. Burwash Prison Farm is also being investigated.

MUCH MINERAL WEALTH IN WEST

Northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba Need Hudson Bay Railway.

GOLD FOUND.

REGINA, Sask., March 21.—Northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba are destined to be the great mineral-producing sources, and the Hudson Bay Railway is feasible and an absolute necessity, is the opinion entertained by Kenneth Murray of The Pas, Manitoba, who recently returned from an expedition into the northland.

Mr. Murray has been prospecting for many years and with his brother Gordon, who staked the Hollinger mine in northern Ontario, is now developing a stake in the Elbow Lake district. This country, he claims, with the Claw, Herb, Athapapuskow and the Cranberry Lakes in Manitoba and Amisk or Beaver Lake in Saskatchewan, is rich in minerals, particularly in copper, which, however, since the war, has been too low in value to warrant development, far away from transportation facilities.

Gold is Mr. Murray's present objective and he says it is evident in the great pre-cambrian areas of the North. In fact, the gold fields of northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, he states, are a continuation of the same formation of northern Ontario. The output of gold in northern Ontario is estimated at $25,000,000. There also are rich deposits of arsenic which Mr. Murray declares will become very valuable, particularly as large quantities now are used by the cotton planters of the southern states in their fight against the boll weavil.

Fur and fish, the prospector says, are plentiful, and with the completion of the Hudson Bay railway he foreshadowed the opening up of a country which would adequately repay for the undertaking.

SMILES ON GUILLOTINE.

GOITRE

Removed Safely and Permanently

DR. W. J. HUGHSON'S Famous Goitre Remover. Simple home treatment applied externally that heals while you sleep and leaves no scar or other disfigurement to indicate that you ever had goitre. The following letter of recent date, being one of a vast number of unsolicited letters (no foreign camouflages) we have on file, all of which speak for themselves as to the efficiency of this remedy in the treatment of goitre:

Mr. S. W. Hughson,

Dear Sir: It is now about three years since I sent for your Goitre Remover. When I sent for it, of course, I did not think it would remove my goitre, as there are so many remedies that are supposed to remove goitre, but do not. So, of course, I thought it would not remove mine either, but it DID. My goitre is all gone now and has been for a long time. I never was so pleased in all my life. I used about HALF a bottle of your Goitre Remover. I often think of how happy those people will be that have used your treatment and found their goitre gone.

I went to visit some friends who used to live here when I had the goitre. They noticed right away that I had NO goitre any more. They said, Why I thought you had a goitre. I said Yes, I did have, but it is gone now. They were greatly surprised. I myself was surprised because I did not think one could get goitre away without having it CUT away. Now I KNOW there is another way, because I tried it myself and am convinced. I have told my friends about it, and if I ever meet anybody suffering from goitre I will recommend Dr. W. J. Hughson's Famous Goitre Remover.

Yours truly,
MISS JOSEPHINE LINDBORG,
Golden P.O., B.C.

Two Political Enemies To Settle Differences On the Field of Honor

MEXICO CITY, March 21. — (United Press). — Secretary of the Treasury Alberto Pani and Deputy Zantellia, bitter political enemies, will settle their differences in mortal combat on the field of honor, says the newspaper, "El Globo."

Zantellia sent his second to Pani on Friday night, asking that the latter select the time, place and weapons of their duel. The paper asserts that the fight is to take place to-day, but suggests that the Government may interfere.

A chance meeting Thursday ended in bitter words between Pani and Zantellia. The latter's decision to ask redress by combat followed soon afterwards.

QUEBEC ROCKS IN NEW SHOCK

Earthquake Shakes Houses This Forenoon—Telephone Communication Cut.

RESULTS UNKNOWN.

QUEBEC, March 21. — A short but intense earthquake shock was felt here between 10:24 and 10:26 o'clock this morning.

The shock lasted according to the available reports from five to ten seconds depending upon the locality. Houses shook perceptibly and great commotion was caused throughout the city, the people thinking that there would be a recurrence of the disturbance of three weeks ago.

No damage has been reported however although several women are said to be on the verge of hysteria as an aftermath of the shock.

Telephones Useless.

All telephonic communication with Baie St. Paul, Murray Bay, St. Simon and other places in Charlevoix County, as well as points in Saguenay district, has been interrupted and nothing can be learned regarding the extent of to-day's seismic disturbance in these localities.

This interruption it is believed on the part of the marine officials here is due to the 'quake.

The belief prevails that this most recent trembling of the earth originated near Baie St. Paul, which place is considered as the epicentre of the shock of three weeks ago.

HOPE TO FIND MINERS ALIVE

Twenty-two Are Yet to be Accounted For—All Seasoned.

ELEVEN BODIES.

FAIRMONT, W. V., March 21. — (Canadian Press).—Rescue work at the wrecked shaft of Mine No. 31 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation at Barrackville was speeded this morning in the hope that 22 of the 33 mine workers imprisoned by an explosion last Tuesday night might be still alive. Eleven bodies had been found by six o'clock.

William Berry, rescue foreman for the Mines Corporation, upon emerging from the shaft at three o'clock, said that he had penetrated one of its arms for a distance of 400 feet and had found that the force of the blast had not reached that far.

It is believed that 22 of the imprisoned miners are in that arm, and since all are seasoned mine workers, Berry believes, he said, that they might have escaped the blast and barrackaded themselves in against the gas and other dangers which followed.

NEW AUTO FUEL.

Fifteen Year Old Girl Said to be Discoverer—Basis is Sugar.

PARIS, March 21. — (Canadian Press). — Remarkable claims are made for a new automobile fuel named "Iroline," after its discoverer, fifteen-year-old Irene Laurent, daughter of a well-known French chemist. The product which is understood to have for its basis a solution of sugar, is said to cost less and go further than any other of the so-called substitutes for gasoline yet tried.

A party of prominent automobile engineers who tested the new fuel in a long run on an ordinary machine are quoted as expressing themselves as astounded by the results.

FIRST TIME.

When two fast fighting planes collided a mile in the air near Kelley Field, Tex., Lieutenant C. D. McAllister (above) and Cadet Charles A. Lindberg, pilots were saved from death by their parachutes. This was the first time in history such an escape was effected.

PETERSEN CONTRACT PASSED IN COMMONS

Conservative Amendment Lost—Referred to Special Committee For Report.

OTTAWA, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—A Government resolution, approving the contract with Sir William Petersen to establish and operate a steamship service on the North Atlantic passed the House of Commons this morning. By a vote of 133 to 38, a majority of 95, the resolution was approved. Previously the Conservative amendment, which declared the Government proposal to be "futile and costly," and that the matter of reducing ocean rates could only be dealt with by an Empire conference, was defeated by 139 to 31, or 108 votes. As soon as the resolution passed the House, Premier King moved that the resolution be referred to a special committee, which would investigate and report on the contract. The amendment passed without division.

WATERLOO BRIDGE DECLARED UNSAFE

Famous Structure Will be Closed to Traffic and New Bridge Built.

Poor Old London St. Paul's Cathedral in danger, the Houses of Parliament slowly crumbling into the river. Eros statue gone from Piccadilly Circus — now Waterloo Bridge is again stated to be unsafe.

Americans have an affection for Waterloo Bridge. They all have to cross it when they arrive in the city or leave it, and every millionaire who stays at the Savoy looks upon it from his windows.

There is no question of demolishing the bridge, but it will probably be replaced for traffic purposes by another bridge further up the river, and the old classic bridge will be closed and remain a Silent Highway of the Thames.

ESCAPED FROM FIRE TO PERISH IN SNOW

Body of Miss Elizabeth Daniels Found Half Mile From Home.

BROADVIEW, Sask., March 21.—(Canadian Press).—The dead body of Miss Elizabeth Daniels was found Thursday morning huddled in a snow bank about half a mile from her home which was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night. Death was due to exposure and shock.

According to the coroner and police officers who investigated, it is believed that after salvaging part of her furniture, Miss Daniels started out along a dence towards a neighbor's home a mile away and became exhausted.

CHOPIN OF JAZZ.

Paderewski Admires Syncopated Rhythm Written by Young Composer.

Mitja Kikisch, the pianist and son of th famous conductor, is discovered to by the composer of the new Suits in Syncopated Rhythm which the Savoy Bands are going to play at their third concert at Queen's Hall, London. His name has not yet been revealed on this side of the Atlantic because the composer is afraid of what his serious musical admirers will think of his writing for a dance orchestra—even for the Savoy-Orpheans.

Paderewski listened to some fragments of the Site the other day, and was told of the composer's dilemma.

"Child that he is," cried Paderewski, "I'd give five years to have written that. He is the Chopin of Jazz."

HAPPY DAYS AHEAD FOR PLAIN GIRLS

Present Styles Give Ugly Ducklings Chance to Outshine Sisters.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 21.—(United Press).—

Alas! The sweet and pretty doll
Is shadowed by the plain-faced Moll;
For nowadays every sleek-haired sheik
Prefers a girl who's plain but chic.

A pretty girl hasn't a chance these days. "Chic" has a much higher value than prettiness and very few pretty women will sacrifice beauty for chic. The pretty woman still insists on choosing hats which give a soft outline for the face, frocks which are cut to show the roundness of her neck and arms and furbelows that are becoming, rather than stylish.

The plainer type of woman, on the other hand, perches a small felt tightly over her uncurled bob, wears, perhaps, a smart high neckline and long sleeves, reddens her lips regardless of the shape of her mouth, adds pallor to her cheeks, wafts her cane in the air and looks as smart as can be.

She isn't a doll, but she's a walking advertisement for the fashion plates. If her better looking sister wears the same outfit, you can be sure she will have a curl at either side of her hat, a little "country air" applied to her cheeks, a neckline that is several seasons old and shoes that are strapped and strained to draw attention to the ankle, rather than severely tailored. She concentrates on beauty rather than chic and fails at both.

When curls, ruffles, dimples and soft effects were the mode, the ugly girl didn't have a chance in the world. The more she primped the less attractive she became. But today the most attractive women are generally minus beautiful faces. They are interesting rather than good-looking and they wear clothes as they are meant to be worn. They have no pretty features to be augmented by color schemes, no special places to park their beauty patches, so they give all their attention to their ensemble and let their faces get along as best they can—which is pretty well in most cases.

It's much easier for a plain girl to look smart than it is for a pretty one. If you doubt this, wrap a brilliant scarf about your neck and add a peanut-sized hat of the same colorings and see how you look. If you are pretty, your prettiness will be lessened by the high coloring and by the complete covering of your hair and neck. If you are plain, you will look much smarter with the scarf and hat than without them.

The plain woman knows that she has to be charming, gracious, broad-minded and intelligent to get by in this world. She knows that no rolling of her eyes is going to break any hearts. Unless she adds something to the lives of those with whom she comes in contact she will become a back number. She becomes unselfish and unvain—except in the matter of dress. Soon people forget her plainness and think only of her wholesomeness and of her perfect grooming and she becomes more popular with the sheiks about town than her simpering and petted sisters who hold beauty as a fetish.

The time when the ugly girls looked into an old-maid future is past. It's the pretty girls who often find themselves parked on the matrimonial shelf. And as soon as these pretty girls learn that there is something more important in life than dreamy eyes or baby stare, they will get in the game again.

The successful homely girl goes in for unusual effects in dress or up-to-the-minute styles instead of doll-like clothes. As a doll she is the proverbial lemon, but as a live-wired fashion plate she is a peach. There is no reason for the ugly duckling to weep into her tea in 1925, for fashions are made for her. If she follows them she will become a twelve-cylinder model and will leave beauty at the base of the hill as she high-speeds it into the hearts of the sheiks. Watch her!

Peterborough Oddfellows Visit Lindsay Lodge

(Lindsay Daily Post).

Otonabee Lodge, First Degree Staff, Independent Order of Oddfellows, arrived from Peterboro one day this week and were met by the members of the reception committee who conducted them to the Lodge rooms of Lindsay Lodge where a splendid banquet was served to the visitors by the Rebekahs of Kawartha Lodge.

The Lodge opened in usual form at 8 p.m., and after the usual opening ceremony the Lodge was turned over to the officers and members of Otonabee Lodge Degree Staff, who conferred the First Degree on a class of four candidates. The degree staff was in charge of Bro. Capt. Harry Turner, while Bro. C. C. Mowry instructed the candidates in their secret work.

Bros. Harry Turner, C. C. Mowry, W. F. Green and John Nugent, of Otonabee Lodge of Peterboro, and Mayor Bro. W. G. Graham, of Lindsay, gave splendid addresses.

After Lodge was closed the Rebekahs then served a buffet luncheon.

Bro. Geo. H. Adams gave several well rendered selections.

After community singing the brothers from Peterboro returned by special train to their homes.

WOMEN'S CLUBS FAIL

Purely Social Organizations Do Not Flourish Like Political Clubs.

LONDON, March 21, (Associated Press).—Clubs for women are not a success in London, at least those merely for social intercourse, and several have gone into bankruptcy, while others saved themselves by the process of amalgamation.

Something more than social amenities are required to keep a club together, and this is exemplified by the flourishing condition of the Ladies' Carlton Club, which has an important political atmosphere and is in close touch with the Unionist central office. Another, the Gardens Club, is thriving because of its specially interesting lectures by prominent people in the gardening world, its regular garden dinners and well equipped garden library.

Canada's Trade Balance.

Favorable Balance is More Than $260,000,000 in 1924.

OTTAWA, March 21. — (United Press). — Canada's favorable trade balance for 1924 more than doubled that of the year previous, according to an official statement. In 1923 this was $125,498,008 as against $292,415,043 for the year just ended. "As usual, the United Kingdom and the United States were the leading nations with whom Canada transacted business," says the report. "The aggregate value of trade across the international boundary was $937,592,701, while that with the British Isles was $536,062,306. Canada's trade with England carried a favorable balance amounting to $238,380,296, but that with the United States was unfavorable to the extent of $111,629,473. These two countries account for approximately 73 per cent. of the total business of the Dominion.

MEMBERS INELIGIBLE

Have Contracts With Government for Telephones in Their Offices.

LONDON March 21 (Associated Press).—Members of the British Parliament who have telephones in their homes were somewhat startled recently when they ascertained that, because of the instruments, they might be deprived of their seat in the House. They are asking whether they have committed a breach of the famous act of George the Third's Parliament, which says that any person undertaking a contract with a Government department shall not be entitled to sit in the House. The telephones here are owned and operated by the Government.

The question was brought to light by Captain T. J. O'Connor, himself a member of Parliament and having a telephone in his office, who announced that he would ask the Attorney-General if he proposed to introduce legislation to safeguard members who have contracts with the Postmaster-General for the installation of telephone services.

BIRDS IN SONG; FLOWERS BLOOM; TELL OF SPRING

BALMY BREEZE.

Mrs. James Kingsbury Picks Pansy Blooming in Garden.

Spring is here!

Not only has the snow disappeared from all but the most inaccessible places and the balmy breeze and soft refreshing rains have returned, it is hoped, to stay, but the birds and the flowers all signify the return of sweet Mistress Spring.

Of course, the learned astonomers who compile the almanacs says that Spring begins today, officially, as from now on the days will be longer than the nights. But usually when they say, "It is Spring," the north wind comes along and says "No."

This year reports are already coming in that Spring is really near, not only on the calendar but in the ground and in the air. The editor's sanctum has been beautified today with a pansy, the first of the season, from the garden of Mrs. James Kingsbury, Murray Street. A gentleman who has an observant eye for his feathered friends says that he counted, this week, no less than twenty-four different Spring birds. Robins, bluebirds, waxwings and all the feathered host are returning to their summer homes, singing their songs of thankfulness that the long journey is over for another six months.

WON'T ABUSE OFFICE.

Mayor Refuses to Take Advantage of His Position For Trade.

CALNE, England, March 21. — (Associated Press).—Appointment to the post of Mayor of Calne has not interfered in the least with the business of Albert James Strange, a coal dealer, who makes his daily rounds with horse and cart calling out "coal man, coal man," and who shoulders a hundredweight and delivers it to the housewife whenever he gets an order.

Calne has about 4,000 inhabitants, nearly all of whom know Mayor Strange and respect him. The other coal dealers also respect him, all asserting that he is always "on the coal job, early and late," just as he was before he became the town's chief executive, and furthermore, his competitors assert, the Mayor has not endeavored to hinder them or to get the better of them in any way in his official capacity.

"Vanity cases used 3000 B. C."

SCIENTIFIC excavations in the ancient city of Kish, so we are told by a news dispatch, shows that women carried vanity cases forty-nine centuries ago. Why did not the luxuries of that old civilization spread to the rest of the world? Why were the delicate and pleasure-bringing things of life buried and hidden away for so many ages?

Without the printed word, information could hardly be spread to other countries, and the knowledge of events and things could scarcely be preserved. To-day, if a better rug is produced in Kurdistan, it is soon advertised for sale in American newspapers. If a better necklace is made in China, a printed advertisement will shortly describe it and quote the price on the other side of the globe.

Advertising publishes the secrets of good things from one end of America to the other. The newest and best products are told about, fully and truthfully, wherever the public press is read.

OLYMPIC GAMES ON SCREEN AT 'Y'

Howard Crocker Addressed Young Men of Y.M.C.A. at Dinner.

PARIS OLYMPIAD.

More than sixty young men gathered at the supper in the Y.M.C.A. last evening to hear Howard Crocker, a leader in athletic work in Canada, speak on the Olympic games. Mr. Crocker dwelt particularly on the last Olympic Games held in Paris, and he had a splendid set of slides in which the camera had caught the athletes winning the events, to illustrate his talk.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. Roper explained that Mr. Crocker had managed the Canadian Olympic team of 1908, when the games were held in London, and that he had been offered the same position in 1924, but business had prevented him from accepting the honor.

Mr. Crocker said that the Olympic Game idea is an international competition which is removing race hatreds and is proving to be a strong auxiliary to the League of Nations.

Dealing with the history of the Olympiads, the speaker said that by means of their participation in athletics, the ancient Greeks had set up a standard of citizenship and art not since attained in the world.

4,500 Contestants.

There were 4,500 athletes at the Olympic Games in Paris and 42 nationalities represented, and to show that the athletic idea is yet in its infancy, the speaker pointed out that 30 nations did not score a point. Canada earned nineteen points, but our country has a broader outlook for 1928, because the competitors in 1924 were all youths who will profit by their experience and still be able to enter the next games.

One of the pictures showed the circle composed of captain of each national team, each bearing his country's flag grouped around Georges Andre, the great French athlete, during the ceremony, adopted from the Greeks, of pledging that all were amateurs, and each would try his hardest to succeed.

Mr. Crocker said that world records set up in past Olympiads and which the world thought unbeatable, were repeatedly and completely smashed. The pictures illustrated the high standard of manhood of the competitors. Mention was made of Liddle, of England, the "Flying Parson," who refused to run on Sunday, and who won the ¼-mile and the respect of the world. Then came Lowe, also of England, an awkward runner who broke the tape in front of Paddock and other renowned sprinters because "he had that stuff inside him."

Athletic Finns.

Then came a word about the Finns. Mr. Crocker said that the athletic fervor of Finland is only one expression of the national spirit that has grown up in the people of that little nation. Mr. Crocker expects Finland to do even better in the next Olympic Games, and he had a picture of one lad 18 years of age, who has broken all Nurmi's records made at the same age.

Mr. Crocker has carried his athletic work into the Far East, and he took as an example of what can be accomplished by athletic meets, the case of China and Japan, whose athletes are now meeting on the most friendly terms in international meets, a thing which ten years ago was absolutely unthought of. These meets have broken down the barriers between the two countries.

URUGUAY TEAM TIED BY FRENCH

Famous Olympic Champion Soccer Squad. Scoreless Draw.

PARIS, March 21.—A French soccer team Thursday held the famous Uruguayan champion Olympic team to a scoreless tie. Every one considered the result equivalent to a victory for France, owing to the sterling qualities of the South Americans, who for the first time during their European campaign failed to win. A crowd of 30,000 attended the match, which was played in the Buffalo Stadium. Every one expected the Frenchmen to be beaten, but the hope prevailed among the partisans of the French team that the defeat would not be a crushing one.

The first period of the game was played in almost silence on the part of the spectators, but as the French held their own murmurs of confidence were heard and later loud cheering. At the final whistle there were demonstrations of wild enthusiasm such as never before had been witnessed at a sporting event in France.

The Uruguayans showed disorganization in team play that at times was extremely bad. Opportunity after opportunity to score was lost by the failure of the man with the ball to pass it to an uncovered teammate. On the other hand, never has a team representing France entered a match with such determination not to be defeated. Spectators remarked that they showed the old Verdun spirit of "they shall not pass."

Among the spectators was Luis Angel Firpo, who practically has accepted the terms of the management of the stadium for a bout with either Erminio Spalla, the Italian heavyweight, or Paolino Uzeudum, the Spanish fighter, on the first or second Sunday in June. Firpo surveyed the large crowd with much interest.

"What do you think of the game?" a friend asked the Argentine after the final whistle.

"Well," drawled Firpo, "if seats are placed on the playing field they might be able to get 50,000 spectators to see me fight here in June."

Play Port Arthur For Allan Cup in Winnipeg Next Week.

HEARTY SEND-OFF.

TORONTO, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—The old Union Station echoed with the famous University of Toronto yell as the Canadian National Winnipeg train with the Varsity hockey team, Eastern Canada champions, aboard, pulled out of Toronto for the West last night. Nearly one hundred relatives and friends of the players turned out to wish the team success in the games with Port Arthur next week for the Allan Cup, emblematic of the championship of Canada.

The Refere

Who was the public links golf champion in 1923?—F. G. B. Richard Walsh.

Who were the two best forwards in Big Ten basketball circles this season?—W. A. C. Miner of Ohio State and Haggerty Michigan, were generally considered the leaders in their positions.

MAY WAS STAR FINISHER IN OLD LEAGUE

ORLANDO, March 21. — The greatest game finisher in the National League last season was Jakie May of the Reds. May did relief duty often, being called upon to finish 21 frays.

He was in 38 tilts all told during which he pitched 99 innings. He only worked two complete games, however, and at the end of the campaign showed a record of three victories and as many defeats.

He allowed 104 safe swats and 30 runs, 33 of which were earned. He gave 29 walks and fanned 59 batters, an exceedingly good average.

CINCINNATI BETTER THAN YEAR AGO

Billy Evans Believes Team Will Surprise the Critics—Boast Premier Pitching Staff—Daubert's Have Problem to Fill Jake Place.

ONE OF MAIN REASONS WHY MANAGER HENDRICKS BELIEVES CINCINNATI WILL FINISH IN FIRST DIVISION IS HIS "BIG SEVEN" HURLING STAFF, RATED WITH THE BEST IN THE MAJORS.

By BILLY EVANS.

ORLANDO, March 21.—The Cincinnati Reds of to-day are a far much better ball club than the team I looked over just one year ago.

A majority of the experts in their 1924 pre-season dope predicted a pennant for Cincinnati. And then things started to happen.

Manager Pat Moran, the popular leader of the Reds, died in this city, in the midst of the training program. That was a severe blow.

For years Jake Daubert, who has since died, had been touted as the successor to Pat Moran. The team petitioned the owners to name him manager.

Appointment Was Surprise.

Instead Jack Hendricks, who had been enjoying great success in the minors, received the appointment. It came in the nature of a surprise. Jack was a stranger in a strange land. Conditions made his job a tough one.

The Reds didn't win a pennant. There were many plausible and logical reasons, such as injuries to stars, failure of certain veterans to play up to standard and bad breaks.

This spring many of the experts are consigning the Reds to the second division, yet it is practically the same team picked to win the pennant one year back. Sixth place is being selected as the proper spot for the Reds.

If the Reds disappointed in 1924, I feel positive they will surprise the experts this year.

Any dissatisfaction that existed a year ago is missing. The players are strong for Manager Hendricks. He is thoroughly in command of the situation and highly respected by his athletes. That's fine.

Great Mound Corps.

As I look the pitching staff of the Reds over it strikes me as being just about the best in the National League, if not the majors. No club boasting so strong a staff should be relegated to sixth place.

Adolfo Luque, Pete Donahue, Carl Mays and Tom Sheehan are four sterling right-handers, while Eppa Rixey, Rube Benton and Jake May form a trio of classy southpaws. The reserve pitching is in keeping with that of the regulars.

"Bubbles" Hargrave is one of the greatest catchers in the majors and with the Veteran Ivy Wingo, a star these many years, also on deck, the pitching staff will be well handled.

In the infield and outfield Hendricks has a most dependable substitute at each position. As a matter of fact, in some cases it is difficult to discriminate between regular and substitute.

First Big Problem.

If there is one position that is giving Manager Hendricks concern, it is first base. Trying to fill the shoes of Jake Daubert, a remarkable ball player, is a most difficult and trying task.

Bressler, who began his career as a pitcher, but has been used in many roles, pinch-hitter, outfielder and first baseman, is due to start. Filling in at first base, Bressler has always done well. Fonseca, a mighty clever man, is another reserve.

To me the Cincinnati Reds certainly look far more like a first division ball club than otherwise. The great pitching staff alone makes me think that way.

PORT ARTHUR PLAY FINALS

Beat Coleman Tigers in Fast Game by 5-1 Score Last Night.

PLAY VARSITY.

WINNIPEG, March 21.—(Canadian Press).—Port Arthur, champions of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, last night won the Western Canada Senior hockey title and the right to meet Toronto Varsity in the finals for the Allan Cup as the result of a 5 to 1 victory over the fast Coleman Tigers, title-holders of Alberta and British Columbia. The men from the head of the lakes won the round 7 to 5, the Tigers having captured the first game, 4 to 2.

The victory was due to the greater experience of the winning team. On the whole the play was very even, but the Ports played a strong defensive game, and waited for the breaks which they obtained.

BAR FOREIGN STARS

With the final round of the soccer championship of France not far off agitation has been started in various circles to amend the rules so that teams with only a full membership of native Frenchmen can compete in the title series. The present rule allows each team to have not more than three foreign players on its roster. The concession was made after several years of controversy and after it had been seen that a certain amount of foreign blood was necessary for the good of the sport.

Some experts now insist that soccer has become so firmly established in France that the aid of other nations is not required and that the championship of the country should go only to a team whose entire membership is French. They point out that while there is only one club of major importance that is all French, the General Club, other clubs which carry foreign players could very easily dispose of these players and not materially weaken their style of play or their attack.

The majority of the clubs insist, however, that they would rather have an all-French membership if that were possible, but that they have found through experience that their club produces a stronger team if it has two or more foreign stars in the line-up. They say that the foreigners have a slightly different style of play that aids the team and makes the attack a better rounded offensive. The success of the Cette eleven is cited as a case in point. This team was weak at the start of the season, but when two stars from England were placed on the team its style of attack was modified, and it now is in the front rank, although it may be unable to pull through to the championship as its early season average of games won and lost is low.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

AUGUSTA, March 21.—In many of the training camps, adjusting the feed bag three times daily is one of the most important features.

Not so with the Detroit Tygers. It is the thought of Manager Cobb that the players came south to train, not eat.

It is a well-known fact that in weight reduction, care as to diet is most necessary. No matter how hard one exercises, it is an easy matter to put the weight back on by too much food.

Overeating has shortened the careers of many of the stars. As a matter of fact, it is a greater evil to the ball player than many other forms of dissipation.

Two meals a day is the order of things in the camp of the Tygers and it is religiously adhered to.

Manager Cobb, to assist in further carrying out his two-a-day routine, has arranged the one practice session to best suit his orders.

The Detroit club starts practice at 11:30 a.m. The players are to report at the clubhouse at 11. The session lasts from two to three ours, according to the work needed. So that it is between two and three in the afternoon when the players reach the city.

The dining room is closed tight at that time of the day. After a long winter very few of the athletes are going to give the restaurants a play at their own expense. So there is nothing to do but await the evening call.

For a team in its second week, Detroit, aided by good weather, stiff workouts and proper care as to eating is in great shape. Some of the athletes look ready for the word now

There is no question as to the wisdom of the two-meals-per-day system for spring training. Most of the players report overweight and nothing helps quicker than dieting.

COBB MADE WISE MOVE IN PICKING VETERAN STANAGE

AUGUSTA, March 20.—Manager Ty Cobb made a wise move when he named Oscar Stanage in charge of the Detroit pitchers.

Stanage, a great catcher and exceedingly popular with the players, is certain to be very helpful to the Tyger manager in "prepping" his staff of twirlers.

In addition, Stanage is still a very capable backstop and can be pressed into service if necessary. Last season he caught 100 games for Toronto in the International League.

Of the Detroit recruits, Stanage is loud in the praises of Jesse Doyle. He has the stuff and is smart, according to Oscar.

Stanage also regards Bill Moore, purchased from Rochester, N.Y., as a fine prospect. Moore is only 22 and lacks the polish and experience of Doyle.

Cancel Pool Licenses.

Hon. W. Price provincial trasurer introduced a bill to cancel provincial taxation of pool and billiard rooms and bowling alleys leaving the privilege of taxing them to the municipalities. The Premier introduced a bill to provide for the appointment of a deputy minister of health, and another to provide that outside municipalities should assist neighboring municipalities in education costs when the children go to the schools of the nearby place.

Second reading was given a bill to allow one municipality to hire the fire brigade of another, and another to allow municipalities to enforce stricter oversight on buildings erected on river flats where there is danger of flood. A bill providing that municipalities may keep advance election polls open for two days only instead of three was given second reading and referred to the municipal committee. A Hydro bill cancelling a previous measure, that the fiscal year of municipal Hydro undertaking should end on October 31 the same as the provincial year, was given second reading. To make such fiscal years in Hydro affairs has been found inconvenient and in some cases impossible.

But it was at the morgue of Southern Illinois's largest city where the story of West Frankfort's tragedy was briefly but grimly told.

Ninety-one bodies lay stretched in long rows and the first twenty-one were the forms of little children ranging from 18 months to 4 years in age.

They lay in a pitiful row on a long table, the little faces uncovered so some heart-broken mother or father or perhaps an older brother or sister might claim them. One by one the little bodies were tagged with a family name as identifications were made.

The storm cut across the north end of West Frankfort, doing little damage in the remaining part of the town.

At another mine, known as No. 18, twelve men went to their deaths when the plant above ground was demolished.

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE WILLIAMS

AUGUSTA, March 21.—This may be Cobb's last year as a regular. It also may be his first as the manager of a pennant-winning mob. Ty thinks the Tygers have a triple-decked chance to bounce into the important dough next fall.

Heilman wasn't the hitter last year he was the year before. This was due to an injection of serum cauculated to keep fever out of his system. The doc bot hold of the wrong bottle. All his dope did was to keep base hits out of Harry's system.

Cobb tells you he has the best array of pea-hooters any Detroit club ever paid a nuisance tax on. He thinks his two young southpaws, Wells and Whitehill, will give the enemy stickers plenty of embarassment and little else.

Johnny Bassler's middle name is Landis. He is the Czar of the Tygers' bigg mitt corps. He might have been the Czar of baseball if he had had the foresight to slap a clownish fine of $29,000,000 on the Standard Oil Company in his juvenile days.

Lu Blue has the opposition at first base for the first time in years. Johnny Neun, from St. Paul, has his eyes on the bag. Mr. Blue, however, is more practical; he has his feet on the bag and will probably stay there.

What concerns him most, if at all is the middle bag situation. Cobb hasn't had a smooth-working second-and-short combination since Henry Ford carried a dinner pail. This year he will start with O'Rourke, Rigney and a prayer.

Cobb says he won't play more than 100 games this year This practically amounts to three full seasons' play by an outfielder. Cobb doesn't know who will replace him. The Egyptian sight-seers haven't decided what will eventually take the place of the pyramids either.

The Tygers training here do not pause at hourly intervals and assemble in midfield to give three rousing cheers for their beloved leader. Tyrus Raymond is not excessively popular with his hired hands.

Cobb doesn't let the boys play golf. He labors under the delusion that ball players ought to play ball. He also reserves the right to tell 'em where to get off when they don't play it right. This system is probably all moist. It happens to be the same system Charlie Schwab uses in running the steel trust.

In the spring a young man's fancy tightly turns to hair pompade, bell-bottom trousers and chummy roadsters.

Many rookies are called but few are chosen—which probably accounts for the continued excellence of big league ball.

Walter Hagen is said to be the best paid professional in the country—but some of the All-America halfbacks of recent years might dispute this.

Hal Chase is going to organize a baseball league in Mexico—we hasten to nominate Abe Attell as chief commissioner to lend dignity to the enterprise.

Mr. Red Carney of Cleveland has been waiting 22 years to be an umpire—a fellow ought to be able to save up a lot of terrible decisions in that time.

Babe Ruth is playing the racing dogs in Florida with the idea, perhaps, that this will put him in shape for the hot dogs later on.

Is golf a game or a recreation? asks a magazine writer. Ed.—As we play it it is simply an advanced form of burlesque.

Apparently Ty Cobb hasn't gone back so far after all—arrested in Atlanta the other day.

John D. Rockfeller is always the first player on the golf course at Ormond—believing, no doubt, that the oily bird gets the worm.

In keeping with his ideas of economy, Mr. Coolidge may insist on throwing out the same ball this year as he used at the opening game last spring.

One finds oneself wondering what the A. A. U. will do for sport page publicity when Paavo Nurmi goes back home.

Another nice thing about horseshoe pitching tournaments is that none of the contestants are ever called second Babe Ruths.

OMEMEE HOCKEY CLUB'S SOCIAL

Successful Dance on March 17 in Coronation Hall—Cellars Flooded.

EPIDEMIC OF FLU.

OMEMEE, March 20. — Coronation Hall, Omemee, gay with 17th of March decorations, was the rendezvous for a successful dance on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the hockey club. The patronesses for the evening were Mesdames E. Jamieson, E. M. Mitchell, A. Ford, G. D. Gowans, W. G. Stephenson. The music was provided by Hooper's orchestra of Lindsay.

Owing to counter attractions the attendance was not as large as on former occasions but those who attended were highly pleased with the good time provided. Guests were present from Peterborough, Lindsay, Reaboro, Downeyville and the surrounding county.

Cellars Flooded.

Wednesday evening's rain came as "a thief in the night." Many residents of the village were surprised to find in the morning several inches of water in their cellars and were forced to either don rubbers or walk on chairs to rescue their daily supply of provisions.

Owing to the high wind and the storm the electric power was out of commission nearly all day Thursday and it was not until after dark when many of the residents had stocked up with coal oil and candles that the trouble was located and the lights appeared. The Omemee Tanning Company was forced to close before dinner owing to the lack of power.

The engagement is announced of Dr. Harry M. Bradley, D. D. S., Wheatley, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradley, of Omemee, to Jean Gertrude Victoria Atkinson, youngest daughter of Rev. W. L. and Mrs. Atkinson, Toronto. The marriage to take place early in April.

Much Sickness.

An epidemic of flu is striking many of the homes in the village and has chiefly settled among children of the 'teen age thus lessening the attendance at school when the examinations are in progress.

Miss Lottie Howden is spending a couple of days with her sister, Mrs Herb Biglow, of Bethany.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Parker will be sorry to hear of the illness of their little daughter Helen.

Rev. E. W. and Mrs. Rowland, also Mrs. Musgrove, attended the entertainment and supper in Queen street Methodist church, Lindsay, on Tuesday evening. Mr. Rowland assisted with the programme.

Mr. E. Butler of Toronto, transacted business in town on Wednesday.

Mr. J. Magee was in Lindsay Tuesday on business.

Rev. J. A. Black and son, Morley Black, motored to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. S. Vaughan made a business trip to Toronto on Monday.

Misses Brass of Lindsay and Allely of Toronto, left on Tuesday evening after having nursed their patient, Mrs. William Best, to the recovering stage after a severe attack of influenza.

Messrs. Harry Burgess and John Bent were visitors to Lindsay on Tuesday.

Mrs. H. Latchford and daughter, Miss Muriel of Best's station, visited her daughter, Mrs. C. Jones, on Thursday.

Mr. T. E. McPherson was a visitor to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Miss Susie Clarke, graduate nurse, is engaged at the home of Mr. C. Meehan of Downeyville, where his daughter is ill with sleeping sickness.

Mr. Alex. Ross of Lindsay, was in town on Thursday on business.

Mrs. Greenwood of Toronto, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Carmichael, left on Thursday to spend a week with her sister, Mrs. Trebilcock, in Peterborough before returning home.

Mr. Harker of Belleville, was a visitor in town this week.

Motor cars are fast beginning to make their appearance. The roads are now quite passable to Lindsay, Downeyville and Ennismore, and during the last day or so the only obstacle on the main thoroughfare to Peterborough was overcome, that of Sherin's Hill, when two Omemee cars made the grade.

Mrs. Charles Ivory and daughter, Mrs. H. Lamb, were visitors to Peterborough on Friday.

The shipper for the U.F.O., Mr. S. D. Vaughan, delivered a shipment of 17 cattle and 26 calves to Toronto on Monday, and reports the market somewhat dull. On Thursday a shipment of hogs was delivered, the price paid being $13 per cwt. for thick smooth, and $12.65 for selects.

DANGER OF FLIES.

First Fly Should Be Swatted —and Every One Afterward.

Mrs. Mann had read enough about flies to know that the first fly should be swatted, and that the proper way to destroy all the flies is to make it impossible for them to breed.

They breed in filth, and as long as they live they have a habit of straying back to filth as often as possible.

On their feet are thousands of small hairs, and these pick up germs and dirt, which are wiped off on food.

Some mothers permit their children to suck on a piece of candy, over which the flies crawl as often as they can find the candy out of the child's mouth.

Restaurants place samples of pie out on a counter for the flies to sample first. Often the pie is under a shelf, out of sight of customers, but easily found by flies.

So many unpleasant things have been said about the fly that he is getting less popular all the time.

According to Mrs. Mann, in a few more years the self-respecting housewife will be just as horrified to find a fly in the house as she now is to find a bedbug on the bed.

"The fly is the much worse of the two," says Mrs. Mann.

DOWNING STREET COSTS TOO MUCH

J. R. Clynes Advocates Advancing Premier's Salary By 3,000 Pounds.

LONDON, March 21 (Canadian Press).—It was a big event going to 11 Downing Street, says J. R. Clynes, who was Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Leader of the House of Commons in Ramsey Macdonald's Labor cabinet, "but I do not want to live there agam."

While Clynes paid no rent at 11 Downing Street, he paid practically everything else. He had to pay the house staff, numbering nine, and an extra staff whenever special hospitality was dispensed. He was constantly asked when he made telephone calls if they were personal or official, and he eventually received a bill for several pounds for unofficial calls. Five thousand pounds is not enough for a cabinet minister who is compelled to live in Downing Street, unless he has ample private means. Clynes favors the advancing of the Premier's salary to 8,000 pounds from the present salary of 5,000 pounds.

SIMPLE REMEDY CURES VICTIM OF HICCOUGHS

James McCann of Yonkers Relieved by Pressing Ears and Drinking Water.

James McCann, aged Yonkers millionanire, whose life doctors had almost despaired of because of prolonged paroxysms of hiccoughs, went to sleep yesterday afternoon free of hiccoughs for the first time since last Saturday as the result of a simple remedy volunteered by a stranger described as an "old man from the Bronx."

Stories of Mr. McCann's plight caused many persons to write, telephone, and some to telegraph suggestions for relief, the family said. A stranger came to the house yesterday and proposed a remedy. It was tried and the hiccoughs stopped. The patient went to sleep.

The successful remedy, according to the family, was prescribed by the stranger in these words:

"Stop each ear with a finger. Press firmly. Have some one put a glass of water to the mouth and drink."

ROYAL GETS "WANDERING HUSBANDS."

Story of Neglected Wife and Philandering Husband — A Drama of Married Life That Hits Home to Every Man and Woman.

What's sauce for the gander is sauce for the goose—but the gander doesn't think so! A husband who does more than his share of philandering will raise a great hue and cry should his wife cast admiring eyes in the direction of another man.

If it pleases him to take another woman out to dinner he phones home that 'pressing business' keeps him at the office, goes off with a high heart and a silent conscience. But should friend wife do the same thing he is not only amazed, but deeply hurt.

When Diana Moreland, in the company of a male escort, came to the roadhouse where her husband was dining with a fair charmer he got the shock of his life. But he was absolutely speechless when she nonchalantly joined his party and took his "playing around" as a matter of course. She even invited his companion to spend the week-end with them.

This encounter and the subsequent events furnish a thrilling climax to "Wandering Husbands," the new James Kirkwood - Lila Lee feature which comes to the Royal Theatre for a three-day run next Monday. James Kirkwood plays the husband, Lila Lee the wife, and Margaret Livingston the other woman. The supporting cast includes Eugene Pallette, Muriel Frances Dana, Turner Savage, George Pearce and George French.

"Wandering Husbands" was written by C. Gardner Sullivan and is said to present in a most interesting manner the problems of married life.

AT THE CAPITOL

FILM DRAMA STAGED ON MOUNT RAINIER

Scenic Marvels of Nature Form Background for "Frivolous Sal."

The scenic grandeur of Rainier National Park in Washington is woven into the background of J. K. McDonald's First National picture, "Frivolous Sal," which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday. McDonald chose for some of the exterior scenes one of the few spots in America where snow may be found the year round.

His company, numbering thirty-eight persons, with three cars of equipment, left Hollywood in the middle of August. They had just missed a heavy fall of snow on the summit when they arrived at Paradise Inn, the nearest habitation to the majestic peak of Rainier. The mountain was blanketed with white far down its slopes and the motion picture company, only three days from the semi-tropical summer of Southern California, found itself within easy walking distance of mid-winter.

Civic authorities at Tacoma, Wash., where the film people left their train, and officials of Rainier National Park readily co-operated with the First National producer as his company was said to be the first ever to use Mount Rainier as the background for a dramatic picture. The producer was seeking virginal scenic territory when he chose Mount Rainier.

The company went from Rainier to the great mines at Wallace, Idaho, where several weeks were spent photographing the action of the story among the mills, shafts, tunnels and aerial trams of that famous mining center. The story of "Privolous Sal" was written by McDonald, and directed by Victor L. Schertzinger. The cast includes Eugene O'Brien, Mae Busch, Ben Alexander, Mildred Harris, Mitchell Lewis, Tom Santschi, R. R. Neill and others.

WALLACE BEERY GREATEST SUCCESS IN "DEVIL'S CARGO"

What is "The Devil's Cargo?"

It's Victor Fleming's latest production for Paramount, which is the feature at the Capitol to-day, featuring Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery, William Collier, Jr., and Claire Adams, with Raymond Hatton and others appearing in support.

Wallace Beery has his greatest screen role in this picture, an adaptation of the story, "The River Boat," by Charles Whittaker. He plays the role of a massive stoker on the river boat which is chartered by the vigilantes of Sacramento to deport the town's undesirables. There is a mutiny on board and Beery comes up on deck to find the captain slain. He takes the little first mate, a part played to perfection by Hatton, and tosses him into the sea, dons the captain's hat and assumes command.

Here's the situation: Two young girls and one good man adrift in the middle of the Pacific with a cargo of the lowest sort of humans imaginable and forced to cater to the slightest wishes of a mad man.

What happens? That's what's making the picture prove so popular at the Capital.

See this one and you see a real picture!

FOR TEN YEARS—DEPENDABLE

Exceptional dependability has been a characteristic of Dodge Brothers Motor Car since the day the first of these sturdy cars was marketed.

Not once in a decade has it failed to uphold and enhance its reputation for faithful performance.

The reason for its consistent goodness and continued betterment points directly back to the ideals of the founders.

Instead of fluctuating between an endless series of annual models, they determined to concentrate on the perfection of a single chassis.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car today is the embodiment of that ideal—an ideal that will endure as long as the institution itself.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

A direct definite revelation, by the Spirit of God, to our consciousness, in regard to personal guidance, creates in the individual an assurance that cannot be had from any other source. Scripture, as well as personal experience gives us to know, that in this age as well as in the past God speaks to man. To the one who is utterly abandoned to the Holy Spirit, the obeying of the Commandments of God is as natural and joyous, as it is for a bird to sing. In the 10th Chap. of John, the followers of Jesus are called sheep, and further that the sheep know his voice. In 1st John, 1, 7, tells us how the sheep know each other. Those who are led by the Holy Spirit, that is, are living in obedience to the "law of the Spirit," do not serve God from compulsion. They find that His Commandments are not grievou- (hard to obey). They have no condemnation, they have liberty, and power. In time every human being shall get their call, and obedience will be necessary either in this age or the age to come, in order to have eternal life. In the age to come, those who will not hearken and obey, shall be "utterly destroyed" from among the people.—Acts 3, 21.

STORM SWEPT COUNTRYSIDE IS BURYING ITS THOUSAND DEAD

Community Funerals With Bodies Interred in One Long Grave.

LOOTER SHOT.

CHICAGO, March 21 —(Canadian Press).—The storm swept territory of the Ohio Valley today continued the tragic duty of burying its dead while relief workers completed the task of brining order out of chaos and plans for rehabitation were advanced.

Funeral services for some of the victims of Wednesday's storm were held yesterday but most of burials were arranged for to-day and Sunday, with memorial services later. In towns where loss of life was heaviest, community funerals were planned with burial in one long grave.

Reports from destroyed districts said that relief work was well organized. A flood of material continued to pour in for sufferers in the greatest tornado in the history of the continent which snuffed out more than 800 lives, injured 3000 persons and left entire communities homeless.

A few isolated cases of looting come to light, but generally there was no disorder. At West Frankfort, a man was caught taking a ring from a woman's finger and was slain by a police officer.

GERTIE'S VINDICATION.

St. James' Young People Present Successful Play in Sunday School Hall.

There was a fine attendance last evening in the Sunday School Hall of St. James' Methodist Church for the presentation, under the auspices of the Young People's League, of the play, "Gertie's Vindication." A talented cast of amateur actors put on in excellent style the interesting two-act comedy drama, a playlet of wholesome tone with a lesson of good moral value in depicting the victory of honesty and purity.

Those taking part were: Thelma Meredith, as Gertie Adams, an orphan; Dorothy Pearson, as Lenore Morris, a busybody; Jean Hamilton, as Katie Aylward, from the Emerald Isle; Walter Wright, as Jack Breeze, a colored individual; Herschel Welbourn, as Abner Harwood, a young lawyer, and Elmer Frost, president of the League, as Sam Atherton, "who has seen better days." The young people were trained by Walter Wright.

A very pleasant addition to the programme were the musical contributions of the following: Mrs. Elmer Frost and Mrs. E. Kitney, who sang, the latter giving very effectively an interpretation of an Indian song. "The Moonbeam," garbed in Indian costume; a song and guitar duet, twice encored, by the Misses Tretheway, a reading by Miss Jessie Tully of Coldsprings, and selections by the Sunday School Orchestra, led by Clifford Rusaw.

At the conclusion of the entertainment refreshments were served to those taking part by the social committee of the Young People's League, in charge of Miss Wilma Davis.

GRAND CANYON FORMS SUBJECT OF AN ADDRESS

Rev. H. McGillivary Addressed Big Audience in St. Paul's Church.

SCINTILLATING HUMOR.

Seeing Eyes, Thinking Mind and Loving Heart Make Up Life.

There was an attendance of about three hundred people in St. Paul's church last evening to hear Rev. H. McGillivray of Orillia, lecture on "The Biggest Hole on Earth." The meeting, held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's church, was presided over by Mr. James Dutton, who introduced the speaker of the evening.

Rev. Mr. McGillivray was suffering from an attack of lumbago but he held the attention of a pleased audience with his pungent humor and versatility of his manner of address. His fund of witty anecdote seemed inexhaustible, and jokes of Irish, Scotch and English origin tripped from a glib tongue in the accent of the three countries. It was not so much the matter treated of in the reverend gentleman's discourse that delighted his hearers as the manner in which it was delivered. Mr. McGillivray's whole-hearted friendliness and attitude of taking his audience into his confidence, his ingenuous and homely form of address, captivated the attention of his hearers immediately, and thereafter the evening was one of hearty good humor.

The main portions of the address were the scintillating bits of humour with which the speaker enlivened his talk, the description of a trip to the Grand Canyon of Arizona, "the biggest hole on earth," being rather a minor part of the evening's entertainment. To retail any of the numerous witty stories, would rob their owner of thunder for future discourses, but they were all good and brought appreciative laughter in every instance.

"I thank God every day that I can laugh," declared the speaker, going on to extol the art of observation and the art of story telling as being allied arts, which are very much neglected.

"The seeing eyes, the thinking mind and the loving heart are the three things which make life worth living. Man was born with two eyes and only one tongue so that he might see twice as much as he says. We need more sunshine, more cheer and more merriment in our lives, the flower of harmony, the flower of wit and the flower of just pure unadulterated fun."

A description of the speaker's trip in the Grand Canyon of Arizona with vivid word pictures that brought to the learners mind very clearly a realization of this enormous "hole," 217 miles long, 13 miles across, and over a mile deep, with a prevailing summer temperature hovering around 136 degrees in the sun. Mr. McGillivary also described very interestingly people and scenes encountered on the way.

A very hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was recorded by the audience, moved by Mr. Wm. Madill and seconded by Mr. H. Morgan.

Preceding the lecture, a vocal solo in splendid voice was given by Mr. Harold Snelgrove, who sang "In The Garden of To-Morrow."

The public debt during the last four years has been reduced more than $3,000,000,000.

PIRIE RESENTS REPRIEVE GIFT

Would Rather Die on Tuesday in Full Expiation of Crime

SAYS REPORT.

OTTAWA, March 21 (Canadian Press).—The Evening Citizen today says that John Buchanann Pirie, murdered of his wife and two children, who was sentenced to be hanged next Tuesday, seems to resent the action taken by the federal cabinet in granting him a reprieve until June 19.

The newspaper says that when Sheriff Richardson notified him last evening that the reprieve had been granted, Pirie voiced his objections to the sherff that such action should have been taken. Pirie has, since his confession on October 1 last, expressed a desire to pay the full penalty of the crime.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN HUDSON AND ESSEX MOTOR CARS

"One of the big motor car manufacturers predicts that we are going to have a spring shortage of motor cars. I can beat that prediction; there IS now a shortage," said C. L. Brewer, of the Brewer Motor Sales, distributor for Hudson and Essex in the Peterborough territory.

"Spring has come on us all very suddenly. In the last few days the mass of orders which people have been putting off has descended on us. The registration of cars will amply bear out this statement. All the uncertainties about motor taxes and registrations—all the handicaps of bad weather—are now past, and for those lines of cars which deserve public patronage the spring rush is on. Motorists who want prompt deliveries of popular cars should take notice.

"Now there are various causes of motor car shortages. One of the ways to bring about a shortage is to shut down the factories and let the demand pile up. Some concerns have done that. But that isn't the reason for the shortage in Hudson and Essex. Probably the busiest spot in Detroit right now is the big Hudson-Essex plant, with many of its departments running two shifts a day and still others three shifts.

"This night-and-day activity follows a winter programme of the largest business the plant has ever known. There is a shortage of Hudson and Essex cars simply because the most energetic efforts have not succeeded in making as many as the public wanted.

"It is general all-around usefulness which the public demands in motor cars to-day. Nothing freakish is desired in body or chassis. The public asks for reliable transportation at the right standard of prices. When motorists are offered this combination they can be depended upon to buy. Month after month, it is this type of buying which has kept Hudson-Essex in a position of uninterrupted sales leadership and public demand.

"March will be the largest month we ever have known. The sales so far have been sufficient to prove that, and the last few days has shown a sharp upward trend in demand. This is the first sign of the spring rush. The greatest number of inquiries is for coaches— and this is true, I understand, with all lines of cars. But for a long time to come the man who thinks of coaches will think of Hudson and Essex."

TOWNS DEMOLISHED BY TORNADO; BURY THEIR DEAD IN COMMUNITY FUNERALS AND TURN TO FUTURE

Grief-Stricken Hearts of Murphysboro Mourning Deaths and Desolation Still Find Spirit to Revive Hope and Optimism and Prepare to Restore Their Town.

INTERRED 187 OF VICTIMS OF STORM

Menace of Gangrene and Tetanus to Injured Quickly Forestalled by Prompt Response of Surgeons—Stories of the Survivors Disclose Terror of Their Experience.

CHICAGO, March 23.—(Associated Press).— Knots of busy relief and rescue workers, many funerals and numerous physicians deftly treating the injured, dotted yesterday's panorama in the stricken sections of five States which, Wednesday, yielded to tornado, a storm and fire more than 800 dead and 3,000 injured.

The epilogue of this visitation of the elements was enacted in many community burials and scores of private services. Where there was no minister and the trappings of funeral formality were unobtainable, a rough box, a small bunch of flowers and a hesitant reading of Scripture were substituted. Individual ceremonies were attempted everywhere, but in the more congested locations circumstances permitted only brief rituals.

Disease, stalking after death to claim the injured, began to raise its head only to have it bowed with the weapons which so swiftly have come to the rescue in other respects. Warning of a large number of surgical cases and symptoms of gangrene and tetanus caused the Illinois Director of Health to appeal for doctors and Antitoxin. In less than half an hour the hearty response of surgeons caused the request to be withdrawn. In that same time from the national capital came word that the serum was on its way from the Public Health Service.

Pitiful were the stories of all burials. Neighbours would read the pencilled name on the wooden box, affix the name to a cross or temporary headstone and carry it to the grave. Women, men and children helped, turning from one group of bodies or a funeral procession, to another.

Sprays of Flowers for All.

Boxes of flowers sent from Chicago to DeSoto were sorted into seventy one small sprays by women who explained:

"We have no flowers and we do not want to miss any one."

As the complete lists of dead begin to come in, an increasing number of women, children and infants are shown among the dead. In West Frankfort alone nearly forty of the dead were babies.

The Associated Press rechecked its list of identified dead Saturday night an found that it carried 783 names. There is the possibility that in transmission or in the frenzied early compilations some casualties might have been incorrectly included.

General satisfaction with the progress of rehabilitation was reported Needs here and there, as quickly as they became known, were immediately filled. Debris is rapidly being removed. Some heretofore inaccessible districts are open. The generous flow of money and supplies apparently is to be without parallel.

Hope Not Dead.

The early notes of optimism and encouragement for rebuilding were sounded by one of Murphysboro's heaviest losers. In a stirring address he elicited cheers from listeners who were still in grief and misery. Murphysboro wants its Mobile & Ohio shops, employing 1,400 men, to be rebuilt. It purposes to put it across.

The Brown Shoe Company factory employenig 300 persons also was destroyed there, but the townspeople expect to see a new plant. At princeton, Ind., there was good news in the announcement that the Southern Railway shops would be reconstructed, as well as the Heinz factory.

Reports from Murphysboro, and West Frankfort indicated that their homeless and destitute were being well cared for, permitting relief workers to look into the smaller communities. This same situation generally was indicated elsewhere. Through the devasted areas the number of these persons was still estimated beyond 10,000.

A reliable appraisal of the general property loss probably cannot be made for days and possibly weeks. Figures variously reported estimates a total between $5,000,000 and $8,000,000. Insurance actuaries, now in all fields, assert that it will take many months to untangle claims and arrive at proper valuations.

Taking cognizance of the expected large loss in both human life and property in the rural districts, the Illinois Agricultural Association has started to raise $174,000 for permanent relief.

The tremendous velocity of the tornado was further shown today in reports from a coal mine at West Frankfort, where miners 500 feet below the surface felt the concussion.

Fourth Member of Family Dies When Others Buried

TORONTO, March 23.— (Canadian Press.)— While the double funeral of William and Edward Toms, father and son respectively, of 2726 Danforth avenue, was leaving for St. Judas' cemetery on Saturday afternoon, death again visited the home, when the brother of Edward Toms, Stewart Toms, aged 43 years, died. On Saturday evening there was a fourth victim, when Charles Toms, aged 49 years, another brother, died.

All three brothers were unmarried. All four, father and three sons, contracted influenza of a virulent type and were dead within four days of one another. Three sons survive, Samuel, John and Albert. But one of the survivors is now suffering from the dread disease, but it is hoped in mild form.

BUFFALO ON WAY TO ANTWERP ZOO

Specimens From Canadian Herd of 8,000 Bizon Go Overseas.

GOOD ADVERTISING

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, March 23.—The Canadian Government Merchant Marine boat, Canadian Trapper, now on the high seas bound from St. John to London and Antwerp has on board three of the most interesting passengers ever carried across the Atlantic on ships of this service. The passengers come from Wainwright, Alta., and consist of three live full-grown buffalo, two bulls and a cow. They are from the Wainwright buffalo park, where the Canadian Government maintains a herd of 8,000 bison. One bull is destined to spend the remainder of its life in the Zoological Gardens, Edinburgh, and the other bull with his mate will complete their earthly existence in the Zoological Gardens of Antwerp.

The animal for Scotland is a present from the National Parks Branch of the Canadian Government, and it replaces a bull presented some years ago but which died recently. The other two animals are gifts of the Canadian National Railways to the Antwerp Zoo, the present having been made possible through the courtesy of the Minister of the Interior, who provided the animals from the herd at Wainwright.

The gift to the Antwerp Zoo is one of the results of a visit paid to Belgium last year by Mr. J. E. Dalrymple, traffic vice-president of the National system. Antwerp is an important port of the C.G.M.M. in Europe and when Mr. Dalryple discovered that no Canadian animals were to be seen in the Antwerp Zoo, he conceived the idea of sending two buffalo as an advertising feature of considerable value to the Dominion. The animals were carefully selected from the Wainwright herd and are as fine specimens as can be found.

Atlantic Cty Fire Chief Can't Force Men to Church

ATLANTIC CITY, N.Y. Mar. 23.—The Chief of the Fire Department cannot order members of the department to attend church, according to a verdict handed down by Judge Theodore W. Schimpf in Circuit Court in the case of Walter H. Gates, city fireman, who sued to recover $5.72 he had been fined for failure to attend memorial services at the First Presbyterian Church, April 15.

In the verdict Judge Schimpf said: "If the Chief of the Fire Department can compel the collective attendance of the members of the Fire Department at a church service he could as well command individual attendance of the members of that department. Either command is beyond his power."

ARMED ROBBERS STAGE HOLD-UP

Ten Men Get Away With $40,000 Worth of Silk To-day.

TRUSS WATCHMAN.

NEW YORK, March 23. —(Canadian Press). —Ten robbers, all armed with pistols, held up a watchman to-day on the Lehigh Valley railroad, 26th street pier on the Hudson River and escaped with silk valued by railroad officials at $40,000.

Leaping upon the watchman from the packing cases behind which they had hidden, the robbers attacked and over powered him before he could draw his gun. He was then trussed up against a wall and securely bound.

In getting to the silk in the store room ,the robbers broke down a heavy fire door. They ripped open a dozen of other cases before finding the ones containing silk, they then carried the silk cases to a truck waiting at the street entrance of the pier.

After 35 minutes, the watchman, William H. Fitzgerald, struggled free and notified the police.

CITY'S APPEAL OPENS TO-DAY AGAINST THE COURT'S INJUNCTION HALTNG THE POWER INVESTIGATION

R. R. Hall, K.C., For Judge Huyke, and J. Wearing For the City Council, Are at Osgoode Hall—Meters Blamed

By Counsel, Who Absolve Commissioners.

WANT MYSTERY CLEARED UP.

To-day's Hearing Featured By Reference to His Honor Judge Huycke as Supporting a Side—Mr. Hall Points Out He is Defending His Own Judicial Right.

TORONTO, March 23 (Canadian Press).—An appeal of province wide interest as illuminating the legal relations between the municipalities and municipal utilities commissions, opened at Osgoode Hall this morning, when the First Divisional Court commenced a hearing of the appeal of the City of Peterborough from an injunction granted by Mr. Justice Middleton on application of Campbell Flour Mills Company, restraining County Judge E. C. S. Huycke from conducting a judicial enquiry, authorized by resolution of the city council. It is alleged by the city that during the years 1919, 1920 and 1921, the Public Utilities Commission of Peterborough supplied 150 horespower to the Peterborough factory of the Campbell Flour Mills, for which no charge was made, though the cost to the city under contract with the Hydro Electric Power Commission was $10,000.

On December 9 the council passed a resolution for an inquiry by Judge Huycke, under Section 248 of the Muncipal Act. He was asked to report on the failure of the Commission to charge for power.

Campbell Flour mills immediately entered action, setting up that there had already been an inquiry by the Utilities Commission, and that the enquiry did not properly come under Section 248 of the Municipal Act. On admissions and arguments before Mr. Justice Middleton, a perpetual injunction was granted which prevented the enquiry being held.

(Special to The Examiner).

To-Day's Hearing.

To-day R. R. Hall, K.C., for Judge Huycke and Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, Peterboro, appealed to the First Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall.

Mr. Justice Middleton found that Clause 248 of the Municipal Act did not authorize or warrant an enquiry.

Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., and C. C. Robinson, K.C., for the Utilities Commission, appeared for the other interests.

To-day's hearing featured a reference to Judge Huycke.

"Why is His Honor taking this course?" Mr. Hall was asked.

"He is discharging a duty under the statute," answered Mr. Hall. "If he's wrongfully restrained from discharging his duty—"

Mr. Justice Ferguson—"He's a judicial officer to make judicial orders, but should not take sides."

Mr. Justice Smith — "The City could carry on the appeal."

Mr. Hall: "But say that the judgment stands and the County Judge is restrained from making an enquiry?" Mr. Hall feared that the City would be blocked in such an event.

"Let the City proceed within its right," commented the Chief Justice.

Mr. Justice Smith: "But the City is restrained from ordering an enquiry, and the City can appeal."

Mr. Hall: "Judge Huycke is restrained from investigating."

Mr. Justice Hodgins: "He appears in the courts as supporting a side."

Mr. Hall: "No, my lord, he is taking no side except the stand that the Judge has the right to hold an enquiry into this matter."

Mr. Justice Hodgins: "It's extraordinary that a Judge should be a protagonist."

Mr. Hall recalled the case of Godson in the City of Toronto, in which Judge McDougall was restrained from holding an investigation and was represented by counsel.

Mr. Hall argued that Section 248 of the Municipal Act applied to the present case under the head of "conduct of any part of the public business."

Mr. Justice Middleton held to the contrary.

Allege Motive.

Early in to-day's argument, Mr. Nesbitt declared that the Utilities Commission had made a report.

Regarding the Peterboro Council's resolution, asking for an investigation, Mr. Nesbitt stated that John W. Meyers, president of the Peterboro Cereal Company, was elected a Peterboro alderman, and, according to Mr. Nesbitt, Mr. Meyers wanted to get at the Campbell Company's books.

"He had this resolution passed," said Mr. Nesbitt.

W. H. BRADBURN WILL SUPPORT GOVERNMENT'S STRONGER BEER BUT BELFORD WILL OPPOSE IT

Both Agree on Government's Sincerity, But Have Differing Ideals.

THEIR STATEMENTS.

Replies Given to Resolution Framed by Presbytery in Last Session.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

HASTINGS, March 23.—At the last meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery a resolution was adopted calling upon the local members of the Legislature to vote against the bill for stronger beer. A copy of this resolution was sent to W. H. Bradburn; Major Belford, Northumberland East, and Sam Clark, Northumberland West.

The Clerk of the Presbytery has received an answer from Mr. Bradburn and Major Belford. Mr. Clark has not yet been heard from. Mr. Bradburn, in his communication, says that he is unable to comply with the wishes of the Presbytery. He acts on the assumption that strong liquor has been alarmingly on the increase within recent years, and he is satisfied that the new beer bill is the greatest measure in the interests of real temperance that has ever passed through the Legislature.

Major Belford says that he is satisfied that the desires of the Government to advance the cause of temperance is sincere. Nevertheless he is opposed to the idea of stronger beer, and will vote against the bill.

Balance the Beer Scale

W. H. BRADBURN, M.P.P., West Peterborough, who will vote for stronger beer.

MAJOR J. E. B. BELFORD, M.P.P., East Northumberland, who will vote against the Government amendment.

MacDonald Moves To Fashionable District

LONDON, March 23. — Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's former Socialist Premier, has purchased a home in the most fashionable section of Hampsted, and near the famous Hampstead Heath. The Heath is anything but fashionable but some of the districts near by are as exclusive as money can make them.

The former Premier purchased the home of Colonel Webber, a grandson of Lord Sudely.

Among MacDonald's new neighbours will be the tremendously wealthy Lord Leverhulme, who makes soap.

MacDonald has lived in another sections of Hampsted for several years but on a modest street of identical two stories houses, each guarded in front by a tiny little garden. It is a respectable middle class district.

AN EARTHQUAKE HAS 4-HOUR RUN

Severe Shock Recorded on Sunday Morning, Centring 5,000 Miles Away.

STARTED AT 3.50 A.M.

OTTAWA, March 23.—(Canadian Press).—A severe earthquake shock was recorded at the Dominion Observatory early yesterday morning, March 22nd. The first preliminary tremors arrived at 4.02.14, eastern standard time, and the distance to the epicentre was 8,550 kilometers, or 5,310 miles. The time at the origin was 3.50.24 a.m., eastern standard time. The record continued for over four hours.

A local shock, centering about Quebec City, was registered on Saturday morning at 10.22.04 o'clock. The shock lasted about two and one-half minutes.

TURKS MOBILIZE ARMY OF 100,000

Policy of Bolsheviks is Planned to Precipitate Hostilities Over Mosul.

OIL DISPUTE.

GENEVA, March 23. —(Canadian Press).—Extensive mobilization all over Turkey is reported here, giving great concern in quarters watching war moves in the middle east. The Turks, mobilizing in every important centre except Angora, are aiming to place 100,000 men under arms before summer, which would make the army 20,000 stronger than that which e pelled the Greeks.

The most radical faction of the Kemalist Government is now controlling Angora where rule is in the hands of twelve deputies.

Soviet Ambassador Souritz is reported exceedingly active. The theory expressed here is that while Moscow is against Mustopha Kemal, the opportunist policy of the Bolsheviks is calculated to precipitate hostilities between the Kemalists and the British over Mosul. It is generally believed the Turks have seized the recent Kurdish revolt as a pretext for a nation wide mobilization, the purpose being to influence the decision of the Mosul boundary commission which will finish its investigation on April 1st for the report to the league of nations' council in June. The issue is whether the Mosul oil fields shall be Turkish or the part of Irak under British domination.

SEEK SHEPHERD CLUE IN FOURTH STRANGE DEATH

Investigation Started Into Demise of His Druggist Employer in Salina, Kan.

MARRIED SISTER.

Faiman Reiterates Confession Charging Lawyer With Germ Murder Plot.

CHICAGO, March 23.—A fourth death, that of Otto Graf, in Salina, Kan., twenty years ago, is being investigated by Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the Municipal Court, in connection with the alleged murder of William Nelson McClintock, the "wealthy orphan." Graf was a brother-in-law of William D. Shepherd, the foster-father of McClintock and chief beneficiary in his will, who is now charged with the murder.

The relations of Shepherd with four persons whose deaths are now being investigated are now a subject of inquiry. The four are McClintock, Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of Justice Olson; Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of the wealthy youth, and Graf.

Graf died on June 27, 1904, according to newspaper files in Salina, which stated that death was caused by rheumatism of long standing and resultant complications. Shepherd at that time was employed by Graf in the latter's drug store and he succeeded to the management of the business.

Julie Graf, sister of Otto, is said to have been married to Shepherd when he was lying in bed with an injured neck, reported at that time to have been broken, and when he is said to have believed he would die.

Testimony that Shepherd had said he would have McClintock's will drawn to suit himself was given at a bail hearing for Shepherd Saturday by C. C. Faiman, president of the National University of Sciences, who is also under indictment.

Fights For Bail.

Faiman's examination was the opening of Shepherd's first legal battle, a fight to get out of jail.

William Scott Stewart, counsel for Shepherd, argued with State's Attorney Crowe as to where the burden of proof lay, but Justice Hopkins of the Criminal Court permitted Stewart to call the State's witnesses who testified before the Grand Jury.

The attorney started out on a line of examination which caused the Court to uphold Mr. Crowe's objections that the interrogation was intended to impeach his credibility.

Stewart said Faiman,at his school, was teaching midwifery, dancing, plumbing and fortune telling.

"That's a lie," Faiman asserted.

Asked whether he was a physician, he testified that he was a student of the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons for three and one-half years. When asked if he was a licensed practitioner, he answered:

"I passed the United States Public Health Service examination in 1921."

Faiman reiterated much of the so-called confession which caused the charges against Shepherd, saying the latter had agreed to give him $100,000 when he completed "a big deal." He said this "big deal" was admitted by Shepherd to relate to the McClintock estate.

He knew of no witnesses who had heard him talk with Shepherd about typhoid germs and the McClintock will. Shepherd, he averred, had referred in the fall of 1923 to the approaching marriage of McClintock and Isabel Pope. Shepherd had referred to McClintock's approaching majority. Faiman said he remarked that such a marriage would "leave him out," but that Shepherd said he would have McClintock draw a will. The witness pointed out that "the girl must be taken care of or it would cause talk," and Shepherd said "some of those typhoid cultures" could be used.

Gave Three Tubes.

Faiman had previously stated that he had given three tubes of bacilli to Shepherd. These tubes he had obtained in the Chicago Health Department. He did not remember the individual who gave him the bacilli.

"There is no signing or talking when germs are given out, so there was nothing to fix the person in my memory," he added.

"A few days after the death of McClintock," said Faiman, "Shepherd called me on the telephone and said the boy was dead. I asked him if any of the servants knew anything about the circumstances. He said 'No.' He said he was going away for a few days and would not be able to see anybody."

Faiman said that in his conversations with Shepherd he told him that Cathartics administered in a typhoid case would act as irritants and aggravate the disease. Miss Isabel Pope, fiancee of McClintock, testified at the inquest that Mrs. Shepherd gave castor oil to McClintock and that Shepherd told of giving pills to the youth. Faiman also said that Shepherd told him, in a conversa-

DUTY ON SLACK COAL, ISSUE IN BUDGET SPEECH

May Be Surprise in Acting —Finance Minister's Resentment on Tuesday.

EARLIER THIS YEAR.

Opinion Growing in Capital That Election Will be Held This Year.

OTTAWA, March 21.—The Budget Speech, which is coming down on Tuesday, is not expected to contain anything very revolutionary, although it is rarely that a budget does not contain some sort of a surprise.

Very probably there may be something of the kind in this one, as well as a number of adjustments, which are annual occurrences. Behind the scenes a battle has been going on for some time on the question of the duty on slack coal, and while in the House the other night, Hon. Charles Stewart let slip the slam that nothing along that line is going to be done.

Advocates have been very busy during the week and only at the Cabinet meeting Saturday was the matter definitely decided. The duty on bituminous coal is 53 cents a ton, while on slack, it is only 14.

They want slack raised to the same level as the full-sized article. It is represented by the Nova Scotia Coal Companies that a great deal of the American product gets across under the classification of slack and the competition is held to be injurious. The proposal attracts particular attention because of the industrial trouble in Cape Breton and the claim of the company that such a tariff would materially aid them in bettering the situation.

Central Markets.

On the other hand, the central markets which get their bituminous supply from the more adjacent mines in the United States, are not enthusiastic about the levelling process. There is a further difficulty that any such change, although more or less of an adjustment, might be considered as an advance in the duty and the Liberal party is not supposed to possess upward tendencies in respect to the tariff. The outcome will not be known until the Budget comes down.

It is presumed that it contains provision in connection with the proposed policy of assisting in the coking of Canadian coal in order to replace the huge importations of American anthracite. Here again another delicate situation is encountered, because at Hamilton there is a pioneer coking establishment, in which several millions have been invested without any public assistance, and which has always utilized American coal. In regard to the tariff generally there is little expected of changes. Some weeks ago, speaking at Toronto, the Prime Minister intimated that the alterations made last year required further time to illustrate their real effects and consequently, it is intimated that no extensive following up this time might be expected.

Further Intimation.

There has been the further intimation that a certain amount of investigation of the tariff will take place this year with the assistance of experts who are provided for in the main estimates and when anything like this is in view it is not customary to make any fiscal changes.

Likewise, as to taxation little suggests the probability of diminution. The revenues have been falling during the year some $25,000,000 of the amount being attributable to the reduction in the sales tax in the last budget. The fixed charges such as the interest on the war debt and the deficit of the Canadian National Railway furnish such a total that, in conjunction with consolidated outlays, there is not much reason to expect a lowering of the scale.

The budget is coming down this year at an earlier date proportionately than at any previous session and the expedition which is evidently planned causes an undercurrent of view at the coming developments. Although there is no decision on the point, and several contingencies which make it obscure, the growing opinion is that before the year ends Parliament will be dissolved and a general election held, while there is the possibility of a more peremptory appeal to the country at an earlier date than is commonly anticipated.

BOYS MUST REPORT.

Exact Time of Entry at Home Every Night.

CHATHAM, March 23.—In the Juvenile Court Saturday a novel method of checking the activities of boys inclined to be wayward was originated. The system is to be tried out on six boys who pleaded guilty in unison to trespassing on the Pere Marquette Railroad. They were supplied with schedules and will be required to make a daily entry as to the exact time they enter their respective homes at night. The record has to be O.K'd, and initialled by their parents. Every Saturday morning they must produce the schedules for the inspection of Frank Appleyard, executive officer of the Children's Aid Society, who will be able to judge whether the lads are running around at late hours.

$7-a-Week-Boy—Now The Yeast Cake King

Joseph Wilshire.

(By Alexander Herman.)

NEW YORK, March 23.—A seven-dollar-a-week clerk has just become president of a $100,000,000 corporation!

Joseph Wilshire, at 44 has succeeded his old boss, Julius Fleischmann, as yeast king of the world!

Chalk up another name to the growing list of successes who started lowly and ascended the highest peaks of big business. Mark off another instance of truth out-fiction-ing fiction.

But cut out the thrills— for Wilshire has none of them.

He is quiet, modest—to the point of bashfulness—and is reluctant to talk about himself.

"Why the fuss?" he asks. "'Most anyone can succeed if he applies himself. In our company at least, everyone has the same chance."

He has no points of advice, no formula recipe for climbing of the ladder.

Coaxed, he tells the story of his life:

"I was born in Cincinnati, O.," he says. "Went to grammar school, then to work as a collector for my father's ice company. I was laid off during the slack season. Then I got another job—in a machine shop.

"Twenty-seven years ago, I joined the Fleishchmann Company, working as helper in the shipping department. The pay? Seven dollars a week.

"In turn I became clerk in the office, purchasing clerk, salesman, supervisor of agencies, assistant manager, manager of the western division, vice-president, and now—this.

"This" is a job that probably pays some $100,000 a year, that concerns itself with the direction of 11 factories, 7,000 employes and the output of untold millions of yeast cubes.

Pressed further for some of the attributes of his success, Wilshire finally said:

"Tolerance is the chief qualification. That develops appreciation, and team work— fundamentals in good organization."

But it was from Dan P. Woolley, vice-president, that Wilshire's secret of success was obtained.

"He has the remarkable faculty of making men make good," explained this executive.

"Anyone can approach him—be it office boy or manager. Rarely does an employee leave the organization. Wilshire just holds them by the respect he commands."

And he doesn't let his own phenomenal success got to his head. He still comes down to work at nine on the commuter train from his home in Greenwich, Conn. Horeback riding is his only hobby.

The first microscope patented in Great Britain was registered in 1742.

THE GUMPS—OH, THAT MAN!

IS CHALLENGED TO CHECKER CONTEST

Octogenarian Has Name of Being Champion in Central Ontario.

SECONDS ACT.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 23.—A formal challenge has been sent to Brighton, addressed to Ben Ewing, the octogenarian, who claims—or at least his friends do—that he is the champion checker player in Central Ontario. As intimated in these columns the other day, Michael O'Donohue has a host of supporters who are willing to match him against the Brighton man, details of the trial of skill to be arranged later.

Since the article appeared in The Examiner last week there has appeared a number of aspirants for the honor of meeting Mr. Ewing, the latest to announce his readiness being T. J. Hoskins, who some years ago was one of the local invincibles.

The challenge to Mr. Ewing was conveyed to Brighton by Archie Hatfield, who drives the auto stage between that village and Campbellford. Mr. Hatfield is a checker expert himself, and is so anxious to see a match between the aged players that he has offered to give Mr. Ewing free transportation between here and Brighton if he will consent to come here. As Mr. O'Donohue is a sufferer from rheumatism, it would be impossible for him to leave home at least before the arrival of the hot weather.

Girl Guides at Church.

The Girl Guides and Brownies, 40 strong, and making a fine appearance in their neat uniforms, marched in a body to the Methodist Church yesterday morning under the leadership of Miss Grace Payne, and listened to a sermon addressed especially to them by the pastor, Rev. W. Elliott. The subject chosen was the advice given by the Apostle Peter to the early converts of the Christian faith to grow in grace.

At St. Andrew's.

The first candidate for the vacant pulpit of St. Andrew's, Rev. R. J. Wilson of Finch, was here yesterday and preached very acceptably morning and evening. The music furnished by the choir, under the leadership of W. Pearson, organist and choirmaster, is especially pleasing to the congregation and the attendance at all the services is gratifying to the management.

Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, interim moderator and clerk of the Peterboro Presbytery, will visit St. Andrew's in his official capacity next Sunday and will preach at both services.

The Soldiers' Memorial.

The joint committee representing the I.O.D.E. and the town council, appointed to discuss the details for the erection of a suitable memorial in honor of the men from this town who fought and fell in the great war, has not yet held a session but it is hoped that a meeting can be arranged before the next regular session of the council on April 6th. Two sites are being considered, one on each side of the river, and this is the first question to be settled.

If there is eventually a soldier's memorial erected here the credit will belong to the members of the Senior and Junior Chapters of the I.O.D.E. who have been unwearied in their efforts in this direction since peace was signed. All the support that they have received from the Town Council was in the shape of two grants of $500 each. The remainder of the fund now on hand was raised by the united efforts of the I.O.D.E. and the Bemersyde Chapter, the Junior branch, has planned another entertainment to increase this amount.

No direct appeal for contributions has yet been made to the public and the movement has dragged so slowly on account of the lack of cooperation with the I.O.D.E. that it feared that the people, except perhaps those who actually lost relatives in the war, are becoming apathetic. The veterans here have an organization and are working on behalf of the memory of their fallen comrades.

It is pointed out as an evidence of the nature of public sentiment that the only returned soldier who was a member of last year's council and whose record would compare favorably with that of any of his colleagues was defeated at the polls, and that two new candidates, both returned men, shared the same fate.

That Tug of War.

Since it was stated in the Examiner on Saturday that a team from Percy Township is anxious to meet the Burnbrae champions in a tug of war at the celebration to be held here on the 24th of May, representatives of the latter team have announced their eagerness to settle the draw which resulted when the teams met at the Warkworth Fair last fall. If the match is arranged it is likely that the director of the Seymour Agricultural Society will put up for competition a cup or some other trophy of value.

Is This Your BIRTHDAY

MONDAY, March 23.—If to-day is your birthdary, you will have much personal charm and magnetism. If a woman, you will have a host of admirers. You are fond of fine clothes, and will spend large sums for them. If a man, you will have an unusually large wardrobe and always wear the most fashionable suits. Both men and women will be inclined to lead a gay life; both will flirt too much for their own good.

MRS. CHARLES NEILL.

COBOURG, March 23. — The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon from her home in Gore's Landing, to Plainville cemetery, of Mrs. Neill, widow of the late Charles Neill of the Rice Lake district, who predeceased her twenty years ago. Before her marriage, Miss Betsy Doidge, she was one of the most highly regarded ladies of the community. Mrs. Neill was a member of the Methodist church and during a long residence at Gore's Landing was deeply interested in its activities and the pursuits of the people of the village, and in everything that tended to the betterment of the community in which she lived.

Her last days were spent quietly at her pretty home in the Rice Lake village, with her daughter, Miss Maude Neill, who tenderly cared for her in her advancing years.

Mrs. Neill had reached her 84ht year. She was the mother of a large family, three children died in childhood and twelve grew to manhood and womanhood. Of these Mr. Chas Neill died a few years ago, his death being no doubt hastened by the effect of the great war in which he served; and Mrs. Hatson also predeceased her mother.

Mrs. Cox, who before her marriage was Isabella Hendren, was born in Dummer, 84 years ago, but spent most of her life in Lakefield, where she and her family were well known and highly respected. A few years ago, Mrs. Cox and her daughter, Miss Lily Cox, went to Vancouver, where they made their home. Last summer they came East and spent the summer in the village and at their cottage, "Dulce Domun," Stoney Lake. Mrs. Cox attended the Old Timers' Re-union at Juniper Island on August 16th, and enjoyed meeting old friends, who, like herself, were among the pioneers on Stoney Lake. There are left to mourn her loss, four daughters, Mrs. Bridge of Grand Forks, Dakota; Mrs. Young, Mrs. George Richards, Miss Lily of Vancouver; two sons, William of Moosejaw, and Dr. Elwood Cox of Vancouver; one sister, Mrs. Robert Peel of Kinmount; and two brothers, William of Saskatoon and Abel of Lakefield.

Her husband died some years ago, and one son, John, and three daughters, Mrs. John Cooper, Mrs. H. W. Barnes, and Miss Maude also predeceased her.

ROAD BAD AT ORLAND.

Water Worked Havoc With Newly Graded Highway Last Week.

ORLAND, March 23. — Heavy rain last week did considerable damage to the roads. On the county provincial highway in this place, where a heavy grade was raised near M. J. SMALL FLOOD IN WARSAW STREET

River Runs Between Stores and Drives People From Homes.

SOME ROADS BAD

WARSAW, March 23. — Dairy butter brings 28c. per pound, eggs 28c. a dozen.

The village stores have their supplies of spring goods in evidence.

Wednesday night's storm took practically all the snow away, and the water is working into the ground, but farmers would like to see snow to cover their winter crops.

Thursday morning Charles Storm took in a load of hogs to Peterborough on the truck. He was over four hours making the trip. Some of the culverts were so washed out they had to do some temporary repairing before they could get across and the rush of water made the work difficult.

Water rushed down the hill west of the village at such a rate and in such volume that one family had to get out about 2 a.m. and work to keep the water from rushing into the house. There was quite a river between Mr. Choate's and Mr. Clement's store, and as usual in floods, the water was deep on the street.

Mr. Richard Deen's sale was held on Wednesday afternoon. Many of the things sold well.

The Orange Lodge, Warsaw, plans to hold an entertainment on Friday evening, March 27.

Mr. Richard Choate spent the week end with his parents in Warsaw.

Inspector Lees is in the district to-day.

Tapping is well under way, but so far not many have had good runs.

Wild geese have gone north over the village.

The boundary was opened on Tuesday and now those who find it absolutely necessary to use it, can use wheels, but cars cannot yet run the whole distance.

150 GRAVEDIGGERS WORK

Murphysboro Buries Fifty as Fresh Ground is Broken.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., March 23 (Associated Press).—Twin cemeteries high on a hill overlooking Murphysboro were scenes of simultaneous funerals all day long while 150 gravediggers broke fresh ground for the burial of victims of Wednesday's tornado. Tower Grove Cemetery and St. Andrew's Cemetery received more than fifty bodies Saturday.

The voices of as many as six clergymen could be heard reciting services at the same time.

The day was quiet and a bright sun warmed the soft wind, which gently caressed the mourners in a manner so different from the blast that robbed this city of life and homes by the hundreds.

Grave diggers in overalls rested their shovels at times to act as pallbearers, while knots of sorrowing people watched their loved ones being lowered into graves.

Elimination of duplications and the positive identificaton of all except one of the victims reduced Murphysboro's known dead to 187.

S. J. Howell, who had driven an ambulance for twenty-six hours, took advantage of a lull in activities today to take a few minutes of sleep. He lay down on a coffin in one of the morgues. He was awakened by a touch on his arm and the sound of a woman's teaful voice saying:

"Is this one of the bodies also?"

He assured onlookers that he still was very much alive.

SEVEN DEAD IN ONE FAMILY

Laborer Found Child at School Was Only One Alive.

ST. LOUIS, March 23.—Charles Biggs, a laborer, jumped from his automobile when he saw the tornado coming at Murphysboro, Ill.

"The machine turned over a couple of times and I never saw it again," he said. "I walked the rest of the way to my home, a mile and a half. The place ws a complete wreck.

"I found my daughter-in-law sitting up, dazed, and she died while I tried to talk to her. Her two daughters were twenty-five feet away, dead. My wife and mother were there, too, dead. Nearby was my 21-year-old son, Fred. He was dead. Near him was my daughter Margaret. She was 16 two days ago, and she was dead. My other daughter, at school, was the only one saved. I was only scratched."

Little Agnes Price was one of those who prayed when the storm struck. Mrs I. H. Perkins, wife of the minister of the only church in Caldwell, was visiting at the Price home at the time. She told a newspaper correspondent that the child began to cry and then played:

"Oh, Lord, I ain't saved, and I've been a sinner."

Agnes is only 7 years old. She was not injured.

The circulation manager of the West Frankfort Daily American asked one of his newsboys why he did not hustle out the other night when the paper was issuing an extra edition.

"How can I?" demanded the youth. "My route's all blown away."

In a devastated section of Murphysboro stands a wall and next to it, on the side protected from the wind, is a set of kitchen furniture, resting undisturbed, just as it was before the storm struck.

The top of one house in Murphysboro was cut off and carried away. The first floor remained intact, and the floor of the second storey now forms the roof. A bed on the second floor was hardly mussed.

PELT ALL ALONE ON EARTH

Survivor Tells a Graphic Story of His Experiences.

DE SOTO, Ill., March 23.—In a tiny country cemetery adjoining the desolate wreckage of what was once the village of De Soto, the survivors, Saturday buried the victims of Wednesday's tornado.

Thirty of the town's population of 500 were returned to De Soto soil, and sixty-five grave diggers were at work opening graves in the small cemetery which today contained more than half a hundred new mounds.

Then the people of De Soto went from the cemetery to what was left of their homes, as one mother who left a little boy in the cemetery expressed it, "to begin life again."

A man who lived through the tornando told his story as the village buried its dead and prepared to rebuild. He was F M. Hewitt, of Carbondale, former State Senator. He saw the great funnel-shaped gray and black cloud coming toward him, "cleaning the surface of the earth as it came like a huge plane."

"I went with T. L. Cherry," he said, "to the home of a De Soto woman to transact some business. The lady was showing us her six weeks' old twins when we saw the clouds. We went outside and saw big boiling clouds looming on the horizon with a funnel-shaped black centnre. I said that I believed it was a tornado, and we went to the home of a woman across the street, who came out carrying a baby to watch the phenomenon.

"We could see that it was coming near and through intermitten flashes of lightning could see timbers and other debris which seemed to be floating in the air on the crest of the wind. I advised against going inside, but we all finally went into the house of the neighbor.

"The wind increased to the roar of a tremendous draft. It sounded like a lumber wagon coming down the street. Suddenly the house we were in was lifted about ten feet and moved through the air, settling about twenty feet distant. We then got outside as fast as we could.

"Mr. Cherry was knocked unconscious by a flying timber. I felt like I was going to fly and was being drawnstraight up into the air. Then I fell down. I saw a post near by and thought if I could get to it I would not be sucked into the air. I finally crawled to it and held tight.

"I felt rather foolish and wondered what people would think if they saw me lying flat on the ground and holding fast to a fence post. As we came from the house we could see houses and other buildings lifted into the air in a mass and then could see them disintegrating.

"After it was over I remembered first hearing the cries of babies everywhere, and then of frantic mothers searching for their children. I got to my feet and looked around. It seemed to me that bodies were everywhere, particularly the bodies of old people and of children. Some of them were red with blood and some of them had all their clothing torn off.

"I tried to help the women hunting for their children, then I heard the screaming of the injured. I would go to one person and start elsewhere to get help for him, only to find another person more desperately hurt. Then I would hear another cry and find another still more seriously injured. I never turned to the same person twice.

"It seemed that I was the only person alive and I was short of breath. I wondered if I was the only one to escape the tornado, only to die of suffocation. Then I saw a neighbor who had been a short distance away. It seemed to me he and I were the only persons left and I felt that he was the only friend I had in the world and did not want to lose sight of him. We started pulling out the dead and injured from the wrecked homes and then others came to help. I returned and found that the woman and her twins had escaped."

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples Are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate; then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will help prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually helps make pimples disappear.

THE ONTARIO STATUTES.

It is announced that before the Law Revision Commission, appointed by the Ontario Government, completes its work of revising the statutes of the Province that suggestions will be received from the municipalities on the Municipal and Assessment Acts.

The idea is to have these measures as satisfactory as possible, and then have them made permanent so that the continual tinkering and patching year after year that have only succeeded in making the statutes confusing will be done away with.

There has, in fact, been far too many changes made, and the results have been far from satisfactory.

The present revision, the results of which are to be published before being finally accepted in order that an opportunity may be given for further suggestions, is expected to put Ontario's statutes in such shape that they can with confidence be permanently adopted.

And when that is done it is to be hoped that the Legislature will be very reluctant to authorize any further amendments, realizing the mischief that has been done in the past by continuous experimenting along this line.

In other words, "get them right, then leave them alone."

APPEAL TO MOTORISTS.

The President of the Ontario Motor League has issued a timely appeal to motorists throughout the Province asking them to co-operate in carrying out safety first principles on the highways of Ontario.

The automobile season is beginning to open up, and soon the roads will be alive with motor cars—more in commission probably than ever before in the history of the Province.

With the increase in traffic comes a greater need for careful driving if accidents are to be avoided.

During the last couple of years summer week-ends have been followed by an appalling list of fatalities in the Monday newspapers, and it is undoubtedly true that many of these accidents were the result of careless or reckless driving.

The death list has been so heavy that the warning of the Motor League President is amply justified.

It should be regarded as the duty of every motorist not only to obey the traffic regulations and the rules of the road, but to let common sense and courtesy dictate their driving, realizing that the heavy traffic on the Provincial highways and city streets calls for care and judgment at all times.

It is possible to reduce the number of accidents by the exercise of ordinary care, and motorists would do well to heed the advice of the head of the Motor League.

CENTRALIZED EXECUTIONS.

The action of the Legislature of Nova Scotia in passing a motion to petition the Federal Government to enact the necessary legislation to provide that all executions of offenders sentenced to capital punishment in the Maritime Provinces be carried out in Dorchester Penitentiary, confirms the stand that the Examiner has always taken in regard to this matter.

It would be decidedly in the public interest to have death sentences carried out in a central place in each Province; in Ontario, for example, Portsmouth Penitentiary would be the logical place.

The present system is unsatisfactory and costly.

It puts a strain upon the staffs of the county gaols and upon the nerves of the communities in which the executions are held.

All this could be avoided if the condemned murderers, immediately upon being sentenced, were to be taken to the penitentiary to await their fate.

If a change is made it must be made by the Federal Government, and the motion adopted by the Nova Scotia Legislature, which will also be adopted by the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island penitentiaries, will serve to bring the matter prominently before the Ottawa House.

If the rest of the Provinces were to fall in line and make similar representations there seems little doubt that the change would ultimately be authorized.

CANADIANS STARVING.

The report of the Glace Bay Relief Committee published on Saturday leaves no doubt as to the distress and suffering among the families of the striking Nova Scotia miners, and amply justifies the efforts of the Local Council of Women to secure funds here for the relief of the victims.

Already 1,695 families, representing 10,529 people, have received aid from the committee.

It has not been possible to do more than provide enough food for these people to keep them from starving, the supplies furnished being served out at a rate of nine cents per day per person.

The figures show the seriousness of the situation more clearly than a long description of the conditions would do.

Here we have over 10,000 people glad to accept enough basic foodstuffs to keep body and soul together, only nine cents a day between each of them and starvation.

These families are without food, many of them without proper clothing and bed clothing, the committee reports.

Hon. A. S. McMillan, Minister of Highways in the Nova Scotia Legislature, sent to investigate the conditions, declared after visiting one family with eight people living in one bedroom: "If you have anything worse I do not want to see it."

Money is urgently needed to save these unfortunate Nova Scotians, and even the speedy culmination of the strike would not materially affect the situation for some time.

The Examiner will be glad to receive and acknowledge subscriptions, which will be sent on to the Relief Committee by the Local Council of Women.

MME. TUSSAUD'S.

Anothes London landmark has disappeared. The destruction by fire of the waxworks exhibition of Mme. Tussaud removes one of the most famous institutions in the Metropolis. The somewhat depressing building on the Marylebone Road was known literally to millions of people throughout the length and breadth of the British Empire, and was one of the places never omitted from any planned tour of London, either by parties from the provinces or by tourists from abroad, says the Montreal Star.

It seems a strange thing that a Swiss doctor's gift for modelling in wax, developed in his niece, should have created a fashionable craze, and stranger still that a girl's delicate fingers should have been employed by the ghoulish figures in the French revolution to model the heads of murdered aristocrats. Yet from this very fact sprang the germ of the idea that eventually developed into the world-famous waxworks of Mme. Tussaud. Based originally upon a Frenchman's collection of effigies of infamous thieves in Paris, the little waxworks exhibit at the outset comprised priniipally heads prominent in the French revolution. In the course of years it was extended to embrace others than criminals, and in its modern state it included effigies of many famous as well as abhorrent figures in the history of the nineteenth century.

But the Chamber of Horrors remained the central attraction, and the public love of the morbid ensured to it a never-ceasing stream of people of all classes, all ages, and all races. From time to time it received additions, and it was a very representative reproduction of the most dastardly criminals known to the century. It contained also some death-masks of great historic value, presumably now destroyed. It is unlikely that such an institution will be revived. Its interest was unique, but its contents are absolutely irreplaceable, and the fire has melted its waxen figures into ruin. Perhaps the same flames also laid innumerable ghosts.

HIDDEN WEALTH.

Treasure hunting has always been a fascinating adventure, indulged in by few and contemplated by many. How about a two-billion dollar treasure hunt? That is the promise held out by Canada's "Last Great West," a huge territory of millions of fertile acres scarcely touched. It needs transportation, and some day it will get it. Perhaps that day will come soon. The wealth is there, attested by engineers.

The town of Stewart, B. C., on the Portland Canal in the northern edge of that great Province, has an enterprising Board of Trade which has set itself to tell Canada what is in store. Its immediate purpose is to secure a railway which will establish it as a sea outlet for the Peace River region. But coincident with that comes a breath of hope and confidence that does the heart good. Big talk, it may be, but big talk inspires big deeds. The board claims opening of the Peace River and other Western regions toward the sea will increase Canada's home trade by a billion dollars, and her foreign trade in proportion. It will take 450 miles of railway to tap the Omineca and Peace River districts. The alternative, of course, is to link with Vancouver, but this will mean double the railway mileage, though using part of the existing transcontinental lines.

As a basis for its argument, the board quotes Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the C. P. R., to this effect:

"There are approximately 2,000,000 acres of vacant land in the three Prairie Provinces within 15 miles of existing railways. If these were divided into 320-acre farms it would mean 78,125 new farms suitable for immediate cultivation. If on each half section there were four settlers, the total would be 312,500. Government statistics estimate the value of each settler in the purchase of goods at $1,362.25 net per annum, so the value of this settlement to the country would be $122,105,000 per annum."

The Peace River arable district, the board adds, is 60,000,000 acres. Figuring on the early development of a third of this, and applying Mr. Beatty's figures, the board finds $1,122,000,000 added to the home markets of Canada. In addition, there are vast coal beds, silver-lead, dry silver and zinc-lead and the Hematite iron ore deposits and cooking coal nearby, all of which would have an outlet. Canada buys millions of dollars worth of coal from the United States every year. Within 105 miles of Stewart, lie the Ground Hog anthracite coal beds, and here the board quotes Mr. J. G. Scott, before the House of Commons committee in 1921:

"The quality of the coal according to the British definition is anthracite. The analysis gives from 74 to 85 per cent. of fixed carbon. It breaks in hard lumps, and will stand transportation over long distances. Samples taken out eight years ago are as bright and intact as when mined. The quantity of coal in this great field has been computed, but some idea may be formed from the reports of two mining engineers who examined 47 square miles of the territory owned by Quebec and London capitalists. These engineers estimated that on the 30,000 acres in question (47 square miles) there are 1,100 million tons of anthracite coal."

These are a few glimpses of the hidden wealth of Canada, hidden, in this case, only for lack of transportation. Naturally, when you read such things, you think there is something wrong because the country is not developed. Why is it not developed? The story comes right back to the secret of most of our problems—lack of population and therefore lack of sufficient capital to do the things we would like to do. "Nowhere in the world," the Stewart Board of Trade tells us, "is there such a productive area capable of being opened up by 450 miles of railway; an area greater in acreage, and exceeding in natural resources the whole of England. Edmonton, as the Eastern gateway, would soon be competing for the position of Canada's greatest inland city; Stewart would be one of the world's great seaports; and every other city and seaport in Canada would experience an increase of commerce as a result of bringing adequate population into the British Empire's richest and most easily accessible area, remaining uninhabited and now ready for the application of a policy of development framed along lines designed to double the population and the commerce of Canada, and to furnish another factor of strength in the structure of the British Empire."

Stewart is looking ahead, as all Canada should look ahead. To reach the goal we must start now—we should have started long ago—to reduce taxes by cutting down the unnecessary overhead, and opening the doors wide to homeseekers the world over.—Border Cities Star.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, March 23. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 1-8.

Sterling cables $4.78 1-2.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, March 22.— Imports of United States eggs for the week ending March 21 amounted to 2,369 cases, of these Winnipeg received 894 cases, Toronto, Montreal and the Maritime Provinces 400 each and 275 cases to miscellaneous points. Out of 180 dozen eggs sampled this morning on the Ottawa Farmers' market 169 1-2 dozen grader extras and pullet extras and sold at 35 to 40, 9 dozen and 3 graded firsts selling at 35 and 1 dozen and 3 eggs graded seconds which were confiscated. The general market situation shows practically no change. Offers of frozen poultry are being made by the Prairie Provinces chickens 25 to 32, fowl 23 to 25 f.o.b.

Toronto jobbing specials 39, extras 37, firsts 35, seconds 32.

Montreal unchanged. Quebec firsts jobbing 36 to 38, seconds 34 to 36.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 21. — Wheat made a brisk advance in price today, but profit-taking sales enlarged and the market underwent a sharp re-action. Export demand was disappointing. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ranging from 3-4 cent net decline to 1 cent gain, with 168 1-4 to 168 3-4 and July 144 3-4 to 145. Corn finished at 5-8 to 1 3-8 cents off, and oats unchanged to 3-8 cent up. In provision, the outcome was the same as yesterday to 10 cents lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 23. —There was some demand from foreign buyers for Canadian Western oats on Saturday and it was reported that a few loads were worked with the United Kingdom, but apart from this business was slow and the market was quiet. In the local market exporters were after No. 2 Canadian Western and No. 2 feed oats, but as the bids were 1 1-2 cents per bushel below holders' asking C. I. F. at Bay ports, no cales resulted.

Th feature of the local egg market last week was the stronger feeling and prices were advanced two cepts per dozen which was attributed to the decrease in the importations from the United States. The trade was fair. Little business was transacted in butter and the undertone was easier. A stronger feeling had prevailed in the market for Canadian cheese in the past week and prices closed one cent per pound higher which was due to the small supplies available. Fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods were quoted at 22 to 22 1-2 cents, and No. 2 grades at 21 to 21 1-2 cents per pound.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

RADIO OWNERS HAVE TOUGH DEAL

Great Deal of Red Tape and Opposition to Installations.

By CARL D. GROAT.

BERLIN, March 23.—(United Press).—Radioing in Germany is attended by the utmost difficulties.

It generally involves a fight with the landlord, and it often ends in court. In many places throughout the country houseowners have flatly refused to let their tenants put up roof antennae, and when the tenants have persisted, they have been haled into court.

The courts, having no precedent whereon to act, give contradictory decisions. Some agree with the landlords that the placing of antennae "increases the danger of lightning," while others take the opposite view, and hold that there is, in fact, a decreased danger from this source if roof antennae are up.

The latest decision in such a case was to the effect that houseowners dared not hinder the "march of progress" and that they must agree to roof antennae just the same as they permit the post office to put up telephone connections in a house.

Besides the potential trouble with the landlord, the radio fan must go through a lot of red tape with the post office and besides pay a tax for using radio. He cannot without special permission have an apparatus sufficiently strong to pick up London or other outside stations.

A THOUGHT.

CHEER FOR THE AGED.

"Is it too late? Ah, nothing's too late
Till the tired heart shall cease to palpitate.
Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles
Wrote his grand Oedipus, and Simonides
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers,
When each had numbered more than four-score years:
And Theophrastus at four-score and ten
Had but begun his "Characters of Men."
Chaucer at Woodstock, with the Nightingales,
At sixty wrote the "Canterbury Tales."
Goethe at Weimar, toiling to the last,
Completed "Faust" when eighty years were past.

"What then? Shall we sit idly down and say,
The night hath come; it is no longer day?
The night hath not yet come; we are not quite
Cut off from labor by the failing light;
Something remains for us to do or dare,
Even the oldest tree some fruit may bear.
For age is opportunity no less
Than youth itself, though in another dress;
And as the evening twilight fades away,
The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day."

CAUGHT AFTER 13 YEARS.

Long-Sought Prisoner Recognized by Court Officer on Street.

PATERSON, N. J., March 21. — After a search of thirteen years, Broomlaw Rogalok, 45 years old, of 112 Madison Avenue, was arrested Thursday on an indictment charging atrocious assault. He was indicted in January, 1913. The day after Rogalok disappeared.

Court Officer Albert Shaw recognized him on Thursday on a street car and placed him under arrest. It developed he had been living in Massachusetts while the authorities sought him. Rogalok returned because he thought the indictment had been forgotten. He was held in $1,00 bail by Prosecutor J. Willard De Yoe.

DISEASES HIT CAVAN VILLAGE

Mumps, Measles, Flu and Scarlet Fever Afflict Many Homes.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

CAVAN, March 21.—In Cavan village there are cases of mumps, measles, flu and scarlet fever. Spring weather with plenty of sunshine will be very welcome to clear away the sickness which seems to be prevalent.

On Thursday Whitfield's and Matchett's Schools were closed on account of the heavy rain and the water being so high in the creeks as to overflow the roads at some places. It was higher in the creeks than at any previous time, this spring.

Women's Institute.

The Cavan Women's Institute held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Sutton on Thursday afternoon. There were seventeen ladies present: sixteen members and one visitor, who became a member at the close of the meeting.

After the usual business meeting an interesting and beneficial programme was carried out.

The roll-call was answered by quotations from favorite authors.

Two excellent papers were read, one on "Checking Up"—our time and talents, etc.—was read by Mrs. C. Carr. Another paper, "Little things that make life beautiful," was read by Mrs. Ray Syer.

Both papers were enjoyed.

Messages of thanks were read from those who had been remembered by fruit or flowers during the month.

Mrs. Harry Tinney invited the Institute to meet at her home for their April meeting.

This will be the annual meeting, and there will be the usual election of officers.

A letter was read from the Department, setting the twentieth of May as the date on which a delegate will be sent to address the Cavan Institute. This will be an open afternoon meeting, held at the home of Mrs. D. J. Hunter, conducted similarly to the one held at Mrs. Hunter's last May.

Among those present were: Miss Bertha McNeil, Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. C. Carr, Mrs. C. Fee, Mrs. Roy Hutchison, Mrs. Harry Tinney, Mrs. Sisson, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Mrs. R. Syer, Miss F. Hunter, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. F. M. Staples, Mrs Loyd Sutton, Miss L. Staples, Miss J. Shaffer and little Elinor Staples and Jessie and Gerald Armstrong.

Mrs. Sutton, assisted by a committee of ladies, served refreshments, and a social time was enjoyed around the tea tables.

A number of the men who came for the ladies enjoyed the social time apparently as much as the ladies.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Sisters of St. Vincent's Orphanage Thank Tag Day Assistants.

The Sisters of St. Vincent's Orphanage wish to thank all who contributed in any way towards the wonderful success of "Tag Day." To have taken in over one thousand dollars — notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather—spoke well indeed for the noble-hearted workers—those good ladies who held to their posts from early morning through rain and sleet. It bespoke as well the kind hearts of the citizens for the helpless little ones.

Very special thanks are also due the Street Railway Company for the privilege of free use of cars throughout the day, the Boddy-Harris Decorating Company for the gift of two valuable banners which served to advertise the day so well; the three moving picture theatres for their efforts to make known and to arouse sympathy for the orphans. To all these the Sisters extend their most sincere gratitude.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

It was not sentiment that made him dig Pierrot's grave close to the princess mother's under the tall spruce. It was not sentiment that made him dig the grave at all, but caution. He buried Pierrot decently. Then he poured Pierrot's stock of kerosene where it would be most effective and touched a match to it. He stood in the edge of the forest until the cabin was a mass of flames. The snow was falling thickly. The freshly made grave was a white mound, and the trails were filling. For the physical things he had done there was no fear in Bush McTaggart's heart as he turned back toward Lac Bain. No one would ever look into the grave of Pierrot Du Quesne. And there was no one to betray him if such a miracle happened. But of one thing his black soul would never be able to free itself. Always he would see the pale, triumphant face of the Willow as she stood facing him in that moment of her glory when, even as she was choosing death rather than him, he had cried to himself: "Ah! Is she not wonderful!"

As Bush McTaggart had forgotten Baree, so Baree had forgotten the Factor from Lac Bain. When McTaggart had run along the edge of the chasm, Baree had squatted himself in the foot-beaten plot of snow where Nepeese had last stood, his body stiffened and his forefeet braced as he looked down. He had seen her take the leap. Many times that summer he had followed her in her daring dives into the deep, quiet water of the pool. But this was a tremendous distance. She had never dived into a place like that. He could see the black heads of the rocks, appearing and disappearing in the whirling foam, like the heads of monsters at play; the roar of the water filled him with dread; his eyes caught the swift rush of crumbled ice between the rock walls. And she had gone down there!

"He stood in the edge of the forest until the cabin was a mass of flames."

He had a great desire to follow her, to jump in, as he had always jumped in after her. She was surely down there, even though he could not see her. Probably she was playing among the rocks and hiding herself in the white froth and wondering why he didn't come. But he hesitated—hesitated with his head and neck over abyss, his forefeet giving way a little in the snow. With an effort he dragged himself back and whined. He caught the fresh scent of McTaggart's mocasins in the snow, and the whine changed slowly into a long snarl. He looked over again. Still he could not see her. He barked—the short, sharp signal with which he always called her. There was no answer. Again and again he barked, and always there was nothing but the roar of the water that came back to him. Then for a few moments he stood back, silent and listening, his body shivering with the strange dread that was possessing him.

The snow was falling now, and McTaggart had returned to the cabin. After a little Baree followed in the trail he had made along the edge of the chasm, and wherever McTaggart had stopped to peer over, Baree paused also. For a space his hatred of the man was burned up in his desire to join the Willow, and he continued along the gorge until, a quarter of a mile beyond where the Factor had last looked into it, he came to the narrow trail down which he and Nepeese had many times adventured in quest of rock-violets. The twisting path that led down the face of the cliff was filled with snow now, but Baree cleared his way through it until at last he stood at the edge of the unfrozen torrent. Nepeese was not here. He whined, and barked again, but this time there was in his signal to her an uneasy repression, a whimpering note which told that he did not expect a reply. For five minutes after that he sat on his haunches in the snow, stolid as a rock. What it was that came down out of the dark mystery and tumult of the chasm to him, what spirit-whispers of nature that told him the truth, it is beyond the power of reason to explain. But he listened, and he looked; and his muscles twitched as the truth grew in him; and at last he raised his head slowly until his black muzzle pointed to the white storm in the sky, and out of his throat there went forth the quavering, long-drawn howl of the husky who mourns outside the tepee of a master who is newly dead.

On the trail, heading for Lac Bain, Bush McTaggart heard the cry and shivered.

It was the smell of smoke, thickening in the air until it stung his nostrils that drew Baree at last away from the chasm and back to the cabin. There was not much left when he came to the clearing. Where the cabin had been was a red-hot, smouldering mass. For a long time he sat watching it, still waiting and still listening. He no longer felt the effect of the bullet that had stunned him, but his senses were undergoing another change now, as strange and unreal as their struggle against that darkness of near-death in the cabin. In a space that had not covered more than an hour the world had twisted itself grotesquely for Baree. That long ago the Willow was sitting before her little mirror in the cabin, talking to him and laughing in her happiness, while he lay in vast contentment on the floor. And now there was no cabin, no Nepeese, no Pierrot. Quietly he struggled to comprehend. It was some time before he moved from under the thick balsams, for already a deep and growing suspicion began to guide his movements. He did not go nearer to the smouldering mass of the cabin, but slinking low, made his way about the circle of the open to the dog-corral. This took him under the tall spruce. For a full minute he paused here, sniffing at the freshly-made mound under its white mantle of snow. When he went on, he slunk still lower, and his ears were flat against his head.

The dog-corral was open and empty. McTaggart had seen to that. Again Baree squatted back on his haunches and sent forth the death-howl. This time it was for Pierrot. In it there was a different note from that of the howl he had sent forth from the chasm; it was positive, certain. In the chasm his cry had been tempered with doubt —a questioning hope, something that was so almost human that McTaggart had shivered on the trail. But Baree knew what lay in that freshly dug, snow-covered grave. A scant three feet of earth could not hide its secret from him. There was death—definite and unequivocal. But for Nepeese he was still hoping and seeking.

Until noon he did not go far from the cabin, but only once did he actually approach and sniff about the black pile of steaming timbers. Again and again he circled the edge of the clearing, keeping just within the bush and timber, sniffing the air and listening. Twice he went back to the chasm. Late in the afternoon there came to him a sudden impulse that carried him swiftly through the forest. He did not run openly now; caution, suspicion, and fear had roused in him afresh the instincts of the wolf. With his ears flattened against the side of his head, his tail drooping until the tip of it dragged the snow and his back sagging in the curious, evasive gait of the wolf, he scarcely made himself distinguishable from the shadows of the spruce and balsams.

On the afternoon of this day the second big impulse came to him. It was not reason, and neither was it instinct alone. It was the struggle halfway between, the brute mind fighting at its best with the mystery of an intangible thing—something that could not be seen by the eye or heard by the ear. Nepeese was not in the cabin because there was no cabin. She was not at the tepee. He could find no trace of her in the chasm. She was not with Pierrot under the big spruce.

Therefore, unreasoning but sure, he began to follow the old trap-line into the north and west.

ANOTHER WAR IN TEN YEARS

Sir Charles Higham Warns of Conflict Against English-Speaking Nations.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Sir Charles Higham, the British advertising expert, predicted that another world war would develop, possibly within ten years, with the United States and Great Britain allied against Japan, Germany and other races unless the two English-speaking nations built up their air defenses to show warlike nations that they "are not going to have any nonsense about it."

Speaking at a dinner of the Sphinx Club, at the Waldorf-Astoria, Thursday night, Sir Charles declared that "in the minds of those who made public opinion" in Germany, Japan, Russia and China, a plan has been formed "for the yellow races to make an aerial attack on the Panama Canal and California and land in Mexico, after having got rid of the United States defenses." Simultaneously, he said, Germany will attack France; Canada and Australia will have all they can do to look after themselves, and England will be handicapped in going to France's aid.

"It may be the last war, but you can't tell that," he said. "It will come in less than twenty years and most likely in ten. The reason there will be another war is manifold. The Japanese want power and great dominions. The Germans have had the same idea instilled in them for generations. The United States' prosperity and unlimited resources for wealth make her a tempting morsel for the warlike nations of the world. She is really a more tempting country to capture than any other on the face of the map. Her very isolation makes her danger greater because she is not likely to concern herself about it, as those do who are nearer to the warlike nations of the world. She has really only one great ally and friend—the British Empire. My country and yours are the only two nations in the world, which, in my judgment, are not aggressively keen on war. These two countries will never war against each other, of that I am absolutely certain."

Sir Charles said there is a way of preventing this "next great war or at least hindering the date on which it may occur and that this is by convincing the aggressively warlike nations that the United States and Great Britain are not going to have any nonsense about it.

"They are in no condition to make that announcement today," he continued. "Aerially the United States of America and the British Empire are very weak in comparison to France. The next war will be fought largely in the air, and if the United States and the British Empire are ready to meet any aerial warfare that may occur, the other nations will hesitate before striking a blow. The expense incurred in aerial defense is as essential as that the sun shall shine tomorrow, but there are an awful lot of people in your country and mine who don't agree with this point of view, and they shall probably be the ones to criticize our lack of readiness when the day comes again."

It is the duty of the United States, Sir Charles believes, to combine with Great Britain "in seeing that the Germans pay what they can pay" in reparations. France, too, he said, should be made to pay.

"There is a way," he continued. "What is she doing with the money that belongs to your country at the moment? She is equipping a gigantic army and an air fleet that could wipe out London in twenty-four hours. Japan is organizing Russia on a war basis, and any one with half an eye would see that. The way to make peace for a long time to come is to prepare for war."

TUSSAUD LOSS HEAVY.

London Papers Put Wax-Work's Fire Ahead of American Tornado News.

LONDON, March 23 — The full extent of the loss in the burning of Mme. Tussaud's famous wax works show in Marylebone Road, had not been ascertained yesterday, but it is feared many historical relics collected by its founder, who lived in the French revolutionary period, have been destroyed.

The show was reputedly the finest of its kind in the world; less popular than a generation ago, perhaps, but still visited by many Englishmen and foreign tourists.

The story if its burning is given columns by the London newspapers in comparison with inconspicuous paragraphs about the American tornado and the Tokio fire.

GOLD TRAIL LEADS TO SCAFFOLD

Bump on Bean That Gave Fortune Now Claims Life of Scott.

CHICAGO, March 23—That same mental quirk—"bump of the bean"—he calls it—that led him into making millions five years ago, Russell Scott, 30, now curses for having brought him to the end of the trail in a felon's cell in condemned row here.

The mighty, the rich, the famed and literary of Canada were, not so long ago, companions of this man soon to have the last chapter of his life blotted out on the hangman's scaffold.

A puzzle to the world, a human question mark, that is Scott, once a financier, owner of fine homes, a yacht, cars, who later turned to earning a living with a gun and shot and killed for a $10 loot.

Twice now, he has been sentenced to die, "the most intelligent prisoner" ever held in the cellhouse of Chicago's jail. To die shackeled and bound—he, who not so long since signed his name to checks worth a king's ransom.

Laughs at Fate.

"Why weep when the time for weeping long since past?" he asks. "They'll be stringing me up before long and the law buzzards can come feast on my body.

"But, how can one escape just a grin when the thoughts of what was come hurdling back—just a few years gone by. There I was making money so fast that I scarce knew what to do with it.

"Making money broke me. I worked 19 and 20 hours a day. The golden hoard kept piling up. I went mad with the joy of it. I was rich. I was powerful.

"Then crash! I broke—mentally and physically. Just a wreck in body and mind.

"What hapened then? The usual story.

"I wanted to come back. Perhaps I could have done so. But they've framed this on me here. Honest, I'm not a killer. Circumstances are just against me.

"Don't look at me for any Horatio Alger advice. Keep away from the mad gold dreams if you'd be happy.

"Money, money, money! Some are born with the ability to make it. I was cursed with such a gift. It has landed me here.

"That bump of the bean, that bent, or inclination to reap the gold! Some say it's a blessing. It's really a curse when it gets a man like it got me."

Scott has been in "death row" for almost a year. He shot and killed Joseph Maurer, 19-year-old drug clerk, during a holdup, June 13, 1924.

Once he pleaded guilty to the murder and was sentenced to die. A new trial by jury was granted and he was again given the death penalty.

Scott was born in Ann Harbor, Mich. His career is checkered with successful adventure. He has been an actor, a five-minute pep talker, an author and a "wizard."

He culminated his rise by organizing the Russell T. Scott Co., Ltd., of Windsor, Canada. This was a $10,000,000 corporation with an army of salesman, branch offices in 80 cities, engaged in the financing of a $30,000,000 international bridge between Detroit and Canada.

Has Three Children.

He is married and his wife and three small sons have moved to Rochester, N.Y., where Scott says they live in a charitable institution and write him daily.

His father, Thomas H. Scott, 62, has sold all his personal effects to secure a new trial, or a least a rehearsing before the Supreme Court for his boy.

Daily the old man visits the cell from which Scott is due to exit for eternity on April 16, unless the governor or the law intervenes.

To gather finances for his fight for life, two young women, Miss Maude M. Gauthier of Sandwich, Can., and Miss Agnes I. Hawthorne of Windsor have staged benefit dances "back home" and sent the money on to Chicago for legal hire.

"If they would let me out of this jail for a month I could clean up enough money to hire an army of lawyers," Scott says.

"Money is not hard to make. I know how. But I curse the gift that enables me."

REGRET DEPARTURE OF W. H. DUNSFORD

Members of Peterborough Clearing House Make Presentation.

On Saturday afternoon the members of the Peterboro Clearing House gathered at the Peterboro Club to give a parting message to Mr. W. H. Dunsford, manager of the Peterboro branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, for so many years, who is leaving shortly to take charge of the securities department of that bank in Toronto.

A presentation of a fine piece of plate ,suitably inscribed, was made by the members. Appreciation was expressed indicating very definitely the value of Mr. Dunford's co-operation in the work of the Clearing House, and also the feeling of regret held by every member on the severance of business and social ties so long enjoyed. A cordial welcome was at the same time extended to Mr. A. J. Reynolds, who succeeds Mr. Dunsford.

Regret was also expressed by the members on the transference of Mr. C. J. O'Neill, accountant, Peterboro branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, secretary of the Clearing House, to the supervisor's department of the Royal Bank of Canada, Toronto, Ont.

ARREST BIGAMIST.

John Wesley Wheeler Accused of Having Two Wives at Once.

COBOURG, March 23.—John Wesley Wheeler was arrested here on a charge of bigamy and came up before Magistrate Floyd here for preliminary hearing Thursday. He was committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction. It is alleged that he was married to a Miss Babcock at Napanee in 1918, and that last January he was married here to a Miss Eley. It appears that a separation was arranged between Wheeler and his first wife, and the defence apparently is that accused thought this gave him also the privilege to marry again.

W. F. Kerr, K.C., appeared for the Crown and A. R. Willmott for the accused.

Will Erect Houses.

There will be some building in Cobourg another season. Mr. Humphrey Skitch, a well-known builder and contractor, has purchased a lot on Durham Street, and will erect houses upon it.

How Are Ya?

HAL COCHRNA'S DAILY POEM

"Well, how are ya today?" It's a thing people say, when you meet them at work, or in pleasure. I guess it's a habit, 'cause all people grab it. It's friendshipy chat, in a measure.

The queer part about it, whenever folks shout it, is what they expect in return. Whenever you say, "Oh, I'm sick-like today," they're sorry they've shown their concern.

No man cares to borrow your ailings or sorrow; he just wants to hear that you're fine. Whenever you tell him you're sick, you compel him to kinda feel bored at your line.

There's a lesson in this, that too oft goes amiss. Why not say you feel well, though it's bunk? If that thought you can shout, you will shortly find out that you're really not feeling so punk.

BROKE FROM JAIL.

Wallaceburg Drunk Tore Furnace Lining.

WALLACEBURG, March 23.—A daring escape took place on Saturday from the Wallaceburg Jail, when Elmer Groombridge, a young man who had been placed in custody upon a charge of drunkenness broke down the interior lining of the furnace in jail and crawled through into the fire hall and escaped. Groombridge has not as yet been located. He left behind him cap and overcoat. A similar escape took place from the local jail some time ago. It is expected that Groombridge will be arrested again within the next few hours.

RUM RUNNER CAUGHT.

Cargo Valued at $150,000 Seized on Saturday Night 16 Prisoners.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(Canadian Press).—The steamship Robert C. Clowry, with a liquor cargo of an estimated value of $150,000 and a crew of sixteen men, was seized on Saturday night in Ambrose Channel by coastguards, it was learned to-day when the vessel was brought to the battery. The sixteen prisoners, including Captain Daniel O'Conner, of New York, were locked up in the police station to await a hearing.

TURNKEY RELEASED.

ST. THOMAS, March 23. — George Cline, turnkey at the Elgin County Jail, has been released as a result of the Norman Weir escape from jail last week. Provincial Inspector Aiken, was in the city Friday and Saturday, and Turnkey Cline's release is said to be a direct outcome of this visit.

WORST IN U. S. HISTORY.

Wednesday's Tornado Took Heaviest Toll of Lives.

CHICAGO, March 23. — Charles J. Root, state meteorologist, arrived in the devastated district on Saturday, to study the effects of the tornado, which he termed the worst in the history of America.

Other tornadoes have been of longer duration and have taken in more area but none ever has taken such a toll of lives, according to Mr. Root.

"The tornado evidently had its origin around St. Louis or Cairo," said Mr. Root. "There is a difference of 20 degrees in temperature between St Louis and Cairo and that district is always a dangerous one. When cold air from the north meets warm air from the south a tornado may easily result. These funnel shaped clouds which are formed revolve at the rate of 500 miles an hour, while the tornado itself advances at a rate of not more than 25 to 40 miles an hour," he continued.

"The width of a tornado is not more than a mile and the pressure on the inside of the tornado is so much lower than the normal pressure inside of the buildings that the walls of the buildings are forced outward by pressure from the inside."

BARDSEY ISLAND KING HAS QUIT

Sixty Subjects Go With Monarch to Mainland Town

LIFE TOO HARD

Famine in Tobacco Caused Decision to Abandon Place

Yet another kingdom has toppled and a monarch has laid down his sceptre, strangely enough, however, without any blood-shed, revolution or political disturbances. The king has simply got "fed up" with his job and the inhabitants of his kingdom are quitting because they find the place too lonely.

This surprising kingdom is Bardsey Island, which comprises 444 acres of green land in the Atlantic, a few miles off the coast of Carnarvonshire, Wales, and the abdicating monarch is "King" Love Pritchard, who has spent the whole of his eighty-three years of life on the island and who has been undisputed ruler of a community of some sixty souls since 1911.

The last retreat of the ancient Welsh bards and the reputed burial ground of 20,000 saints, Bardsey Island would at first sight appear to be an ideal kingdom. There are no social or political worries, the island is fertile and there is no housing problem. Houses in fact are particularly cheap and there are no local "rates," or taxes. The trouble is the inaccessibility of the mainland during the greater part of the year, and the islanders have got tired of their isolation and burn for communion with the outer world.

Recently the island was cut off for six weeks by the Atlantic, and, although there was no actual famine, it proved the last straw and King Love and his subjects finally decided to quit. Interviewed regarding his decision, the aged monarch said: "Our minds are made up. Things are changing so and the young people will not stop here. They want to get away to the big cities and see life and be where there are fine clothes. One by one they go away and the old folk are dying off. Those of us that are alive cannot be on our own, so we are determined to move to Aberaron, across the water."

Fifty years ago the population of Bardsey was just a little more than 100, today it is fewer than sixty, and there are not sufficient young men left to row across to the mainland in fine weather, for supplies. Bardsey has no stores and no saloons, but it has a chapel and a school. The population had their own farms and lived very much on communial lines as regards general supplies which were bought in bulk and "dumped" on the island for equal distribution. There was no crime there, for "moral suasion" exercised by the "Parliament" —comprising all the adults—was sufficient to maintain law and order.

King Love Pritchard is a crowned monarch and has an imposing crown, though his favorite headgear always has been a rough pilot cap, and his "sceptre" a large pipe. He was elected by his fellow islanders in 1911, in succession to King John II., who abdicated, and incidentally, died in a Welsh poorhouse. The retiring monarch has no particular plans for the future, but apparently he has no fear of starvation—Welsh laws always will permit him to enter a poorhouse. He intimated that he might take dancing lessons to amuse himself, in the absence of kingly cares.

Only two miles as the crow flies, the sea passage between Bardsey and the mainland is made nearer five miles by strong currents, which are impassable in rough weather, and entail isolation for periods of a month, or five weeks, on end. It was the tobacco famine during the last period of isolation which decided the older inhabitants to quit. "We had to smoke coffee and tea instead of tobacco," complained King Love, "and that proved too much." Bardsey possesses no radio sets, nor even a gramaphone, to wile away the hours of isolation and the mails have only been delivered monthly. Hence, "What's the use?" asks the younger generation. The elders trace this "restless" spirit to the advent of bobbing and shingling among the younger women among the population, but generally sheer loneliness is regarded as sufficient excuse for the wholesale abandonment of the island.

Bardsey then is to be left to the lighthouse station and a few sheep, which the owner of the island intends to leave there for pasture. The owner, whose identity is lost among a host of lawyers, apparently does not care whether the island is abandoned or not. No attempts are being made to sell, or lease, the "kingdom" and presumably the families of the present tenants can return any time they wish.

The British Government takes no interest in the matter and would probably be glad to hear that the island was definitely abandoned, as it would relieve officials of the moral responsibility of "relieving" the community after prolonged periods of isolation.

The King of Siam has presented to the Shakespearean Memorial collection at Southwark Central Library, a set of his own translations of Shakespeare's plays into Siamese.

GIRL OF SIXTEEN HEROINE OF FIRE

Ellen Curtis, sixteen years of age, saved her brother and three sisters, her grandfather, and the family dog and three puppies from death when her parents' home in Chester street Oxford, was destroyed by fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis left Ellen in charge of the children while they went to a fancy dress ball. Burning coals fell from the fire grate and set fire to curtains while Ellen was upstairs attending to a baby sister two years of age.

When Ellen ran downstairs the room was on fire, and she returned to the bedroom, rescued the baby, and sent her brother Albert for the fire brigade. She began to remove furniture, and suddenly remembered that her grandfather was asleep in a back room.

She was unable to reach him because of smoke, but attracted his attention from a window. He climbed through his bedroom window to the roof of a shed.

Ellen then returned to the house for the dog and puppies.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were on the way home when the fire brigade passed them.

WOMEN SHYLOCKS PLAGUE THE POOR

Moneylenders who exact interest at the rate of 1,300 and 866 2-3 per cent. per annum were mentioned at a meeting of the London Council of Social Service.

Miss A. R. Caton said investigation by the Liverpool Women Citizens' Association in Liverpool and Birkenhead showed that out of every three cases of distress in the poorer classes, one was in the hands of moneylenders.

The worst type of lender was the woman of the same class as the borrower. One case led to suicide, and others to insanity. In Liverpool five-sixths of the lenders were women.

U.S. RIFLEMEN MAY SHOOT AT BISLEY

Competition for Howard Vincent Trophy Likely to Be Revived

FRIENDLY RIVALS

Service Rifle Contest of 15 Shots at Four Ranges

After a lapse of nearly twenty years, there is every prospect that a competition of unusual interest between British and American riflemen will be revived this summer. A few days ago the Queen's Westminster and Civil Service Rifles challenged the 107th Regiment of the New York National Guard to shoot for the Howard Vincent Shield, and little doubt is entertained in London as to what the reply will be.

It was during a visit to the United States in 1905 that the late Sir Howard Vincent — then Colonel of the Queen's Westminsters—following an inspection of the 7th New York Guard, offered the shield that bears his name for annual competition between the two units. In July of 1905 teams met at Bisley, and the Englishmen scored a narrow victory by 19 points. But in 1906 the Americans had their revenge, and defeated the Queen's Westminsters in New York by 60 points. According to contemporary records, no fewer than 10,000 people assembled at the presentation of the shield in the magnificent "armory" of the New York Guard—where presumably it still reposes. Since that date the competition has remained in abeyance, and in the meanwhile the titles of both the units have been altered; The 7th New York Guard has become the 107th, and the Queen's Westminsters have been amalgamated with the Civil Service Rifles. Should it be found possible to enable these friendly rivals to meet again at the butts, nobody will be more delighted than the Prince of Wales, the English battalion's hon. colonel.

Particulars of the conditions that govern the competition are not yet available, but on the last two occasions it was a Service rifle contest of fifteen shots each at 500, 600, 500 and 1,000 yards, each team consisting of eight men. It is interesting to note that whereas the aggregate scores at Bisley in 1905 were 1,490 and 1,480 respectively, at New York in the following year they had risen to 1,648 and 1,588—a difference that is possibly attributable to climatic variation. At the second shoot a future King's Prize winner—Sergeant Fulton—came within one point of the highest score (278), and made 60 out of a possible 75 at 1,000 yards.

The National Guard of the United States are more or less the counterparts of the British Territorials. If the Americans accept the English challenge the teams will meet at Bisley next June.

Motorist Paid the Penalty of Kindness On Surrey Highway

The experience of a motorist who played the part of a good Samaritan with rather unfortunate consequences is told by a correspondent in a letter to The Daily Mail.

"I was driving down a rather steep hill in Surrey," he writes, "when a cyclist, who was a considerable distance from my car, skidded and fell off his machine. I found that he was rather badly injured and took him in my car to the local cottage hospital. When I came out of the hospital, a number of villagers had collected, and I heard one remark, 'A cyclist in there has been killed by a motorist, and that's the fellow who did it.'

"The crowd scowled. A few minutes later, while the police were taking particulars from me about the mishap, a neighbor of mine passed in a car, saw me talking to the police, and shouted as he passed, 'I knew you would be caught before long.'"

THIRTY SKELETONS ARE ROMAN REMAINS

Thirty skeletons have been found at what is believed to be one of the biggest Roman cemeteries in this country, discovered at Ospringe, near Faversham, Kent. The excavations are being undertaken by William Whiting, of Ospringe, and the Society of Antiquaries has sent an expert to supervise the digging, which has only been in progress a few days.

Signs that Roman remains were present were found two years ago, but it was not then possible to excavate. The field has now been put at the disposal of the Society of Antiquaries.

Sixty pieces of pottery, some in an excellent state of preservation, were among the things recovered.

Most of the things found have been about three feet below the surface.

A fire in the upper portion of the premises of the Old Curiosity Shop, Portsmouth street, Kingsway, one of the oldest buildings in London, was quickly quelled.

SEVERN BARRAGE SCHEME DROPPED

It was stated at a meeting of the Chepstow Urban Council that the Severn barrage scheme had been dropped, the Government having decided to spend no more money on it.

The scheme to harness the River Severn, which was drawn up by the Ministry of Transport when Sir Eric Geddes was at its head, would have cost £25,000,000. It was proposed to build a concrete dam two miles long, and to instal electrical generating plant which would produce more power than Niagara Falls.

PLANNING TO DIVE FOR $50,000,000 OF SUNKEN GOLD

Salvage Company to Attempt Recovery of Lost Treasure

RICH LOOT

"Diving Spear" Will Be Used to Locate Millions Lost 100 Years Ago

Serious attempts are to be made to recover treasure estimated at $50,000,000 in gold and jewels which was sent to the bottom of the sea in the battle of Navarino nearly 100 years ago. A salvage company is being formed which, fitted with all the requisite modern appliances, should have more than bare hopes of success, in view of modern salvage successes like the recovery of the Laurentic's and Lusitania's gold, under much more difficult conditions.

It was in October, 1827, that the Turkish fleet, conveying troops, who had looted the best part of Greece, was brought to bay in Navarino Bay, Greece, by a combined English, French and Russian fleet under Admiral Codrington and entirely destroyed. Some of the vessels were set on fire by the Turks and others were sunk by Allied gunfire, and, of these, between fifty-one and sixty-three vessels now lie in from fifteen to twenty fathoms of quiet water, with, it is believed, the bulk of the treasure aboard.

According to authentic statements, the Turkish Admiral's flagship alone carried $10,000,000 in gold and an equal sum in looted jewels. The money was gold sent from Constantinople for the payment of the troops, but the loot of Greece was confined to the most valuable and easily portable jewels and precious objects.

The defeated Turkish Admiral's son, acting on information supplied by his father, made a personal attempt to salvage the treasure, but just as his plans were maturing, he disappeared and his fate has ever been a mystery. The Greeks got wind of his intention and, it is understood, that certain officials and "patriots" saw to it that their oppressor's son did not profit by the sunken treasure.

Of recent years divers have descended in Navarine Bay and they report the Turkish vessels are in excellent condition. A few bronze cannon and other trophies have been recovered, but so far no serious attempt has been made to get the treasure, although as to its existence there would seem to be no question.

Chief among the instruments on which the Navarine salvage promoters are relying is the "Diving Spear," a remarkable instrument, which was tested (successfully, it is claimed), in the Laurentic salvage. It is trifling in appearance, consisting of a length of wire, to which a spear is attached, and a galvanometer. When the spear touches various metals the needle of the galvanometer swings to different parts of the dial, each part indicating the kind of metal touched.

For instance, on touching gold the needle swings over to the left, whereas for copper it will go to the right. The extent of the swing also is graduated by the quality of the metal touched. The presence of 24-carat gold is indicated by a swing much greater than that recorded for 18-carat or 9-carat gold.

It is claimed by its inventor that all that is necessary is for the diver to stick the spear in the ocean mud until he comes to indications of metal and continue until he registers gold, thus eliminating the lengthy and expensive process of digging over a whole area.

BEAUTY SPOT IS GIFT TO NATION

Unspoiled Countryside in the Midlands—George Cadbury is Donor

Through the generosity of Mr. Edward and George Cadbury, 414 acres of beautiful countryside have been preserved against the encroachments of the builder and the industrialist.

They have presented this substantial portion of Chadwich Manor estate, which lies on both sides of the Bristol (Bromsgrove) road, to the National Trust for Places of Historic Interest or Natural Beauty.

The gift adjoins a portion of the Lickey Hills estate, now an "open space" belonging to the Corporation of Birmingham, and secures as open country an uninterrupted upland area, three miles in extent, of unspoiled rural Worcestershire, which will form a natural boundary between Birmingham and the country.

It stretches from Beacon Hill to Waseley Hill, and includes a ridge of hills which form part of the watershed between the Severn and the Trent.

OLD MANOR HOUSE.

The property consists for the most part of woods and upland meadows, with a few arable fields.

It includes a 17th-century house which was the Manor House of Chadwich, one of the sub-manors of the great Royal Manor of Bromsgrove.

The donors state that the Trust has liberty to erect dwelling houses on a small portion of the estate, but the existing public rights of way over the property should be preserved and improved.

"The Trust will no doubt in time provide other and better means of access to the many beauty spots along the hills," add the donors. "In any event we hope that the present rural nature of the countryside and particularly of the picturesque lanes, may be preserved."

Rents accruing from the various tenancies included in the gift amount to about £600 per annum, the benefit of which will go to the Trust.

From 1917 to the end of next March not less than £600,000,000 will have been spent on war pensions by this country, Major Tryon, Pensions Minister, told East Lewisham Conservatives.

"We have worked out," he added, "how many complaints we got, and they only come to 1½ per cent. of the pensions."

CURIOUS-LOOKING MOUNTS

LAST WOMAN OF LUCKNOW SIEGE

Death at 96 Recalls Terrible Days of 1857

PATHETIC FUNERAL

Despairing Plan to Blow Up Mothers and Children

Mrs. Ann Helen Huxham, who must have been one of the last, if not the last, of those heroic Englishwomen who endured the long, anxious weeks of the siege of Lucknow during the Indian Mutiny in 1857, has died at Bexhill, in her 96th year.

Mrs. Huxham (as she described in a pamphlet she wrote some years ago) and her two children were among those who were closely packed into the Residency buildings, while her husband, Captain Huxham (whose regiment had mutinied), was appointed adjutant of Fort Muche Bawn, where, among other duties, he had charge of five native princes, who had been arrested on suspicion of complicity with the mutineers.

This fort was later blown up by the defenders, as Lawrence deemed it unwise to attempt to defend both it and the Residency. Crowded into various buildings, the women and children had to endure, not only the intense heat of Indian hot weather and an outbreak of cholera, but also bombardment from the rebel guns.

Owing to frequent casualties among them and to relieve congestion a number of the women and children, including Mrs. Huxham and her family, were sent to live in the Brigade Square, 200 yards distant, which they reached through a hailstorm of bullets.

The building in which they were now housed was a lofty edifice without doors or inner walls, and purdahs had to be hung from the pillars supporting the roof to keep out the fierce glare of the sun; a terrace on the roof was occupied by sharpshooters of the defenders, several of whom were killed and carried down into the hall below, "before our eyes, wounded, bleeding, and dying."

Mrs. Huxham's own baby girl, about a year old, died in August, and, wrapped in a blanket, was laid in the Residency grounds, the chaplain reading the burial service lying full length on the ground to avoid the shots which were constantly flying around.

As the strength of the garrison was weakening day by day, a proposal was seriously considered to pack the women and children together and blow them up, while the men attempted to fight their way out. But, happily, help was at hand. The first relief force under Havelock and Outram was too small for any attempt to fight a way out, and it now swelled the ranks of the besieged.

On September 27 Captain Huxham was badly wounded in a sortie, carried out by volunteers to spike some of the enemy guns.

On November 16 Colin Campbell's force made its way into the battered Residency and the grounds, and the siege was at last at an end.

"Your wife did not show her teeth until after you married," said a solicitor to a husband at Bow County Court. "No—and then they were false ones.

FORTUNE'S LURE IN TEA-CUP LORE

"Tea-leaves fortunes" and "dark lovers from over seas" were discussed in a Chancery Court case in which William Wesman, an entertainer known as Leo Tree, and Louis Goldansid failed to obtain an injunction against the "Cup of Knowledge, Limited," of Southampton Row.

Plaintiffs had patented a teacup for fortune-telling purposes, the inside pattern of which represented a pack of playing cards, and the border contained the words: "What does the cup say, I wonder, today."

It was complained that the defendants manufactured a similar cup, though the "Joker" was represented in addition to the 52 cards.

Mr. Wesman, said counsel, was an entertainer in thought transference, and the idea of his cup occurred to him when in Australia in 1922. He had the design registered in Sydney.

Mr. Sydney McNamara, for the defence, said he was visiting his mother at Sydney in 1923, when she showed him a fortune cup called the Nelross. She told him his fortune and said a horse he was running would win.

"It ran last," he added amid laughter.

His lordship held that there was no evidence of cribbing, and that Mr. McNamara's story was amply substantiated. The action was dismissed with costs.

WILL OF SCOTTISH COTTON MAGNATE

A fortune of £1,000,478 6s. 1d. has been left by Mr. Edward Jonas Brook, of Hoddam Castle, Dumfriesshire, who died last July.

Mr. Brook was a director of the Glasgow and South-Western Railway and of the Siddeley Deasy Motor Car Company, Limited. He was the elder son of the late Mr. Edward Brook, of Fife, a director of Messrs. Jonas Brook and Brothers, cotton spinners, Meltham, near Huddersfield. His father left over £2,000,000.

MILLION ACRES MORE IN WHEAT

Scheme Put Forward to Increase British Food Supplies

The ploughing of an additional million acres of land in England and the establishment of great granaries in the wheat-growing districts are the main features of a scheme put forward by A. Stiles, of Worthing, an expert in cereal production and distribution, for bringing about an increase in home-grown wheat supplies.

"The only way to make a large acreage of wheat profitable," he said, "is to induce our millers to use more English wheat, and to do this it is necessary that English wheats should be delivered in condition equal to that of imported grain."

He pointed out that if a miller buys imported wheat on a sample he knows that he may rely on the whole delivery, but if he buys English wheat it would be made up of many separate lots from different farmers, all varying in quality.

"Home-grown wheat," he said, "must be available for our millers in such a condition that they are a practicable business proposition, and this can only be brought about by the wheat being cleaned, bulked, conditioned, and graded."

Mr. Stiles thought that a syndicate, taking a well-defined, wheat-growing area, could demonstrate that the grain, if properly dealt with, could be sold on the open market at such a price that farmers would be glad to grow it. A capital of £100,000, he said, would be necessary to deal with Sussex wheats.

BRIDE OF SIXTEEN SOLD FOR TENSPOT

Mary Millett, aged twenty-two, who was sentenced at the Devonshire Assizes to three months' imprisonment for bigamy in 1920, alleged that when she was sixteen years of age her mother sold her to her legal husband for £12.

"I was as much a chattel as anything offered for sale in the market," she said.

When the girl was arrested she handed to the Plymouth police a statement that she married George Millett, a naval stoker, in 1918, under a contract between Millett and her mother in which Millett promised to pay her mother £12 for her, but he paid only £1. She felt that she was free again after her mother died.

The girl married George Wayman, a pedlar, in 1920.

Mr. Justice Roche said that there must have been some confusion about the money payment.

TEIGNMOUTH SCENE OF BIG LANDSLIDE

Thousands of tons of earth fell in a landslide—the second within a week—at the cliffs abutting on to the Great Western Railway between Hole Head Tunnel and Teignmouth Station.

One line was blocked for several hours, and all traffic had to be diverted to the down line.

The vibration caused by the battering of the sea wall during the gale and heavy rains are responsible for the landslide.

SWALLOWS WATCH TO SAVE FRIEND

An operation on a girl who was removed from the Aylesbury Horstal Institution to the Royal Bucks Hospital revealed that she had swallowed about fifty iron nuts and a large wristlet watch.

It is believed that she swallowed the watch in order to save a friend in the institution from detection after she had stolen it.

The nuts were small, such as are used on bicycle bells and fittings, and the girl, who had been depressed, admitted that she had swallowed them at intervals during the few weeks preceding the operation.

She survived the operation, is progressing well, and has been discharged from the institution.

RICH SPINSTER'S FORTUNE IN SUIT

Story of Two Wills Told to Jury Who Decided Case

DRINK ALLEGED

"Undue Influence" by Nurse and Friend Unfounded Plea

When Miss Sarah Edith Smith, of Ealing, made her will, leaving the bulk of her estate of nearly £50,000 to her nurse and friend, Miss Ellen Ross Beamish, she was of sound mind and was not unduly influenced by Miss Beamish.

This was the finding of the special jury in Mr. Justice Horridge's Court. The will, dated December 1, 1923, was contested by Miss Smith's two brothers, who made the allegation refuted by the jury's finding, and set up a will of June, 1922, under which they were legatees, and under which Miss Beamish was left about £24,000.

Sir Henry Maddocks, K.C., in opening the case for the defence, said the jury would hear that Miss Smith was drinking more and more, and getting more and more under the influence of Miss Beamish, who, he suggested, dominated her.

Mrs. Kate Stephens Turner, a widow, and Miss Smith's eldest sister, said that after the death of Mr. Zachery Smith, Miss Smith's uncle, from whom she obtained her fortune, she noticed that her sister took much more to drink than she did during the uncle's lifetime.

In 1921, said Mrs. Turner, while she was living at Wincanton, Miss Smith called to see her, and if she had not known she was coming, she would not have recognized her sister, as she had altered so dreadfully in appearance.

In the same year she stayed with Miss Smith at Shardlow. Often she came to her room and said that during the night she had felt ill and had taken brandy.

Her bedroom was in an indescribable state of confusion.

The Judge: She also had two dogs in her bedroom?—Yes.

Counsel: Did you see any bottles?—Yes, brandy and whisky, and there were also dirty glasses.

"I never saw her drink water," said Mrs. Turner, in reply to another question.

What opinion did you form of the relations between Miss Beamish and your sister?—I thought my sister leaned on Miss Beamish to a very great extent and accepted her opinion.

Mr. Willis, K.C. (for the plaintiffs): Do you really suggest that your sister was permanently intoxicated, and lost her will power?—Yes.

Is not the whole of this the result of the fact that you are disappointed at receiving only £1,000 under your sister's will?—No.

Mrs. Edith M. Benthall stated that she visited Miss Smith in 1921. One evening she found Miss Beamish and Miss Smith together with a bottle of spirits on the table.

The two women seemed very fond of each other, but Miss Beamish's will seemed to dominate that of Miss Smith.

After an absence of 75 minutes the jury returned their verdict, and the judge accordingly pronounced for the will of December 1, 1923.

FOOTBALLER'S CORNS CAUSED TRAGEDY

An enthusiastic footballer's despair because corns on his feet, contracted during war service, prevented him from playing his favorite game, was described at a Westminster inquest.

The inquiry concerned the death of Harold Stoneman, aged 27, a clerk at the Ministry of Pensions.

Evidence was that he had been worried because of the corns, and on Saturday morning he jumped in front of a train at Victoria Station. Suicide while of unsound mind was the verdict.

HAUL OF DIAMONDS AND PEARLS MADE

Jewellery valued at more than £2,000 has vanished from a Croydon house. The property includes:—

Large cross set with diamonds.
Two pearl necklaces.
Antique gold pendant.
Diamond butterfly brooch.
Antique pearl and turquoise cross.
Old-fashioned bracelet set with pearls.
Large brooch of diamonds set as a star.
Gold ring mounted with diamonds and cornelian stones.

Police are anxious to get into touch with a clean-shaven young man, wearing a blue lounge suit and trilby hat.

Thieves broke into a house at Teddington and stole a quantity of jewellery, including diamond rings, bracelets, pendants, and a string of pearls.

Three men in a brown motor car drove up to a provision merchant's warehouse in Bow Road, forced the door, and stole a number of sides of bacon.

HARD CASE OF TIME-WASTER

Lambeth Guardians were notified of a man who, when asked why he was out of work and required relief, had said:—

"The guv-nor did not tell me the job was piece-work or else I could have earned ten shillings or twelve shillings a day. I thought it was time-work and all I was paid was three shillings and sixpence a day."

Mr. Turner, chairman of the relief committee, said this statement was typical of the attitude of mind towards their work of certain persons who came for relief.

The man's benefit had been suspended by the Labor Exchange for six weeks, and the board decided to leave the case in the hands of the chief relieving officer.

PASSENGER RATES GET BIG SLASH

Particulars are now issued of the new cheap railway rates in England which the railway companies were contemplating for organizing excursion parties.

It is now announced that the new scale, which is for distances over 80 miles, has been adopted by the big railway companies, and, with certain exceptions, will be applied to both guaranteed and advertised day and half-day excursions.

The reduction in some cases amounts to about 33 per cent.

Marriage Disinherits Whole Family in County Cornwall

A fortune running into six figures has been lost to the nephews and nieces of D. H. Shilston, a wealthy solicitor and banker, of St. Austell, Cornwall, because his brother—their father—made a marriage of which Mr. Shilston did not approve.

His will passes over the nephews and nieces, who were his next of kin, and leaves the fortune to a second cousin, W. Kendall King, a retired bank manager, living at Topsham, Devon.

GAS MASKS FOR ALL IN NEXT WAR

Chemist Claims Mustard Gas is Most Humane Weapon

DISASTER THREAT

Black Troops, He Thinks, Will Figure Prominently in Future

"Mustard" gas is the most humane weapon ever invented, according to J. B. S. Haldane, the biochemist and physiologist, who explains his beliefs in a remarkable little book, "Callinicus: a Defence of Chemical Warfare" just published.

He sets out to prove this, although "the Washington Conference has solemnly agreed that the signatory Powers are not to use this substance against one another, though, of course, they will use such humane weapons as bayonets, shells, and incendiary bombs."

Although mustard gas caused 150,000 casualties in the British Army in the war, fewer than 4,000 of them died, while only about 700 became permanently unfit. Yet the British Forces did not use the gas against the enemy until 1918.

A British chemist, according to Mr. Haldane, proposed to one of our generals as early as 1915 that we should employ it. "Does it kill?" asked the general, "No," he was told. "but it will disable enormous numbers of the enemy temporarily." "That is no good to us," answered the man of war, "we want something that will kill."

In view of the fact that mustard gas will almost certainly be used in the future aerial bombardments of London, Mr. Haldane recommends the provision of gas masks for the population of London and other large towns, and the instruction of school children in their use.

"If this is not done," he writes, "there is at least the possibility of a disaster of the very first magnitude at an early stage in the next war."

Mr. Haldane thinks that future wars will be carried on mainly by negroes and other colored troops under white officers, as it has been found that they possess immunity to mustard gas, which puts white men out of action with extreme rapidity.

SCEPTICAL ABOUT ABRAMS' "MAGIC" BOX

Report of Sir Thomas Horder's Committee is Criticised

The report of Sir Thomas Horder's committee on Abrams' "Magic Box" method of treatment of disease by so-called electronic re-action is criticized by Sir James Crichton-Browne and Dr. Charles Buttar in the British Medical Journal. The committee was of opinion that there was some element of truth in the claim that disease produced certain electrical re-actions in the box machine invented by Dr. Abrams, a San Francisco physician who died two years ago.

Sir James submitted the report to an accomplished physicist and electrician, whose comment he says:

Is deserving of serious consideration at a moment when we are threatened with a new and mischievous outbreak of credulity and suggestibility.

The physicist regards the investigation as thoroughly unscientific. He says:

Looking at the sketch of Abrams' apparatus given by Sir Thomas Horder, I find there is a living subject (a boy) with his head and feet connected through variable resistances and the specimen (of blotting paper called a dynamizer). The committee have given us no measurements of these resistances in ohms. .....

The boy apparently acts as a sort of "detector" like the crystal in a wireless set. The operator taps his abdomen, and by the variation of the siund is supposed to be able to pronounce on the nature of the specimen.

The committee do not tell us what these sounds are.

They do not seem to have varied the boy or ascertained whether his state of health or repletion as regards food and so forth made any difference.

There seem to have been no proper control experiments. To make this method valid a very large number of observations are necessary.

The report does not help us in the least to decide whether there is any new physical effect involved.

In spite of the general denunciation of the Abrams method at the end of the report, it is to be regretted that there is a disposition to regard the method as having "something in it."

Such an opinion, coming from Sir Thomas Horder, is sure to give encouragement to the chalatan and quack.

Dr. Buttar says that the same situation has arisen in connection with sundry other methods of treatment throughout the ages.

Sir Thomas Horder's committee has to bear a heavy weight of responsibility. It set out to investigate a mechanical method; it was met by a refusal to allow proper scientific investigation; it could only record its observation of results, much as the audience at Maskelyne and Cooke's might do; and the committee solemnly records that there is "something in it."

The investigations of Sir Thomas Horder's committee are worse than useless; they degrade the standard of scientific observation because they were undertaken with the imposition of conditions which no scientific observer should accept.

Electronic practitioners present the problem that always agises with any new cult which lends itself to remunerative enterprise.

IRISH FAMINE PERIL IS REAL

Worst Crops Within Memory Leave Country Foodless

TOWNS STRICKEN

Shannon Floods Inundate Farms and Submerge Houses

(By a Former Irish M.P.)

That famine threatens a great part of Ireland is unquestionable. The almost complete failure of the potato crop and the fact that the prolonged rainfall of the summer and autumn months prevented peat drying make famine inevitable in districts like Connemara and parts of Donegal and other seaboard districts, where people are entirely dependent upon the potato crop and on peat.

I have had letters recently from Connemara describing the misery of the poor people, many of whose houses were blown down and unroofed by the terrific gales which have caused such shipping disasters all round the Irish coast.

DISEASED POTATOES.

These letters were not intended to influence me in any way. They were merely items of news from my own native district, which I represented in the British Parliament for 23 years.

Here in Athlone, where the small farmers have good land and are comparatively free from the serious discomforts of bad seasons, this year is reckoned the worst they have had in their recollection. Potatoes were a plentiful crop, but they are bad eating, and most of them are diseased. Cut peat still lies on the bogs, and wood picked up anywhere has to do for fires.

As everybody knows who has been to Connemara, the land there is of the poorest description, and the holdings too small to yield a decent crop of potatoes in the best seasons.

It will, therefore, be realised that when there is much general distress, Connemara and districts like it must be in a bad way.

SHANNON FLOOD HAVOC.

Just now, the Shannon floods, the highest ever known, have worked havoc with many of the farms near its banks. The hay crop has been swept away, and many people had to leave their submerged houses to find shelter as best they could.

Fever usually accompanies or follows a food famine. I am not surprised to hear that already in Connemara fever has broken out in several towns.

It is some consolation to know that the charitable world is becoming alive to the deplorable condition of the people, and that relief is at hand. There is no time to be lost if the poor people of this and other districts are to be saved from death—from starvation.

The men who know the conditions of their people best are the Catholic priests and the Protestant ministers. Food and clothing are urgently needed, but it would be well that employment should be found, if possible, and perhaps some, at least, of the funds raised should be so applied.

ST. PAUL'S IS NOT UNSAFE, NEW VIEW

Commission of Experts Who Examined Cathedral Make Report

"There is no foundation, in our judgment, for any suggestion that the building is unsafe and that persons visiting the cathedral incur a risk."

The commission of experts who have examined St. Paul's Cathedral since 1921 make this declaration in an authorized statement in which they announce that they hope to present a detailed report of their investigation to the Dean and Chapter in two or three weeks' time. They add:—

"The methods we have recommended will restore the main piers to as good a condition as when they were built, and the probability that any further work will be required is remote. Had danger been imminent, or likely to occur in the near future, we should have recommended otherwise."

Canon Alexander, treasurer of St. Paul's, issuing this statement, said that there seems to be confusion in the public mind regarding possible methods of saving St. Paul's.

"It is not an alternative between patching up the building or completely restoring it," he explained. "The choice lies rather between a comparatively safe method of strengthening the piers and an exceedingly dangerous one of trying to replace them.

"I have been assured by the highest engineering and architectural authority in the country that the attempt to rebuild the piers, which would mean in all probability the removal of the dome, or part of it, would be so full of risk that it is unlikely that any responsible architect or engineer would be found to undertake it."

BRIDEGROOM DEAD ON WEDDING DAY

Within a few hours of the time fixed for his wedding, Robert Allibone, aged 25, of Morley avenue, Wood Green, was found dead by his employer in a workshop at Holloway.

His body was covered with coats and there was a gas tube in his mouth. Two letters addressed to the coroner were found.

Allibone was to have married, at 2 o'clock, Beatrice Tozer, of Tintern road, Wood Green, and it fell to the minister who was to have performed the ceremony to break the news to the prospective bride.

The minister happened to call at Robert's home before the time of the wedding, and found a police officer there telling the dead man's grandmother what had happened.

BEQUEST TO QUEEN MARY OF ANTIQUES

W. S. Sands, inspector of furniture at Buckingham Palace, who left £9,000, directs the executors to offer to Queen Mary his William and Mary chest of drawers, a small French bureau, and a Louis XVIII. settee, "which I would like her to accept."

His medals, Orders, signed portraits, a picture of the Royal Family, and his jewellery he bequeathed to his brother, Henry Richard Sands.

SANITARIUM IS NECESSITY HERE SAYSDR. NEAL

Rotary Club is Told of the Fight Being Made Against White Plague.

MORE COMMITTEES.

New Chairman Each Month to Superintend Entertainment Features.

That Peterboro badly needs a Sanitarium for the treament of advanced cases of tuberculosis, was the contention of Dr. F. C. Neal, in the course of a thoughtful and informative address on "Tuberculosis," before the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon at the Empress today.

President John H. Seels was in the chair, and there was a large attendance. The only visitor was Fred Case, of Toronto, former member of the local club, who gave a very amusing recitation.

President Seels announced a new system by which there would be a different chairman for the entertainment committee each month, the list for the rest of the year being as follows: April, Rev. W. Harold Young; May, R. A. Browne; June, Robert Abbott; July, James Hamilton; August, A. L. Killaly; September, H. R. H. Kenner; October, Dr. Bruce Marshall; November, V. J. McElderry; December, Fred L. Roy.

The Carnival Committee will have Dr. A. McNair as chairman and C. G. Graham and R. H. Turner as assistants.

Membership committees of three for each month in the year were also announced, while the Boys' Camp work will be handled as follows, under the general supervision of Vice-President Robert Kingan.

The work of getting the boys and of arranging transportation to and from the camp will be in charge of George C. MacDonald, Dr. Bruce Marshall and Gordon Matthews.

The securing of the necessary supplies and their transporation to camp will be looked after by James Adams, James Juby and George A. Gillespie.

The camp property, boats, etc., the securing of a caretaker and cook and other details have been entrusted to Claude H. Rogers and J. M. McHardie.

A committee composed of Thomas Barrie, Robert Abbott and H. R. H. Kenner will arrange for visits to the camp and also for addresses to be given the boys by club members.

Dr. Neal first discussed the history of tuberculosis, dwelling upon the very slow progress that had been made in discovering treatment. He pointed out that no specific cure in the form of a vaccine or serum had yet been discovered and the most effective treatment consisted of rest, good food and fresh air, referring in this connection to the debt owing to Dr. Trudeau for his development of this treatment. Good progress had been made in handling the disease in Canada, the death rate had been reduced and there was the possibility that the increasing resistance of this reveals as the result of better methods of living and hygiene would do much to stamp out the disease, as other scourages had been almost eliminated. There was much that could be done by the physician but upon the layman rested a great responsibility in helping to prevent tuberculosis.

Dr. Neal discussed the agencies at work in Peterborough against the white plague dealing with the Well Babies Clinic, School doctor, Dentist and Nurses, the Rotary camp, the summer camp at Jackson Park and the Peterborough Health Association, all of which were playing their part in combattinig tubercolosis. The missing link in the chain was the lack of a sanitarium. As a result Peterborough patients were found in institutions all over the Province while others flatly refused to leave the city and had to be treated as well as possible at work.

A Sanitarium was necessary and because it prevented the separation of the patient from his family be cause it enabled better control of infection and because better care could be taken of the patient. Dr. Neal declared in making out a very strong case on behalf of the establishment of such an institution in Peterboro.

Closing Quotations —— on Principal —— Active Stocks.

CHICAGO.

Sentiment at the close was mixed with the bull element strongly of the belief that developments in the next week will be in their favor. There were numerous bears, however, who are taking advantage of all bulges to put out fresh lines. Those who are bearish on wheat believe that the advance has discounted all bullishness which the trade is expecting Monday. It is said that unless rain comes very soon Texas grain crop this year will be extremely light.

SMALL ZOO ON C.P.R. STEAMER

Passengers Bring in 500 Parrots and Other Souvenirs From Indies.

INCLUDES MONKEYS.

NEW YORK, March 23.—(Special to the Examiner). — Five hundred parrots and love birds, several monkeys, a deer and a Mexican tiger cat, some of which are destined for various cities in Canada as well as the United States, arrived here yesterday on the Canadian Pacific S.S. Montroyal, which completed her second and final West Indies cruise of the season upon arrival. The miniature zoo had been collected by the passengers at various ports along the route of their cruise, and will be taken inland as souvenirs.

Among the first to leave the ship yesterday was Lady Mitchell Taylor, wife of Great Britain's Postmaster-General. She, as did all other members of the cruise, expressed herself as being delighted with the experience and very thankful for the fine weather which had prevailed during the trip.

Lady Taylor will return to England on Tuesday, sailing for Liverpool on the Montreal on that day. The returning holiday makers tell of twelve birthday parties that helped their voyage pass quickly.

CITY'S APPEAL OPENS TO-DAY

Mr. Hall submitted that there had been a loss of about $10,000 over three years because of the Campbell 5power mill rates.

Mr. Robinson, for the Utilities Commission, while courting an investigation, gave this as the Commission's attitude: "We are satisfied that we have been paid for the power we have supplied to Campbell's. But, because of the gossip, we are willing that the whole thing should be cleared up."

Mr. Hall spoke of the Utilities Commission's apparent failure to charge the Campbell Company fully for the power supplied.

"Extraordinary Demand."

Mention was made of the summons or subpoena served by the Judge. Mr. Nesbitt complained of this instrument.

"He wanted us to produce every detail, even as to our grain. It was a most extraordinary subpoena," suggested Mr. Nesbitt. "We moved for an injunction on the ground that the city had no right to interfere with the legal rights of an independent corporation."

The method of charging the Campbell Power Company for power impressed Mr. Hall as something greater than a local issue. The issue was provincial in effect.

Regarding the Utilities Commission, MBr. Justice Smith observed: "Here you have an independent body armed with power to collect rates, and the municipality is prohibited."

Mr. Nesbitt: "And, therefore, the municipality is completely out of Section 248."

"You do not complain of the rates, but you say that more power has been used than the company has been charged with," said the Chief Justice to Mr. Hall.

Blames Meters.

Mr. Hall: "That is correct, my Lord. But what we really do complain of, is that the meters did not properly register the quantity of power actually consumed."

Then Mr. Justice Hodgins drew Mr. Hall's attention to the gas meters. When such meters went wrong in registering gas supplied to an individual, could an investigation be asked for? Could an investigation be held under Section 248 of the Municipal Act?

Mr. Hall: "I submit that it could, being part of the conduct of the public business of the municipality."

In the court's view, presumably, there was a narrow poin to be answered: "Did the meters register properly?"

Mr. Hall, however, amplified this somewhat: "How did it occur? Was the power obtained? The Hydro Electric Commission has not been able to discover why it is said that $3,000 a year has been lost as between the power delivered and paid for. The Utilities Commission has not been able to find ot the mystery. We want to know, and we say that we have the hight to hold a judicial investigation. We say, too, that the courts have no right to prevent thatt enquiry."

Mr. Justice Hodgins: "But the Utilities Commission made a report. Didn't the Council accept it?"

Mr. Hall: "It was not thorough."

Mr. Justice Ferguson, who knew something about such matters, alluded to meters.

"You say," said His Lordship, "That the meter is too low in this case. Now you must take meters as they are."

Mr. Hall: "But there is a loss of about $10,000."

Mr. Hall wanted to know how the alleged loss had come to pass. Why didn't the meters register properly? "How did it occur?" asked Mr. Hall.

"The Utilities Commission enquired," said Mr. Justice Smith.

Mr. Hall's position was that the power supplied had not been fully paid for.

Honorable Men.

Mr. Hall did not deny that the members of the Commission were honorable men, but that did not alter the fact that the Council wanted to know why this alleged loss had occurred.

Mr. Justice Magee said that Commissioners might be keen business men, but in a case of this kind they would be guided by experts.

Why wasn't a suit brought? Mr. Hall replied that the Council had a right to enquire into the apparent mystery, and he urged that the court had no right to prevent the enquiry.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

By M. B. LEVICK

In the 731st year of the Order of St. Francis a novice gripped his spade with white hands and set awkwardly to work in the monastery ga den. If he had listened closely he might almost have heard the hum from the streets of modern America's capital. But the novice had passed through a gate in a great wall which shut out seven centuries.

As the spade dug into the loam he put his foot to it. Perhaps in that moment his mind turned backward in spite of him, and instead of the cabbages he saw a throne, and instead of a spade he felt in his hand a sceptre.

Behind this throne is a gallery of strange figures: a man of destiny, a mad queen, a dictator, an emperor, a general in the uniform of the American rebels of 1776 and another in that of '61, and girls in the quaint costumes of unremembered generations. They walk in diverse places—through rooms where diplomats sit at ormolu tables, in academic halls and in ballrooms all aglitter, and across plateaux where cannon rumble past the cacti standing like mile-posts.

To some warriors fortune gives starts that burn steady. For others there are comets that burn great for a moment and fade. For the chief figures in this gallery there are only malign stars.

First comes a Colonel at the head of his regiment. He swaggers a bit in his gay cape, and the cockade on his hat sways as he rides. Very splendid he is in the high-heeled boots and the tight trousers of an officer of horse in Napoleonic days. He comes from Spain to show how a rebellious colony should be handled. Above him his star grows brighter. He leads his regiment to the side of the Mexicans. He takes their part: he is elected President of the new republic. He reaches further, remembering Napoleon, and proclaims himself Emperor. The republicans rise again and put him to death.

He leaves a son who in time becomes the attache of the Mexican Legation at Washington. The traditions of republicanism and monarchy have their place again in this son's marriage: his wife is an American girl, granddaughter of a General who lost a leg in the battle of Germantown. They have a son, to whom in time comes the proffer of the throne which turned into afield of cabbages.

To this son is given an imperial name, Augustin. He has the appearance of an emperor, and the manner. Behind him is the glamour of the grandfather who was one of the first Presidents of the republic. By the time he is a young man he is spoken of as Don Augustin in a dozen countries of Latin America. Hidalgos and gauchos and peons nod at the name as if he were a man of destiny. For another emperor has come from the Old World, and Don Augustin, grandson of a hero, finds favor with him.

When the Austrian Archduke Maximilian comes to the New World to establish his empire with the support of Napoleon III. his thoughts are of a dynasty. He has no son of his own blood. Here is Augustin, bearing a famous name and, in his person, a youth worth the honor. What thoughts of statecraft and placation and factions were in his motives? What heartache for Carlotta, the Queen not yet broken by misfortune, at the thought that she had no son to offer for the throne? And what of the tale whispered alike in the great houses and in Mexico City's dingy, narrow Street of the Dead Man, that Maximilian had bought the lad from his mother? The great estate near Esperanza—the Emperor had given other? The great estate near Espe it to the family, had he not?

Don Augustin, heir apparent. His grandfather had grasped for the title of emperor and it had slipped from him: now the title and all it means are offered in prospect to the grandson. He is to be the ruler of ten million people.

Then the star wanes again: the empire crumbles Maximilian fights, loses and is made to stand against a wall. The tragedy engulfs many others. Poor Queen Carlotta, who was rushed frantically to Europe and besought aid for her husband in royal courts, bears of his death and goes mad. . .

Twice has empire come near to the family of Don Augustin. Perhaps once more . . ? There are supporters loyal yet and plotters against them there is fighting to be done. Is he broken? Augustin, once heir to a throne, sets out anew on a career. He rides, like his grandfather, at the head of a regiment, perhaps thinking the thoughts of his grandfather and of his foster-father. It is a long road, this of a career. At the end of twenty years Diaz, entrenched, cashiers the officer and exilesh im.

From then Augustin feeds on crumbs. There is adulation for him in Washington, but he knows now what it is worth. There is dignity in the professional chair that is offered to him, but it is a poor substitute for a throne. There is battle of a sort, but it is a battle of words: he is expelled from a club by a board of governors of whom half are admirals and generals. It is said he has accused a former fiancee of his daughter of a member, of writing anonymous letters. Other men have said as much. But he is expelled. What is behind it? Factions rise, the man himself brings suit. He loses and his spirit is gone.

More years pass. He lives the quiet life of a man who has become a professor. He has his home, his wife—the granddaughter of a General, too, Phil Kearney. But the star has passed completely from the skies.

In Austria, where there was once the Archduke Maximilian, there comes another, Franz Ferdinand. American visitors chatting with him mention a tale of how his uncle wished to set a Mexican youth on his throne.

"Strange," says Franz Ferdinand, "and I have never even heard of it."

In the monaster garden an old man in a coarse brown habit follows down the furrow which in time will lead to a little mound of earth with a wooden cross above it.

Augustin de Yturbide, adopted son of Maximilian and grandson of Mexico's Emperor Augustin, died in the present month in the Franciscan establishment at Brookland, in the District of Columbia, which he entered in 1921.

FARMERS NEED HELP.

Demand For Farm Workers is Greater Than Supply in City.

Farmers looking for help provide most of the demand at the local branch of the employment service. H. Robertson the manager, said that the demand was good and the farmers apparently expected to get on the land in a few days, but it was hard to get some of the men to leave the city. The closing of part of the Quaker Oats Company's plant, said Mr. Robertson, resulted in an increase in the number of new applicants of whom there were 52 last week. Twenty-nine placements were made during the week and there are now 148 names on the lists.

HEADS MUST APPEAR SMALL

Whether Hair is Bobbed or Not Line of Skull Must Show.

WEAR SWITCHES

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, March 21.)—Petite de tete!

That's the hairdresser's slogan. In those three French words you get the essence of the French idea in coiffures.

In English it means "small head"—the idea is that whether you bob or not, whether you have long hair in the back and short in the front, whether you wear a bob by day and a transformation by night, you must make the head appear small.

The entire line of the skull must be plainly revealed.

This I learned in conversation with Andre Spery, one of the leading hairdressers of Paris and owner of La Coiffure de Paris, the leading French magazine devoted to hair.

Copied the Bob.

"Paris," he admits, "copied the bob from us. "It was launched with greater difficulty there than here because French women have always regarded their hair as one of their greatest assets of charm and they hesitated to part with it. It was only when they were won over by the smartness of short hair that they tolerated the shears. But, once convinced, they capitulated quickly.

"However, the French woman has never been able to reconcile the bob with her evening attire. For morning, with the tailleur, yes. For sports and outdoor life, yes! But in the delicate evening frock that is the essence of femininity—no."

And, confronted with any given problem in dress, the French woman sets about to solve it—her appearance is her first consideration. Transformations were tried, but they are very expensive, and require very elaborate care. Then someone revived the old idea of the chignon.

French for Switch.

Chignon is a prettier word than switch ,but the general idea is the same. It consists in a detachable length of hair, attached by combs so that it may be firmly tethered to the bobbed hair—no matter how close the bob, and may be made into figure eights, buns, twists or any form of decoration you like on the nape of your neck.

The chignon is really a small switch. The idea is not to give the impression of luxurious hair, but merely to hold down the bob in the back with a very flat wad of hair. The front may be short and curled, or even worn straight, if you prefer.

"The chignon," Spery said, "is always held in place with a comb or with fancy jeweled or carved hairpins, or sometimes with the bandeau that passes over the forehead. A net may be added if one wishes.

"Such a hair dress is infinitely more charming in the evening than the bob, yet it is possible by this scheme to have the comfort of the bob during the day. It is the accepted mode in Paris.

"But bear in mind," he concluded, "Petite de tete."

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

What and How to Feed Hens

The primary consideration in the proper breeding of poultry is feeding. On right feeding depends the productive capacity of the flock and in this depends the farmer's profit.

A study of the poultry feeding problem has brought out the following information on this subject:

The hen's diet should consist of grain, mash, animal feed, mineral feed and water. Exercise keeps hens healthy and hellthy hens lay.

As a general rule the grain should be fed as a light feed in the morning and as a heavier feed toward night. A good rule is to feed half as much in the morning as at the afternoon feed.

The mash is an essential part of the hen's diet, for she cannot make eggs economically from grain alone. In the mash should be included some of the common by-products, such as wheat bran, middlings and gluten feed.

Protein Essential.

The hen must be supplied with enough animal protein either ineluded in the mash or fed in addition to it. Some of the more common home supplies of animal protein may consist of skim milk, butter milk or some form of waste meat and, in the summer, insects that the hen can find on her range.

Even in the summer unless the hens have all the milk they can drink it will pay to have some additional animal protein in the mash. In the winter the hen will not drink enough milk to supply her needs and some addition should be made.

Ground green bone is an excellent feed when fed fresh, but poultry offal must not be ground in because of the danger of transmitting disease to the flock. This is especially true of tuberculosis.

Whenever a supply of green bone is purchased it should be spread out thin in a cold room. If left in a paper sack, the centre of the mass will heat and spoil. Green bone cannot be successfully kept in large quantities unless thinly spread.

Cottage cheese is a splendid feed. When cottage cheese is fed, the flock should be given all they will eat readily and no other form of animal feed will be needed.

Meat Scrap.

Condensed skim milk and condensed butter milk are also being used to good advantage. Some of the proprietary mashes offered for sale contain dried milk albumin and others dried butter milk.

It should be borne in mind when buying meat scrap or tankage that it is very high in protein so that although the cost per hundred pounds of material seems high, yet as a matter of fact a pound of protein can usually be had cheaper in the form of meat scrap or tankage than from wheat or corn.

Repeated tests have shown that a hen must have animal protein as a part of her diet in order to utilize the vegetable proteins to advantage. Unless sufficient animal protein is available a large part of the vegetable protein will not be used for building her body tissues or making eggs.

Meat scraps or some other high protein animal feed should form one-fifth of the mash by weight. Where only a few hens are kept it will be found most convenient to buy a good commercial egg mash.

Shell Essential.

Tests at the Wisconsin Experiment Station have shown that an abundant supply of the right kind of mineral is as necessary for good egg production as any part of the ration.

It is a common custom on many farms to neglect feeding oyster shells or other forms of shell material unless the hens lay soft-shelled eggs. Tests show that soft-shelled eggs are not caused by lack of shell material, but if shell material is lacking the hens will limit the number of eggs to the amount of shell material available.

Thus an abundant supply of shell material is necessary for heavy egg production. An ordinary mixed ration will contain considerable shell material but it will not contain enough.

Give free access at all times to a hopper that contains oyster shell or clam shell and lime rock grit. Dry bone in proper size is also desirable poultry feed but should not be depended on as a sole source of mineral matter.

Charcoal is fed to hens to help regulate the digestive tract. It is good practice to have it in a hopper beforeh the hens at all times.

Pasture Feeders.

Successful poultry keepers find that a liberal supply of green feed increases egg production and helps to keep the flock in health. Green feed also adds necessary bulk to the ration and apparently assists in the assimilation of minerals.

Hens running in a good range will usually lay eggs with better shell than hens kept in dry yards. The additional exercise is undoubtedly of benefit, but some forms of green stuff seem especially helpful in forming good egg shells.

During the summer a good manager sees to it that the hens have good clover, alfalfa, or other pasture. In the fall and winter it pays to furnish a supply of green feed. Cabbage is a good feed for fall and early winter. Later in the winter mangels or other root crops can be used.

Sprouted oats make splendid green feed for winter and spring use. They are especially good if placed in the sun so that the sprouts will add color to the yolks, making them richer yellow.

It is not known now but there is at least a possibility that the dark yellow yolks are richer in vitamines.

Hens Need Water.

Unless hens are given all the milk they can drink, water should be supplied to the flock so that it is easily accesible at all times. Even then water may be found advisable. It is well to remember that there is about a pint of water in a dozen eggs and hens will not lay "dried" eggs.

It is especially important that laying hens have water to drink as soon as they come off the roosts in the morning and again just before going to roose at night. Unsatisfactory results from lighting in some instances have been due to lack of water supply.

Following are some suggested rations for laying hens:

NUMBER 1.

Scratch Feed—Cracked corn, 2 lbs; wheat, 2 lbs; oats, 1 lb. Mash—Bran, 100 lbs; middlings, 100 lbs; corn feed meal, 100 lbs; gluten feed, 100 lbs; meat scrap, 100 lbs (or substitute a good grade of tankage).

Feed at least one pound of mash to two pounds of the grain mixture.

NUMBER 2.

Scratch Feed—Cracked corn, 3 lbs; wheat, 1 lb; oats, 1 lb; barley, 1 lb. Mash—Bran, 150 lbs; middlings, 150 lbs; corn feed meal, 100 lbs; meat scrap, 100 lbs, or tankage, 100 lbs.

NUMBER 3.

Scratch Feed—Corn, 3 lbs; wheat, 1 lb; oats, 1 lb; barley, 1 lb; skim milk or butter milk to drink. Mash—Bran, 300 lbs; middlings, 300 lbs; corn meal, 200 lbs; tankage, 100 lbs.

NUMBER 4.

Scratch Feed—Corn, 10 lbs; barley, 3 lbs; oats, 2 lbs. Mash—Bran, 300 lbs; middlings, 200 lbs; oil meal, 100 lbs; meat scrap, 150 lbs.

NUMBER 5.

Scratch Feed—Corn, 6 lbs; oats, 2 lbs; barley, 2 lbs. Mash—Bran, 100 lbs; middlings, 100 lbs; ground corn, 100 lbs; ground oats, 100 lbs; meat scrap, 100 lbs.

NUMBER 6.

Scratch Feed—Buckwheat, 3 lbs; wheat, 3 lbs; barley, 2 lbs; oats, 2 lbs. Mash—Bran, 100 lbs; wheat middlings, 100 lbs; buckwheat middlings, 100 lbs; ground oats, 100 lbs; oil meal, 50 lbs; tankage, 100 lbs.

These rations have been used with good results. The scratch feed should consist of the grains raised in the community.

Rye should not be fed to poultry.

Corn should not be fed on the ear but should be shelled and fed in the litter. When convenient, corn should be cracked. As a rule hens like cracked corn better than whole and will get more exercise scratching it out of the litter.

The fine meal from cracked corn must be sifted out and should be fed as a part of the mash. If this is not done much feed will be wasted and will become mouldy. Mouldy feed on the floor when eaten by the flock causes serious digestive disorders.

Method of Feeding.

Success with hens depends to a considerable extent upon the method of feeding. In general the best feeders plan to have their hens come down from the roost on to a dry floor well bedded with dry straw or other litter.

Scratch feed should be scattered in this straw either the night before or else early enough in the morning so that as soon as the hens come down they will go immediately to scratching in the straw for their feed.

As a rule the morning feed should be light, not more than one-third or one-quarter of the daily grain allowance so that the hens will get a maximum of exercise scratching for the grain. If too much is fed the hens will quickly fill their crops, go back to roos and not get enough exercise to maintain health.

There should also be a hopper that is constantly supplied with a good dry mash. The grain feed should be limited so that the hens will eat at least a pound of mash to every two pounds of grain. If the hens do not eat enough mash, reduce the morning grain feed.

MACHINES PREVENT FROSTED ORCHARDS

W. D. WATERMAN'S WIND MACHINE FOR ORCHARDS, UPPER VIEW. THE "HEAT MILL," LOWER PHOTO.

ONTARIO, Calif., March 23.—Good-by smoky smudge pots! Citrus growers, deciduous fruit growers and housewives of southern California are happy. They see the passing of the smudge pot an with it soot-covered households.

W. D. Waterman, Ontario aeronautical engineer and commercial airplane pilot, is inventor of what he claims will eliminate the rolling clouds of sooty smoke resulting from orchard smudge pots, and at the same time protect orchards and groves from loss by frost.

Waterman has built two devices for fighting frost. One is a wind machine, designed for deciduous fruit orchards, and the other is his "heat mill" for use in citrus groves. The machines, Waterman says, may apply to apple and other orchards, as well as the orange and lemon groves of California, Arizona and Florida.

Air Circulated.

Both have been given thorough tests, and results attained are satisfactory. They are constructed on the principle of keeping air in circulation among the trees, and in extreme cases force warmer air through the natural air currents to raise the temperatures above freezing.

Gasoline motors and airplane propellers are used.

The wind machine is faced with the natural air currents. A strong wind is generated that travels to all corners of a 10-acre tract, stirring the air constantly.

Experiments have shown that the temperature of groves has been raised several degrees on tracts served by the wind machine during freezing periods, and only in rarely extreme cases has it been found necessary to use the auxiliary heater. This works on the same principle as a blow torch, the warm air being mixed with the currents generated by the machine.

Spreads Warm Air.

Nobody has ever actually seen a giant old-fashioned phonograph horn inverted over a railway water tank, but first glance at Waterman's "heat mill" would cause the spectator to believe he was seeing just such a thing.

An airplane propeller surmounts the top of the pagoda-looking device. When the propeller is set in motion it forces air down against the sides of the pagoda, which in turn is thrown out over a great area and over the tops of the trees in the groves.

If necessary an auxiliary plant inside is lighted, warm air drawn out through the cracks in the pagoda, and the air thereby warmed for the trees.

British Government To Investigate Meat Trust

LONDON, March 23.—An American woman will be the central figure in an investigation by the British government of an alleged meat trust in London and the whole British Empire.

She is Lady Evelyn Vestey, of London, known to the folks back in Nebraska as Evelyn Brodstone, who once lived at Superior.

Just a year ago she was said to have been the highest priced business woman in the world.

And as she is credited with having been the mainspring in developing the huge holdings of the Union Packing Company and Vestey interests, she will be called upon to carry the burden of these interests during the investigation.

The "meat king" is Sir William Vestey, whom Miss Brodstone married a year ago.

Theirs was a romance—such as you read in the books.

Miss Brodstone's parents lived out on a farm near Superior, Neb. Evelyn went to school there, and then entered a business college.

She obtained a position in a small packing house in Chicago as a stenographer. Her employer was William Vestey.

The business grew, and Miss Brodstone advanced her position in the firm. Soon she was sitting in at all the conferences of departmental heads.

Headquarters were removed to London and the management told Miss Brodstone she was to go along.

Expansion of business was rapid, and it fell to the lot of Miss Brodstone to engineer the establishing of new firms in different parts of the world.

For eight years she went from country to country, engineering during that time deals which gave her company control of more than 3000 retail meat markets in England—including practically every meat market in London.

Packing houses and cold storage plants were established under her direction in Brazil, China, Argentina, New Zealand, Japan, India and Vancouver.

When the World War broke out she was 500 miles in the interior of Australia, arranging for natives to raise cattle on 3,000,000 acres she had bought for her company.

She was in Moscow when the Russian revolution came.

Some years ago, when interests of her company in China were at stake, Miss Brodstone hurried from London to New York on a fast boat, took a special train across the continent to San Francisco and a special steamer was waiting to carry her to Peking.

William Vestey, head of the company, was knighted by the British government.

Last summer Miss Brodstone told Sir William Vestey she was going to leave England and return to Nebraska to live.

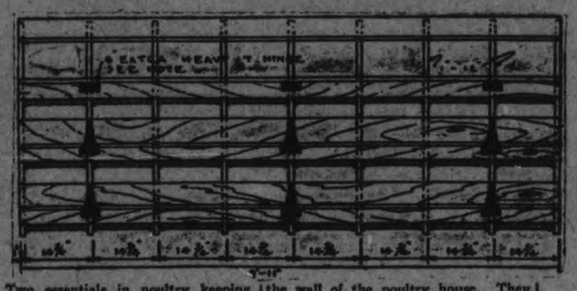
But she was indispensable to the company and to Sir William. So he married her to keep her.

The royal commission which is investigating the Union Meat Company and the Vestey interests say prices have got too high.

So it will remain for an American woman to protect the interests of the company she has been so instrumental in building against the charges.

Two Poultry House Essentials

REST RACK FOR 120 HENS



Two essentials in poultry keeping, especially when new living quarters are built for a flock, are a dry mash feeder and a nest rack.

These have been designed in simple and practical form, so that anyone can build them with the least effort and at low cost.

The dry mash feeder shown here is believed efficient and wasteproof. The feed is easily accessible, and with ample light—which should be provided by sufficient windows both in front and back of the poultry house—the birds naturally will eat more mash.

This means more eggs, for they are produced by the mash consumed rather than the grain. The eggs are produced at lower cost per dozen, not only because of a greater resultant number but because the mash is consumed at a minimum of waste.

Feeder Requirements.

The feeder shown here will accommodate 75 birds and will require additional mash about once each week.

The box is often built in a V-shape instead of rectangular, as shown. But the rectangular box is easier to build.

Material for the dry mash feeder consists of the following:

4 pieces 2"x2", 1½ ft. long.
2 pieces 1"x4", 2 ft. long.
2 pieces 1"x4", 4 ft. long.
4 pieces 1"x6", 4 ft. long.
1 piece 1"x12", 4 ft. long.
2 pieces 1"x12", 8½ inches long.
2 pieces 1"x2", 4 ft. long.
2 pieces 1"x1", 1½ ft. long.
3 pieces 1"x3½"x3¾".
4 lath, 3'-7¾" long.
2 2½" screws, No. 10.
1 lb. 6d box nails.

Sanitary Rack.

The nest rack is made so that it can be cleaned easily. This is made possible by the construction of removable nest bottoms.

The diagram shown here is for 24 nests. As each nest allows for five hens, this rack will take care of 120 birds. The photograph is one of a smaller nest rack, but it gives a general idea of the construction.

The nest bottoms rest on nails driven part way into the 1" by 12" partitions and can easily be removed for cleaning.

These nest racks are fastened against the wall of the poultry house. They should not be placed underneath the dropping board where they are likely to harbor disease and lice.

Movable Shelf.

The hinged door-like shelves or platforms serve two purposes: (1) The birds can walk along them to enter the nests; (2) in case the birds tend to roost in the nests at night the platforms can be closed up.

Put the hinges on backward as they will act as brackets.

A sloping top prevents the hens from roosting on top of the nest rack.

Material Needed.

Material needed for the rack of 24 nests include:

3 pieces 1"x12" 12' long. Each piece cuts into 3 pieces 4'-2" long.
6 pieces 1"x4"x10' long.
3 pieces 1"x6"x10' long.
4 pieces 1"x12"x10' long, one for the top, and the remaining three to be cut up into 24 nest bottoms, each 14¾" long.
1 piece 1"x3"x10' long.
9 six-inch extra heavy T hinges.
No. 10 screws, ¾".
2 lbs. 6d box nails.

Over Sixty Different Ways to Serve Cheese

That Canada will soon take its place with the nations that are the largest consumers of cheese seems assured considering the steady increase in its consumption in the past few years since the Kraft-MacLaren Cheese Company, of Montreal, introduced the five pound box. The Kraft Company were the orginators of the popular tinfoil-wrapped cheese without rind or waste, in the five pound wooden box, and while the original product has had many imitators, none have been able to produce a cheese of the same uniform quality and flavor because the Kraft process is protected by patents. The Company does not make cheese, therefore, it is not competing with the chese factories. But it purchases Canadian cheese in enormous quantities, thus keeping the cheese factories busy and adding to their prosperity and that of the farmers. Kraft Cheese is simply a scientific blending of these manufactured cheeses by means of the patented Kraft process which absolutely controls the flavor.

The company has just issued a beautiful recipe book showing over 60 different ways in which cheese may be served. Many of the dishes are illustrated in natural colors. A copy may be obtained, free, on writing to the company in Montreal, mentioning this paper.

Growing Appreciation of Ontario Products

In addition to providing such a large proportion of her own requirements, Ontario supplies a large percentage of the necessities and luxuries of life to the rest of Canada, in addition to a considerable quota of exported Canadian products.

Her position in the manufacture of food products is increasingly important.

One of the largest food industries in the province is that of the Borden Company, Limited, who operate three separate condensaries in Ontario at Ingersoll, Tilsonburg and Norwich. The original plant in Ingersoll was constructed by the Old St. Charles Condensing Company in 1899, being purchased by the Borden Company, Limited, in 1902, and considerably enlarged by them. It is notable that the Ingersoll plant inaugurated the practice of dairy inspection, herd inspection and cooling milk, thus ensuring absolute purity and safety in milk for consumers.

The Tilsonburg plant, often referred to as "the show plant of Canada," was opened in 1908, while the Norwich plant in the heart of an exceptionally rich dairy district, was inaugurated in March, 1914. The increasing output of these condensaries indicates a growing appreciation of Ontario dairy products not only in this province but throughout the Dominion.

CARE OF STRAWBERRY PLANTATION.

The care of the strawberry plantation during the fall months will determine very largely the size of the crop next year. Clean tillage should be maintained. It is especially important to keep down the perennial weeds, such as plantain and dock.

Any family can do without lots of things if their neighbors haven't got them either.

PRESENTATION TO F. CONVERY

Fellow Employees Give Him Cabinet of Silver When He Leaves.

GOES TO SEATTLE.

On the occasion of his leaving the Canadian General Electric Company, Frank Convery was presented with a cabinet of silver by his fellow employees. The address was read by Miss Dorothy Collins and the presetnation was made by Miss Mamie Archambault.

Address.

Dear Frank—You caught us all by surprise when you announced your intention of locating in the far west, where men are men and hot dogs cost a dime. But seriously, we sincerely regret this severing of the close ties that have bound you to us in work and play for fifteen years, and it is only at partings like this that we are brought to realize that a long and tried friendship is of more true value than the material things of life. We have always found you honest in your intentions, upright in your actions and never willingly gave offence to any. In your new sphere of activities we wish you the full measure of the success you deserve and health and prosperity to Mrs. Convery and your family.

As a token of our esteem we ask you to accept this cabinet of silver and may the daily use of it ever remind you of the many friends and pleasureable events associated with your sojourn among us.

WOULD OFFER $100,000 FOR KILLING ROBBERS

Illinois Legislator Proposes State Funds For Campaign.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 23.—State Senator Harold C. Kissinger of Aurora, Ill., will introduce this week a bill to appropriate $100,000 in rewards for a finish fight against bank robbery in Illinois. His proposal is that this amount shall be set up as a fund, making $50,000 available this year and the same amount next year to be paid out in sums of $1,000 each as rewards for the capture or killing of hold-up men who attack banks in this State.

On this basis the maximum catch would be 100 robbers in two years and Senator Kissinger believes a bag of that sort would clean up the State not only of all the bad men now active but any newcomers who might determine to try their luck in the meantime. Awards would be made by a board of State officers.

OPEN DOOR FAILS.

PARIS, March 21.—French newspapers estimate that 100 prisoners escape from American jails and penitentiaries each week. The French police receive 20 to 50 bulletins a week, asking them to watch for escaped American convicts, and they believe they receive notice of only half of the escapes.

ENGINEERS MEET NEXT WEDNESDAY

Manufacture, Assembly and Testing of Wiring Devices Is Subject.

The second regular meeting of this month will be held on Wednesday night next instead of the usual Thursday for the reason that the speaker cannot come on the latter date. All members and friends please bear this change of day in mind.

The subject of the paper is the manufacture, assembling and testing of the many and varied wiring devices made at the Ward Street Works Division of the Canadian General Electric Co., Toronto. The speaker will be Mr. C. S. Mallet, manager of this factory.

Mr. Mallet has held executive positions all his life with various manufacturing concerns in Canada and the United States and in England, and thus has a wide and varied experience in manufacturing methods.

Mr. Mallet is in close touch with every detail of the many devices manufactured at the Ward street Works, and on this account delivers a paper in a very attractive way.

Production at this factory is based not upon hundreds or thousands but in day's output. This is difficult to believe, but when you consider that there are eighteen separate parts in the ordinary lamp socket, as an example, and the enormous quantities of these used, you readily see that units disappear. Mass production has developed to be a fine art.

The rigorous tests called for by the underwriters on this class of equipment is most interesting. Radio supplies is a recent additional line to be produced by this factory, and Mr. Mallet tells of very intricate work turned out.

All members and friends who possibly can be present, are guaranteed a most interesting paper.

The nominating committee for 1925-6 executive will be appointed at this meeting.

AVERAGE LIFE LONGER.

Eighteen Years Added in 75 Years, Dr. Mayo Says.

MIAMI, Fla., March 23. — The average life of man, which was 40 years in 1850, has been lengthened to 58 by the development of surgery and preventive medicine, and soon will fulfill the Biblical promise of "three score and ten," Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., on Saturday said.

"The lengthening of the human span of life has had a decided effect on the growing prevalence of cancer," Dr. Mayo said. "This being a disease which generally chooses its victims among persons past middle age. However, research work now being carried on offers the hope of future success in combating this disease."

Goiter is another disease which is on the increase, according to Dr. Mayo.

MUSSOLINI SHOWS HIMSELF TO CROWD

Sixth Birthday of Fascism Celebrated Riotously By Blackshirts.

ROME, March 23 (Canadian Press).—The sixth birthday of Fascism was celebrated yesterday by a monster mass meeting and a parade of more than twenty thousand blackshirts through Coro Umberto. But the great moment of the day came when Premier Mussolini, making his first public appearance since the beginning of his illness, emerged on the balcony of Chgi Palace and addressed the wildly enthusiastic crowd, estimated at 30,000.

As bands played and thousands of uniformed Fascists with banners and pennants flying sang and cheered, and a squadron of five airplanes swooped overhead, Mussolini, wearing a black shirt and showing none of the effects of his illness, appeared on the balcony.

FINDS LOST SISTER BY A 50-YEAR HUNT

Reading the Papers For Stories of Aged Women is the Way Man of 98 Succeeded.

NYACK, N. Y., March 23. —Fifty years, ago, Thomas Allen a sergeant with her Majesty's forces in India, grew tired of military service in the tropics. He wrote his mother in Scotland, asking her to send him enough money to buy his way out of two remaining years of service.

The money was sent at once. Sergeant Allen, who is now 98 years old and who until today had not seen any member of his family in fifty years, decided to spend a short time in Indian as a civilian. A year later, when he returned to Scotland, his mother, his three sisters and his brother James had all left for America.

Allen took the first ship to the United States. He told a reporter on Saturday, "I spent the next fifteen years of my life looking for my people. I managed to visit most of the cities of the United States and Canada. As the years went by, I knew that my mother must be dead, and that the names of my sisters had probably been changed by marrigae. In the hope of finding them I read the newspapers with careful attention to accounts of old women. The other day when a policeman in Montreal told me that he knew a woman 102 years old who lived near Nyack and whose maiden name had been Elizabeth Allen, I was not sure that it was my sister, Elizabeth, but after fifty years I had got the habit of hunting down every clue."

Mrs. Elizabeth Allen McMurray, 102 years old, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. William Schuh, at a country pace at Sparkhill, near Nyack, proved to be the sister whom Thomas Alen had not seen in over half a century. The other sisters are not alive, but the brother James is believed to be living in Philadelphia. Mr. Allen plans to look for his brother there.

MALTOSE EXPLOSION KILLED 4, INJURED 5

Head of New Orlean's Firm Dies With Workers.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—Four men were killed and five injured in an exposion here Saturday at the Maltose Laboratories, Inc., when a demonstration was being given of the manufacture of malt and barley products in preparation for opening next week.

The dead are: Alben Koehler 23, president and chemist of the concern, who was conducing the demonstration; Fred L. Rosenbaum, 32, sales manager; Sylvan Paysee, 35, a salesman, and Joseph D. Scheuman, 25, a worker.

Koehler had just completed a course in chemistry in Cincinnati in preparing for work in the new concern.

Three of the injured are expected to die, it is said at the hospital. They are Charles Hoerske, 24; James Maginnis, 45, and Joseph Smiley, 50, the nast named, a Negro. All were workers in the plant.

The explosion was so violent that Koghler's body was cut in two, and the heads of Rosenbaum and Paysee blown off. Hoerske was hurled to the rafters. A huge boiler was forced through the side of the building.

W. J. BRYAN MILLIONAIRE.

Florida Deals Proved Fortunate; Celebrates 65th Birthday.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 23. — William Jennings Bryan, three times candidate for President of the United States Thursday reached the age of 65 years, and in connection with the celebration of the commoner's birthday anniversary it was announced by Judge C. H. Slama of Wahoo, who has just returned from Mr. Bryan's home at Miami, Fla., that the former Nebraskan is now rated a millionaire.

Judge Slama said that shortly after Mr. Bryan moved from Lincoln he bought Miami real estate valued at $35,000, which has now increased in value to $250,000. Additional purchases, he said, had increased the Bryan estate to $1,000,000.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

A home owner can increase the cash value of his home greatly by devoting a few spare hours to his property.

When a man owns his own home he naturally is interested in making it a better place to live. He wants it a little more homelike, so he spends part of his vacation and many odd moments each day at such "homey" tasks as repairing the doorstep, painting the house, trimming the trees or planting a bit of shrubbery.

By doing these things, he not only builds a better home for his family, but the resale value of the property is materially increased, which makes the property a better investment. An improvement that costs but $300 often adds $1,000 to the value of a home.

Every man has a certain amount of spare time each day, but few men will devote it to the improvement of the landlord's property.

RECITAL GIVEN BY ELOCUTION PUPILS

Students Trained by Mrs. McClelland Give Interesting Programme.

A very interesting recital of the elocution pupils of Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland was given at the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening, assisted by Miss Laura Mackey, vocalist; Miss Mary Harstone, pianiste, and pupils in dancing of Miss C. Littlefield. The green room and library were both filled by an appreciative audience, who seemed to enjoy immensely the clever work of Mrs. McClelland's well-trained class. The programme was as follows: Reading, "When Huldy Sparks her Beau," by little six-year-old Marion Dryland, a small tot whose work aroused much enthusiasm; reading, "The Cattle Thief," by Pauline Johnson, given by Miss Elsie Worrall; vocal selection by Miss Laura Mackey, who sang in splendid soprano voice; reading, "Bargain Day," by Effie Dick; reading, "A Little Gift from India," by Jean King; pianoforte solo by Miss Mary Harstone; reading, Dr. Drummond's "Leetle Bateese," by Ethel Falls; reading, "Should Women Propose," by Irene Wright; two folk dances by junior gymnasium pupils of the "Y"; reading, "My Sore Thumb," by Marion Dryland; reading Whitcomb Riley's "Bear Story," given in excellent style and expression by Ethel Falls; vocal solo by Miss Mackey; reading, "Ain't It, Charlie?" by Miss Elsie Worrall; reading, "Tit for Tat," by Jean King; instrumental selection by Miss Harstone; reading, "Watchin' the Sparkin'," by Irene Wright; reading, "A Scotch Sermon," by Effie Dick

At the conclusion of the programme, the pupils presented Mrs. McClelland with a bouquet of flowers, and refreshments were then served to those taking part and their friends, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner presiding at the table.

The collection received for this recital was donated to the foreign work campaign of the Y.W.C.A.

UNIQUE FUR TRIMMING.

The lines of this coat are familiar, but the trimming is not. These mottled bands that trim the hem, sleeves and collar are ducks' breasts used as fur banding would be. The material of the coat is very heavy satin, lined with a delicate gray.

A Milkman Who Takes Water Out!

One of the favorite themes of the jokesmith is the milkman who waters his milk.

Though the joke has little basis in fact, yet you have heard it many times.

But have you ever thought of the milkman who does exactly the opposite—the milkman who takes water out?

That's what the Carnation milkman does—and here's why he does it:

Millions of people, all over the world, use Carnation Milk regularly; it comes to them from some of the finest dairying sections of Canada.

It seems foolish to pay transportation on all the natural water in this milk, so most of the water is removed.

Such removal serves to concentrate and enhance the food values in the milk, making it richer and smoother.

It also explains the satisfaction with which so many people use Carnation Milk undiluted in place of costly cream, in coffee or on cereals and fruits.

Remember, Carnation is simply pure milk, evaporated, sterilized; nothing is added, no sugar or preservative of any kind.

You can restore it to its original strength and consistency merely by putting back the water that has been taken away.

Order with the groceries—several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

Sugar Beets To Be Grown in Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Man., March 23.—The directors of the Manitoba Sugar Beet Company have decided to purchase sufficient seed to start 100 plots of sugar beets this summer within a radius of 75 miles of Winnipeg. The seed will be distributed among selected gardiners and farmers so as to ensure a trial under the very best of conditions.

The beets when returned will be tested at the Manitoba Agricultural College and at the company's laboratories in the United States, to determine the quality and suitability of the Manitoba beet for sugar manufacture.

The estimated acreage required for the proposed factory is 12,000 acres and the machinery for production is estimated at a cost of $1,300,000. The seed for the sugar beet all comes from one place in Germany where the secret is held. United States factory owners have started to grow their own seeds for cultivation of plots, but in no instance have they met with satisfactory results. A supervisor will be appointed to watch the growth and the cultivation of each plot, to ensure that the greatest degree of success may attend the experiment.

How to Care for Your Skis

When not in use, Skis should be protected against warping. The easiest method is to strap the Skis firmly together with the running surface in. Straps should be placed, one at the heel and the other just at the bend. A one inch block should be placed between the Skis at the centre to preserve the spring, and a stick wedged tightly between the points to prevent their lowering. Cutting a small notch under the points will hold the stick in place.

The basement is the proper place to store skis in the summer. Extreme changes in temperature will effect all kinds of wood and cause skis to draw out of shape unless protected as described above.

As a method of preserving the wood it is a common practice among expert skiers and a good one, to apply hot linseed oil to the running surfaces and rub it well in with a cloth. Two or three applications will acquire the desired result. There should be two or three days between applications. With this care Skis can be kept in shape and in good condition for many years.

PROFITABLE ERROR.

ADELAIDE, Australia, March 21. — A business house here recently made an unexpected profit of nearly $20,000 through the error of a clerk. He sent a telegram to a prospective purchaser quoting a price higher than the correct figure on a large shipment of goods. The purchaser promptly accepted it, and the clerk hasn't lost his job.

The Terms astounded Henry McDonald—

When the terms of the North American Life 20 Year Endowment Policy were explained to Henry McDonald, he was at first astounded—then enthusiastic.

"Why you are really selling me $5,000 in cash!" he exclaimed. "The annual payment on this policy is only about half the interest any bank would charge me on a $5,000 loan.

"If I should die at any time during the life of the policy, you guarantee to hand my widow a cheque for $5,000.

"No form of saving is more convenient and none so sure or profitable."

Henry McDonald was right. As a safe, profitable investment, you cannot equal an Endowment Policy. Yet you create an estate for your loved ones the instant you pay your first premium.

Canadiens Lose To Victorias 5-2--Varsity In Good Shape For Allan Cup Game To-Night

VICTORIA DEFEATED CANADIENS 5-2 IN FIRST STANLEY CUP GAME

Canadiens Handicapped at Start by Western Rules—Cougars' Defence Good.

CAPACITY CROWD

Joliat and Anderson Given Major Penalty for Starting Scrap.

VICTORIA, B.C., March 23 (Canadian Press).—Victoria won the opening game of the World's Series here Saturday night by defeating the Canadiens 5 to 2. The Frenchmen, who seemed a little tired after their long journey, could not get going properly until well on into the third period. Previous to that their forwards were halted on most of their rushes by the Cougars' defence which spared nothing in checking. Canadiens also seemed to solve the strange playing rules and made good use of the forward pass when closing in on goal.

The first period did not produce any play of championship calibre, although Victoria featured with several heavy thrusts into Canadiens' defence. The Frenchmen were all at sea on the off side pass inside their blue line and Cleghorn and Coutu were beaten frequently. Twice Victoria broke through for goals on a similar play, the centre man feeding the puck to the left wing. Walker got the first tally for Victoria on a hard shot, while Halderson had Vezina tongue-tied with a whistling shot for the second goal which came within ten minutes of the opener.

Joliat in Fight.

Canadiens found the Victoria defence very sound and did most of their shooting from a distance. Morenz and Boucher had the only telling shots, but Holmes got to them with his quick feet. Vezina went to sleep on a slow backhander that Walker lifted in three minutes after the start of the second period. Canadiens had to get going but the Victoria defence was tougher than a back alley. After Joliat was carried into the boards by Anderson, the pair squared off and their blows were the signal for the rest of the players to rush in and, after Referee Ion had pulled the players apart, he handed out penalties to the players who started the fight.

Canadiens broke into the scoring column in the third period, scoring two goals. Victoria, however, evened the tally in the session on Fraser's fast shot.

Then came the Frenchmen's opening counter, Coutu beating Holmes from a few feet out. The advantage was short lived, as Fraser tore to the other end from the face-off and again had Vezina at his mercy. Morenz completed the scoring by netting the puck after a beautiful effort.

Morenz showed up the best of the visitors.

The Victoria defence was a mystery to Canadiens most of the night.

In Vancouver Tonight.

The second game of the series will be played in Vancouver tonight. Canadiens hope to make a far better showing, as they will be playing under the Eastern code, at which they will feel more at home.

The Arena was crowded and standing room tickets had to be sold, but even hundreds were shut out at the door. The total attendance is estimated at 4,500.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

Water Hagen, world's famous golfer, was the first native-born American to win the British open title. Hagen copped the honors in 1922 at Sandwich with a score of 30. He repeated in 1924.

In 1921 Jock Hutchison won the event ,playing under the colors of the United States, but he wasn't born in America. A U.S. representative has grabbed the championship just three times and all within the last four seasons.

The British open is one of the oldest golf tournaments in existence It was inaugurated back in 1860. And has been staged practically every year since with the exception of the period during the World War.

700,000 Cricket Fans At Five Games in Australia

Attendance at the five test matches played by the English cricket team in Australia reached the amazing aggregate of 700,000 compared with 400,00 on the previous tour. The receipts of the tour which ended recently were £65,000, compared with £39,000 on the former trip. Followers of cricket outside of Australia often have wondered how that country, with its small population, can provide such large crowds. This is explained in a letter written by a woman to an English friend while the first test contest was in progress in Sydney, as follows: "The test match is in progress. My husband goes, but I do not, for I cannot manage to stand all day. Unless one is on the ground at 9.30 all chance of a seat is gone. Practically all the men in Sydney can go to watch the match and business has to wait. Almost every office and business makes arrangement for its staff to see the cricket."

VARSITY SQUAD 'REARING TO GO'

Allan Cup Hunters Reached Winnipeg Sunday Morning in Good Shape.

NOT BOASTING

WINNIPEG, March 23.—The Toronto Varsity hockey squad arrived in Winnipeg Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and before the noon hour the entire team was taking the kinks out of their train weary legs at the ampitheatre. The men did not go in for strenuous work, but to the few rail birds who were on hand to get a line on the play of the Easterners, the team made a good impression.

The team as a whole looks heavier than the Port Arthur men. Manager Smythe says that one of the reasons for the success of Varsity this year is that when the subs are on the ice the team does not suffer. His men, he claims, are in the pink of condition and "are rearing to go." Not one of the players has a semblance of injury and expect to make a good showing against their western rivals.

The squad as a whole does no boasting and the players are modest in their opinion of their merits.

The Port Arthur team will line up the same men that carried the colors to the western championship. A bumper crowd is expected to turn out to the opening game to-night and seats will be at a premium.

Jack Hughes, of Winnipeg, and Gene Fraser, captain of the Niagara Falls team, runners up for the Eastern honors, will handle the play.

The teams will have the following rosters:

Port Arthur— Chabot, Brydge, Wilson, Gray, L'Hereux, Pudas, Cox, A. Connors and Ward.

Varsity—Sullivan, Taylor, Cloutier, Paxton, Richards, Porter, Kirkpatrick, Hudson, Stollery and Devins.

BABE DYE LEADING PRO HOCKEY SNIPER

St. Pat's Star Tops N.H.L. With 44 Points.

MONTREAL, March 23.—'Babe' Dye, sharpshooter of the Toronto St. Patrick's, headed the scorers in the National Hockey League for the past season with a total of 44 points, two better than Cy Dennenay of the Ottawa Senators, who was second with 42, while Aurel Joliat, of Canadiens, was third with 40 points—this despite an absence from half a dozen games toward the end of the season. Dye not only led the players in points, but had the greatest number of goals to his credit, 38, but was away down in assists, with only six, while Dennenay had 15 and Joliat 11.

Canadiens, while the League title-holders, were the "bad" team of the league, with 143 minor penalties, 11 majors and one match penalty, but Hamilton, who defaulted in the league play-off final, were close seconds with 145 minor penalties and eight majors. St. Patrick's were the best behaved, with 105 minors. Billy Boucher, temperamental right wing player of the world champion Canadiens, was the individual 'bad man,' with 41 minors and two majors to his discredit. Joliat(, on the opposite wing to Boucher, was next in line with 35 minors and three majors while Hooley Smith, fiery Ottawa player and former Canadian Olympic star, was a close third with 38 minors and one major.

WON EASTERN HOCKEY.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 23.—(Canadian Press.)—The Pittsburgh Hornets last night won the eastern hockey trophy by defeating the Boston A.A., 3-1, in the final game of the championship series at Duquesne Garden here. Through their victory, the Hornets won the right to meet the unchosen western champions for the championship of the United States.

CELTICS UPSET FOOTBALL DOPE FOR SCOTS CUP

Completely Defeated Champion Rangers by 5-0 at Hampden Park.

MORE THAN 100,000

Rangers' Defense Blamed for Collapse of Team in Scottish Cup Semi-Final.

GLASGOW, March 23 (Canadian Press Cable).—Out of the welter of Saturday's two semi-final games in the Scottish Football Association Cup competition, only one team was assured of entry into the final round and that in one of the most sensational games ever witnessed at Hampden Park here. The Celtic completely vanquished the champion Rangers by taking them into camp to no less a tune than five goals to nothing. Over one hundred thousand fans who crowded the Queen's Park ground were left gasping at the end of the game, a tournment that saw the Celtic put it all over the "Invincibles," and their international backs, Manderson and McCandless, helpless before the sparkle and dash of McCrory, Conelly and Gallagher.

The weather was magnificent and Hampden Park presented a wonderful spectacle with its tier upon tier of enthusiasts.

On form, Rangers had the victory filed and docketed, and the only question was how many goals they would register against the Celts. In the first half they played with their accustomed confidence and genius, their combined movements being machine-like in precision, and it was totally against the run of play when McCrory sent in a shot that Robb failed to handle. Even with the Celtic one goal up at the turn of the game, there was no apprehension felt among the Rangers' fans, for the club were perfectly capable of reversing the tally in the second half.

Rangers Collapsed.

Rangers continued to play well and threatened Shevlin with many stingers, but after sixteen minutes the Celtic's outside left, McLean, defeated Robb and put his team two up.

From that moment, the Rangers collapsed. Their team went completely to pieces. Manderson and McCandless were helpless, while Ireland and Meiklejohn fumbled and broke down, making innumerable mistakes. Rangers could do nothing right, and Celtic then sailed in to hammer the champions well and truly. McCrory registered his second of the game, and was closely followed by Thompson. McLean capped the climax by making it five in a row, and also his double event.

Celtic's victory was well-merited. They played Rangers off their feet, and their own defence was impregnable. Mostay was the solidest defence man on the field, while Celtic's right wing, Conelly and Gallagher, played up magnificent to McCrory. The Rangers' defence, cowering as it did three internationals were alone to blame for the "debacle."

Dundee Held to Draw.

In the Capital city, the attraction at Murrayfield Park, where the Rugby international championship between Scotland and England was being staged militate dagainst the attendance in the game between Hamilton Acaedmicals and Dundee on the ground of the Heart of Midlothian, Tynecastle Park. Only 30,000 fans turned out. The game resulted in a draw, fortunate for Hamilton. They have to thank Sommerville, their goal tender, for enabling them to go into a re-play. His exhibition of goal-keeping was magnificent.

It was an error on the part of McNabb, Dundee's left half, that allowed Academicals to count the first goal; this player shooting it by accident through his own net. Dundee equalized before the interval when Duncan, their inside right, beat Somerville with the only shot in the game that the Hamilton man was unable to turn aside.

The second half was featureless, Dundee did all the pressing, but could not score.

The previous record, held by Johnny Weissmuller, was four minutes and 40 seconds.

SCOTS' VICTORY FIRST SINCE '13 FROM ENGLAND

Won International Rugby Championship and Calcutta Cup in Edinburgh.

CROWD OF 60,000

Winners Had Edge on Line, and Also "Breaks"—Score 14-11.

EDINBURGH, March 22. Canadian Press Cable. — The Scottish Rugby Union christened their new ground at Murrayfield here Saturday in the most auspicious of manners, by breaking the spell which has held their international fifteens in Thrall since 1913, and defeating the "auld enemy," England, by a score of 14 points to 11. The victory carried with it also the international championship and the coveted Calcutta cup. Sixty thousand fans, one of the largest crowds that ever turned out at an International Rugby game in the Scottish capital, saw the downfall of England, and this despite the great counter-attraction at Tynecastle Park, over the way, where Hamilton Academicals were engaging with Dundee in the semi-final round of the Scottish Football Association Cup.

The weather was ideal for Rugby. There had been light snowfalls in the morning and the air was brisk and bracing.

Battle on the Line.

It early became evident that the game would be rattled out between the opposing scrums, and with packs went into it with characteristic dash. A few penalties in the first few minutes slowed matters up while the teams were testing each other out. Then Scotland sent their Oxford University quartette of three-quarters away in a fine combined run that ended with Macpherson being grassed. The home fifteen again attacked but the offensive was quashed by Locke, the English centre three-quarter, who carried play right up to the Scottish line. Within their own 25, the Scots were penalized and Luddington, taking one kick registered the first three points for the Southerners with a splendid goal.

The initial success gave the visitors great encouragement and the English forwards settled down to some strenuous play. They packed well and broke quickly, smothering Waddell and Nelson behind the Scottish scrum before the ball could be shot out. In their spoiling tactics, however they were not markedly superior to the home pack who dribbled strongly and tackled with deadly accuracy. The game see-sawed in great style up and down the field until the Scottish rear line gradually asserted their combination and their speed.

Macpherson was put in possession and developing a great burst of running he eluded the Englishmen, Making a feint at passing he scrambled clear and slung the leather over to Nelson, the academical half romped home and scored between the posts.

From an easy position, Drysdale brought out the major points.

England Scores.

Stung with a two-point reverse the Englishmen settled down to the game and some dazzling play ensued. It was crowned when Hamilton Wickes picked up a flying ball. The Harlequins' three-quarter lopped it over to Voyce, and the burly Gloucesterman tore through the home defence with Hamilton Wickes at his side. Voyce returned the pass and Wickes dashed over the line for a magnificent try. The kick was given to Luddington of the Devonport services, and once more he revealed his ability by scoring over a beautiful goal.

Half time: England, 1 goal, 1 penalty goal; 8 points.

Scotland, 1 goal, 5 points.

Second Half.

The second game opened with the situation looking black for the Scotsmen and things went from bad to worse when the veteran Wakefield of the Harlequins ran over for England's second try. The goal kick was abandoned. The ball placed for the kick, the Scottish forwards rushed out to intercept and succeeded and the game was resumed with a wild and confused scramble upfield. The invasion ended with Wallace, right wing three quarter, getting over at the corner flag; from a difficult place, Gilles converted.

The game now assumed a strenuous phase with both packs battling it out in the traditional Scots-and-English style. The home forwards blanketed the visiting eight and in the last few minutes of the game the Engilsh were in sore straits.

They were hard pressed when five minutes from the finish, Waddell,the Glasgow Academicals half drop-ped a beauty over the bar. With three points in hand the Scotsmen continued to put up a gruelling fight.

The game ended: Scotland, 2 goals, 1 dropped goal, 14 points.

England, 1 goal, 1 penalty goal, 1 try, 11 points.

Scots for Breaks.

Saturday's game was perhaps the fiercest in which any of the teams had engaged this season and it was unremitting right up to the last minute. England's defence was solid and their speed kept the brilliant three-quarter line of the Scotsmen from functioning properly. As in the other international games this year the credit for the victory goes to the Scottish pack, who in the second half stayed the pace much better than the Englishmen. After Waddell's dropped goal, the English put up a terrific fight and swarmed all over the Scotsmen but they could do everything but score. In the end Scotland was conceded to have had some considerable luck in winning.

AMATEUR HOCKEY MOGULS MEETING

Will Consider Varsity's Option in Allan Cup Series.

WINNIPEG, March 23.—(Canadian Press).—S. P. Quilty, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Secretary Dunn and other officials and delegates are here to attend the annual meeting of that body today. Billy Hewitt, Toronto, a member of the executive, Sheriff Paxton, Whitby, Ont., William Easson, Stratford, Ont., P. J. Mulqueen, Toronto, and W. W. Fry, Dunnville, Ont., are among the easterners here for the sessions.

Local sport writers state that the manner in which the Toronto Varsity team became Eastern finalists in the Allan Cup series after being beaten out in the O.H.A. will be considered at the meeting. It is reported that an effort will be made to prevent one team playing in two series unless the organization has two distinct aggregations. The Varsity team became finalists by reason of winning the inter-collegiate championships. Another question to be brought forward will be the elimination of the offside rule in centre ice. This promises to cause a lot of discussion.

HUDDERSFIELD STILL LEADING FIRST DIVISION

Tied With Bolton Wanderers, While West Bromwich Lost to West Ham.

PLAYED IN SNOW

Tottenham Hotspurs Held Blackburn Rovers to One-Goal Draw.

LONDON, March 23 (Canadian Press Cable).—West Bromwich lost their opportunity to regain leadership of the First Division of the English League Saturday when they permitted West Ham to run up a two to one victory over them. Having tied with Huddersfield Town once more in a mid-week game they were greatly fancied to either forge ahead or at least maintain the tie. They did neither, however, for the Town acquired one point in drawing with Bolton Wanderers, and thus again opened out the small margin. The Albion now find themselves licked with Newcastle United, a situation that is not expected to continue indefinitely inasmuch as the Northumbrians are two games in excess of West Bromwich.

An icy temperature and snowstorms that swept the island were responsible for cutting down the average of attendances at all league games, and the aggregate stopped short of the half million. The big feature of the first division was the tournament between the leaders and Bolton Wanderers, a contest in which the points were divided. The game was strenuous and a high calibre of football was displayed. Both teams lost considerable ground, however through over-eagerness.

Tottenham Hotspurs are somewhat flattered by their one-goal draw with Blackburn Rovers, for the cup aspirants had at least two-thirds of the game. This was especially so in the second half when the Rovers' backs put up a magnificent struggle. Elkin for the Spurs had a day on, and exhibited magnificent form. He was easily the best forward on the field.

Liverpool Beat Burnley.

Two goals by Brace and one by Shone enabled Liverpool to take the measure of Burnley on the former's ground in a fast and furious game. Baron collided with Armitage and both had to have stitches in their head. Baron was able to resume, but Armitage did not re-appear for the rest of the game.

West Ham's victory over West Bromwich was very creditable because at the beginning of the game the Hammers lost the services of Carter, their left half back, who fell on a piece of glass and had to retire with a cut knee.

The game at Villa Park, between Aston Villa and Notts County ended excitingly when Widdowson hit under the Villa's crossbar just as the whistle sounded. The tilt ended in a scoreless draw.

Sunderland demonstrated a complete superiority over Manchester City in every department of the game, and their three to one victory represents faithfully the form of the two teams. Sunderland's goals were all obtained by Marshall, who performed the hat trick.

Second Division.

In the Second Division, Derby County again assumed command of the league, by virtue of their win over Chelsea and also due to the fact that Leicester City could no more than draw with Portsmouth. The County's game was dramatic. Storer broke down early in the game, and then he returned. Shortly after his resumption, he scored a brilliant goal for the County and immediately collapsed, having to be carried off.

Blackpool, despite the honors they won in the cup competition, going as far as the fourth round, continue badly in the league, and they succumbed Saturday to Stockport County. They were rather handicapped by the loss of Williams, who broke his arm.

Fan Banished.

A disturbance among the spectators prior to the close of the game between South Shields and Southampton culminated in the referee ordering one fan off the ground. Southampton obtained a lucky lead in the first half, when Dominy netted from a breakaway. Oxbury equalized for Shields after Allenn, the Southampton goalkeeper, had saved a penalty.

PLANT LOWERED GOULDING MARK

U. S. Walker Covered Mile and Half in 10:05 3-5.

GRANVILLE SECOND

NEW YORK, March 23.— Walking the mile and a half in 10:05 3-5 against a large field of handicapped opponents, Willie Plant, United States' star heel and toe performer, clipped off 2-5 of a second from the world's record for that distance at the Post Office Clerks' games in the 69th Regiment Armory on Saturday night.

Paavo Nurmi, Poland's superior runner, and Willie Ritola, Nurmi's most distinguished rival for middle distance honors, furnished the other feature attractions of the evening but failed by many seconds in their attempts to lower the world's records.

Plant's exhibition was the star performance of the meet. Starting from scratch, together with Phillip Granville of Hamilton, Ontario, in a field of 16 starters, all of them walking with a 15 second handicap, Plant took an early lead and breezed home 25 yards ahead of Granville, who was second. The former mark for this distance is 10:16, made by George Goulding, Canadian walker, in Brooklyn, in 1912.

GARRISON LEAGUE WON BY HEAVIES

No. 3 Battery Defeated Signallers 13 to 6 at Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 23.— (Special.)—No. 3 Heavy Battery team won the championship of the Kingston Garrison Indoor Baseball League, defeating the Signallers in the final game by a score of 13 to 6. The winners had a hard battle up till the ninth innings, when the battery team scored seven runs. As a result of winning the championship, the victorious team will be presented with the Spalding Cup, emblematic of the championship, and they will be given a trip to Ottawa to play the Ottawa team, and the team from the capital will play a return game in Kingston.

55 TO 1 SHOT WON.

Fashion Parade at Paris Races Halted by Weather.

PARIS, March 23.—A 55 to 1 shot won the first big fixture of the Metropolitan racing season Sunday, when Holbeach, a nine-year-old gelding, carried off the Grand Prix du Printemps at Auteuil. Holbeach, ridden by an apprentice jockey, Jean Laic, was neglected in the betting.

The gelding won handily while the spectators shivered in a snowstorm. The race was worth sixty thousand francs to the winner. The weather man scored a signal victory over the dress makers, who long had awaited the grand opening of the racing season. They had to be satisfied with another postponement of a display of their newst modes, for the feminine racegoers dug down among the moth balls and took out their furs for the cold.

INDOOR LEAGUE PRIZES GIVEN AT A BANQUET

Well Attended Meeting in Empress to Wind Up Successful Season.

BELMONT WON.

Quakers Won Mercantile Section, But Lost in Playoffs.

The annual banquet and presentation of the Peterborough Softball Association was held on Saturday night in the Empress Hotel, with the President, George Gimblett, Sr., in the chair. After the banquet and community singing, led by Alex Dick, Hugh Niven rendered a solo and was encored, Martin Chenhall, Jr., presided at the piano. The Taylor Cup, the Association shield and twelve individual cups, the gift of G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., to the champions, were then presented.

The Taylor Cup, for the championship of the League, was won by the Belmont Club, winners of the Club section, who beat the Quaker Oats team in the playoff. W. H. Taylor, in presenting the trophy, said that the Belmonts had won it three years in a row. While congratulating them on their success, he hoped that they would win, only until they met a better team. Si Haskill, captain of the team, thanked Mr. Taylor on behalf of the club.

The shield presented by the Association to the winners of the Mercantile section, was won by the Quaker Oats team. Chief Gimblett presented the shield, which was received by Percy Naish, manager of the team, who thanked the association in the name of the team.

In presenting the cups to the Belmont club Mr. Gordon congratulated Mr. Taylor for his work in fostering clean sport by presenting such a magnificent trophy to the league. He said that sport develops the physical and mental strength of those who take part in it, and teaches them to associtae with other fellows. He urged them to continue to develop true sportsmanship as an example to the little fellows who would be the players to succeed them.

Mr. Gordon said that the Belmont Club has always been a very public-spirited body in all its activities, both in the line of sports and in other public works. He said that it was his intention to give another set of cups next year as the individual trophies, to be kept as a permanent possesion, to remind the owners of the associations and hallowed friendships of the old days, bringing back memories of the friends of their youth.

Carl McLean, a past president of the association, made a presentation to the umpires, Messrs. Alex Kay, Shiner Johnston, Jimmie McMartin and Edgar Lebarr. He said that no one worked harder for the success of the games than the umpires. The postponements of games wasted thier time and he promised on behalf of his own club that they would try to do better next year and hoped the others would do the same.

Alex Kay, who responded for the umpires, said that they had had more fun out of the games than either the players or the spectators. He advised the league to play outside during the summer and join the Ontario Association as he felt sure they would go a long way in the play-offs for the Provincial championship.

The president, Chief Gimblett, said that he would call a meeting in a few days to draw up the spring schedule and that he hoped they would get a league of about six teams to compete in an outdoor series, with the winners entered in the Ontario championships. He thanked the players, managers and umpires for thir efforts to make the league a success.

The financial statement was read by R. Deyell in the absence of the secretary-treasurer, Mr. Dearborn. The league had a balance on the season's operations of 95 cents.

HONK-HONK BALL.

CASE OF CARL MAYS ONE OF GAME'S MYSTERIES

Apparently "Through" Three Years Ago, Yankee Ace Now Stars With Cincinnati.

CARL MAYS IN SOME OF HIS CHARACTERISTIC POSES.

BY BILLY EVANS

ORLANDO, March 23.— When delving into the mysteries of the national pastime, Pitcher Carl Mays offers a most interesting case for the baseball Sherlock Holmes.

Three years ago Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees decided that Mays was about through as a pitcher. He starred in the 1921 world series with the Giants, then appeared to pass out of the picture.

For two seasons he did little more than warm the Yankee bench. He seldom started a game and when he did the breaks invariably went against him.

Speed Seemed Gone.

Mays, who for years had been a pitching sensation in the American League as well as a stormy petrel in that organization, seemed to have lost his fast ball.

The possessor of a great fast ball when at the peak of his game, the loss or apparent loss of his one best bet made things look bad.

A glutton for work, sitting on the bench, brooding over his game, didn't tend to increase his efficiency or temperament. When pitching his best, Mays always worked every third day, sometimes oftener.

One year ago the New York American League club asked waivers on Mays. Not an American League club claimed him. The waivers were sent to the National and humor had it that Cincinnati alone put in a bid for his services.

Jekyll-Hyde Stuff.

Then came the Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde stuff. Caimed by only one major league club, Mays had one of the best years of his career for the Reds last season.

Today Mays looks in far better shape than he did five years ago when he was starring for the Yankees. Physically he is drawn fine and the season is still weeks away.

Unpleasant working conditions and failure to be used regularly, is the way Mays explains his inability to win his last two years he was in the American League.

"I never could pitch sitting on the bench," said Mays. "I need plenty of work."

"One of the best pitchers in the National League," says Manager Jack Hendricks.

Did Splendid Work

"This stuff about him being a bad actor is a big laugh to me. I never had a more willing player on my ball club.

"He not only worked out of turn all season, but was aways ready when I needed a pinch-pitcher.

"His fine work last season tended to tide over some of the disappointing features. There is no reason why he shouldn't have another big year.

Mays says he intends to stick around in the big show for at least three more years, maybe five.

OXFORD FAVORED.

Should Win This Year's Boat Race From Cambridge, Say Experts.

OXFORD, England, March 23.— On their present form the Oxford crew in the opinion of rowing experts should be favorites in the annual race with Cambridge next Saturday. Since 1829 when the first race was rowed at Henley, Oxford has been successful in 40 of 76 meetings.

SWISS SOCCER TITLE

"Grasshoppers" Lead in Country's Football Race.

The Grasshoppers, the Old Boys and the Young Fellows, soccer clubs in Switzerland, are staging a close battle for the national championship. The Grasshoppers appear to have a slight advantage over the rivals, for they already have met the strongest teams in the country, while the others have yet to face some of the leading elevens. Experts however, predict that the championship race will be very close right up to the final round.

Snow has hampered the teams in parts of the country to a greater extent than ever before. At times matches had to be postponed for two weeks in succession and the opportunities for the players to practice also were curtailed, but experts state that the brand of soccer being played is better than ever before and that this is due to the fact that there is more interest being shown in the sport in all parts of the country.

The Old Boys were favored in mid-season to win the title, but since then they have met several unexpected set-backs and the Grasshoppers have shown surprising strength. The Young Fellows always manage to keep right up at the top. Time after time the critics have picked them as out of the race but they would not answer the forecast by beating their rival and thus keep in the running.

At the start of the season, the Grasshoppers displayed a ragged attack and the critics got much amusement out of the fact, saying that they played "like so many grasshoppers." The club's answer was to perfect its attack and it was not long until it was scoring impressive victories over the rivals that had been named favorites to win the national title. One by one these have fallen out of the race and now the Grasshoppers are conceded to have the best chanc of winning the crown.

RICE AND MICE.

PARIS, March 23.—Rice used as decorations on new dresses almost wrecked a Paris dressmaking establishment. The rice made a big hit, but when the dresses were delivered it was found mice had eaten off most of the decorations. The large number of mice also caused several of the seamstresses and models to refuse to work in the place for several days.

ART ASSOCIATION HELD A MEETING

Maurice H. Park and Charles Peaker Provided Interesting Programme.

An exceptionally well - attended meeting of the Women's Art Association was held in the studio at the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, when an excellent musical programme was given by Mr. Maurice H. Park and Mr. Chas. Peaker.

Mr. Peaker opened the programme with an informal talk on the life and works of Johann Sebastian Bach, telling many interesting and rare little stories of the intimate life of the great composer. Mr. Peaker's choice of subject was very apt, as Saturday, March 21st, was the two hundred and fortieth anniversary of Bach's birthday.

Mr. Park gave, in splendid voice, several groups of songs, including Handel's "Love in her eyes sits playing" and "Love sounds the alarm," three songs by Von Fielitz, "Secret Greetings," "Anathema" and "Resignation," a trio of Old English numbers, "Mary of Allendale," "Oh, Lovely Celia," and "Phyllis has such charming graces," with an encore in Hahn's "If my songs were only winged."

Mr. Peaker's contributions to the programme were beautifully played pianoforte renditions of Bach's music: "Invention in E major," "Invention in E minor," "Air in E major," "Cappriccio" (lamentation of friends on a departure of a brother to Sweden), the "Prelude and Fugue on B.A.C.H." and an encore in the "Air in E minor."

At the conclusion of the musical programme, tea was served, Mrs. R. W. Cormack and Mrs. A. Moir acting as hostesses, assisted by Mrs. D. Carmichael and the Misses M. Harstone E. Borbridge, M. Masson and G. Glover. The table was prettily centred with a large silver basket filled with daffodils.

Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, president of the Art Association, announced the next meeting in two weeks' time, when an interesting stereopticon lecture on Canadian Art from the National Gallery, Ottawa, will be given.

NUISANCE MITIGATED

Keep "Waiting List" of Telephone Calls When "Line's Busy."

STOCKHOLM, March 21.)—(Associated Press).—The "line's busy" nuisance in telephoning has been mitigated in this city through the installation of an ingenious arrangement called the "waiting line." It will apply the "first come first served" rule to places much in demand such as hospitals, drug stores, doctors' offices, ticket agencies, information bureaus and newspapers. This is done by the creation of a special central and whenever a number is reported "busy" by the operator or the automatic switching machine, the "waiting line" is called and the desired number duly recorded in the sequence of its receipt. Then, as soon as the line is clear, the connection is made.

NATIONALISTS GIVE IN.

Boycott on Parliament Has Been Lifted—Will Sit If Elected.

BELFAST, March 23.— (Canadian Press.)—It is stated unofficially that the convention of Nationalists which met on Saturday in a session lasting six hours decided that if elected the Nationalists should take thire seats in the new parliament. This is contrary to their previous attitude in boycotting the parliament.

A BAD COLD DEVELOPED INTO BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Levi Ogden, Amherst Shore, N.S., writes:—"My baby girl had a very bad cold which turned to bronchitis, and she could not sleep at night for the coughing. I gave her everything I could think of to relieve her, but nothing seemed to do her any good, and she was not getting any better. I was advised, by a friend, to try

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

I did so, and after giving her a few doses I saw good effects so I kept on with it. I gave her two bottles, and her cough soon left her, and now she is as well as can be. I cannot praise 'Dr. Wood's' enough; it is certainly a wonderful medicine."

This preparation has been on the market for the past 35 years; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THOMAS JOHNSON DEAD.

BELLEVILLE, March 23. — Mr. Thomas Johnson, Registrar of Deeds for the County of Hastings, died at three o'clock this morning, after an illness extending over some weeks. He was formerly of Tweed and leaves a wife and family.

MANY IMMIGRANTS.

Belfast and Glasgow Send 107 and Holland 85.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 23. — (Canadian Press). — Bringing the largest passenger list of the season, 956, the Canadian Pacific steamer Montcalm arrived in port yesterday from Liverpool, Glasgow and Belfast. There were two large parties on the steamer. One was in charge of Colonel D. W. Stevenson, of Jordan Falls, Shelburne, N.S. He brought out 107 immigrants, mostly from Belfast and Glasgow. They are all going to Western Canada to engage in farming, the majority under the Empire Settlement Act. The second party was under the direction of John Kreysten, of Alberta, and had 85 members, all from Holland.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

REGULAR TOWN.

SHREVEPORT, March 23.—The Chicago White Sox have selected a regular town to train in.

Shreveport has tall buildings, good hotels, plenty of paved streets, beautiful residences and hospitable folk.

Manager Collins and all his athletes are strong for it. Everything is so cosmopolitan the boys feel as if they were doing their preliminary stuff right in Chicago.

However, the one thing that pleases the players most is the good food. Not a single complaint about the eats in more than a week is some record for training camp quarters.

Next to the semi-monthly pay check and base hits, the athlete's next thought is good food. So the White Sox have unconsciously paid this fair city a neat compliment.

PECULIAR CASE.

In Bill Barrett, the White Sox have a player with wonderful natural ability. Yet Manager Collins isn't quite sure just where he should be played.

Some years ago Barrett came to Connie Mack as a shortstop and pitcher. The astute Connie decided that he wouldn't do at either and let him go.

Barrett played a brief engagement in the minors and came back to the White Sox as an outfielder. He immediately made good. Then injuries to some of the regulars caused him to be brought back into the infield. At times he played brilliantly at short.

Barrett has all the requisites of a great shortstop. He is fast, aggressive, has a wonderful arm, and, best of all, is courageous.

He should be a star, yet it seems he lacks confidence in his really great ability.

Manager Collins has put the matter squarely up to Barrett. He has told him there is a place open in the infield and outfield. He must make the selection.

MACK'S VERDICT.

The White Sox manager has a great respect for Connie Mack, under whom he became a star, and offers a rather interesting angle on the Barrett case.

"Barrett should be a great shortstop," says Eddie, "but I don't believe any player will ever achieve greatness working at a position he doesn't like.

"If Connie Mack hadn't passed Bill up as a shortstop he probably would have developed into a star. I am sure the psychology of the reverse remains with Bill."

Collins modestly explains that undoubtedly Barrett keeps saying to himself if Connie Mack couldn't make a shortstop out of me, Eddie never will.

INJURY HELPS.

Injuries seldom help a ball player, particularly a broken bone in the leg, yet that may prove to be the case with Southpaw Dave Davenport of the Sox.

Davenport always promised much, but failed to quite reach because of lack of control. He appeared to have too much speed. Last season he suffered a broken ankle sliding. That break may make him.

He seems to be favoring the leg in his delivery and doesn't appear to have the Walter Johnson smoke as of yore, but he keeps cutting the plate.

The forced change in style may supply the one asset he lacked, control. If so, keep your eye on him.

James Kirkwood Stars with Wife.

Above all, he is a student of drama He thinks it, dreams it, in fact lives it every day. He has devoted a lifetime to the study of dramatic technique never hesitating even now, to make a financial sacrifice if there is something to be learned or experimented with. To take the raw material represented in the written role of a play, analyze it, remold it and make the character a living being on the screen or stage is the meat of life to Kirkwood.

Few actors have cultivated their knowledge from a career of such varied experiences as Kirkwood. In eighteen years devoted to the legitimate stage, he arose from the very bottom in stock organizations to a string of triumphs on Broadway. His following was so great that ever since he has been in pictures eastern managers have continued to make offers. Only recently he returned east to play the lead in Channing Pollock's success, "The Fool."

His career in pictures has embraced an endless variety of characterizations, beginning in the old Biograph days and continuing through to the present time, and today he is more firmly entrenched in public favour than ever. And in the course of his screen experiences he turned even to directing ,to satisfy his ambition and to convince himself that he could give expression to his artistry through another medium than his own.

In "Wandering Husbands," produced by Regal Pictures, Inc., Kirkwood appears as "George Moreland," a wealthy business man fascinated by a vivacious butterfly and lured by her into a mad pursuit of pleasure among the bright lights— and into many difficulties. Mrs. Kirkwood, Lila Lee, appears opposite him as his wife in the story, "Diana Moreland," and the two form a perfect acting combination. Margaret Livingston plays the "butterfuly," Marilyn Foster, with an originality that is refreshing.

AT THE REGENT

LOVERS' LANE.

The screen version of Clyde Fitch's popular play, "Lovers' Lane," with an exceptional cast headed by Robert Ellis and Gertrude Olmstead, will be the feature shown at the Regent Theatre to-day. Other members of the cast are Frances Dale, Craufurd Kent, Bouce Guerin, George Periolat, Maxine Hicks, Charles Sellon, Ethel Wales, Kate Toncray, Aileen Manning and Dorothy Vernon.

Phil Rosen, who has become well known through the remarkable success he has made in his "The Life of Abraham Lincoln" and "Being Respectable," the Warner Bros. Screen Classic, directed this production for the Warner Bros. Mr. Rosen brought into play all his screen experience and a number of original twists to make it a production of real pictorial beauty.

The story deals with Mary Larkin so wrapped up in a life of social pleasures that she cannot consent to be married to Dr. Tom Singleton, a humble country surgeon. Mary leaves her home town in search of happiness, while Dr. Tom goes on with his work of service. Among his proteges are Lucy Woodbridge and her son, Dickie, whom the town gossips have condemned since the discovery that Lucy is a divorcee. One day Mary returns to be married to another man, but the day of the ceremony Lucy learns that Mary's fiancee is her former husband. Of course, matters begin to adjust themselves, and the Woodbridge family is re-united, while Mary and Dr. Tom plan their own wedding day.

Dorothy Farnum, who prepared the script for "Beau Brummel" and "Babbit," both Warner Bros. productions, wrote the scenario for this George Periolat, Maxine Hicks, Ton wonderful production.

AT THE CAPITOL

FILM DRAMA STAGED ON MOUNT RAINIER

Scenic Marvels of Nature Form Background For "Frivolous Sal."

The scenic grandeaur of Rainier National Park in Washington is woven into the background of J. K. McDonald's First National picture, "Frivolous Sal," which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day. McDonald chose for some of the exterior scenes one of the few spots in America where snow may be found the year round.

His company, numbering thirty-eight persons, with three cars of equipment, left Hollywood in the middle of August. They had just missed a heavy fall of snow on the summit when they arrived at Paradise Inn, the nearest habitation to the majestic peak of Rainier. The moutnain was blanketed with white far down its slopes and the motion picture company, only three days from the semi-tropical summer of Southern California, found it if within easy walking distance of mid-winter.

Civic authorities at Tacoma, Wash., where the film people left their train, and officials of Rainier National Park readily co-operated with the First National producer as his company was said to be the first ever to use Mount Rainier as the background for a dramatic picture. The producer was seeking virginal scenic territory when he chose Mount Rainier.

The company went from Rainier to the great mines at Wallace, Idaho, where several weeks were spent photographing the action of the story among the mills, shafts, tunnels and aerial trams of that famous mining centre. The story of "Frivolous Sal" was written by McDonald, and directed by Victor L. Schertzinger. The cast includes Eugene O'Brien, Mae Busch, Ben Alexander, Mildred Harris, Mitchell Lewis, Tom Santschi, R. R. Neill and others.

APPELLATE COURT CUTS FINE LEVIED ON JARVIS AND SMITH

Smith Will Now Pay $100,000, Jarvis Will Pay $60,000.

TORONTO, March 23—(Canadian Press).—By a decision handed down this morning by the Appellate Court, Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, faces an additional five-year term in Portsmouth Penitentiary unless he pays a fine of $100,000 in connection with his conviction last year of conspiracy to defraud the province in the purchase of duty free bonds on behalf of the Government. The decision was rendered this mornig when the Appellate Court hand down a decision on the apneal launched by Aemilius Jarvis, Sr., against the fine of $600,000 in connection with the same transaction. Aemilius Jarvis, head of the former bond firm of Aemilius Jarvis and Co., was given a six months' term in the county jail and three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and the fine of $600,000 was made collectable from either or both jointly. By the decision of Appellate Court a definite fine is now imposed on each, Aemilius Jarvis to pay $60,000 and Peter Smith $100,000. The decision does not alter the prison sentences already imposed but specifies an additional five years on each if the fines are not paid.

Aemilius Jarvis, Sr., recently returned to the Government $140,000 which he claimed was his entire profit, with interest, in the transaction, which resulted in his arrest. The Appellate Division hold that this sum must be regarded as restitution, The fine of $60,000 is entirely separate from this.

The judgment of the Appellate Court is in effect a reduction of the Jarvis-Smith joint fine of $600,000 to $300,000, with an increase of prison terms by five years if the fines are not paid.

Attorney-General Astounded.

After learning of the result of the appeal, Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, issued the following statement:

"It was with astonishment, almost dismay, that I learned that the Court of Appeal had varied, as indicated, the sentences imposed by Hon. Richard M. Meredith. In my judgment the people will have great difficulty in reconciling the amended sentences with those commonly imposed on other offenders for much less serious violations of the criminal law in relation to property offences.

"By the offences of which the jury found the accused guilty, the province had taken from it a very large sum that should have been saved for it, if the accused and their associates had discharged their duty honestly. Mr. Jarvis will undoubtedly the $60,000 fine to escape the extra five years sentence which is not therefore to be seriously considered, while Mr. Smith will, if his means permit, pay the fine imposed on him. This will not impress the people at large with the necessity for honesty in high places."

Prime Minister Surprised.

Premier Ferguson expressed himself as being astounded with the verdict of the Appeal Court on the Jarvis and Smith fines. When asked if he had any statement to make the Premier said "I was not only surprised but astounded, Jarvis admits that Andrew Pepall was an agent on commission and Jarvis negotiated the arrangement whereby Pepall, his own agent was made a representative of the Provincial Treasury. Jarvis failed to go into the witness box, the Province was mulcted for $600,00. I do not think that I need to make any further comment.'

IN MEMORIAM.

PICKEN — In ever-loving memory of my dear little pupil, Phyllis Eileen Picken, who went to live with the angels March 23, 1924; aged 6 years and 18 days.
She is not dead—the child of our affection—
But gone into that school
Where she no longer needs our poor protection,
And Christ Himself doth rule.

Day after day we think what she is doing
In those bright realms of air;
Year after year, her tender steps pursuing,
Behold her grown more fair.

Not as a child shall we again behold her,
For when with raptures wild,
In our embraces we again enfold her,
She will not be a child—

But a fair maiden in her Father's mansion,
Clothed with celestial grace,
And beautiful with all the soul's expansion
Shall we behold her face.

VOL. LVI., No. 70 PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MARCH 24, 1925 PRICE THREE CENTS

ATTACKS ON RANEY RENEWED BY MR. M'BRIDE AND HON. J. R. COOKE

Raney Had Engendered Bitter Personalities in Every Session, Declared Minister.

MORE BILLS PASSED

Liberal Leader Opposed Creating New Post of Deputy Minister of Health.

TORONTO, March 24.—Before the Legislature got into the budget debate Monday it passed second reading of several government bills including one cancelling the provincial taxes on pool and billiard rooms and bowling alleys, another creating a government post of deputy minister of health, and another providing that libraries may be established in any school sections and that library boards in cities of 50,000 or over may establish a fund for the superannuation of library employes.

In the budget debate Hon. J. R. Cooke, minister without portfolio, made an attack on the administration of the Drury government, condemning it particularly for the Backus deal. M. M. McBride (Conservative, Brantford), also attacked the late government, and W. E. Raney in particular.

Mr. McBride said that he had only met one man in his life who glorified in the downfall of other men and that it was amazing to what depths of hyprocrisy the late government went. He declared that Mr. Raney was as much as any other man. He challenged Mr. Raney to come before the public accounts committee and give evidence.

Raney Accepts.

Answering the challenge, Mr. Raney said: "I will go before the committee when it is organized, and so will Mr. Drury."

"Better late than never," replied Mr. McBride, who stated that although Mr. Raney had been in a position to know things, he had never volunteered to go before the committee before.

Hon. Mr. Cooke declared that ever since Mr. Raney had been in the House every session, had been marked by bitter personalities and that he had always sought to sow seeds of suspicion against public men. "He has made life almost unbearable for the men in public service," said Mr. Cooke, "and yet the public accounts show that the government of which he was a member kept adding to the public debt of this province at the rate of $100,000 a day."

"Does that include Hydro?" asked Mr. Raney.

"You cannot challenge my figures," responded Mr. Cooke, who stated that there was a suspicion abroad in Ontario that the late provincial treasurer was not alone to blame for the financial messes which the late government got itself into. He charged that the Drury government had thrown up a smoke screen by making charges aainst the Hearst government to cover its own actions. He declared the Backus deal to have been one of these, and stated that Backus had got 3,000,000 acres of land at a price which would not produce a revenue of three cents an acre The Drury government, he said, had tried to ruin the Nipigon power development, and yet last year that power plant had been so successful that it had paid to the government $620,000 in back interest.

Bills Withdrawn.

Mr. Sinclair withdrew a bill whereby a medical health officer of a municipality could be removed by the municipal council, and when appointed by the government that his term of office expire on February 1 of each year. The Prime Minister explained that the department of health was giving the matter consideration, and that he quite appreciated that there were grounds for complaint, as the matter now stood.

A. W. Gray (Conservative, Leeds), withdrew a bill which would have given commercial travellers the same rights at advance polls as railwaymen and sailors. The Prime Minister, in requesting the withdrawal, said that the bill did not meet the situation. He said that there were many centres such as Kitchener, where there was no railway advance poll, and yet there were hundreds of travellers. It had been suggested that where there were 50 travellers that an advance poll be allowed. However, as such polls were not likely to be needed this year, he suggested that the bill be withdrawn

THE WEATHER.

How many readers of these notes of mine have ever seen the planet Mercury? I venture to say that very few have. This planet is the closest of all to the sun, and, in fact, keeps so close to it that it is in a position for observation only for a few evenings each year. One of these occasions is at the present time, and for the next eight or ten days. Look towards the western horizon, if the sky is clear, about 7.15, at a point a little north of where the sun has set, and about ten degrees upwards, and you will see earth's little brother twinkling. It is not very brilliant in the evening dusk, and before darkness has really set in the planet has set. Mercury's diameter is a little less than 3000 miles. It has no satelite or moon. Neither has Venus, its nearest neighbor.—W.P.

COMMONS VOTES FOR SINGAPORE

MacDonald Amendment to Cut Naval Appropriations Defeated, 280 to 129.

PROTECT SHIPPING

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—The Government last night received another parliamentary vote of approval on its Singapore policy, then the House of Commons by 280 to 129 rejected Ramsay MacDonold's motion to reduce the naval vote, as a protest against building the naval base at Singapore. The debate was largely a repetition of that of last week, but the possibility of a "white versus yellow" conflict between Japan and Australia loomed rather large and the possibilities of another war were frankly ventilated.

Mr. MacDonald, in moving his motion, expressed the fear that the Singapore project would involve the scrapping of the Washington ratios, because these ratios depended on concentration and could not be maintained if the capital ship was to remain paramount in naval armaments and the fleet dissipated on both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. He contended that Singapore made for military, instead of legal, solution of immigration problems such as existed in Japan and Australia.

In brief, he argued that the project meant contemplation of war.

No new points arose in the Government's defence scheme, but W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, pointing out what trouble the German sea raiders gave in the Great War, asked if it took seventy cruisers to round up these few German raiders, with almost the whole German fleet bottled up, what were the prospects in a future war if British commerce were attacked by some other power. These cruisers, without the support of battleships, would not be a sufficient defence, he declared. If there was any sign of wavering in this matter some other nation might show its teeth.

DAY'S SESSION OF PARLIAMENT

Briefest in History of Egypt —Dramatic End of Government.

ELECTIONS MAY 23.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 24.—The Egyptian parliament which opened at 10 a.m. Monday, with much ceremonial and grandeur had ceased to exist by eight o'clock last evening. The session was probably the shortest in the history of Egypt.

The collapse was considered a striking victory for former Premier Zagloul Pasha, who all along has maintained that the results in the recent elections afforded his opponents no justification for forming a government.

The end came with dramatic suddenness. After Zagloul had been elected to the presidency of the chamber, the house adjourned to reassemble at five o'clock. Zagloul presided, but not a single member of the ministry was present. The house had elected two followers of Zagloul as vice-presidents of the chamber, and was proceeding to the election of other officers when Premier Ziwar Pasha entered, followed by his ministers, who had been holding a council. Amid tense silence Ziwar read a decree dissolving parliament. The decree was greeted with vociferous cheering by the Zagloulists.

Under the decree, new elections will be held May 23, and the new parliament will be opened June 1.

NO 'FIREWORKS' IN DENNISTOUN TRIAL SUMMARY

Society Crowd Disappointed by Address of Counsel for the Colonel's Wife.

FRAGRANT COURT

Judge Condemns Defendant's Conduct as Unmanly—Continues Today.

LONDON, March 24. — "Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned, nor hell a fury like a woman scorned," these words of Congreve were cited by Judge McCardis, who is a bachelor, in summing up on Monday the evidence in the suit of Mrs. Ian Onslow Dennistoun against her former husband, Lieut.-Colonel Dennistoun, for money she alleges he borrowed from her. There was tense excitement in the court room as the judge delivered his address.

"I have formed the view," said Judge McCardie, at the commencement of his speech, "that Mrs. Dennistoun is one of the most adroit and most ingenious witnesses I have seen in thirty years; and if she invented a claim against Colonel Dennistoun, whether for maintenance or otherwise, she would be one of the most dangerous women I ever have seen. She has a quick brain, absolute self-composure, a resolute will and wonderful mastery of answer."

Vague Agreement.

Referring to the alleged agreement between Col. Dennistoun and his former wife, the judge said to the jury:

"You are asked to believe the vaguest agreement known to me was made as a definite legal bargain."

Regarding Dennistoun, he said his conduct was "gravely to be condemned," and added—

"His conduct discredits him in a very great measure, but though a man has been guilty of unmanliness such as that, it might well be that by reason of these very circumstances you ought to view the case with greater care."

The courtroom again was jammed, mostly by women, who were anxious to hear what would be the reply of Sir Ellis Hume-Williams, counsel for Mrs. Dennistoun, to the address of Norman Birkett, who on Friday denounced Mrs. Dennistoun as "heartless," and a "traitress." Sir Ellis, however, did not indulge in any great vituperative fireworks.

"Contemptible creature" was about the harshest reference that he made to Colonel Dennistour.

Referring to the former wife's letters to Dennistoun counsel argued that seldom had more suitable appeals been read. "Blackmail is intimidation and Dennistoun has tried to intimidate Mrs. Dennistoun," he declared.

Sir Ellis scornfully spoke of Dennistoun's "weakness and pliancy."

Encouraged Her.

Referring to the late Sir John Cowan's liason with Mrs. Dennistoun counsel said that it was incredible for a man to write as the colonel had done to his former wife unless he desired her to have illicit relations with another man.

"If anybody is going to throw stones at her," exclaimed Sir Ellis, "it should not be the hand of this complacent husband who stood by while she acted wrongly."

Sir Ellis spoke in an atmosphere so laden with the combined incense of exotic perfumes that the ushers were obliged to open the courtroom windows to relieve the oppressive atmosphere. Scores of finely gowned women were present—and each wore her favorite perfume in abundance.

The attorney devoted much time to denouncing Dennistoun, declaring that when Dennistoun became wealthy through his marriage with Lady Carnarvon, and had thousands of pounds at his disposal he spent enormous sums on clothes and luxuries, but refused to reimburse Dorothy for his club subscriptions and tailor bills.

Judge McCardie resumes his summing up to-day.

FOR BRITISH PLANES.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 24.—(United Press).—England's renewed activity in building airplanes has resulted in the placing of the largest order for Sitka spruce from British Columbia for the construction of planes since the World War, it was announced here. The contract placed by Vickers, Ltd., English airplane manufacturers, with a local lumber company, calls for the delivery of 2,000,000 feet of spruce during 1925.

CAMPBELL FLOUR MILLS REFUSES AT POINT OF BAYONET TO HAVE PRIVATE BUSINESS "EXPLOITED"

Judgment Reserved To-day in City's Appeal Against Injunction Halting Inquiry—Argument of City Solicitor and Counsel for Campbell Mills Closed Hearing.

NO CHARGE MADE AGAINST ANYONE.

Wallace Nesbitt Says It Is Outrageous Prying Into People's Business—City's Representatives Maintain It Is Matter of Principle, Unaffected By Payment.

(Special to the Examiner).

TORONTO, March 24. —The importance of the issue raised in the Peterboro Hydro case befor the Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall was emphasized to-day when Secretary Henderson and Commissioner E. F. Mason, of the Peterboro Utilities Commission, were put in a watching sense.

R. R. Hall, K. C., for Judge Huycke had taken all of Monday in an effort to show that Mr. Justice Middleton was wrong in restraining Judge Huycke from enquiring into and reporting on the alleged failure of the Peterborough Commision to fully charge the Campbell Flour Mills Co., for electric power from March 1919, to December 1921, involving, so Mr. Hall said, a loss to the City of Peterborough of about $10,000. At the close of to-day's hearing, judgment was reserved.

Mr Hall insisted on the city's right to know what was wrong. Under section 248 of the Municipal Act, according to Mr. Hall, the City Council was within its rights in passing a resolution of enquiry and no injunction should block Judge Huycke's enquiry.

City Solicitor's Argument.

Following Mr. Hall, Joseph Wearing City Solicitor, Peterborough, began his argument just before adjournment yesterday, and continued it when the Appellate court resumed to-day.

Mr. Wearing said that, though power had been delegated to the Peterborough Utilities Commission, the Municipality had an interest in the power and plant.

The City Council as Mr. Wearing understands the law, was picked out as a body with the jurisdiction to demand an enquiry into the public business of the municipality.

Mr. Justice Magee observed that a contractor might be investigated by the municipality.

Mr. Justice Hodgins: "Somebody contracting with the municipality, Mr Wearing, might be contracting with somebody else and still be under the municipality."

"The vital question," said Mr. Wearing 'Is this how did the loss occur. After the opening of the investigation, it might be advisable to widen it."

"If the money were paid," a judge asked, "would you want to go on?"

Mr. Wearing replied that the important thing was not the money itself but how the loss came about.

Mr. Justice Smith: "What caused the meter to go wrong? What caused a clock to err- You say that you have a right to know." Mr. Justice Smith saw a remedy that wasn't investigation.

Mr. Wearing: "There is no other way."

Mr. Justice Smith: "If you get the facts, what good will the facts do you?"

BUDGET CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED

Export Duty on Electricity—Few Tariff Differences Outside Coal.

SOME REDUCTIONS.

OTTAWA, March 24. —(Canadian Press). —Taxation changes in to-days budget briefly are:

1. Export duty on electricity of three one hundredths of a cent. per kilowat hour upon power. Duty payable from April 1, 1925. The rate will be equal to $1.95 per horse-power.

2. Few tariff changes. Principal change will be in bituminous coal. The item "slack coal" is repealed, putting it into the class of "coal not otherwise provided." Slack coal imported from the United States will be dutiable at fifty cents ton instead of foureen cents as at present.

3. Reduction in tariff rate on well-drilling machinery for deep wells and on engines for the propulsion of boats by individual fishermen.

4. Duty on rolling mill rolls to be restored. During the recess these were placed on the free list by order-in-council.

5. Amendment to the customs' tariff in regard to the dumping duty.

6. Amendment of special war revenue act to give a better definition of a cheque, bill of exchange, etc.

7. Well-drilling machinery and engines for the propulsion of boats owned by individual fishermen will continue to be exempt from the sales tax.

8—Bill to be introduced aiming at the prevention of smuggling.

9—The estimated increase in revenue from taxation changes will be about $1,000,000.

10—The budget makes no change in the income tax or sales tax rates.

11—Mr. Robb did not announce the details of the Canada-Australian trade treaty.

Other tariff changes are:

Grapefruit, when imported direct to a Canadian port per 100 pounds, free under the British preference; 50 cents under the intermediate, and $1 under the general tariff. They are now dutiable at 50 cents British preference, $1 intermediate and general.

The duty on engines to be used exclusively in the propulsion of boats owned by individual fishermen for their own use will be 10 per cent. British preference 12½ per cent. intermediate, and 15 per cent. general.

Well drilling machinery will be dutiable five per cent, ahke British preference, intermediate and general.

BEAUTY ABOVE BABIES.

LONDON, March 24.—Mrs. Jane Hobden, 103, one of the oldest women in England, says "modern women love freedom more than marriage and beauty cult more than babies." She is opposed to prohibition.

10,049 IN ONTARIO ON BREWING LIST

Gave Notice to Government of Their Intentions.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 24.—Ten thousand and forty-nine Ontario people gave notice of their intention to brew beer for themselves and families in 1924, it was stated in a return tabled Monday from the Department of Customs and Excise asked for by B. N. Fansher, Progressive member for East Lambton. Mr. Fansher sought information about beer and whisky licenses. The return explains that home brewing requires no license, but the possession of utensils for that purpose must be reported to the Department to secure immunity from taxation or seizure. This year 1,943 people had sent in such notices, up to Feb. 20.

Last year, the biggest number of notices, 2,743, was sent from Toronto. The next biggest was from Hamilton, with 2,203. London sent 557 and Ottawa only 71.

In 1922 and 1923 six distilleries and 21 commercial breweries were licensed by the Federal government. In 1924 the number of breweries increased to 25. The return explains that all these were renewals of licenses issued before the Ontario Temperance Act was enacted.

BODY RECOVERED.

Joseph Cirtwell Drowned Friday From Cake of Ice.

KINGSTON, March. 24.—The body of Joseph Cirtwell of Rockport, who was drowned on Friday when he was carried downstream near Alexandria Bay on a cake of ice, was found Monday afternoon about 100 feet from Dark Island, ten miles from Alexandria Bay in about fifty feet of water. The body was located by Henry J. Hunt of Alexandria Bay, uncle of the deceased, who grappled all Sunday and Monday in hopes of finding it. The body was taken to Alexandria Bay, and the funeral will be held from Rockport on Wednesday morning.

PEACH BUDS KILLED.

Light Crops Forecast in Kent County.

CHATHAM, March 24.—A light peach crop in Kent this year is the prediction of officials of the county branch of the Department of Agriculture following an inspection. In the Cedar Spring district several orchards were visited, and it was found that the buds have been smothered by a coating of ice which formed on the trees during December and which remained for many weeks. F. C. McLennon, Assistant County Representative, estimated that in some orchards 100 per cent. of the buds have been killed.

More Motor Licenses Than In Last Spring

About three times as many automobile licenses have been issued this year as were issued in the first three months of 1924. The total for this year has almost reached 1400 which is a record for the local office, said Leon Frazer, local issuer, to-day.

CONSERVATIVES ARE ACTIVE ON LINDSAY FRONT

T. H. Stinson Will Be the Candidate for Victoria and Haliburton.

"FIXING FENCES"

Progressives Stirring, But Are Unlikely to Again Win Liberal Support.

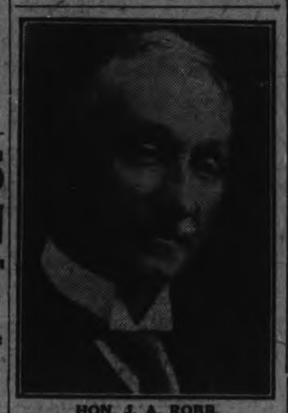
LINDSAY, March 24.—(Special to the Examiner).—Although the date of the next Federal election has not been announced, there is considerable activity among the Conservatives of Victoria and Haliburton in preparation for the coming contest. On the occasion of the rally of the Conservatives of the Centre District here last week, members of the party were told that Premier King would likely make an appeal to the country in June. As a result, Arthur Meighen's followers in this riding are clearing the decks for action, and claim that they will redeem the riding. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. T. H. Stinson K.C., who unsuccesfuly contested the riding against J. J. Thurston, M.P. (Progressive) will be the standard-bearer. He it was who made the startling statement at the recent Conservative rally that $500,000 had been knocked off the payroll of Lindsay industries during the past three years.

Progressives Too.

The Progressives held their reorganization meeting recently in Lindsay, but there appeared to be lack of the enthusiasm which featured past gatherings. It is understood that the present member for Victoria and Haliburton will again offer himself as a Progresive candidate, and rumor has it that he will have oppositoin at the nomination meeting. The name of Mr. Bruce McNevan, of Reaboro, is prominently mentioned, as is also that of Mr. Wm. Newman, of Lorneville, past president of the Ontario Dairymen's Association.

The Liberals of the riding will not run a candidate, it is understood. At the last Federal election they supported the Progressive candidate, and it was the Liberal vote that elected him, it is claimed. Many Liberals openly declare that they will not support him in the next ection should he receive the nomination, as on his first vote in the House he voted against the Liberal budget.

CANADIANS JUSTIFIABLY PROUD OF RESULT OF YEAR'S FINANCES



HON. J. A. ROBB,
Acting Minister of Finance, Who To-day Brought Down His Second Budget.

Hon. J. A. Robb Presents Second Budget—Reduction in Revenues.

BETTER BALANCE.

OTTAWA, March 24.—(Canadian Press). — Before a crowded House to-day, Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, presented his second budget. It was a statement in which Mr. Robb told of a heavy reduction in public revenue, yet one which, he said, had finished up with a surplus of revenues over expenditures of $1,823,000.

"A remarkable result," said Mr. Robb, "in which Canadians can feel a justifiable pride."

The reduced expenditures Mr. Robb attributed largely to the Government's policy of last year in reducing the burdens of taxation and, on the tariff changes observed that "for the present, the opportunity of unobstructed observation of the effect of the extensive tariff changes made last year should be afforded."

Points from Mr. Robb's speech are:

1—Revenues are down by $52,837,000, estimated as against the previous year.

2—A decrease in ordinary expenditure of $5,100,000.

3—A surplus in revenues over expenditures of $1,823,000, or of $5,833,162 if $4,000,162 received from Greece and Roumania is added.

4—An increase of Canada's favorable trade balance with the world to $263,414,526.

5—A board of advisors, for which provision is made in the main estimates, to inquire into the tariff and other trade problems.

Mr. Robb dealt at length with the question of railway financing, stating that the National Railway Company had not yet been able to meet the cut of earnings.

"The arrears of interest on March 31st, 1924," said Mr. Robb, "was about $131,000,000, but it is not treated in our public accounts as an asset. It is held in abeyance as an overdue account."

HOPE TO HAVE FERRY IN 1925

Rochester Man Says Motor Ferry to Cobourg is Planned.

WILL OPEN CAMP.

The early opening of a convenient auto ferry service from Rochester to Cobourg was predicted by D. W. Galbraith, of Rochester, in speaking with Leon Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce to-day. Mr. Galbraith said that he had been told that this would be provided this year.

Mr. Galbraith has purchased 300 acres of land on the shore of Loon Lake, in Chandos Township, northeast of Apsley, where he will establish a lodge and camp. He has two miles of sand beach fronting on the lake and is renovating the farmhouse as a lodge. Tents will be erected along the shore for the guests. Mr. Galbraith was in Manitoulin Island for a number of years and then went to Timigami. This is his third year in the Kawartha district and he is convinced that this district is one of the best tourist resorts in the country.

As Peterboro is the purchasing centre for that part of the county, the establishment of such a camp will mean a great deal to the merchants of the city. An inquiry from Tonawanda, New York, asking about such accommodation for a party of fifteen was turned over to Mr. Galbraith by Mr. Frazer and should provide a nucleus for a very large attendance.

Mr. Frazer ascribes the great number of inquiries received about accommodations for tourists and requests for road information to the advertising campaign carried on by the Trent Waterways Association and other interested bodies.

KING, LORDS AND COMMONERS PAY TRIBUTE TO CURZON'S SERVICES

"We Lose an Old and Valued Friend," Said His Majesty—Asquith, Baldwin and MacDonald Eulogize the Deep Sense of Friendship in Curzon's Nature.

"ARCHITECT OF HIS OWN FORTUNES"

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press).—The nation, in the person of its Sovereign and the two Houses of Parliament, yesterday paid its tribute of sympathy and of praise for the high services rendered during a lifetime of strenuous and courageous effort by a great statesman, Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, who filled all but the very highest office in the State.

The King laments him as "an old and valued friend." The Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, in the House of Commons in the course of an eulogy, characterized him as "a self-made man, because it was his natural ability, his fierce industry and his courage which made him from an early period of his life map out a scheme of what he would do. He was the architect of his own fortunes."

Mr. Baldwin also touchingly referred to the recent occasion when he himself had been chosen, instead of Lord Curzon, as Premier, and testified that never by word, look or innuendo did Curzon show that he bore any grudge.

Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, in an equally eloquent tribute, spoke of another side of Lord Curzon's character. This was his solicitude for art and literature.

Lover of Art.

Prefacing his remarks, by stating that he had known Lord Curzon intimately in early life, Mr. MacDonald said he had known him both at home and in India as "the disciple, apostle and custodian of our artistic possessions, a lover of art and a fine appreciator of literature—an absorbed and completely interested connoisseur, whose services to the nation could hardly be properly appreciated so soon after his lamented death."

Mr. MacDonald said that during his recent visit to India he had found everywhere evidence of a sacred care to preserve fine specimens of architecture, which was credited to Lord Curzon.

Asquith's Tribute.

Both Houses were crowded. In the House of Lords, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith brought up vivid recollections extending from the time when it fell to his lot to examine Curzon, then a schoolboy just leaving Eton. They had, he said, entered the House of Commons together and their personal friendship had withstood all the shocks of political controversy.

Lord Oxford, like the Marquis of Salisbury, Premier Baldwin, Lord Haldane and the Archbishop of Canterbury, laid emphasis on Curzon's remarkable courage and industry in face of physical disabilities and his unstinted devotion to what he conceived to be his public duties.

"Drudgery," added Oxford, "was a word which had no place in his vocabulary. He takes a sure place in the long line of those who have enriched by their actions and dignified by their character the annals of English public life."

King's Message.

King George yesterday sent the following message to Marchioness Curzon:

"The Queen and I are greatly distressed to hear of your overwhelming sorrow and hasten to assure you our whole-hearted sympathy. By the death of your dear husband, we lose an old and valued friend. The nation will join with me in mourning the loss of a foremost statesman, and will ever gratefully remember the brilliant and manifold services that Lord Curzon rendered during his long active career under three sovereigns."

LINDSAY ARSENAL MAY BE REOPENED

At Least Rumor Revives Hope of Operations Being Resumed.

LINDSAY, March 24.—(Special to the Examiner).—According to a rumor which has been in circulation during the past few days, the Federal Government is contemplating the reopening of the Dominion Arsenal plant at an early date. The last time a deputation visited Ottawa relative to this plant it was assured by the Militia department that it was the intention of the government to resume the manufacture of munitions in Lindsay some time in the future.

The plant stands as a monument to Lindsays blasted hopes. At the time of its erection the people were assured by a representative of the Militia Department that the plant would run without interruption and that the town's population would be increased by the hundreds. The people were also urged to build houses on the vacant lots about town for the newcomers. The town built a long stretch of paved roadway, and also constructed an expensive sewer to the site of the plant, which ceased operations at the close of the war. It was built at a cost of several millions of dollars and the ony buildings occupied today are those leased by the Beal Leather Company. The expensive machinery was all taken out a few years ago and shipped to the Quebec Arsenal.

If the rumor regarding its reopening proves true, it will cost many thousands of dollars to equip the plant with new machinery.

POPULATION GROWS

Nearly 12,000 Immigrants Entered Palestine During 1924.

JERUSALEM March 24.—(Associated Press).—Official returns show that 11,851 Jews, 4,573 men, 3,836 women and 3,442 children, entered Palestine as immigrants during the 12 months ended December last. During the same period the Jewish emigrants numbered 2,037, so that the net increase of the population through immigration during the year was 9,814. The corresponding increase in 1923 was 3,788.

W.O.W. MEETING.

Sherwood Forest Camp 50 Had Business and Social Evening.

The regular meeting of Sherwood Forest Camp No. 50, Woodmen of the World, was held last night in their hall, and proved to be very interesting, the business session followed by an enjoyable social evening, attended by about fifty people. During the brief business meeting, the resignation of the clerk, S. H. Pearson, who is leaving the city shortly, was tendered, and A. A. Haskill was elected by acclamation in his place.

After the business session, a musical programme was given, including two piano duetts by the Misses Amy Fairbrother and Greta Welbourn, two readings by Miss Elsie Worrall, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Brearley. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered those taking part, and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and the service of dainty refreshments.

In a recent address here Dr. Graham raised his voice against the "woeful neglect" of the study generally of English, which he called the finest language in the world.

STRONG SENTIMENT IN HASTINGS FOR SECONDARY SCHOOL PROJECT

Thirty From Trent Town at Norwood and Campbellford High Schools.

MAY BUILD SOON

Proposal to be Considered at Next Meeting of Board—New Members.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, March 24. — The Public School Board here with three new members, appears to have definitely outlined a programme for the improvement of the school accommodation in Hastings, a matter that has been before the public for years. The present prospect is that a new four room building will be put up as soon as the building season opens, and the structure to be completed in time for the opening of the fall term. One of the proposed new rooms is to be occupied by the continuation classes.

Class Rooms Crowded.

There are at present over 100 pupils attending the Hastings Public school and these are looked after by T. W. Chaplin, principal, and Miss Maud Spiers, his assistant. There is an average attendance of about 65 in the junior department. The number of teachers is inadequate according to the regulations, the building is antiquated and has been officially condemned. Hastings has arrived at the point where something must be done if legislative grants are to be continued.

No Hope of Consolidation.

About a year ago a definite movement was made in the interests of a consolidtaed school. An appeal from the Department came from Toronto and explained to the electors the details of the system. The proposition was to take in four or five of the adjoining rural sections and consolidate these with the Hastings school. The Department officials visited the country districts, but met with little enthusiasm, the questions of expense and transportation appearing to be the stumbling blocks.

Want Final Answer.

Secretary Doughty of the School Board, has been instructed to write the various rural boards interested for a written expression of their attitude on the question of consolidation, so that the Hastings trustees may have something definite upon which to work. There is little hope that any of these answers will be favorable to consolidation so that it will then be up to Hastings to go it alone.

Three New Members.

At the school election last December all of the three members, whose terms expired, and who had been on the Board for years, were defeated. The new trustees chosen were, A. V. German, C. P. Doughty and R. N. Simpson. Mr. German is the present chairman and Mr. Doughty is secretary. The three members of the Board who hold over from last year are George Whitred, Harry Dodd and John Stewart. These are the six trustees who are charged with the grave responsibility of providing a new school and the utmost harmony appears to exist among them.

Want Continuation School.

Hastings is ambitious to have a High school of its own, but no such institution can be legally erected in a town or village containing less than 1,000 inhabitants. The village could form a High school district by taking in parts of the surrounding townships, but here the same difficulties are met with as face the advocates of consolidation. The best that Hastings, going it alone, can hope for, is a continuation department.

There are plenty of pupils in sight for such an institution. Trustee Simpson stated to The Examiner that at present there are 15 pupils from Hastings village attending the Campbellford High school and as many go to Norwood. The former make the trip by train every day, while Mr. Simpson has the contract for transporting the Norwood pupils by auto. He would gladly forfeit this contract in order to keep the young people at home.

Besides these 30 from the village, there are 12 people from the immediate surrounding vicinity going to Norwood. If a continuation school is established at Hastings, it is expected all of these below the second year of High school work would attend here.

Question of Cost.

The Public School Board has the right to require the Village Council to raise money by a debenture issue for the erection of a Public school building without referring the question to a vote of the taxpayers and D. J. Lynch, of Campbellford, town solicitor, gives it as his opinion that the right will not be affected if the continuation department is added, as that fact would not place the building in the High school class.

In Hastings the Public and Separate school supporters are about evenly divided. The statute provides that the Public and Separate School Boards may unite for the maintenance of a continuation school, this to be governed by a joint board just as a High school is by a Board of Education. In the case of a High school, Separate school supporters have no choice in the matter but are taxed for the construction and support. With Continuation schools this is optional.

Government Grants.

Special Legislative grants are made to Continuation schools and the County Council must grant annually a sum equal to this amount. The County Council may by a majority vote allow a special grant to help pay for the building of this class of school.

The entire school question as it affects Hastings will be threshed out at the next meeting of the Board.

No village in Ontario is in a better financial position than Hastings as the debenture debt of this place is merely nominal and all that keeps up the tax rate is a low assessment.

LASH FOR MINDEN MAN

David Farrow Sentenced to Seven Years in Prison.

LINDSAY, March 24.—(Special to the Examiner).—His Honor Judge Swayze has handed out justice in one of the most revolting cases ever heard in this part of the country, sentencing a man named David Farrow, who came from the neighborhood of Minden village, Haliburton County, to seven years in Penitentiary with ten lashes.

The prisoner, who is 43 years of age, was charged with having carnal knowledge of a girl from Fenelon Falls, aged thirteen years, and who is at present in a serious condition. The case has been before the court for some time, the evidence having been heard in camera. Farrow, it appears, was a married man, but his wife left him for good and sufficient reasons. He afterwards picked up with two negro women and during the war enlisted and went overseas. While in England he married an English girl and brought her to Canada. Two or three children were born of this union. Wife No. 2 died, and Farrow met with the thirteen-year-old girl.

QUEBEC SCHOOL BILL IS PASSED

Question of Jewish Education May Be Taken to Privy Council.

IF NECESSARY.

QUEBEC, March 24 (Canadian Press).—Fear that the school problem in Montreal might lead to a situation fraught with dangers not now thought of, was the idea which Hon. E. L. Patenaude expressed in the Assembly Monday, when Premier Taschereau put through his bill to permit of appeal to the Supreme Court, and, if need be, to the Privy Council, on the matter of Jewish education.

The bill went through on division after an animated debate in which Premier Taschereau, Mr. Patenaude, Hon. Anthonase David and Brigadier General C. A. Smart, M.L.A. for Westmount, took part, and in which the matter was threshed out from various aspects

Mr. Patenaude did not favor going to the courts, holding that it would be better to ask the council of public instruction to study the matter. General Smart believed there should be a royal commission to 'elve into the problem. The member for Westmount declared that even though the judgment of the court of appeal on the decent reference gave the Montreal Protestant School Board power to turn the Jewish children out of the schools there was no likelihood of such a course being followed, and he added that Protestant opinion in the province would not support the board in such a course.

The debate commenced with Premier Taschereau explaining the purport of the bill. He referred to the fact that on Question No. 6, namely, whether the province can establish schools other than Catholic or Protestant, two judges had answered in the affirmative and three judges had answered in the negative.

"After the judgment of the Privy Council is given, will the government name another commission of study?" queried Mr. Sauve. "The government is getting into the habit of naming commissions."

"That is not a just remark," said Mr. Taschereau. "When we have the information we need, we will accept the responsibility of acting, but we must know what our powers are. We do not know if the judgment of the Supreme Court will satisfy both parties, so we are providing for an appeal to the Privy Council."

ATTACKS ON RANEY

and that the government would work out a solution to be submitted at the next session.

Two More Withdrawn.

Neither the Premier nor the Opposition leader could see any merit in a bill proposed by A. C. Garden (West Hamilton) providing that in municipalities, where elections are held in December, that the nomination day be on November 21, instead of the last Monday of November. It was therefore withdrawn.

Hon. W. F. Nickle was much opposed to a bill proposed by W. Finlayson (Conservative, East Simcoe that county judges be allowed to arrange their own circuit work instead of being under a system as exists at present. Mr. Nickle thought that they would arrange their work so that each judge would always stay within his own county. The bill was withdrawn.

T. J. Mahoney (Conservative, South Wentworth got second reading for a bill whereby municipalities could license and therefore control fruit and vegetable wagons coming in from the United States to sell in Canadian border towns. Mr. Raney expressed the opinion that the bill might be ultra vires and not within provincial jurisdicton, and the Premier said there mght be something in such an opinion. However, the bill passed on the undestanding that it go to the committee and then to the commission revising the statutes of the province.

Second reading was also given a bill proposed by J. R. Mark (Conservative, Victoria), that in townships, marriage license commissioners be appointed instead of having people go miles and miles to a clerk to get such licenses. K. Homuth (South Waterloo said a few miles wouldn't stop any man from getting a marriage license and thought the bill would simply bring back the days when the province was dotted with marriage license officers. The bill was sent to the municipal committee.

Hon. W. H. Price, provincial treasurer, got second reading for his bill cancelling the provincial tax on billiard, pool and bowling rooms, and leaving the municipalities to all taxation from them.

Sincair's Protests.

Mr. Sinclair, the Liberal leader, protested vigorously against the bill to create a deputy minister of health. He thought that if the work was getting too heavy that the present staff might be added to without creating another high salaried job, who at best would be a mere figurehead, as the work was in the capable hands of Dr. McCullough. The Premier replied that no department could be carried on without a responsible deputy. The bill passed second reading without vote.

The premier also got second reading for a bill providing that libraries might be established in any school section; that library boards may pay an allowance to retiring employes, and that in cities of 50,000 and more that library boards may estblish funds for the provision of superannuation for their employes. The latter clause was severely criticised by Sam Clark (Liberal, West Northumberland). "Why should a library employe have his insurance kept up for him by the city any more than any other ordinary mortal?" asked Mr. Clark. "There is too much provision in the public service of this kind, when other people haven't got it."

Manning Doherty (Progressive, East Kent was opposed unless those benefitted carried the system out of their own pockets. He did not think outsiders should be taxed for their benefit. The Premier said that as most of the salaries of those concerned were low, that instead of increasing the salaries, the boards provided for their old age by creating the fund, saving these on poor salaries for caring for themselves by niggardly living.

CAMPBELLFORD WHEAT DROPS

Struck Toboggan on Saturday, Dropping 15 Cents in Day.

LOCAL PRICES

CAMPBELLFORD, March 24. — The price of wheat here struck the toboggan Saturday morning, when it dropped to $1.25, a decline of 15 cents a bushel since the close of the previous days business. Very little grain is offered for sale as the farmers took advantage of the high prices during the winter to dispose of their surplus stock. One farmer, near Crowe Bay, who has 1000 bushels of what in his granary, refused an offer of $1.85 for it during the winter, believing that before spring the price would go to $2.00.

Local Prices.

Barley here is quoted by dealers at 80 cents and oats at 60, the price of the latter cereal having recently dropped from 80 cents. Buckwheat brings 80 cents. There was a large acreage of this grain sown last spring on account of the lateness of the season and so strong was the demand for seed that farmers paid $1.25 for what they are now selling for 80 cents.

What Farmers Buy.

The above grains are all that the farmers have for sale at this season and the prices of what they require for seed provides an interesting study in the fluctuations of the farmers business. Sweet clover seed, for which there appears to be an increasing demand as the crop in increasing in popularity with the dairy farmers especially, is quoted at $4.50 a bushel. One local farmer, who raised 150 bushels lost fall sold it for $5.90 a bushel just as it came from the threshing mill.

Red Clover this year is worth $25 a bushel. In Central Ontario very little of this seed was produced last year owing to the unfavorable weather conditio ns but a few local farmers who secured a yield disposed of it for prices varying from $12 to $16. One year ago the top price for red clover seed was $9.00.

Alfalfa seed is worth $14.50 a bushel and Alsike $12.00. In war days the price of the latter seed soared as high as $40 or more a bushel and many an Ontario farmer is still cherishing the memory of the prosperous times when he cleaned up a small forune of easy money.

The price of timothy seed in Campbellford is $5.50 but the fall is the season when there is the greatest demand for this product.

Seed Required.

One bushel of red clover will seed from six to eight acres of land according to the nature of the soil, a bushel of alsike is sufficient for 10 acres, and the same quality of alfalfa or sweet clover seed for three acres. When the farmer sows the coarser varieties of grain he is tolerably certain of some kind of crop but with the fewer seeds such as red clover and alsike he must take his chances on securing a crop.

WHEN nature carved a waterway a thousand miles into the heart of North America, she marked the centre from which would radiate the commerce of a vast Empire. From the very beginning, trade routes naturally converged at that point—and there was laid the foundation of the City of Montreal.

When Canada asserted her nationhood by linking her scattered Provinces by the rails of the Canadian Pacific, Montreal became a pivotal point, not only of Canadian traffic, but of a transportation system that "spans the world."

Montreal, however, is fortunate in more than geographical location. The great transportation projects that found their centre in Montreal found here also men able to finance, build and conduct them. Thus the control of the World's greatest transportation system is held by Canadians for the inestimable advantage of Canada in both Federal and International affairs.

EXPENSIVE COMMISSIONS.

The London Advertiser, one of the best journalistic friends of the Federal administration, suggests to the Dominion Government the advisability of finding a simpler and cheaper method of securing informations than by means of appointing commissions.

It is an opinion that is shared by many people throughout the country, who cannot see why much of the data secured in this expensive way could not be obtained by the Government from the facilities at its disposal.

The Pulpwood Commission cost the people of Canada $75,672, the Grain Commission $167,605.

These investigations have been concluded, the reports have been made, but neither problems is any nearer solution than before the commissions were appointed.

Canada has paid a quarter of a million dollars for a couple of blue books.

"There must be," as the Advertiser puts it, "a simpler way of accomplishing the same purpose, and the Government would be well advised to seek it out."

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

Following upon the health addresses given here last week by Dr. McCullough, Chief Medical Health Officer for the Province, Mayor Turner has received some interesting data from Dr. F. W. G. McKay, Medical Office of Health of Oshawa, who was in Peterboro to hear Dr. McCullough.

Oshawa's Medical Officer shows clearly that attention to public health pays by relating some of the results in the community over whose health he presides.

Twenty years ago, when Oshawa's population was only 4,918 and the town obtained its water supply from wells, there were 132 cases of typhoid fever.

For the past fifteen years the water has been filtered and chlorinated, with the result that, although the population has grown to 16,059, there have been only one or two cases in the past ten years, and none of these occurred in families using the city's water supply.

The infant mortality has been reduced in the past five years from 158 per 1,000 to 80 per 1,000.

Twenty years ago there was no supervision of the milk supply; now 98 per cent. of the milk sold in Oshawa is pasteurized, and all cattle from which milk in the raw state is furnished are tested free for T.B.

Splendid child welfare, care and general nursing has been given by the nurses of the Public Health Department, and it is a matter of record that not one infant or young child brought under the control of the Public Health nurses died from diarrhoeal conditions during 1924.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Petitions are being circulated and largely signed for presentation to the City Council asking that a system of daylight saving be adopted in Peterboro for the summer months, as in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston and other cities.

Since the summer time method was first adopted these centres have stoutly refused to abandon the daylight plan, even in the face of the decision of the Federal Government to give up the idea on a national basis.

The majority of the citizens of these places are warmly in favour of summer time, and it is significant that the cities that have had the longest experience with the system are its most enthusiastic advocates.

In Grea Britain daylight saving has been permanently adopted, and France and Belgium are co-operating in synchronizing the period of summer time in all three countries.

It is fairly evident, therefore, that there must be considerable merit in the plan, and that the longer its benefits are experienced the more satisfaction is engendered, which gives its local advocates a strong argument in presenting their case to the Council.

From the viewpoint of recreation, daylight saving is, of course, unassailable.

The extra hour of daylight at the end of the day gives the worker a splendid opportunity for healthful recreation in whatever line of sport he is interested, and from that angle there is nothing to be said against the scheme.

Peterboro voted on the question several years ago, and the daylight saving plan was rejected by a small majority in a very light vote.

The readiness with which the petition is being signed indicates that the citizens may have had a change of heart since that time.

CANADIAN PORTRAITS.

From the publishers, the Ryerson Press, the Examiner has received a copy of a new Canadian book, which gains added interest from the fact that it is the work of a resident of Peterboro. "Canadian Portraits" is the title of the volume, and the author is Mr. Adrian Macdonald, M.A., English master at the Peterboro Normal School. He is a son of Norman Alexander Macdonald, for many years a prominent lawyer in London, Ontario. Receiving his preliminary education in the London schools, he later went to Queen's University, and becoming interested in educational work, was engaged as English master at the local Normal School, where his work, both from the standpoint of teaching and along literary lines, has given him an enviable reputation, particularly among Ontario educationists, and he is known as one of the rising young men of the profession in Ontario.

In "Canadian Portraits" Mr. Macdonald has dealt with the biographies of sixteen prominent Canadians. He has wisely not undertaken the task of picturing all Canada's famous men, but has instead attempted with much success to select a representative list of celebrated Canadians "in the hope," as the author himself puts it in his preface, "that the whole would suggest something of what Canadians have achieved."

Viewed in the light of that aim, it may be said that Mr. Macdonald has succeeded admirably. His pen pictures of the men he has selected as famous Canadians are striking in their attention to the personality of the celebrity under review. The political history in which they were involved has been given the minor part in the story, with the result that the reader sees the man himself—and only as a background the history of his era. The national policy of Sir John A. Macdonald is thus given but a scant paragraph, the author using the space to better advantage in presenting a portrait of the statesman.

Mr. Macdonald's list includes Wolfe and Montcalm, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Isaac Brock, Thomas Chandler Haliburton, author of "Sam Slick"; Joseph Howe, Dr. Egerton Ryerson, the educationist; Sir James Douglas, who played such a great part in the development of British Columbia; Lord Strathcona, Father Lacombe, Dr. Louis Frechette, the French-Canadian poet; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir William Osler, the famous physician; Paul Peel, artist, and Archibald Lampman, the poet.

"Canadian Portraits" should be a welcome addition to the shelves of every Canadian library. Its style is bright and lucid, a vast amount of research has evidently been devoted in securing the information required, and the volume is full of interest. It cannot be read without a keener recognition of the debt we owe to the builders of this country, and without a deeper pride in Canada and its people.

Mr. Macdonald has made a valuable contribution to Canadian biography in "Canadian Portraits."

TOO EXPENSIVE

Most Canadians will agree with Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, in his contention that the Senate is essential to Canada's stability and that it should not be abolished. Several objections to the retention of the Senate have been raised from time to time. Chief among them, of course, is the argument that it is not a representative or democratic body in that it is not elected by the people. This is true, of course, but it is well to keep in mind that the Senate, with few exceptions, is composed of men who have given long service to the public life of the country as members of the elected House of Commons or in one of the various Provincial assemblies. Many of the members of the Upper Chamber, from time to time, are former Cabinet Ministers. This means, of course, that the Senators are men of experience and standing and, in addition, that they have that ripeness of judgment that can only come with age. Further, the appointive character of the Senate tends to remove that body from the ordinary sphere of party politics, to place it somewhat above mere partisanship and therefore to secure, in its decisions, a view that party considerations often prevent the Commons from accepting. As a brake to ill-considered and hasty legislation, legislation that may be for party rather than national purposes, it is in a position to accomplish much good for the country.

There is one obvious fault that may be found with the Senate as with practically all other public bodies in Canada and that is that its membership is too large. In proportion to the present size of the Commons this is probably not the case, but the fact remains that the Commons membership is excessive and therefore unduly expensive. The same thing is true of the Ontario Legislature. It is likewise true of the Essex County Council, the Windsor City Council and most other organizations. A tremendous saving of money could be effected by a substantial reduction along these lines. What we want, what we must have, in this country and this Province is not more, but less, government. The present system is unwieldy, expensive and inefficient. The time has come for a change.

With Mayor Mitchell's plea for a redistribution of Provincial authority on a proper population basis, there can be no legitimate quarrel. If, as His Worship says, the urban centres are producing 80 per cent. of the Government's revenues it goes without saying that they are entitled to a preponderance of representation. It is not necessary to quarrel with the Mayor's view, however, in order to call for a reduction in the size of the Legislature. The plain truth of the matter is that there are too many members in the Provincial House. The thing to do, then, is to cut down the number of members per thousand of population and, at the same time, readjust the representation in such a way as to make the system more equitable. This would not doubt mean the elimination of a number of existing rural municipalities, and, difficult as this may be, it would seem to be the only logical course to pursue under the circumstances. Representation by population, or, as we used to call it, "rep by pop," should be the determining factor at all times, not overlooking the fact, however, that, in odd cases, area and geographical conditions may make some easing of this rule necessary.

There are two big problems in this country at the present time. One of them is taxes and the other is immigration. The former is, to no small extent, involved in the latter. With more people to levy upon, the per capita tax would naturally be lower. The more people the lower the tax—unless the politicians did not seize upon increased population as an excuse for devising new ways and means of spending the public's money. But until we get the great additional population that we should have, we must consider other methods of reducing taxes. The most obvious one is to cut the cost of government and the first way to bring this about is to reduce the amount of government, starting with the Federal Parliament and working down to the smallest Municipal Council. We have too many public bodies and those we have are too large. Reducing the cost of government and thereby reducing taxation is the biggest job that faces the nation today. If the men who now handle our affairs will not attempt it we must elect those who will.—Border Cities Star.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Corn took the lions share of attention to-day in the grain trade, plunging downward in price 6 5-8 cents for May delivery and as much as 8 3-4 cents for deliveries more distant. The September delivery dropped to the lowest level yet this season.

Flurried selling in the corn market resulted from persistent slowness in shipping demand in the face of the fact that navigation on the Great Lakes is soon to open. Profit-taking by speculators, however, led to a rally in corn prices at the last. Corn closed unsettled, 3 to 3 3-4 cents net lower, May 113 1-4 to 113 1-2. Wheat finished strong at 3-4 to 4 1-4 centsadvanc e, May 169 1-2 to 170 1-4 and July 148 1-2 to 149, with oats 1-8 cent off to 1-8 cent up, and provisions showing 10 to 35 cents decline.

EGG MARKET

OTTAWA, Ont., March 23.—Markets have slightly advanced on the past week's trading. To-day Ontario country shippers report paying extras 29, firsts 26, seconds 25 and making sales extras 33, first 31, seconds 27 f.o.b.

Toronto jobbing specials 39, extras 37, firsts 35, seconds 32.

Montreal jobbing extras 38 to 40, firsts 36 to 38, seconds 32 to 33.

Manitoba dealers quoting delivered extras 34, firsts 32, seconds 28.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 23. — There was a good enquiry from foreign buyers for oats here to-day but as the prices bid were not in line with exporters' views, no new business was done, the trade in cash grain in the domestic market was quiet, there being little demand from exporters or local buyers for supplies. The tone of the market for oats was stronger and prices were marked up one cent per bushel.

A firmer feeling developed in the spring wheat flour market and millers generally marked up prices thirty cents per barrel. Prices for winter wheat flour were also advanced 15 cents per barrel.

There was no change in the condition of the millfeed market, the demand being moderate and prices steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was inactive.

Prices of all grades of eggs were well maintained under a steady demand. Little business was transacted in butter but the tone was firm. Extreme dullness marked the trade in cheese, fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods being quoted at 22 to 22 1-3 cents pound, and No 2 grades at 21 to 21 1-2 cents per pound.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, March 23. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 1-8.
Sterling cables $4.78 1-2.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 23. — Export buyers were in the market yesterday for a good supply of cattle, but, and probably for the same reason, the butcher trade opened slow, and continued a little on the draggy side for the whole of the session. There was little if any change in prices. Best heavy export steers sold firm from $7.50 to $8.25 with a few tops at $8.50. Choicest butcher offerings sold steady from $7.25 up to $7.75. There was a good market for feeders, choice short keep keeping up to $7.25.

Calves barely steady, a few tops at $13.

Sheep and lambs strong at $16 for top lambs.

9,249 Tons of Bituminous By Canadian Ships in 1924.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 24.—(Canadian Press). — The extent to which ships of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine are being used to carry bituminous coal from United States ports to Eastern Canadian ports in the last three years was the subject of a question from Brig. Gen. J. A. Clark, Conservative of Durrard in the House of Commons yesterday.

Gen. Clark was informed that in 1922, none was carried, in 1923, 2,235 tons were carried and in 1924 a total of 9,249 tons were carried on these ships.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

CHAPTER XXIII.

No man has ever looked clearly into the mystery of death as it is impinged upon the senses of the northern dog. It comes to him, sometimes, with the wind; most frequently it must come with the wind, and yet there are ten thousand masters in the northland who will swear that their dogs have given warning of death hours before it actually came; and there are many of these thousands who know from experience that their teams will stop a quarter of half a mile from a stranger cabin in which there is unburied dead.

Yesterday Baree had smelled death, and he knew without process of reasoning that the dead was Pierrot. How he knew this, and why he accepted the fact as inevitable, is one of the mysteries which at times seems to give the direct challenge to those who concede nothing more than instinct to the brute mind. He knew that Pierrot was dead without exactly knowing what death was. But of one thing he was sure: he would never see Pierrot again; he would never hear his voice again; he would never hear again the swish-swish-swish of his snowshoes in the trail ahead, and so on the trap-line he did not look for Pierrot. Pierrot was gone forever.

"At midnight Baree came to the tiny amphitheatre in the forest where Pierrot had cut the logs for the first of his trap-line cabins."

But Baree had not yet associated death with Nepeese. He was filled with a great uneasiness; what came to him from out of the chasm had made him tremble with fear and suspense; he sensed the thrill of something strange, of something impending, and yet even as he had given the death-howl in the chasm, it must have been for Pierrot. For he believed that Nepeese was alive, and he was now just as sure that he would overtake her on the trap-line as he was positive yesterday that he would find her at the birch-bark tepee.

Since yesterday morning's breakfast with the Willow, Baree had gone without eating; to appease his hunger meant to hunt, and his mind was too filled with his quest of Nepeese for that. He would have gone hungry all that day, but in the third mile from the the cabin he came to a trap in which there was a big snowshoe rabbit. The rabbit was still alive, and he killed it and ate his fill. Until dark he did not miss a trap. In one of them there was a lynx; in another a fisher-cat; out on the white surface of a lake he sniffed at a snowy mound under which lay the body of a red fox killed by one of Pierrot's poison-baits. Both the lynx and the fisher-cat were alive, and the steel chains of their traps clanked sharply as they prepared to give Baree battle. But Baree was uninterested. He hurried on, his uneasiness growing as the day darkened and he found no sign of the Willow.

It was a wonderful clear night after the storm—cold and brilliant, with the shadows standing out as clearly as living things. The third idea came to Baree now. He was, like all animals, largely of one idea at a time—a creature with whom all lesser impulses were governed by a single leading impulse. And this impulse, in the glow of the starlit night, was to reach as quickly as possible the first of Pierrot's two cabins on the trap-line. There he would find Nepeese!

We won't call the process by which Baree came to this conclusion a process of reasoning; instinct or reasoning, whatever it was, a fixed and positive faith came to Baree just the same. He began to miss the traps in his haste to cover distance—to reach the cabin. It was twenty-five miles from Pierrot's burned home to the first trap-cabin, and Baree had made ten of these by nightfall. The remaining fifteen were the most difficult. In the open spaces the snow was belly-deep and soft; frequently he plunged through drifts in which for a few moments he was buried. Three times during the early part of the night, Baree heard the savage dirge of the wolves. Once it was a wild pæan of triumph as the hunters pulled down their kill less than half a mile away in the deep forest. But the voice no longer called to him. It was repellant—a voice of hatred and of treachery. Each time that he heard it he stopped in his tracks and snarled, while his spine stiffened.

At midnight Baree came to the tiny amphitheatre in the forest where Pierrot had cut the logs for the first of his trap-line cabins. For at least a minute Baree stood at the edge of the clearing, his ears very alert, his eyes bright with hope and expectation, while he sniffed the air. There was no smoke, no sound, no light in the one window of the log shack.

The snow was drifted at the doorway, and here Baree sat down and whined. It was no longer the anxious, questing whine of a few hours ago. Now it voiced hopelessness and a deep despair. For half an hour he sat shivering with his back to the door and his face to the starlit wilderness, as if there still remained the fleeting hope that Nepeese might follow after him over the trail. Then he burrowed himself a hole deep in the snowdrift and passed the remainder of the night in uneasy slumber.

With the first light of day, Baree resumed the trail. He was not so alert this morning. There was the disconsolate droop to his tail which the Indians call the Akoosewin—the sign of the sick dog. And Baree was sick—not of body but of soul. The keenness of his hope had died, and he no longer expected to find the Willow. The second cabin at the far end of the trap-line drew him on, but it inspired in him none of the enthusiasm with which he had hurried to the first. He travelled slowly and spasmodically, his suspicions of the forests again replacing the excitement of his quest. He approached each of Pierrot's traps and deadfalls cautiously, and twice he showed his fangs—once at a marten that snapped at him from under a root where it had dragged the trap in which it was caught, and the second time at a big snowy owl that had come to steal bait and was now a prisoner at the end of a steel chain.

There were plenty of rabbits in Pierrot's traps, and Baree did not go hungry. He reached the second trap-line cabin late in the afternoon, after ten hours of travelling. He met with no very great disappointment here, for he had not anticipated very much. The snow had banked this cabin even higher than the other. It lay three feet deep against the door, and the window was white with a thick coating of frost. At this place, which was close to the edge of a big barren, and unsheltered by the thick forests farther back, Pierrot had built a shelter for his firewood, and in this shelter Baree made his temporary home. All the next day he remained somewhere near the end of the trap-line, skirting the edge of the barren and investigating the short side line of a dozen traps which Pierrot and Nepeese had strung through a swamp in which there had been many signs of lynx. It was the third day before he set out on his return to the Gray Loon.

BIG FAIR DEFICIT.

LONDON, March 23.—Parliament has been asked to appropriate more than $5,000,000 to make up the deficit of the big British Empire Exhibition at Wembley last year, and to continue it this year. The deficit is almost double that amount, but much of it has been made up by private individuals.

BUSY WEEK FOR PRINCE BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE

Leaves Next Saturday for South African and South American Tour.

BIDDING FAREWELL

Congratulated John Barrymore Upon His Production of "Hamlet" Last Night.

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press). — This will be a very busy week for the Prince of Wales who is leaving Saturday on his tour of South Africa and South America, to be gone from England at least six months. The Prince is adding speed to his social whirl and bidding as many friends farewell as possible, there being but one public engagement on his schedule this week, that as guest of honor at the South African Luncheon Club to-day. On Friday he will make a semi-official visit to Wembley Exhibition, which will be re-opened to the public in May.

Much of the Prince's time is being spent in clearing up his business affairs before leaving England and in making final arms for the journey, but he hopes to participate in one short hunt with his favorite fox-hounds before he goes. The Prince, however, has given up any idea of taking in any of this week's internationally known racing events, at which the heir to the Throne, together with the rest of England's Royalty, are usually present.

Social Relaxation.

Although the Prince's daylight hours are fully occupied, he has not yet given up his evening pastimes of the theatre and dance. Nearly every evening he drops into at least one west-end dance club with a party of friends for an hour.

As the day for his departure approaches, the Prince's public appearances are hailed with more than usual enthusiasm.

Saturday night he attended a light opera at a theatre in the Strand and the crowds that assembled to watch the Prince and the other celebrities of his party held up traffic for some minutes. Men, women and children rushed toward the Prince as he came out of the theatre, attempted to grasp his hand, clung to his arms and nearly dragged his overcoat from his shoulders. He received these friendly aggressive attentions from his subjects good naturedly, smiled and bowed as well as he could considering the jam around him.

Radio on Repulse.

The battle cruiser Repulse, which is to take the Prince on his southern tour, has been outfitted with the latest wireless equipment, a receiving set having been installed in the Prince's suite so that he will be able to listen in at sea. The speech he is to deliver upon his arrival at Cape Town, and his later speeches at Johannesburg, Pretoria and Durban will be broadcast. The Prince's brother, Prince Henry, will accompany him to Portsmouth for the start of the tour on Saturday.

Last night the Prince of Wales went to the Haymarket Theatre to see John Barrymore's "Hamlet," it being the first occasion that Royalty has witnessed the actor's production in London. After the play the Prince received Barrymore and congratulated him upon his fine presentation of the Shakespearean role.

MIXED FARMING IS WEST'S NEED

Day of "Wheat Mining" Has Passed, Declares National Dairy Secretary.

BETTER METHODS.

MONTREAL, March 24. — The farmers of the Western Provinces must adopt mixed farming, with production of dairy stuffs such as cheese and butter, if they were to continue to make money and keep up the value of their lands, declared D'Arcy Scott, of Ottawa, Secretary and Treasurer of the National Dairy Council of Canada, in an address here Monday. The day of "wheat-mining," had passed, he considered, and the West must follow the example of Quebec, which was today the leading dairy province of the Dominion.

Within a comparatively short time, said Mr. Scott, there had been a marvellous improvement in the methods of dairying and the distribution of milk, especially with regard to the adoption of sanitary methods. The dairy farmer today had to practise scientific methods or get out of business.

With 3,600,000 milch cows, 300,000 dairy farmers, 1,500 creameries and many thousand cheese factories Canadians were the greatest butter eaters in the world with an average annual per capita consumption in 1923 of 27.43 pounds, although the speaker regretted that Canadians did not eat much cheese, their annual consumption of this product being only 3.12 pounds.

LONDON, March 24. — (United Press).—On the bleak headland of Marwick, north-west of the mainland of Orkney, will be erected a memorial to the late Earl Kitchener, overlooking the angry waters where Kitchener went down in the cruiser Hampshire. Two miles off this headland is believed to be the last resting place of the great British soldier.

SLUMP IN GRAIN SPRING TRAFFIC HURTS LINDSAY

Expected Spring Movement From Rail Head Has Not Yet Developed.

BUSINESS LAGS

C.N.R. Employees Have Had Little Work During Last Five Months.

LINDSAY, March 24.—(Special to the Examiner).—The slump in the demand for western grain has seriously affected business conditions in Lindsay. This town has been looked upon as an important railways centre, and business is always brisk when there is activity in railway circles.

Notwithstanding the fact that there have been millions of bushels of grain in the elevators at Tiffin since the close of navigation in the fall, the slump in the movement of grain from that terminal has been unprecedented. The past five months have been trying ones for railway employees here, as very little grain has been moved. Many of the men have had little or nothing to do all winter. The monthly pay roll locally on the C.N.R. used to average $60,000 to $75,000 monthly, and this meant much to the merchants. Of course the installation of high power locomotives has had the effect of reducing the number of crews, but this has had nothing to do with the slump in the movement of grain. It was anticipated that with the arrival of spring conditions would improve and that the grain would start to move, but there are no signs of a movement at present.

PULP EXPORTS SHOW DECREASE

United States Best Customer of Canada's of Wood, Pulp and Paper.

OTTAWA, March 24.—The United States continues to be Canada's chief customer for wood pulp, pulpwood and newsprint paper. In February 133,891,200 pounds of wood pulp, 155,915 cords of pulpwood and 200,673,100 pounds of newsprint paper was exported to that country. The value of these is placed at $11-904,102, in a report issued Monday by the Bureau of Statistics.

Exports to the United Kingdom under these three headings last month were restricted to newsprint to the value of $52,787. Japan was a big customer for wood pulp, taking 8,367,500 pounds, which is valued at $262,353.

The total quantity of wood pulp exported last month was 143,592,500 pounds, valued at $3,569,615, a marked increase over January and also over February 1924.

The total exports of newsprint last month were 207,714,800 pounds, a very slight decrease from January last and an increase from February, 1924. The monetary value, $7,442,-348, is about the same for the three periods mentioned.

For the twelve months ended February 28 last, exports of wood pulp are shown as 1,618,318,500 pounds valued at $41,081,190; of pulpwood 1,404,384 cords valued at $14,126,108, and of newsprint 2,469,-132100 pounds worth $81,347,882. The figures for wood pulp represent a slight decrease from the corresponding twelve months; for the other two items they represent a slight increase.

SOLD SHEPHERD GERMS.

A new picture of Dr. [illegible] C. Faiman, Chicago, who has confessed that he conspired with William Shepherd to take of the life of William McClintock, "millionaire orphan," for which he says he was to receive $100,000. Faiman was indicted with Shepherd after giving a detailed account of how he supplied Shepherd with germs and taught him how they could be used.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

DENIES STORY.

The Editor of the Examiner,
Sir—

I, Abbie McIlmoyl, Wife of the late Nathan McIlomyl, who was on Monday Mar 14th, interred in Lakefield Cemetery, arrived in the City to day and my attention was drawn to an item which appeared in your paper of Mar 16 th, which stated as follows? Mrs. McIlmoyl the dead mans wife, from who he had obtained a legal seperation was not present, being held by the Authorities at Fort Erie. When he left her, Nathan McIlmoyl left her practically all he possessed. Now Mr Editor, that whole statement is untrue and misleading. In the first place I was present at Comstocks Saturday 14th, inst and viewed my Husbands remains and on Monday I was there when the funeral left and followed a certain distance, and up till that time I had not even left Peterborough, so you will see how misleading and untrue this soandalous story is, After the Funeral had left the City I took Train for Toronto and on Tuesday I left Toronto for Fort Erie, so the Authorities spoken of had not much chance to hold me up before the Funeral In the second place regarding the legal seperation the first time I ever had a suspicion of such, was when I read your wholly incorrect report. It was I who left my Husband and gave him half of all we had, as everything was in my name, If there is any doubt in that line the arrangement was made in the presence of Chief Newhall who investigated our case, He heard all the advice I gave Him, and if he had carried it out things might have been different, but in a very few weeks the same Police Officer had to escort Nathan McIllmoy and the two Women back from Buffalo who were the cause of most of our trouble. I have no desire to let the public know all of my trouble, but in all all fairness I hope you will publish this letter as it is, simply the truth and not what relatives say, for it was the mischievous tongues and interference of others who ought to have known better which no doubt was the prime cause of my unfortunate husband choosing the path, which the Chief told him at the time would sooner or later lead him to destruction.

Yours sincerely,
ABBIE McILLMOYL

Have you a "Twenty Pay Life Policy?"

A Policy on your life will do much towards carrying out your intentions—whether you live or die.

Nothing can absolutely replace your life—but a policy will in some measure offset the financial loss which will come to those who now look to you for support.

It may pay off the mortgage, supply food and clothing for your family, keep the children at school.

It may be all that is left of your life work—to keep you in comfort in your old age.

But—your Policy must be large enough.

The Twenty Payment Life

policy is selected by many for the following reasons:

Premiums cease in twenty years—therefore your policy will be fully paid for before you reach later life—when your earning power will have declined.

Cash values increase year by year, and after the third annual premium the policy cannot lapse as long as sufficient value exists.

Dividends are paid during the twenty years and as long as the policy remains in force thereafter.

After one year the policy is indisputable, and you may reside or travel in any part of the world, or engage in any occupation (except aviation) without affecting your insurance.

A twenty pay life policy will provide an amount in event of death equal to twenty or thirty times the annual premium, and produce an estate of $2,000, $5,000, $10,000, or more as arranged.

An Easy Savings Plan

These active progressive years of life in which you are earning the most money are the years in which premiums can be most easily met.

Twenty years is a convenient period and premiums spread over that length of time are moderate and easy to handle.

If You Are Insurable

—do not delay decision on this important matter—delays are dangerous.

MAJOR BELFORD STANDS PAT ON BEER QUESTION

Rumors That He Had Altered His Position Are Apparently Unfounded.

OPPOSE AMENDMENT.

Statement to Presbytery of Peterborough Sets All Doubt at Rest.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 24. — Major Belford, in a communication to Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, Clerk of the Peterboro Presbytery, announces his intention to vote against the proposed amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act, increasing the alcoholic strength of beer.

Soon after the announcement was made in the Legislature that the government proposed to amend the O.T.A. so as to permit an increase in the alcoholic strength of beer that could be legally sold, a number of letters from temperance supporters in this place were sent to Major Belford, M.P.P., for East Northumberland, asking him to use his influence to prevent the adoption of such a measure. To all of these communications Major Belford returned courteous replies stating that he was opposed to an increase in the strength of beer and that he would vote against any such change in the act. This decision of the representative of the riding was received with unqualified satisfaction by the prohibitionists throughout his constituency, although the letters were not given space in any newspaper. At least one of these was a communication addressed to a public body and as such was not privileged.

The Major's Speech and Vote.

Some time after the receipt of these communications, Major Belford spoke in the Legislature on the address and of course dealt with the proposed amendment to the O.T.A. His friends here say that the report of his remarks on that occasion as carried in the Canadian Press despatches, represented the Major's position, giving the public the impression that he had changed his mind since writing his constituents in Campbellford. In that speech the Major said that he proposed to vote against the amendments to the address introduced respectively by Opposition leader Sinclair and Progressive leader Raney. His statement was that these really amounted to votes of want of confidence in the government and for this reason he would oppose them.

Reply to Presbytery

A more recent communication, one dated March 13, shows that Major Belford still stands pat on the main issue. At the recent meeting of the Peterboro Presbytery a strong resolution protesting against any tinkering with the Ontario Temperance Act was adopted, and copies of this were sent to Major Belford, W. E. Bradburn, M.P.P. for West Peterboro and Sam Clark, M.P.P., West Northumberland.

The Campbellford representative of The Examiner was in Hastings on Monday and was shown the original of two letters in reply to the resolution referred to, one from Major Belford and the other from Mr. Bradburn. Mr. Clarke has not yet been heard from.

The Major Stands Pat.

Major Belford writes in courteous vein and at considerable length. He states in unequivocal terms that he is opposed to stronger beer and believes that evil will result from any such relaxation of the existing regulations. While he is satisfied that the Government is sincere in its avowed desire to advance cause of temperance, he will vote against the bill, which is now in the committee stage, when it is presented in the House.

Mr. Bradburn's Position.

Mr. Bradburn expressed regret that he cannot comply with the wishes of the Presbytery, as set forth in the resolution. The consumption of strong liquor, he says, has increased alarmingly in recent years, and it is with the object of staying this that the Ontario Temperance Act is to be amended. The member for West Peterboro is convinced that the proposed increase in the strength of beer is the greatest measure in the interests of temperance that has ever been introduced in the Legislature of Ontario.

Major Belford's latest communication has satisfied the temperance forces that his position, as stated at the outset of this agitaion remains unchanged.

Her Headaches Were So Bad She Couldn't Do Anything

Once the head starts to ache and pain you may rest assured that the cause comes from the stomach, liver or bowels, and the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

There is no better remedy for headaches of every description than BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. as it removes the cause of the headaches in a way that no other remedy will do.

Mrs. Wm. Helpard, Lower Stewiacke, N. S., writes: "I suffered for a long time with my head. It would ache and ache until it made me so sick I could not do anything, but after taking four bottles of B.B.B. I feel that I cannot recommend it too highly to all those suffering from headaches of any kind."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past 46 years and is recognized by all who have used it to be without an equal as a remedy for headaches; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MUSICAL NUMBERS

The Orangemen of L.O.L. 294 held a basket social and entertainment recently in the Lodge room. Although the roads were not good, there was a large number gathered and spent a very enjoyable evening together. In the absence of Rev. E. W. Rowland, Mr. Walter Magee ably filled the chair.

Pleasant Quartet; duet, Misses Pogue; reading, Mr. Wm. Howden.

After the programme, the selling of the baskets took place. Mr. Wm. Howden conducted the sales, some of which went as high as $1.65.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE FIND QUICK RELIEF

By Enriching Their Blood With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with impurities, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather may start the tortures of rheumatism, but this is not the cause. The cause is in the blood. Victims of this malady have every reason to fear the first dull ache in the limbs and joints, followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms which may shortly leave the victim pain-racked and helpless. Rubbing liniments and applying hot applications may give relief, but that is all, and the pains are soon back again. You must treat the trouble through the blood, and the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is proved by Mr. Elias Bruce, Upper Clarence, N.S., who says:—"Some years ago I had a bad attack of rheumatism which left me helpless. I had to have help to dress myself and could not even lace my boots without help. Of course the trouble caused me much suffering, and I was in this condition for about ten months. One day a friend who called to see me advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began taking them and soon found some relief, and a short while after all signs of the rheumatism were gone and I have not since had any return of the trouble."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PIG IRON PRODUCTION HIGHER IN FEBRUARY

Output in Canada Was 29,506 Long Tons.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The production of pig iron in Canada was 29,506 long tons in February, an increase of 4 per cent. over the 28,302 tons made in January. The February output included 20,671 tons of basic pig iron, 4,432 tons of foundry iron and 4,403 tons of malleable iron. Of the total production, 220,598 tons, or 70 per cent. was made for the further use of the reporting fires and the balance of 8,908 tons was intended for sale.

Blast furnace charges during February consisted of 56,135 long tons of imported iron ore, 37,746 short tons of coke and 17,456 short tons of limestone.

The cumulative production of pig iron for the two months ending February amounted to 57,808 tons as compared with the 123,990 tons reported for the first two months of 1924. The decline was 53 per cent.

CHILDREN HAVE SCHOOL SOIREE

Annual Prize Giving at Deloro Sunday School—Happy Time.

THE WINNERS

MARMORA, March 24.—The annual prize giving and party in connection with Deloro Sunday school took place on Friday evening with an assemblage of over seventy scholars and well over fifty parents and friends. Never has a merrier or more animated throng of juveniles been seen in the Deloro Hall. The proceedings opened with the singing of "Stand Up, Stand Up For Jesus." Then followed the ever popular musical chairs, which was played with utmost zest. The children then put on the following programme: Duet, Eleanor Reynolds and Dorothy Haseke; song, "That Old Irish Mother of Mine," Ernest Wallace; recitation, "Three Rules," Dorothy Hayes; recitation, Bert Wallace; solo, "Jesus Bids Us Shine," Lois Scott; recitation, Ewart Haacke; pianoforte solo, Dorothy Haacke; recitation, "Violets," Rosie Mantle; trio, "Jesus Loves Me," Marjory Loveless, Barbara Wright, Grace Hemphill; recitation, "Only a Baby Small," Edith Phillips; recitation, Burnett Buskard; recitation, "Pussy Willows," Alice Cross; recitation, "Jimmy's Walk," Barbara Wright; piano solo, Fay Buskard; recitation, Harry Haacke; recitation, "A Yard of Calico," Doris McInroy; chorus, "The Flag," nine senior girls; recitation, Berenice McInroy; recitation, Robert Elliott; piano solo, Eileen Mantle; recitation, Jack Berry; recitation, James Cross; recitation, Maurice Barlow; recitation, Wilfrid Gray; solo, "Jesus Loves Me," Torin Malvaer; recitation, Marjorie Loveless; duet, Dorothy Haacke and Myrtle Craig.

The children were then treated to three humorous films, after which they sat down to an excellent meal provided for them by ladies of the village. Out of his ready generosity Arthur Hart of the Hub, donated a very prime cake on which he inscribed, "God Bless Our Sunday School."

When all had done justice to the good things provided, F. A. Bapty presented prizes and gifts to the deserving scholars.

Prizes Presented.

Prizes were awarded to the following for attendance and competency:

Boys—1st Norman Smith, George Mantle, George O'Neill, Willie Skinner; 2nd, Arthur Phillips, Maurice Barlow, John O'Neill. Girls—1st Jean Reynolds. Eileen Mantle, Lulu Gray, Dorothy Gray, Dorothy Haacke. Grils—2nd Mary Hemphill, Fay Buskard, Myrtle Hart, Annie Wallace, Rosie Mantle.

At the conclusion, each child was given a bag of home-made candy. The labours of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Blake in the promotion and continuance of the Sunday school are too widely known to require extolling now. Suffice it to say their pleasure was manifest at the many appreciations accorded them on Friday evening for the part they play in the religious instruction of the young.

Madame Basile Simard completely relieved of Kidney Complication.

ST. GEDEON, Que., March 23.—(Special).—Of the many persons paying their tribute of praise to Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is noticeable that the great majority are women. The reason given for this is that nearly all of women's ills come from the Kidneys.

This Little Brandon Lassie Is Never "Dosed" for Colds

The Browns Now Use the "External" Treatment for Croup and Cold Troubles.

Mrs. John Brown, of 426 24th St., Brandon, Man., is the mother of this fine little girl and one of the many Canadian mothers who now use the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, in treating the colds of all the family. After using Vicks for some time Mrs. Brown writes:

"I have eight small children—aged from one to twelve years—and can certainly say that Vicks is the only cold remedy I have in the house all winter. If the cold is in the childs' head I just put a little up each nostril and it gives relief in a short time. If it is in the chest I rub Vicks well in at night and by morning the cold has almost disappeared. I also use Vicks for chilblains and for burns—in fact, I use it too for severe headaches and find relief in a very short time. I always recommend Vicks to my friends especially those who have children."

Vicks is the eternal direct treatment for cold troubles—absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. It is the ideal treatment for children's colds, just as good, too, for adults.

NORHAM, March 24.—The debate, "Resolved that Intemperance has caused more suffering than War", given in the church hall last Friday night was well attended and proved a real success. Mr .Robert Cowan, who about twenty-five years ago left the parental roof to try his fortunes in the West, is home renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Cowan is one of the few whom Dame Fortune smiled upon and showered this world's goods on him with no niggard hand. He is the son of the late M. J. Cowan who resided on the Thos Adams' farm on the big hill north east of here, which was crowned until recent years with the most beautiful hardwood that ever gladdened the eye of man, much of it yielding over 80 cords of cordwood per acre.

Miss Addie Bell who resided in this locality passed away at the home of her neice, Mrs. H. Jacques.

The recent gale blew down a large barn on the Geo. Grosjene farm half a mile east of the watering trough on the Trenton and Campbellford highway.

Mrs. Chas. Puffer is in Toronto caring for her mother, who had the misfortune to fracture her wrist.

There was much more damage done on the county highway than was at first thought. A Conner the overseer estimates that it will take not less than 500 yards of filling to level up the washout in the north limit of this place.

SPECIAL PREACHER ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Rev. John Gibson Inkster Conducted Communion Service.

BIG CONGREGATION

The service in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning was memorable on account of two factors — first, that this body comprised the whole non-concurring section of the Peterboro Presbyterians, who were met for Communion; and, second, on account of the preacher being an outstanding divine of the same church, Rev. John Gibson Inkster, B.A., of Toronto. In addition, there is the fact that close on 900 people took the Sacrament — a magnificent assemblage of Presbyterian strength in Peterboro.

The feeling in the church was fraught with deep reverence and sincerity—the solemnity of the Communion was visible, in that these people were thus enabled to worship in the faith of their fathers; and the minister, too, with his broad North of Scotland dialect, was unmistakable in his belief of the Bible, the Confession of Faith and the Shorter Cathechism.

The elders were reinforced from those of St. Andrew's and Knox Churches who have joined St. Paul's, and no difference has been noticed in this branch of the officers.

Rev. Mr. Inkster took for his text the 8th verse of the 17th chapter of Matthew: "And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only." The subject of the sermon was "The Transfiguration."

Proceeding, the preacher dealt with the present conditions in the world, and the Church especially. He told how Christ took Peter, James and John to the mountain top, and of the brightness descending from heaven in the forms of Moses and Elias, the representatives of the law and prophecy respectively, as symbols of the standing and reputation Christ had and would have in the world to come.

Reference was also made by Mr. Inkster to the fact that throughout the Old and New Testaments darkness was sought as the time for the prayer times by the prophets and saints, as also by Christ; and further, that the mountain top was an appropriate place to have communion with God, such heights having been chosen in those days, as well as in our present day.

The preacher pleaded with his hearers to close their eyes and ears to the babel of tongues nowadays, especially from the great thinkers and teachers, and put their faith and trust in God, and heed His Holy Word. Thus would come that peace of mind and conscience which are so much wished.

The evening service was well attended, between 700 and 800 people being in the church, and the same spirit of expectation was evident.

Rev. Mr. Inkster was again the preacher.

Next Sunday, Rev. James Cuthbertson, who leaves shortly for his duties in Japan, will have charge of both services.

CAN'T AGREE ON KNOX COLLEGE

Presbyterian Factions Are Unable to Settle Disposition in Conference.

NOW IN COMMITTEE.

TORONTO, March 24—(Canadian Press).—A last effort is being made to settle the question of the disposal of the Presbyterian Church property before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature deals with it as a whole. The committee, after some discussion this morning, and after hearing that Unionists and non-concurring churches were still far from agreement, appointed a sub-committee to try and get the question in shape for the larger committee and the House itself.

If the sub-committee cannot reach definite conclusions, then the issue will be aired in the whole committee and probably in the House.

The Private Bills Committee declined to hear counsel for the two factions concerned until after the sub-committee reports, probably tomorrow. The sub-committee is now meeting behind closed doors.

The chief bone of contention in the conferences held between the the Church groups in the last week is the disposal of Knox College.

MAKE GOVERNMENT KEEP IMMIGRANTS

Labor Leader Would Have Immigrants Maintained for Two Years if Needed.

OTTAWA, March 24 (Canadian Press).—Immigrant and unemployed were discussed in the House of Commons yesterday on a motion of J. S. Woodsworth, Labor Leader, seeking to make the Government responsible for the maintenance of immigrants in the first two years of their residence in Canada, if they could not secure employment. An amendment by William Irvine, Labor member for Calgary, suggested that the Government should resign if it could not introduce an effective policy on employment. The original resolution found little favor except in a limited group of Western members, and at a late hour a motion by a Government supporter to adjourn the debate was carried on division.

QUIET TALKS ARE MUCH APPRECIATED

Rev. S. D. Gordon Had Big Audiences During His Week Here.

Those who have read, and been helped by, the "Quiet Talks" books written by Rev. S. D. Gordon, of New York, were glad of the opportunity of hearing him during the week's servies at George St. Church.

The two "Need" verses were dwelt upon: Matthew 6:8," Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him" and Philipians 4:19;"My God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in glory by Chris Jesus." The first implies a reservoir able to supply "all of my life, and all of our lives together." The first implies a reservoir able to supply "all of my life, and all of our lives together." The second itemizes the needs as though God says : "Each time you are needing something let me see your face upturned, hear your voice, read your eyes eagerly expectant," and then He will "fill full this thing that's lacking in me." According to His riches not our poverty—from His reservoir, not our tin cup, remembering" it is the overflow only that helps other folks."

"The greatest people are those who pray," said Dr. Gordon as he developed his subject. 'The Listening Side of Prayer, "whose prayers are met with the sweat and blood of a man, like His in Gethsemane."

There are five stages in the prayer life—it is an act, a habit, a mental attitude, a life, and finally the man himself becomes a prayer "walking around, shod in shoes, in daily life." To know how to pray carries with it the whole secret of everything else, for knowing brings the practising along for it.

Four rules, and three conditions, were dwelt upon as essential to prevailing prayer. 1. Prayer need time, daily quietly alone and when not too tired. Listening is a big part of prayer, and if too weary, we cannot take in what God says. 2. Prayer needs a definite place. "Oh, you can pray anywhere, on the street car, in the train, as you walk to business, but you're not likely to unless you have been off in a quiet place with the master.' Jesus was an Oriental, and such have small opportunity for privacy, but the man of the Western world can get an inner chamber, "though on this side of the ocean I fear we are losing the privacy out of life, and with it we are losing the fragrance and power too."

3. Give the Book its place, for the Bible is the listening side of prayer, Hear what he says, repeat His promises, with eyes eagerly looking until the answer comes. The Bible is like any other book as to paper, binding, stitching, but unlike in that there is a Living Presence in it. Experience shows that the ear controls the tongue; we repeat as we hear "and perhaps the reason God has so many dumb children is because He doesn't get a chance at their ears."

4. Let the Teacher teach it. The Holy spirtis a specialist in teaching how to pray. "I carry Him around—He is in you, in everyone when the door is swung to csus." Cultivate the habit of several times during the day breathing the prayer: "Blessed Lord teach me," and He will, for He is very patient, and patience is" a leading trait of good teaching. "But I wonder how many times has the Teacher come to the teaching-place and found the scholer absent?"

The first condition, assurance that every prayer will bring results, is contingent upon this: Is the controlling purpose of the life to please Jesus? Prayer isn't coaxing God by being insistent enough ,and eloquent enough ,to bring an answer. It is a parnership, with two acting as one, and He will give us all the power He can trust us with to use.

The second condition is that the prayer shall be in Jesus' Name, for we have no pleading-place yonder except through Someone else, since sin is suicidal and cuts a man off. But when we are in vital touch with the Saviour it is the same as though He prayed, took us by the hand and said: "Father, here's a friend of mine; we've an understanding together; please give him what he wants." And the Fother bends over and asks: "What will you have? Name it." We are linked with wondrous love and power.

Ask in faith, is the third condition. Not "I believe that God can do this" but "I believe that God will do it." "If you knew that the Father was listening to your prayer, answering clear to the full, would you go off to your daily task and sing a bit " That kind of faith isn't born in a hurry, and it never does find a birth-place in some hearts because they won't go into the quiet place with the Book open, and the door shut.

Faith isn't blind, it is intelligent. There is a new mental, as well as spiritual birth when the Spirit has control. It demands obedience, and here's where the tug-of-war comes. In practice we would pull the Book down to where we want to live, and prayer become mere talk then. Rather we should pray to have our lives pulled up to the level of the Book.

"Truth prayer, and true faith, are expectant and persistent, and never fail when there's a real touch of life with the Man who died."

CORNETIST WITH A SOUL.

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 24.—The cornetist with a soul has been found. A policeman found Alorn Stine playing a cornet in the middle of a large vacant lot, which was almost a swamp and far away from any houses. He finally convinced the police he was not crazy, by saying that he wished to practice in a place where he would disturb no one.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of Examiner.

Sir,—The Globe of Saturday gives details of recently discovered wholesale thievings in asylums, etc., of the outside civil service of the Ontario Government. It seems as if Ontario has become morally rotten. Why could it be otherwise? —when the responsibility of being respectable citizens is removed from these people and a mere force law with its officers substituted. What call is there to be respectable?—when people steal other people's rights and even laugh over it. Why should people respect other people's property? Why bother with education and religion if at the end of school and church we run up against people who say that no such discretion will be allowed and that force without distinction of mind must prevail. We are reaping the whirlwind. But what hope is there when every Tom, Dick and Sarah feels quite qualified to mould the future of everybody else?

One of the most ominous features of the new "force" system introduced by prohibition is the advocacy as in Britain of laws to compel more work and greater efficiency in the ranks of labor. The workers will soon be under the lash of the authorities in all directions as of old. J. H. BURNHAM.

NO SWEEPING FINANCIAL CHANGE EXPECTED IN DOMINION BUDGET

Some Readjustments in Tariff Probable—Australian Trade Treaty.

GOSSIP BUSY.

OTTAWA, March 24. — Hon J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, brings down his second budget today. Present indications are that his financial proposals are unlikely to be sweeping although there will be in all probability some readjustments in the tariff.

It has already been intimated that reductions in taxation of consequence are unlikely.

The year which closes at the end of the present month has been one of lower revenues. Ordinary revenues will it is expected be estimated by Mr. Robb at approximately $335,000,000 and ordinary expenditure at $301,000,000, or an excess of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditure of aproximately $34,000,000. Assuming these figures to be accurate, ordinary revenue is about $61,000,000 lower than last year; ordinary expenditure about $23,000,000 lower.

The excess of ordinary receipts over ordinary expenditure last year was $74,024,492, or about $40,000,000 more than this year's.

As is usual, gossip is busy over Mr. Robb's financial proposals. Increase of the duty on slack coal is mentioned and it is likely that some as yet unpublished details of the trade treaty with Australia may be announced. The fact tha: this treaty provides for an exchange of preferences has already been announced, as have the reductions in duties granted by Australia to Canada. But the full details of Canada's concessions to Australia have not yet been made public in Canad· Advices from Australia intimate that they involve an increase in the general tariff on fresh meats, lard, beeswax, eggs and cheese, butter, canned vegetables, dried apples, canned fruits, honey, glue and gelatin and eucalyptus oil.

These are in addition to the increase from two-thirds to 3 cents per pound on raisins and dried currants for which legislative provision has already been made.

It was annnouced in the House a few days ago however that the trade treaty was still the subject of negotiation between the two Dominions and announcement may be still further deferred.

Review of Past.

The annual financial statement of the dominion—which will be submitted to the House this afternoon, by Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, will be a review of the past and a forecast on the future.

The statement, acording to the time-honored custom, is divisable roughly into two parts:

First, comes the balance sheet for the past fiscal year. In this case the financial year ending on the 31st of this month.

Second: An estimate of what may be expected in the coming year and taxation changes the government proposes to make.

In his review of the year ending this month, Mr. Robb will announce a decided decrease in the ordinary revenue of the Dominion and a smaller decrease in ordinary expenditure.

Ordinary revenues will it is estimated, prove to be approximately $335,000,000, as against $396,000,000, in the previous year. Ordinary expenditures will probably be estimated a around $301,000,000, as against $324,000,000 twelve months ago. The chief decreases have been under the head of customs and excise and it is stated result chiefly from changes in the sales tax made in the last budget.

Forecast of Future.

Estimates already brought down in the House provide for an expenditure in the coming year of $342,036,597, to which may be added $60,668,000, provision for railways and for the Canadian Merchant Marine. This makes a total of $403,704,597.

The main estimates for 1924-25 (including railways) totalled $400,571,850. The government has also indicated its intention of giving assistance to the transportation of Canadian coal, and that provision will be made for reimbursing the depositors of the Home Bank along the lines of the committee report adopted by the House last year.

Gerald Chapman, Mail Robber and Jail Breaker, Tried For Murder.

SHOT PATROLMAN.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 24.—(Canadian Press). — Gerald Chapman, picturesque mail robber, jail breaker and twentieth century Jesse James, went on trial for his life in Hartford County Superior Court this morning.

Manacled to a guard, he was brought to court from the State's prison at Wethersfield, four miles from here, in a fast motor car in which five deputies rode with him. Another car filled with armed guards trailed, and two heavily armed motor cycle officers were in the van of the war-like cavalcade. Chapman, charged with the murder of Patrolman James J. Skelly, in New Britain October 12 last, entered the court in the middle of half a dozen guards.

CAMPBELL FLOUR MILLS REFUSES

Mr. Wearing: "Then the Council might do something."

"But if the meter is wrong," Mr. Wearing was pressed, "why an investigation? Why not an expert's opinion? What can Judge Huycke do?"

Mr. Wearing: "He can examine witnesses.

Mr. Justice Hodgins: "Do you say that the Commissioners are being hoodwinked?"

Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., for the Campbell Co.: "They do not say so."

Mr. Wearing: "We make no charge. What we say is that the city has lost $10,000."

Mr. Wearing was reminded by a Judge that the meter had been taken away.

Mr. Wearing persisted in his opinion that Judge Huycke ought to enquire into the whole matter.

Denies the Right.

In opposing Judge Huycke and the City Council appeal from Mr. Justice Middleton's injunction, Wallace Nesbitt, K. C., for the Campbell Mills said that the only enquiry requested by the Council was whether a single meter out of hundreds, was out of order. By the wildest stretch of the imagination how could that come under Section 248 of the Municipal A :

"In confining this to the meter are you not begging the issue?" asked Mr. Justice Magee.

Mr. Nesbitt: "No, my Lord."

Mr. Justice Magee: "The Council thinks it has reason to believe that there has been a loss of $10,000."

"Has the Utilities Commision the authority to examine under oath?" queried the Chief Justice.

Mr. Nesbitt: "Mr. J. W. Meyers was challenged to come forward."

It was stated finally that the Utilities Commission could not examine under oath.

Chief Justice Mullock: "What objection has the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Limited, to an enquiry under oath as to the power used?"

Mr. Nesbitt: "We should be put to the expense of having counsel."

"You ought not to charge so much was the Chief Justice's smiling comment.

Mr. Nesbitt: "I'd not be there."

Chief Justice Mulock: "Why have counsel? If you must have luxuries well and good."

Sir William: "They charge you with consuming more power than you paid for."

Mr. Nesbitt: "They have not charged."

Would Open Books.

Mr. Nesbitt informed the court that the Campbell Flour Mills Co. was willing to lay its books before the Hydro Commission or the Utilities Commission, but would not consent, at the point of the bayonet, to have its business exploited.

"A more outrageous prying into people's business I have never seen or heard," declared Mr. Nesbitt.

As to an investigation and whether counsel were necessary, Mr. Justice Hodgins expressed the opinion that it was unsafe to dispense with counsel.

"How much power has been used?" asked Mr. Justice Magee.

Mr. Justice Smith: "If the power account is not paid, why isn't an action brought?"

Mr. Nesbitt, in summing up, made these two points:

1—This meter matter was not "public business."

2—A distinct body had been clothed with powers to transact power matters, and, negatively the municipality was restrained from participation.

No Charge.

In his reply, Mr. Hall made one thing quite clear. "We are not making any charge," he said.

Mr. Justice Smith: "It's a matter of meter mechanism."

Mr. Hall: "If the $10,000 were paid to-morrow, we would still want to know."

Mr. Justice Smith: "Want to know what? What is the matter with the meter?"

Mr. Hall: "Under oath we want to know."

Mr. Justice Smith: "You have been unable to discover what?"

C. C. Robinson, K.C., for the Utilities Commission: "Nothing to discover."

Mr. Justice Ferguson: "If there was a mistake, what could the municipality do?"

Mr. Hall: "We could bring an action against the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd., joining the local Commission."

Mr. Justice Ferguson dissented. The Legislature in its wisdom had delegated certain powers to certain bodies. The Police Commission was an example.

Mr. Hall stressed the city's ownership to power property.

Mr. Nesbitt urged the Commission's right of conduct and management.

"Where will you draw the line?" asked Mr. Justice Ferguson.

Mr. Hall: "We desire to investigate our own property."

"What control have you over the Commission?" Mr. Justice Ferguson again asked.

Mr. Hall: "We have a clear right of action to intervene."

Mr. Justice Ferguson: "Then the Commission hasn't the right of management."

Just before judgment was reserved the Chief Justice asked Mr. Hall a question and Mr. Justice Ferguson added: "You are willing to abandon the subpoenas originally served by Judge Huycke?"

Mr. Hall said he would be satisfied if the Campbell Flour Mills Company, Limited, were to produce the daily sheets, showing the quantity of flour manufactured.

Chief Justice Mulock: "Limit the inquiry to that?"

Mr. Justice Ferguson: "There can be no compromise. The parties have the rights or they haven't the rights. We cannot limit the county judge."

TENNYSON RECITAL.

There was a splendid attendance in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, for the Tennyson Recital given by the pupils of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, with an address on Tennyson by Judge E. C. S. Huycke. The programme was interesting and out of the ordinary from start to finish, and the pupils, all under the age of eighteen years, acquitting themselves admirably, reflecting great credit on themselves and the careful tuition of their instructress, Mrs. Bingham.

The entertainment, the different portions of which were greeted by enthusiastic applause, was "Tennyson" in atmosphere throughout.

The songs by Mrs. Bingham were of Tennyson's composition, the address was on Tennyson, and the two major portions of the programme were in pantomime Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women," and the lovely story of the Sleeping Beauty, which was one of the prettiest renditions in a very attractive programme. The stage settings were cleverly contrived, with a Greek atmosphere to the green latticed background, the tall standards of flowers and the pots of Easter lilies.

The entertainment opened with a song by Mrs. Bingham, Tennyson's "Haadsall Rounu," Later in the evening, Mrs. Bingham also sang in beautiful voice, her rich, sweet, expressive tones bringing out all the lyrical tenderness of the great poet's song, "Sweet and Low," "Break, Break, Break," "Ask Me No More," and "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petals," each number being greeted with applause. Mrs. Bingham's contributions to the programme also included a final declamation, with dramatic interpretation, of "Merlin and the Gleam."

"The Poet's Song," a reading given in excellent style by Miss Helen Ross, preceded the presentation of "A Dream of Fair Women," for which Miss Ross also acted as reader. This was a charming outline of the poet's dream, each character advancing silently in turn from a central opening of the rear curtains, and each garbed in appropriate costume on which an evident wealth of attention to detail had been lavished.

In turn, apeared Helen of Troy (enacted by Iva Gilbank) in white Grecian draperies Iphigenia (Evelyn Miller) in aquamarine blue; Cleopatra, reclining on a couch, attended by slave girls, and enacted by Viola Martin; Jeptha's Daughter (Ethel Cooper), with white-robed attendants, and accompanied by low organ music, played by Mrs. Bingham; Fair Rosamond and Queen Eleanor (Catherine Millard and Irene Breckenridge) in resplenndent pinks and enridge) in resplendent pinks and Auliffe) with silver fleu-de-lis on her dark costume; Sir Thomas Moore's, Daughter (Alma Goselin); and Eleanor of Castile (Irene Wright).

Vera Stephens acted as slave girl to Cleopatra; and companions to Jeptha's Daughter were Margaret Borbridge, Aileen Morgan, Jean Puttick, Sheila Thompson and Dorothy Henry. An ensemble of the entire gathering closed the presentation.

Miss Ethel Cooper followed with a recital, showing wonderful powers of memory, of "The Brook," with lyrical verses by Catherine Millard, and Miss Irene Breckenridge gave, in splendid fashion, "The Victim," the stirring tale of the human sacrifice offered to the Norse god, Oden.

"Lady Clare" by Geraldine McAuliffe was another very effective reading, the young pupil possessing an excellent style, with clear voice and a change of expression and inflection for different characterizations that made her reading epecially good.

A particularly pretty presentation by the pupils was that of the day-dream: "The Sleeping Beauty," a lovely tableau representing the characters of the old tale caught under the magic spell, the fair maiden wrapped in slumber, and the king wrapped in slumber, and the king and and chancellors slumbering at the table. The costumes were well chosen and a good reading of the tale was given by the Poet (Iva Gilbank) to Lady Flora (Ethel Cooper). Those taking part were the Sleeping Beuaty (Irene Breckenridge); The Prince (Helen Ross); the Maid of Honor (Catherine Millard); the Page (Irene Wright); the King (Geraldine McAuliffe); the Chancellor (Vera Stephens); the Baron (Viola Martin); the Steward (Evelyn Miller) and the Butler (Alma Goselin). Much applause followed the rendition of this dainty performance.

The address on Tennyson by Judge Huycke was brief, and, delivered in the speaker's pleasant clear voice with its cultured modulations, was very interesting.

The Judge outlined the life and work of the great poet, speaking at length of the special mission of his life, the harmonizing and reconciling of the two great elements of the life of his day; the warring factions of the clergy and the scientists, Tennyson was a devout Christian, but he realized that some of the statements of the scientists were irrefutable, and it was his special mission to help to reconcile these factions of the Victorian Age, that era which the speaker declared was only surpassed by the wonderful Elizabethan period.

The speaker recounted some of the outstanding incidents in the poet's life, his years of grinding poverty, his marriage at the age of fifty, the friendship with Arthur Hallam which led to the writing of the immortal "In Memoriam," and the accomplishment by Tennyson of a design contemplating but never completed, by meany of the older English poets; the giving to the world of the wonderful story in verse of the legendary King Arthur and his Knights of the Table Round.

A profound study and appreciation of the works of Tennyson was apparent in the address of Judge Huycke, which was listened to with profound attention.

At the conclusion of the programme, the pupils and their friends had a brief dance in the Conservatory Hall, preceded by the service of refreshments, from a table centred with pussy willows and daffodils and presided over by Mrs. F. Miller. Music for dancing was supplied by Harry Northropp.

During the evening, bouquets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Bingham and to Mrs. G. E. Porter, who acted as accompanist for an exacting programme

DIVISIONAL COURT JUDGES ARE DOUBTFUL OF CITY'S STANDING

Shown By Expression of Opinion at Hearing in Osgoode Hall.

MR. HALL'S REPLY.

TORONTO, March 24 (Special to The Examiner).—When hearing the appeal of the City of Peterborough against the injunction granted the Campbell Flour Milling Company to restrain the city from conducting an enquiry into the amount of Hydro power consumed by the company, various members of the Divisional Court expressed their doubt as to the validity of the appelants' stand.

Mr. Justice Hodgins: "It seems perfectly absurd to me that, after supplying the meters, a municipal body should come to this court and say that they want a public investigation."

Mr. Justice Smith expressed a similar view. "But," he added, "if it were alleged that the company had conspired with a member of the Commission, then the city's claim might be reasonable."

Mr. Justice Hodgins asked R. R. Hall, K.C., counsel for Judge Huycke, if his point were whether or not the power had been produced and not paid for.

Mr. Hall: "Yes."

Mr. Justice Ferguson pointed out that under Section 35 of the Public Utilities Act, the Commission shall exercise the powers of the City Council when conducting an enquiry. "Now, Mr. Hall, if you were to suggest malfeasance ,that would be a different thing," His Lordship remarked. "But all you raise is the question as to whether or not the company has paid for all the power consumed."

Mr. Justice Orde: "I notice that, according to the terms of your agreement with the company, the corporation has the right to conduct an investigation at the company's expense—by expense I mean the installation of the necessary machines. "Was that done?"

Mr. Hall. "We have no complaint as to present conditions, what we want looked into is what happened three or four years ago."

CHURCH CRUCIFIED SAYS ANTI COUNSEL

D. L. McCarthy Says the Church Will Never Forget It.

TORONTO, March 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Following the appointment of the sub-committee to attempt to settle the controversy regarding the church union bill to be submitted to the Ontario Legislature and the adjournment of the Private Bills committee, D. L. McCarthy, counsel for the anti-unionists, declared the "Presbyterian church has been crucified by the Attorney-General and the church will never forget it." What was described as a tentative agreement was simply an expression of opinion by four individuals, given without prejudice and not as binding on either of the parties. Their reading by the chairman of the committee was a breach of faith on his part.

At the Mine Explosin

THE OLD STORY IN A NEW SETTING AT FAIRMONT—DEATH BELOW, LIFE ABOVE WISHING FOR DEATH.

BY BOB DORMAN

FAIRMONT, W. Va., (at the mouth of the mine).—March 24.—Its the old story in a new setting—23 wives, 21 mothers and 57 children waiting the answer of the depths.

Here again is the long line of stolid faces, an occasional tear, a silence broken only by whispers. The long hours of watching. Strange creatures in gas masks step into caves and descend on their hunt for loved ones.

The four motherless children of Callie Astead press against the ropes and call for "daddy."

The dying mother of Leonard Saunders calls for her son. He has been buried before her.

The wife of Burt Marshall waits on the rescue crews to keep her mind off her husband, buried with the rest. She toils day and night.

The mining village of Barracksville is a city of death. Work at the mines has stoped. Long rows of autos stand unprotected in the rain. Little groups of people stand in the open—just waiting. And all around the desolate hills form a fitting background for the scene.

It's the old story; death below and life above, and much of that which is alive wishing it were buried with its dead!

Mrs. Dennistoun Gets Verdict For $25,000

LONDON, March 24.—(Canadian Press.) — A verdict for £5,000, or nearly $25,000, in favour of Mrs. Dorothy Muriel Dennistoun was rendered this afternoon by the jury in her suit against her former husband, Lieut.-Col. Ian Onslow Dennistoun for money she claimed she had loaned him. The verdict found that all sums Col. Dennistoun had received from his now divorced wife were in the form of loans which the defendant had not repaid.

MEN'S ASSOCIATION HAD LADIES' NIGHT

St. Andrew's Church Society Held Rollicking Evening Programme.

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Association of St. Andrew's church was held last night. It was the annual Ladies' night and the event brought out a big crowd.

The supper tables in the large dining room were crowded with happy folks who immensely enjoyed the dainty supper provided by the ladies and society.

Good humor, fun and rollicking laughter grevailed everywhere.

The new president, Mr. Douglas Carlyle, presided with characteristic tact and with Mrs. G. King sang delightfully and in token of appreciation received a most enthusiastic encore to which they graciously responded. Mr. Fred Chenall was the accompanist.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. W. Harold Young, who took as his subject, "One chair for solitude, two for frivolity, and three for the crowd."

His address was interesting, eloquent and replete with wit and story and was greatly enjoyed.

Presentations were the order of the day, ranging all the way from tiny bottles of perfume, half an inch high to automobiles.

There w considerabl· trouble in arriving at a decision as to what remuneration should be given to the speaker of the evening for his wonderful address.

Bruce Fowler, being Scotch, suggested a vote of thanks. John Crane, being a man of finance, thought a bad cheque for $400 was correct, whereas Jack McKone would compromise on a Maxwell car.

So loud did the debate wax that Chairman Carlisle ordered all three of them to go out of the dining room and come to some amicable conclusion.

Evidently the chairman of the Board of Education brought the greetings of his high position to bear upon the case for the automobile it was which won the day. Mr. Young's gratitude was boundless and eloquent.

The new officers are:

Pair of Blue Dungaree Pants Disturbs the Peace And Police of Three Countries Since the World War

NEW YORK, March 24. — A pair of blue dungaree pants, missing since 1917, from the sea chest of Benedict Marino, a seaman of the British merchant marine, caused one more fight yesterday, in a series of fistic encounters which have disturbed the peace and police of two other countries besides this.

These fights take place whenever Marino's ship and a British freighter carrying John Frian, also a sailor, reach the same port.

The fights started in Liverpool a year after Marino and Frain were rescued when the British tramp steamer Mapag, was torpedoed.

Marino was sure his trousers were in the life boat with him.

A year later, he says, he saw them on Frain in Liverpool. It took four "bobbies" to separate them.

The ships met again in Marseilles six years later, and the pair almost wrecked a wine shop and the gendarmes who finally got them apart.

They went to it again yesterday in front of the Seaman's church Institute. In the night court Marino received suspended sentence and Frain went to jail for three days for the lack of $10.

RICKARD MAY BE SENT TO PRISON

Sentence Deferred Until Next Monday in Film Conspiracy.

TRENTON, N. J., March 24. — (Canadian Press).—Strong indication that George C. (Tex) Rickard and probably all of the defendants in the Dempsey - Carpentier prize fight conspiracy case will be sentenced to Atlanta penitentiary was given by Judge Bodine in United States court here Monday in granting a motion to suspend sentence until next Monday at Newark.

Walter D. Van Riper, acting for all the defendants, argued that sufficient time had not been granted to allow counsel to proceed through the testimony and prepare an appeal.

"I suppose that an appeal will be taken?" Judge Bodine inquired of Van Riper.

"That depends on the nature of the sentence, Your Honor," he replied.

"Well, when you come into court next Monday you had better have your appeal papers prepared," the Judge concluded.

Previously the Judge had spoken of the case as being a flagrant violation of the law. He said that the defendants or their agents had taken the films into twenty states.

REGINA JUNIORS BEAT AURA LEE

Junior Champions of the West on Way to All Canada Trophy.

SCORE 2 TO 1.

TORONTO, March 24. — (Canadian Press).—Battling ten minutes' overtime, Regina Pats, Abbott Cup-holders and Junior champions of the West, defeated Aura Lee 2 to 1 here last night in the first game of the final series for the O.H.A. memorial trophy, emblematic of the Junior hockey championship of Canada, and last season won by Owen Sound Greys. It was a rousing exhibition, both teams displaying brilliant hockey with fast skating and clever stick-handling the feature. Not a goal was scored during the first forty-four minutes of play, then Pats jumped into the lead when A. Caster took a pass from Ingram, whirled around the Aura Lee defence and poked the puck by Stark.

With less than two minutes to go, McIllwaine gave Johnnie McPherson a pass and the latter's easy shot hopped over Cunning's foot into the net, evening the score. Regina got the odd tally in the ten minutes' overtime.

SOCCER NOTES

The junior executive have selected a committee of four members to pick the team to oppose the seniors on Good Friday. The committee appointed to choose the senior team is composed of the whole board and the team will be chosen next Monday evening from the list of registered players.

The Canadian Woollens have signed the following players: Alex. R. Mitchell, Jos. Gaskill, Alex. Burgess, Harold Burrows, A. R. Hillman, John Hodgson, Alfred Wilson, J. Boyle, A. Roberts, Jack Procter, George Clark, A. B. Read, George Blowers, David Procter and Jack Cridland.

The junior association recommended that tickets be printed for the junior versus senior game on Good Friday. Tickets can be had from the executive members.

W. Rickard has made application to the P. and D. F. A. as an official referee. He is willing to undergo the necessary examination.

After many years of bickering in soccer circles, all Toronto clubs have come to an amicable settlement that will foster soccer throughout the Province.

When the question of a committee to draw up a schedule was brought before the board, a motion to do so failed to find a seconder, thereby delaying action.

Will all C. P. C. players please turn in uniforms on Thursday evening in Chamber of Commerce Rooms, at 7 p.m.

Mrs. C. Martin, R.R. No. 2, Orillia, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my heart for a long time and very often had bad spells with it. After that the Western champions played a strong defensive game and Canadiens could not break through. Happy Holmes played a particularly good game in the winners net while Frederickson and Walker starred up in front. Fraser and Lough were steady on defence. Sprague Cleghorn Morenz and Coutu were best for Canadiens.

MUSSOLINI'S HEALTH BAD.

Condition is Serious, Reports Say—Suffering From Cancer.

PARIS, March 24.— (Canadian Press.) — The health of Premier Mussolini of Italy has had a new and serious setback. His real condition is being kept a secret because of possible political reaction to the publication of the truth, and it is impossible to ascertain to what extent the many alarming reports are true, but well informed persons agree his condition is serious. The doctors who have closely attended him since his long fainting fit a month ago while at his desk in the foreign office, now agree that Italy's dictator is suffering from a cancer of duodenum.

ORANGE CORNERS

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Parker wish to thank their many friends in Omemee and vicinity who so ably and successfully saved their house from fire during the time the stable and sheds were burned.

More Pictures of the Terrible Tornado of Last Week

This is the first picture to come from Annapolis, Mo., where the tornado of March 18 marshaled its winds of death and havoc and sent them roaring through five States whose death toll from the disaster totals approximately 1000.

The efforts of a lifetime were smashed to bits by the tornado which crushed in houses like so many egg shells, and left a trail of death and havoc in its wake. This picture, taken at Murphysboro, Ill., one of the towns hardest hit by the twister, gives some concept of the tornado's fury. Note the solid concrete walls in the foreground snatched from their foundations and hurled far and wide.

Just before the twister struck Murphysboro, Ill., where the ruins of this house are situated, a mother and her children were peacefully sleeping. Without warning the tornado bore down upon them, snatched them from their places and cut open the front door of the house as with a knife, exposing the interior with its demolished furniture to open view from the street.

If you can figure out how a red-necked athlete can be worth a thin, anemic dime to you one month and millions the next, nothing this side of the pearl-studded gates should baffle you, unless you are still looking for a three-letter word meaning the origin and amplification of modern plumbing.

Eddie Roush is browsing in the field of salary contentment for the first time since Hector had the fleas and Hendricks thinks the non-squawkable contract to which Roush is signed will make him the greatest outfielder in baseball this year.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

GREAT BATTER

LAKELAND, Mar. 24—I doubt if there is a better left-handed hitter in the game today than Shortstop Joe Sewell of the Cleveland club.

Having seen Sewell make his debut as a young collegian and having followed him through the years since I marvel as I note his improvement at the plate.

Sewell, while no Jack Dempsey is built on compact lines. He hits the ball as hard as many men twice his size. He is absoutely fearless at the plate. Once he adopts his batting stance it is practically impossible to drive him back.

Joe times the ball beautifully. There seems to be perfect co-ordination between eye and muscles. He pulls the balls pitched inside to right field, those on the outside shoot off the bat like a bullet to left and the perfectly pitched ball is usually driven directly back at the pitcher.

Joe Sewell's batting prowess hasn't been press-agented as much as some of the other stars, yet I seriously doubt if there is a more dangerous batsman in the American League.

BANKS ON SOUTHPAWS

Not to be outdone by other American League managers who are loading up with southpaws, Manager Speaker expects to give his portside trio, Shaute, Edwards and Smith, plenty of work.

Shaute is trying to improve his fast ball. Very often a certain defect in the delivery of the fast ball tends to take away some of its "zip" With a little better fast ball, Joe would be much tougher to beat.

Sherry Smith, with his master move to first, gives any club a real ball game. You must hit your way around with Smith working.

Jim Edwards, who has a corking curve, is expected to have a big year. He had just about arrived when an injury early last season set him back.

If there is one failing the Cleveland southpaws have it is the lack of the zip on the fast one. Smith as a younster, had it, still can buzz an occasional fast one by but merely uses it as a threat

Unquestionably much of Cleveland's hopes for this year are up to Shaute, Smith and Edwards. As a result they are being carefully conditioned for the coming campaign.

CAMP STYLES

It is interesting to note the various styles of dress in the major league camps.

Golf has no great hold on the Boston or Chicago Americans. As a result there is little of the sport toggery in either of these camps. The same holds good for the Detroit Tygers.

Getting over into Florida we find things considerably different. Knickers and flannels take the place of the usual civilian attire.

Around the hotel lobby of the Cincinnati Reds at Orlando. one would have thought a big golf tourney instead of spring practice was on. Most of the Reds were snappily dressed, the vari-colored hose and sweaters being the outstanding features of the makeup.

At Lakelan conditions were somewhat similar with the Cleveland Indians, knickers and "talkative" hose having the edge on flannels.

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE WILLIAMS

ORLANDO, March 24—They are calling the Reds the dark horse of the National League this year. A dark horse is something that is seldom expected to win and usually doesn't.

Last spring the Cincinnati entry was coupled with the Giants in the free-for-all guessing contests among the overfed experts, but somewhere between the ides of March and the wormless chestnuts of October they slipped and spattered their obligato.

It is at least a harmonious mob that attacks the matutinal pancackes and the nocturnal T-bones at the San Juan. The boys seem to be pulling together like the upper and lower rows of a well trained set of store teeth.

Hendricks has a crew of senile slabbers who can make him or break him as a championship tender. Benton, Mays, Rixey and Luque have been making imprudent gestures at the old gent with the scythe for a great number of seasons.

Rube Bressler is starting the season at first base. Rube can do more things with a baseball than a chorus girl can with a college boy's weekly allowance. The reformed pitcher is as good in one spot as another, if not better.

They tell you in camp that Mr. Caveney will be back at short this season. Furthermore that he is the best shortstops in the league. This is the same Mr. Caveney the club tried to peddle for money, marbles and writing implements during the winter.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ON NATIVE WINES AND HOME-BREW

In his recent speech in the Legislature, now published in pamphlet form, the Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., Attorney-General, made the following reference to native wines permitted by the O. T. A.:

"Now, then, there are still native wines. As you know, Sir, when the Ontario Temperance Act was passed, and long before, the Legislature recognized that wines made from native grapes could be sold in Ontario without infraction of our laws. Today, if I am correctly informed, there are 10,000 acres of grapes under cultivation. The average crop runs one and a half to five tons to the acre. Let us say for purposes of computation, three tons. The average price is $47 to $95 a ton, that is when the crop is heavy the price is a little lower and when light it is higher. Let us assume, therefore, there are 10,000 acres under cultivation, and that three tons an acre is a fair crop, and the average price is $50. It means that the product of the grape industry yields $1,500,000 to those who cultivate grapes. The Ontario Temperance Act puts no limitations on the strength of wines that may be sold from native grapes provided they are not 'fortified' as the technical expression is. That is, you may make a wine for the purpose of domestic sale, as strong as the fermentation of the grape will create, but you cannot by the use of distilled liquors poured into these wines increase their alcoholic content. Now, one of the wineries in the Province, with a frankness and generosity that was notable, gave me one of the price lists upon which the manager marked the strength of the various wines; and I find the lowest is eighteen per cent. in proof spirit content, and that they run as high as twenty-four per cent. to twenty-eight per cent. But, Sir, you will see how, if a man wants to buy a bottle of beer, and has the price, the strongest beer he may buy without subjecting himself to prosecution, is with a proof spirit content of not more than two and a half per cent., but he may buy, if he has the money, a five-gallon keg or case of native wine with a proof spirit content of from twenty-two to twenty-eight per cent. Or if he has the good luck to have a sympathetic friend in the medical profession, he may buy spirits of seventy-five per cent. proof spirit strength, or, if he buys alcohol, 165 per cent.

"Let me give you some idea of the native wine industry in this Province. During 1923, there were 825,000 gallons of native wine produced, and in 1924, 1,157,000 gallons. In Ontario in 1923, there were sold 370,000 gallons of wine, and in 1924 about the same amount. The value in 1923 was $970,000, and in 1924, $896,000, and the amount in stock at the close of 1923 was 1,481,000 gallons and at the end of 1924, 1,912,000 gallons. Now it seems to me that any person who gives consideration to these figures is brought to arrested attention as to what the problem of law enforcement in relation to prohibition in Ontario is.

"And then there is another anomaly in the Act that permits of certain irregularity. Since the days of good Queen Bess, it has, I understand, been generally recognized throughout the British Empire that home brewing would be permitted, and when the O. T. A. became effective, and Dominion legislation was crystallized into law, there was no provision made in relation to the abolition or cessation of home-brewing. As a matter of fact, I doubt very much if, at the time the Act had its inception, anyone appreciated the ramifications of the practice as time went on. I have not got the figures; I tried to get them, but so far have not been successful, but I am assured on good authority that I have reason to believe, that there are in the Province of Ontario 30,000 home-brew permits. If you want to manufacture home-brew, all that is necessary is to go to the nearest customs house and advise the collector you intend to do so, and ipso facto, you become a brewer on your own account. The number is increasing, and the strength of home-brew runs anywhere from twelve to fourteen or fifteen per cent., I am told."

JUVENILE MARRIAGES ALARMING AND REMEDY IS EAGERLY SOUGHT

Children Under 16 Can Get Married Anywhere in the U. S.

TIGHTEN LAWS.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(United Press).—Alarmed by the number of marriages which have united children between the ages of 11 and 15 years, the Russel Sage Foundation has formulated a remedy for the situation which, it declares, is dangerous to national welfare.

After an investigation in ninety representative cities, through the country, the foundation discovered that hundreds of thousands of parents were permitting and encouraging their youthful sons and daughters to marry and aid them by falsification as to their ages.

It is not at all difficult, the investigators found, for children under sixteen to secure licenses and have the ceremony performed in almost every American city.

These are the cures suggested by the foundation:

1.—Work toward a minimum age requirement. The minimum for girls should be 16; in many States it is 12.

2.—Spread the law requiring five days' notice before the ceremony can be performed to other States. Eight States now have such a law.

3.—Elfminate the numerous gretna greens where matrimonial ceremonies are exploited and commercialized.

4.—Abolish the free asytem.

5.—Make the requirements for proof of age more rigid. In many States no proof of the applicant's age is required.

6.—Make it necessary for both parties to appear in person in applying for a marriage license.

ULSTER ELECTIONS.

Eighty Candidates Stand For 52 Seats—43 Unionist Nominees.

BELFAST, March 24 (Canadian Press).—About eighty candidates are standing for 52 seats in the Ulster Parliament for which nominations are being made today. There are 43 Unionist candidates, about a dozen Nationalists and about nine Republicans.

Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, and Eamonn De Valera, the Republican leader, were returned unopposed in County Down. Others returned unopposed were John M. Andrews, Labor Minister in the Ulster Cabinet, four other Unionists and Patrick O'Neill, Nationalist. As there are only eight seats for County Down, there will be no contest in that county.

Queen's University returned four Unionists unopposed.

Money AT WORK

All farm land values are theoretically based on what is called "marginal land."

Marginal land is land which will produce just exactly enough to pay for its tillage. That is, it is the poorest land which any one will cultivate, and therefore brings the lowest price. Prices on any other land depend, theoretically, on how much better it is than the marginal land—how much more it will produce.

In buying land however farmers do not take account of the true relation between the value of marginal land and the greater value of more heavily producing land. The result is that many of the farms are overcapitalized. They have cost so much an acre that they cannot possibly be made profitable at present prevailing prices of farm products. One very definite consequence of this disregard for a fundamental law of economics has been the disastrous farmer failures in the Northwest.

WINTER STILL ELUSIVE

Ships Operate in Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 24 —(AP). — The exceptionally mild winter continues throughout Sweden and up to the latter part of February no snow had fallen in this usually snow clad country. Winter shipping traffic in the Bothnic Gulf, usually closed in November, is still operating and throughout the country cattle are grazing in pasture instead of being housed in barns.

The mild weather has been a great boon to the poor, who have not been compelled to buy fuel, an item in the budget which usually assumes great importance.

FRENCH WOMEN MAY GET VOTE

Bill in Chamber of Deputies Extends Franchise in Municipal Elections.

LIKELY PASS.

A new bill which aims at giving the vote to women in France, and making them eligible for the municipal elections has just been introduced into the French Chamber of Deputies This bill, which according to advices received by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York from its French information service, is signed by about a hundred deputies, is expected to come up for debate very shortly in order that it may be definitely passed or rejected before the next municipal elections, which take place in France during the course of next Spring

Five years ago a bill allowing women to vote in the legislative elections was passed by the Chamber of Deputies by 329 votes against 95. This bill was, however, rejected by the Senate which, at the time, specified that it would not object to women being allowed to vote at municipal elections only.

WILL CONSULT KING BY RADIO

Will Be Notified Immediately of Any Unusual Events.

A KEEN YACHTSMAN

LONDON, March 24. — (AP). — King George who, upon advice of his physicians, will spend the greater part of March cruising in the Mediterranean, will be in constant touch with officials of state in London by radio. Should important constitutional questions arise while the king is abroad he would be notified immediately and enabled by radio to make any decisions deemed necessary.

Modern inventions in this respect have greatly simplified matters of state, compared with other years when British rulers left British soil for foreign parts. Whenever Queen Victoria went abroad she was accompanied by a minister, and important state business which required her personal signature was dealt with by this official and then passed on to the queen for her decision.

In connection with King Georges voyage abroad, it has been recalled in London that King Edward dispensed to a large extent with this practice, as the system of using a lithographed signature for certain commissions in the service, and similar affairs, has absolved the king from immense drugery which was a constant annoyance to royalty in Victorian times.

Most of the British rulers have been keen yatchtsmen, King George being perhaps the most enthusiastic of them all so the physicians in advising a cruise in warmer climate after the rulers recovery from influenza and bronchitis in February, felt that he would enjoy himself under circumstances entirely to his liking. Queen Mary does not care for the sea, but King George, ordinarily, is not bothered by rough weather in the least.

HERE IS A GOOD DOME...
Thrilling Trian...
Storms of M...

There's a mighty ...estic drama at the Royal Theatre in which James Kirkwood and Lila Lee are starred. "Wandering Husbands" it's called. It deals with the marital troubles of George and Diana Moreland. George is neglecting his wife and small daughter for a "lily of the field." Finally Diana gets tired of it and decided to have a show-down. She invites the "lily" to spend a week end at their Long Island home and arranges to have the motor boat spring a leak when the three are well away from shore. Neither woman can swim and Moreland can save only one. Moreland chooses his wife.

Excitement is at a high pitch throughout, as it would be with a theme of this sort. Both James Kirkwood and Lila Lee do splendid work. Margaret Livingston is good as Marilyn Foster and little Muriel Dana does some very promising work as Rosemary. Others in the supporting cast are Eugene Pallette, Turner Savage, George Pearce and George French.

This is a good picture—an interesting story, well acted and beautifully photographed. Don't miss it!

POTASH AND PERLMUTTER HOLD LAUGH RECORD.

A Royal Thursday.

No two characters of fiction can equal the record of Montague Glass's famous partners, Potash and Perlmutter. These two gentlemen, purveyors of cloaks and suits, have made people laugh in fourteen different languages. Their quaint sayings and their whimsical adventures have brought forth many a hearty American roar, loud German guffaw, polite French titter, sedate British chuckle. The stage plays dealing with them have been playing for the past ten years in practically every country on the globe. And now, in the movies, they are piling up much more merriment in every corner of the world.

"In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter" playing at the Royal Thursday is the second of these stories to be brought to the screen by Samuel Goldwyn. It is an adaptation of the play "Business Before Pleasure," but instead of leaving its heroes in the cloak and suit trade, it takes them to Hollywood where they try their hands at producing movies.

A stellar cast enacts the picture. Aleander Carr and George Sidney play the principals and others in the cast are Vera Gordon, Betty Blythe and Belle Bennett. It is a First National piiture.

BABY PEGGY FOR ROYAL.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Frivolous Sal," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for yesterday and to-day, is an entertaining production. With Eugene O'Brien and Mae Busch and Ben Alexander in the principal roles, it pictures the lives of a romantic lot of people, Western dwellers living in the free existence of the open spaces. Mae Busch is "Frivolous Sal," the heroine, a girl with many admirers, owner of the "Greenback," a popular gaming resort of the Western camp. Flouted for the first time in her life by the visiting tenderfoot she falls in love with him and they marry. To the wedding banquet comes the man's son by a first marriage, little Ben, and then the transformation of "Frivolous Sal," begins. How she turns into a very domestic person and then decides to resume her frivolous ways is interestingly told and forms the main theme of a picture which has some thrilling moments. Steve MacGregor is her faithful admirer, even after her marriage, and stands by her while her young husband wastes her money at the gaming table. Red Osner is the villain of the piece, tempting the youth to rob MacGregor's safe, and then escaping with the loot. The fight between the young man and Osner in a mine dump bucket, a thousand feet under ground, is realistic and thrilling. In fact all the fighting episodes are extremely realistic, and give the fans some exciting moments. The picture abounds also in scenes of great natural beauty.

"LOVE AND GLORY."

Read what Ik Shuman of the Evening World says of "Love and Glory."

Carl Laemmle, who won considerable deserved credit a year or so ago when he brought "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" to town, deserves some of the same sort of praise to-day for bringing "Love and Glory" to the Lyric, probably for an extended run.

"Love and Glory"—the film portrays just those things—is a tale of a love that is never consummated, but which, nevertheless, is complete. The story is of two friends, one of whom loves the other's sister, who goes off to fight for France in the Algerian War, while the girl waits. She is told both are killed and when they return they find she has disappeared.

They live together until they are old men, kept together by their love for each other and their love for the girl. Then, as they journey to Paris to receive the decoration a tardy Government bestows for the heroism of the brother in Algiers, the latter dies, the other goes on to get the ribbon in his name and meets the lost girl, now an old woman, still faithful to the love of their youth.

It isn't, you see, the sort of fare movie fans usually get; but it is to the fans that 'Love and Glory" will make its greatest appeal. There is "sob" stuff for those who celebrate while being amused. Yet even these will find the Rupert Julian, who directed the production, has in the main told a good story simply, logically and often beautifully.

Charles De Roche is the lover and Wallace MacDonald the brother of the girl, played by Madge Bellamy. Each does good and sincere work, with the honors evenly divided.

"Love and Glory" comes to the Capitol to-morrow.

TRAVEL TO AND FROM FILM LOCATIONS IN A SUBMARINE.

The "pleasures" of a submarine cruise were experienced by Viola Dana and Raymond Griffith, featured with Theodore Roberts in the new Paramount picture, 'Lord Chumley,' coming to the Capitol Theatre on Friday.

Several of the scenes for the production were shot out in the Pacific ocean and Miss Dana, Griffith, co-directors Iribe and Urson technical staff and other traveled to and from location in an undersea craft.

Theodore Roberts completes the trio of featured players in "Lord Chumley," adapted to the screen from the stage play by David Belasco and Henry C. DeMille.

There's a great cast playing in support.

AT THE REGENT

"LOVERS' LANE."

Director Phil Rosen, who recently astonished the movie world by his masterful direction of 'Abraham Lincoln,' created another remarkable sensation of the season when "Lovers' Lane," his second Warner Bros. Class of the Screen, was flashed upon the screen at the Regent Theatre last night.

Those who attended the opening performance applauded long after the final fade-out of the picture. The acting of Robert Ellis was equal to that of Gertrude Olmstead, who played the leading role, portraying her part with splendid characterization, even far surpassing her performance in "Babbitt." Bruce Guerin, who is still remembered for his creditable performance in "Brass," portrayed little Dickie Woodbridge, the poor crippled lad. He went through his part as though he was a real old-timer, without a flaw. Maxine Hicks plays the part of the escaped girl from the orphan asylum, and her acting in the picture is interspersed with subtle comedy.

Great praise is due to Dorothy Farnum for the wonderful way she prepared the script for this picture. Miss Farnum has a number of successful screen adaptations to her credit. Some are "Babbitt," "Beau Brummel," "Main Street" and many others.

The screen version of this popular Clyde Fitch play is about "Lovers' Lane," the path of heart's desire, to some a life of service and self-sacrifice, to others a continuous round of empty pleasures, and still to others love. Our story deals with a famous Lovers' Lane where much history and love have been made. It is a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen.

ITALIAN AVIATORS KILLED.

Student Pilot and Teacher Are Victims in Accident.

TURIN, Italy, March 23.—Two fatal accidents occurred within a few minutes of each other Saturday at the aviation school at Cameri.

Giuseppe Zanetta, a young Florentine student pilot, lost control of his machine when 100 metres from the ground. He died a few moments after the plane crashed.

A similar accident happened to an instructor, Ludovico Zanicholli, who was killed instantly. Zanicholli trained more than 2,000 pilots during the war.

EFFICIENT SPRINGS WOULD SAVE SHOCK

Eliminate Need for Balloon Tires or Shock Absorbers.

If we had efficient springs on our automobile ,there would be no need for balloon tires or shock absorbers.

These, says C. C. Hanch, noted automotive leader, are merely accessories to this fundamental part of automobile design—spring suspension. They are useful today because of the failure of springs to do what they are supposed to do.

This failure is caused by two factors—first, improper design from the manufacturing standpoint; second, improper care from the motorists' viewpoint.

The basic principle for proper spring suspension, says Hanch, lies in the transferrence of the energy of motion into the energy of heat, to be dissiated by radiation. This is accomplished by friction, such as takes place between the leaves of the springs.

Lubrication is Bad.

"Yet," Hanch comments, "it is a common occurrence to see people lubricate the friction out of their springs and then put it back in by spending money for shock absorbers, which operate on the fraction principle."

The reason why springs are greased with graphite is to keep them from "grabbing," due to the presence of dust and grit. Friction is what takes up the energy transferred to the car when it rolls over a bump. It is as essential in stopping the car from bobbing up and down as is friction in the brakes from stopping the car horizontally.

Proper Design.

Properly designed springs, according to Hanch, are set over an axle, so that the part to the rear of the axle is longer than that to the front. The rear section of the springs over the front axle are different in length than those of springs over the rear axle, he points out, so that "loping" may be prevented.

"The acid test of the spring suspension of any car," he continues, "is its riding qualities without the aid of any hypodermic injection in the way of shock absorbers, tires of excessive section, and so on."

Divided Skirts And Low Necks Latest For Men

(By C. T. Hallinan, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, March 24. (United Press.) — Young men have become so femininized in their clothes, according to west end tailors that they are now wearing "divided skirts."

At least the new trousers affected by the young blades at Oxford and Cambridge can scarcely be told from divided skirts.

"Look at this pair, said a Saville Row tailor mournfully.

"The waist is 30 inches and each leg is 25 inches around the knee and 22 inches around the shoe top. Those are practically the measurements of a divided skirt.

"But is is the latest style and the young men demand them. They go even further. They have not begun cutting their sport shirts low-neck—a purely feminine fashion."

Dr. Percy Hall, of Hull, speaking at a Rotary Club luncheon, defended the new style of open necked shirts.

"If men can survive the new style they will benefit from it," he said. "It will harden them. Women nowadays are much more sensibly dressed than the men and their styles could be imitated by men to advantage."

Japanese Stenographer Battles Score Chinese

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 24.—(Unitel News).—Young China and Young Japan waged miniature warfare Monday in San Francisco's China town.

The physical victory fell to the former through weight of numbers, but the legal supremacy may rest with a lone representative of Japan. Twenty Chinese girls ,all in their teens attacked Rose Yonezu, a Japanese stenographer employed in a Chinese tea room, according to the police.

Miss Yonezu, wild eyed and much disheveled, applied to the police for John Doe warrants for her assailants.

Fists flew, clothing was ripped and shiny ebon bobbed hair was strewn on the sidewalk during the encounter, according to Miss Yonezu, who while admitting defeat ,says she did her best for the glory of the Yonezu family tree and the rising sun.

She had been threatened with bodily harm since she accepted employment in Chinatown, several months ago and recently received an anonymous letter saying there was no room for her in the Chinese quarter of the city, the Japanese girl said. Warrants were issued when Miss Yonezu said she could identify her assailants.

RANEY AMENDMENT CONDEMNING GOVERNMENT LOAN FROM HOME BANK IN 1919 DEFEATED BY 75 TO 25, LIBERALS AND PROGRESSIVES VOTED TOGETHER

Premier Ferguson Says Drury Forces Tried to Get Control of "Oshawa Reformer" After Losing "Farmers' Sun" and That Peter Smith Made a Cash Payment of $15,000.

TO INVESTIGATE SOURCE OF $15,000.

Declares Smith Was the "Goat" and Was Deserted in His Trouble by Raney—Liberal Leader Demands Government to Clean Up Home Bank Deal.

TORONTO, March 25. — The amendment to the Budget motion moved by W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, was defeated in the Legislature yesterday by 75 to 28. The amendment condemned the transaction between the Treasury Department and the Home Bank in September, 1919, whereby on a $4,000,000 loan the bank made a profit of $94,800, regretted the action of the Public Accounts Committee last year in not referring to it, and further regretted that the committee failed to make any adequate inquiry in commissions of $42,400 paid as special commissions by the Home Bank previous to September, 1919.

The Liberals and the Progressives voted soldidly for the amendment; Leslie Oke (U.F.O.) and the three Labor members voted against it. The premier in closing the debate made a bitter attack on the late Drury administration and W. E. Raney. He declared that in 1922 when the Drury forces had lost the control of the Farmers' Sun to the Morrison wing of the farmers' movement that they endeavored to get control of the Oshawa Reformer. To prove his contention the Premier produced an agreement between J. C. Ross (former editor of the Farmers' Sun) and J. Ewart McKay on one part, and Aemilius Jarvis, Jun., on the other part, in which the latter acquired 50 per cent. of the shares in the Oshawa Reformer.

Probe $15,00 Item.

"There was a payment of $15,000 cash, and we propose to find out where it came from," said the Premier. "Mr. Jarvis, Jun., says that the stock in the paper was held for Peter Smith, and that he had no interest in it whatever. He says the shares were bought and the money put up by Peter Smith. I hold in my hand also the certificate of the shares and also $4500 city of Saskatoon five per cent bonds which Jarvis says he was holding for Peter Smith. I see my honorable friend Mr. Raney smile, but it is the smile of death. Commissions were paid and we are going to find out about them. We will find where that $15,000 came from."

Mr. Raney—Go to it!

The Premier declared that the mind of Mr. Raney had dominated all the transactions of the late government.

"Do I understand that you mean that I had knowledge of the agreement you have just read?" asked Mr Raney.

"No; but your interests were linked up with the Drury government, and that government tried to get control of the Farmers' Sun," replied the Premier.

"That is not so," retorted Mr. Raney.

"Perhaps not as a government but the caucus of the government did discuss it," said the Premier.

"And took action too," interjected Leslie Oke, U.F.O. member.

Made Smith the Goat.

"Poor old Peter Smith, whom you made the goat, was the hewer of wood and the drawer of water for all of you," said the Premier; "and you deserted him while he was taking chances, even to committing crime to protect you."

"I am not going to let the country think that I was aware of any dishonest transactions," interjected Mr. Doherty.

Continuing, the Premier said: — "When Smith was in jeopardy where was the honorable leader of the Progressives? He was crawling to the tall timbers, and he deserted the man who robbed the treasury to keep the government going when it was tottering with rotteness to a fall. He was always seeking safety for himself and his whole public life has been marked by that characteristic."

The Premier said that there had been no criticism of the budget but that there had been a determined effort to avoid its discussion by the development of side issues. He accused Mr. Raney of violating the arrangements made to close the debate by the introduction of an amendment.

Mr. Raney said there was no violation but the Premier repeated his remark. Mr. Raney, he said, had thrown up a smoke screen but the coon himself had been smoked out. He said that Mr. Raney had ruined the Drury government because he would never admit that he was wrong. He declared that the amendment was reversing the report of the public accounts committee to the House last year. He accused Mr. Raney of suppressing information which the committee should have had last year. Mr. Raney denied this, stating that he got the information last fall.

The Premier said that the truth was that Mr. Raney always defended himself when he was attacked personally but when it came to his friends and colleagues he ran away, and in running away he secretly locked in his own breast the information he had just given the House the other day.

Defends McGarry.

Speaking of the alleged commissions paid by the Home bank, the Premier went into a strenuous defence of Mr Thomas McGarry, the former provincial treasurer He said no man in the House would believe the evidence of Whittaker of the Home Bank, and that evidence given by Whittaker was the only tittle of evidence given that even hinted at a commission being paid anyone. He said that the articles in the Globe with their insinuations had caused Mr. McGarry to go to the committee.

"Was his voluntary appearance an evidence of guilt?" asked the premier.

"Now we have the heroic ex-Attorney-General and the heroic Drury offering to appear before the committee, but it is a belated pilgrimage, after they had been found out." The Premier stated that the political McKeown inquiry into the Home Bank, would never have stopped if they had found out anything about Mr. McGarry being connected with the Home Bank. He said that Stewart Lyon, editor of the Globe, had stated that he did not believe that Mr. McGarry would perjure himself. The Premier then challenged Mr. Raney if he thought Mr. McGarry would commit perjury.

"I have not the pleasure of Mr. McGarry's acquaintance," replied Mr. Raney, "but I hope not."

The Premier then directed the challenge to Mr. Sinclair, the Liberal leader, who replied, "Is this a catechism class? The Prime Minister cannot sit in judgment on me."

The Premier in conclusion said the government was deermined as far as possible to purge the public service of dishonesty, and gave his word that were any one discovered doing wrong that regardless of political, racial or religious persuasion he would get his dues. If any one in the House would give reasonable ground for any inquiry the government would provide the proper tribunal for it, he concluded.

"Neither the U.F.O. nor the Conservatives mande any effort toget evidence on the matter and the only effort made was by the Liberals," said Mr. Sinclair. "I moved that Mr. McGarry come to the committee and I also moved that others be summoned. Mr. McGarry did come, and was examined. Matthews and Mason took a trip and were not heard. Had the government spent as much effort in tracing that deal as they did the Ridout and the Harris it would now have been cleared up and all suspicion allayed. The government was trying to make so much political capital that it only gave half a session out of 18 to the commissions of 1919."

"The government had the denials made before the charges came up, and it was the first time in my life I ever saw the negative case made out before the positive was put in. The matter cannot be allowed to stand where it is. It is up to the government to ferret it out to the remotest corner. Abuse of Mr. Raney does not help and this House cannot stultify itself by voting against the amendment. If the government says it will not have an investigation then the people have the right to become more suspicious."

100,000 Tons of Alberta Coal Coming For Ontario

TORONTO, March 25. — Before the budget started on Tuesday, Z. Mageau asked the Premier to tell the House how far negotiations for Alberta coal for Ontario had gone.

The Premier replied that it had been established beyond doubt that Alberta coal could be transported to Ontario for $7.00 a ton, and that the price at the pit was $3.50 a ton.

Starting on May 1st he stated that the railways would haul 100,000 tons to Ontario, although there was no agreement that it was to be hauled at actual cost. The Alberta Trade Commissioner, he stated, was here now, and the Alberta Government had undertaken to see that Ontario got a good quality coal. The matter of distribution in Ontario, he said, had not yet been worked out. There was still much negotiation to be carried on.

BRITAIN PAYS CURZON HOMAGE

Gives Highest Tribute in Nation's Power to the Late Marquis.

ABBEY SERVICE.

LONDON, March 25. — The highest tribute possible for the British nation to offer the memory of one of its statesmen, was paid at noon to-day to the late Marquis of Curzon, when his funeral services were held in Westminster Abbey, and attended by representatives of the sovereign, the British prime minister, cabinet members, leading statesmen, and foreign ambassadors.

The casket of oak, from trees near Kedleston Hall, Lord Curzon's ancestral home in Derbyshire, was brought from Carlton House terrace to the ancient abbey in a motor hearse, which was followed by other motors carrying Lady Curzon, Lord Curzon's three daughters, and other relatives of the family.

Immediately after the hearse came motors laden with wreaths and floral tributes.

A detachment of mounted police headed the funeral procession, which arrived at the Abbey just as the chimes of Big Ben in the tower of the Parliament buildings marked the hour of 11:30. The Abbey was filled with representatives of all classes of the British public.

Emerging from the Abbey, the funeral procesion went through crowded Whitehall, past Lord Curzon's old quarters at the Foreign Office, and on St. Pancras station, where the casket was placedon board where the casket was placed on board a train for Kedleston.

Burial will be made to-morrow in the family vault, beneath the chapel of Kedleston church.

"TIGER GIRL" IN COURT FAINTED

Trial of Dorothy Ellingson For Murder of Mother Begins.

YOUTH A FACTOR.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25. — Dorothy Ellingson, sixteen-year-old "Tiger Girl," collapsed in a faint at the first session of her trial on Monday for the murder of her mother.

The girl arose from her seat beside her counsel, took a step or two toward the exit from the court room and fell forward on her knees, limp.

First aid treatment was given the girl in the jury room, and consciousness quickly came. She repeated over and over:

"Dear me!"

With a court attache on each side, she was able to walk from the jury room after a few minutes' rest.

She was taken to the jail hospital in the same building, walking across the "Bridge of Sighs" with unsteady steps.

One Juror Accepted.

Counsel physicians examined her during the noon recess. As she fell forward in the court-room, her face went deadly white. When she was picked up, her head hung limply back.

But one juror had been accepted during the sitting.

Questioning of the first jurors called indicated that Dorothy's youth may save her from life imprisonment for the slaying of her mother.

Assistant District Attorney Harmon Skillin put this question to George A. Metcalfe, the first prospective juror:

"Would the youth of the defendant influence your verdict?"

"It would."

Asked if he would disregard the court's instructions as to the youth of the defendant, Metcalfe said firmly:

"I would. I would be guided by my own judgment in the case."

Insanity to Be Defence.

Two women were among the first called into the jury box.

That the defence of the girl slayer will be based on a plea of temporary insanity was indicated through the questioning of the second juror, Martin Hencken.

Defence Counsel Sylvester McAtee asked Metcalfe, the first juror, if he had any prejudice against defence based upon temporary insanity of the defendant. Before the prospective juror could reply Assistant District Attorney Skillin demanded that if it was the plan of the defence to claim insanity the State should be so advised.

McAtee denied the necessity under the law of supplying such information to the State, but said:

"In all frankness to the Court I am willing to state that insanity will be one of the defences offered."

Celebrate At Home Town Of Only English Pope

LONDON, March 25.—(United Press).—Abbots Langley, a little village in Hertfordshire, is preparing to hold a commemoration this summer in honor of its most distinguished native son, Pope Adrian IV., the only Englishman ever to occupy the Vatican.

A tablet is to be unveiled in the parish church to mark the fact that this Pope was once a litle Hertfordshire boy, named Nicholas Breakspear. A pageant will be held in the grounds which once formed the garden of the house in which Nicholas was born some four centuries ago.

Being only an easy hour's motorcar run to the north of London, the village is expecting to entertain a large number of pilgrims.

WISE FOOLS ARE MENACING WORLD THINKS VISITOR

Dr. J. B. McIntosh Points To Absurdities of Modern Man's Make-up.

TRIUMPH—DEFEAT.

Conquering Nature and Triumphing Over Obstacles to Progress Insufficient.

"The world is full of wise fools," Dr. J. B. McIntosh of Cincinnati, told the Examiner last night. Dr. McIntosh, who has made a wide study of modern history and has served on some of the United States Associations for the furtherance of peace and disarmament, was visiting friends in Peterboro on his way to Montreal, where he will lecture on "The Peace of the World," paying particular attention to the conditions of the recently rejected protocol.

His description of those who people the world to-day was taken from the news told on the pages of the daily newspaperr. And in mentioning them he had a good word for their work, praising the unbiased way in which they chronicle the seamy and the smooth sides of life. "A romance of high society," he said, "takes its place according to your standard in the column beside a sordid story of the underworld, and the same size of headlines may tell the tales of a clown and a king."

Recalling some of the more recent happenings that the newspapers have reported, Dr. McIntosh pointed facts to bear out his appellation: "Wise Fools." "On the same page of our big dailies," he said, "was told the story of how American airmen flew from coast to coast, seeing the same sun rise over the Atlantic and set over the Pacific, and the story of a fist fight in Madison Square Garden over politics and religion."

Man builds wonderful skyscrapers like the Woolworth tower, and raises monuments of beauty and art, and has not solved the problem of the city slum. He has developed here in Canada the greatest farm produce business in the world, but cannot devise a world credit system though millions overseas cry for the wheat and grain bankrupt farmers are unable to sell. He spends lavishly for hospitals and the science of medicine and sleeps with windows shut, and loses teeth in his thirtiesfor want of brushing. He reverences law and order and dodges taxes and patronizes bootleggers. He writes wonderful songs about the beauty of the forest and allows two-thirds of all timber to be destroyed by fire, or wasteful cutting."

Dr. McIntosh complimented The Examiner upon the appearance of last night's edition, remarking upon the wonderful achievements of modern news-distributing channels which enable the newspaper to give to its readers at four o'clock the words spoken in the Budget debate at Ottawa at 3.30.

Referring to the photographs reproduced in The Examiner, the visitor commended their news value, and remarked that his title, "Wise Fools," was shown in the fact that although man can send pictures by wireless across the ocean they are most popularly interested in leg pictures and comics.

"Achievement and Absurdity," he said, from the complexities of the modern world. Man, who invented motion pictures, demands the crudest melodrama and the rawest romance. Man who invented gas bombs to annihilate populations of cities can find no universally acceptable plan for settling international disputes by processes of reason. He writes classic literature and economically prints it with art rivalling that of master craftsmen—and buys sloppy stories to read. He believes in God—and worships mammon."

Dr. McIntosh believes in the necessity for an ideal that will lift all men to the same plane. The trouble with all the efforts made hitherto, he thinks, is that every one necessitated the lowering of its ideals by some nation or party. It is not necessary he believes, for anyone to lose his ideals in order to raise the standards of another.

NOTES DEFINED FOR STAMP TAX

Meanings of Cheque, Bill of Exchange and Other Paper Explained.

IN THE BUDGET.

OTTAWA, March 25. — Clearer definition of what constitutes cheques and bills of exchange is made in Tuesday's budget provisions. The acting minister of Finance stated in the House that the special war revenue act was being evaded by the substitution of documents which did not come strictly within the provision of the act for stamp purposes. A cheque is now defined to "include any document or writing, not drawn upon or addressed to a bank in exchange for which a bank makes payment of a sum of money except a coupon and a document made solely for the purpose of settling or clearing any account between banks and that such a cheque shall be liable to the stamp."

"A bill of exchange transferred or delivered to a bank drawn upon a person outside of Canada, shall for the purpose of the value of the stamp, affixed thereto, be deemed to be drawn for an amount not exceeding $2,500," the amendment rules. A stamp for two cents in every fifty dollars up to $2,500 must be affixed to such bill of exchange.

Money orders or travellers cheques, whether issued by a bank or any other person, are liable to the stamp tax.

"A bill of exchange or promissory note held by a bank as collateral security for an advance or other indebtedness" when stamps have been affixed to the relevant bill, is not subject to the stamp tax until its surrender on payment of the collateral.

A request in writing by a customer of a bank for the transfer of an account to another bank, and the bank's acknowledgement thereof, are not subject to stamp tax.

On the first complaint of the failure of a person to affix stamps the department may give the offender one month in which to repair the omission, on payment of a penalty of ten dollars.

DOCTOR FAILED TO APPRISE PARENTS

Unaware of Serious Condition of Their Daughter—Scientist Case.

WINNIPEG, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Testifying at the manslaughter trial of David Robb, Christian Science practitioner, here Tuesday, Mrs. R. Watson declared that the seriousness of her child's condition had never been indicated by the medical doctor summoned. Robb is charged with manslaughter, arising out of the death from diphtheria of 12-year-old Doreen Watson last November.

She had never considered her daughter to be in danger, but deemed it advisable to consult a physician on the recommendation of Robb. "The doctor, when he called the second time, did not insist on anti-toxin being used; nor did he give any indication that he considered Doreen in a serious condition. Had he done so, and suggested calling another doctor, I would have agreed," Mrs. Watson said.

She stated she still opposed toxin treatment, however, and doubted its efficacy in the cure of diphtheria.

"I asked Robb to pray for my child, which he consented to do. Doreen began to get better, and on the day before her death she was on her feet and apparently on the road to recovery."

Robert Watson, the father, stated that those who employ Christian Science practitioners were expected to pay. The fee depended upon the time spent in treating the case, and was always subject to mutual agreement.

BRITAIN SPONSORS NEW PEACE PACT FOUNDED ON GOOD WILL OF GERMANY AND ALLIED NATIONS

Austen Chamberlain in Commons Speech, Offers Substitute for Geneva Protocol.

BRITAIN TO LEAD.

German Acceptance of Her Eastern Borders an Essential Condition to Plan.

LONDON, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the British Parliament and the rest of the world last night that Great Britain will have nothing further to do with the wreckage of the Geneva protocol, but will seek to build permanent peace for Europe on another foundation—a mutual pact between Germany and her late Allied enemies. This pact would guarantee the present frontiers of Western Europe against change, and in it Germany would renounce all idea of ever going to war to bring about alterations in her eastern borders as they were fixed after the last war.

With the pact, Mr. Chamberlain envisaged Germany's admission to the League of Nations with full fledged membership in the Council of that organization. This vision based on Germany's recent proposals will not bear fruit, Mr. Chamberlain thought, unless Great Britain and the neighboring nations across the Channel can deal successfully and expeditiously with the remaining obligations of disarmament and the evacuation of the Cologne area."

Europe in Two Camps.

Since the war, no less than during it, Mr. Chamberlain asserted Europe had been divided into two camps, with fear haunting the councils of every nation, and the home of every continental people. If this continued sooner or later Europe would be marching to a new Armageddon, but in the new proposals for a pact in which Germany and her late enemies would make mutual guarantees he saw the possible dawn of a better day.

"Unless you get away from this atmosphere of fear and suspicion, away from this attitude of an armed camp!" he went on, "then if not in my time, in my children's or grandchildren's time Europe will be given up to a new struggle, and the generation that has to pay the penalty of that unnecessary war will judge harshly the statesmen of today who failed to take in time measures by which it might have been prevented.

Policy Wavered.

"The statesmen of this country have great responsibilities and our policy, not wholly through our own fault, has been wavering and inconsistent. Our influence—no one can move as I have done among the statesmen of Europe, and more than Europe, and not feel it—our influence has lost something by our hesitation, our inconsistency. But now the chance is given to us. I see in these proposals the possible dawn of a better day.

"Without our help nothing will be done; without our help Europe shall march surely, though slowly, to new disaster. With our help the war chapter may be brought to a close and the real triumph of peace may begin.

"The British Empire, detached from Europe by its dominions and linked to Europe by these islands, can do what no other nation on the face of the earth can do, and from east and west alike there comes to me the cry: 'After all, it is in the hands of the British Empire; if they will that there shall be no war, there will be no war'."

Lillian Gish Eats Carrot As Court Hears Her Case

NEW YORK, March 25. — (Canadian Press).—Lillian Gish eats raw carrots!

This vegetarian habit of the screen actress became known when she appeared in Federal Court at the trial of the suit brought by Charles H. Duell, president of Inspiration Pictures Inc., to compel her to make pictures only for his company.

Throughout the opening session of the trial yesterday, Miss Gish took an occasional bite of a carrot which she had taken to court. She was asked the reason.

"Oh, I'm awfully nervous," she replied.

Documents produced in court showed that Miss Gish's original contract with Duell called for $1,250 a week, with 15 per cent. interest in all pictures made, and to run for seven years, until 1930, with a maximum weekly salary of $2,000.

WESTWOOD, March 25. —Four boys were injured here last night, when the automobile in which they were driving turned turtle. The driver, Gordon Douglas, 20, had his shoulder and chest badly crushed. Dr. Campbell was called from Hastings and attended to their hurts, assisted by Mrs. R. C. Breckenridge. The injured are all expected to recover.

The boys were trying out a McLaughlin car which had been in the garage all winter and were coming down Main street at a fair rate of speed when the car turned over in front of Manley's store. The car is a complete wreck.

CHURCH UNION BILL BEFORE COMMITTEE

Sub Committee Will Endeavour to Draft a Bill For Submission.

TORONTO, March 25. — Canadian Press. — Resumption of deliberations on the vexed question of the Church Union bill to be submitted to the Ontario Legislature by a subcommittee of the Private Bills Committee, which was appointed yesterday in an effort to draft a bill that would meet with general approval. Little progress was made yesterday at the afternoon meeting, the first of the committee meetings, according to corridor gossip this morning, members entering into a general discussion of the so-called tentative agreement arrived at last week by the negotiating committee composed of an equal number of church unionists and non-concurrents under the chair manship of Hon. W. E. Nickle, the Attorney-General.

It is regarded as unlikely that the private bills committee will meet again until Tuesday next when the committee is expected to report.

ESTIMATE $400,000 FROM POWER DUTY

Acting Finance Minister Says the Government Needs the Money.

OTTAWA, March 25. — (Canadian Press.)—"We estimate that the export duty on electricity will bring in an annual revenue of approximately $400,000," said Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, last night, when questioned regarding the new export duty of power announced in the budget yesterday afternoon. "The $400,000 is not included in the $1,000,000 estimated increase in revenue which will result from the other tariff changes," added Mr. Robb. "The duty on power is for revenue purposes—we need the money," he said.

The prices ranged from $37 to $100.

EXALT CHRIST IN ALL LIVES

Home, Pleasures, Business and Politics Need Influence of Christianity.

SAYS PREACHER

MARMORA, March 25.—A rousing service with an especially good congregation was held in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening. The organ was taken for the occasion by Mrs. W. R. Sitt. The choir was well represented and rendered an anthem, "Abide With Me," the solo part being well sustained by Mr. W. A. Sanderson. Mr. Brock Leonard also sang as a solo "There Are Lonely Hearts to Cherish." The pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare, delivered an impressive sermon from John 3:14-15 and John 12:32. He reminded his hearers how that both passages found their source in that incident, old and interesting, connected with the life of the Children of Israel in the wilderness when Moses raised the Brazen serpent. In their dissatisfaction they desired food even more luscious than the manna. Fiery serpents were sent which bit the people, and as they cried out in distress, Moses, through command of God, created the Brazen serpent.

It is a strange story, but its authenticity we need not doubt. The Brazen serpent was kept as a monument of God's deliverance for many years afterwards. Jesus drew spiritual lessons from its story. The business of the church is to take hold of those lessons. It is primarily to teach all nations and to exalt Christ. In the middle ages there was a great attachment for the cross. It came to be regarded as a passport into glory. We know that there are churches today in which the emblem of the cross is to be very much seen. There is just as much reason for crosses in churches as for the retention of the Brazen serpent in the tabernacle. That and no more. Crosses have also been used as pendants. That is good when it serves to remind of the death of Jesus. But we must remember Jesus did not say, "If the cross be lifted up, all men will be drawn unto Me," but "If I be lifted up, will I draw all men unto me." The cross is only valuable as it brings to our mind the invisible Christ hanging upon the cross of the world. The cross is also mentioned in connection with our hardships and disagreeable experiences. Jesus Christ meant that the place of His follower was to lift Him up before the world. The world can be saved only by the exaltation of Jesus Christ over its affairs. Exaltation of Jesus means more than the taking up of our cross. When He said, "Teach all nations," He had His finger again on an important matter. He made the moral law more complete in His re-statement of it. Christ should be exalted by His desciples of today in their conversation. There is a dearth of Christian conversation. "Not one of those present that evening," the preacher declared, "who tried to live the Christian life but what kept their mouths shut too much about Christianity. Jesus should be exalted in the home, in pleasure, in business and in politics. God has never been fearful of His teaching. Let the world hear it. It can stand the test."

CIVIC OWNERSHIP OF POWER PAYING

Campbellford Debaters Fail to Show Benefit of Linking With Hydro.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 25.—It is by this time generally admitted that the municipal lighting plant is a veritable gold mine, one of the most valuable public utility that ever passed into civic ownership. It is only a few years since this was a mooted problem, the opponents of the plant taking the ground that the system would never prove other than a white elephant on the town's hands, and occasionally, even yet, the question provides an interesting topic for debate by literary societies.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Young People's League of the Methodist Church the old discussion was revived. Mrs. G. A. Kingston and Miss Essa Dafoe argued that it would be to the best interests of the people of Campbellford to dispose of the civic lighting plant to the Hydro. John F. McGregor and Wilbert Kingston, with eloquence and force, took the opposite side.

The speakers for the affirmative made the best of what was generally regarded from the outset as a hopeless case. Mr. McGregor had the advantage, derived from his position as Secretary of the Water and Light Commission. He came to the debate fresh and direct from a special meeting of that body, where no doubt he laid in a supply of new inspirations. He received sturdy support, too, from his bright young colleague.

The civic institution, which turns out the cheapest electric power in America, if not in the world, which furnishes domestic light at cost—and low cost at that—and which, notwithstanding these rates, has made it possible for the managers to pile up a surplus of $30,000, of which $6,000 has just been transferred to the town treasury, survived the ordeal. The judges declared the affirmative speakers the winners by a score of 13 points to 12. The judges took occasion to compliment the ladies on the skill with which they presented their case, adding that if all of their statements had been supported by proof they would have won.

SUCCESSFUL PLAY IN SPRINGBROOK

Dramatic Club Presents "An Old-Fashioned Mother" Before Good Audience.

MARMORA, March 25.—A very bright evening was spent in Springbrook on Friday evening when the Dramatic Club of Springbrook put on the play "An Old Fashioned Mother."

The entertainment was held in the Orange Hall and was for the benefit of the Methodist church.

Act I: The Good Samaritan.

The first act was choir practice at Mrs. Underhill's. Miss Laviny Custard comes in and tells of a tramp who frightened her.

John, Mother Underhill's youngest son, whom gossip says, is becoming wild brings in the tramp, who has been injured. After he is bandaged, fed and rested, Mrs. Underhill gives him money to go to his mother. He promises to do so.

John was arrested on a charge of murder.

A Mother's Love.

In the second act Mrs. Underhill's older son, Charlie who, with his wife has been living with his mother, has decided to go to the city because his wife isn't satisfied with her surroundings. In order to go, he persuades his mother to mortgage the farm. Glorianna Perkins tries to persuade her not to but mothers-love prevails and she gives a mortgage to Brother Jonah Quackenbush.

Later in the evening when the house was empty John comes back, destitute and in rags. He had spent two years in jail, when another man confessed the crime and he was released. He disappeared but could not get away from the stigma of jail. Now, he comes back, and is helping himself to his mother's money. He was the tramp of the first act and passed on the kindness and gave John money and a good position.

The Prodigal Son.

The act opens with Mother Deb in tears. The mortgage is foreclosed and she is ready to go over the hills to the poorhouse.

While she is waiting John comes home. He has bought the home for his mother and her friends come in to rejoice with her.

The part of the mother was exceptionally well played by Mrs. T. McConnell. She put herself into the emotions of the different parts in a very real way.

"Jerry Gosling" made the laugh of the night with his desire to "swop" and his quaint remark, "That's what ma says."

The other characters all played their parts well, especially Glorianna and John, the prodigal.

Cast of Characters.

Deborah Underhill, mother in Israel—Mrs. T. C. McConnell.

Widder Bill Pindle, leader of the choir—Mrs. S. Mason.

INDIANS' RIGHTS TO BE ANALYSED

Question Raised Whether Required to Pay $5 License Fee.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 25.—Fish Inspector R. J. Allan, who is anxious to have the question of the rights of Indians to trap muskrats in season has brought a test case which will be heard in Police Court here before Magistrate Payne next Thursday morning. Crown Attorney Kerr of Cobourg will appear on behalf of the Crown while the interests of the defendant will, it is expected, be looked after by a lawyer from the Department, charged with the care of the Indians of the country.

The point as issue is whether Indians, who are the beneficiaries of the Government, can be compelled to pay the $5.00 license fee which is exacted from white men for the privilege of hunting muskrats. All trappers in the past have been charged this fee, regardless of race, since the impost was made but the Indians claim treaty rights which render them exempt. The test case, which is likely to be carried up on appeal, will settle the vexed problem for all time and will prevent friction between trappers and the Inspectors.

Rights of Farmers.

The inspector says that there is no question as to the right of farmers to forbid trespass by trappers on their land. Judge Ward of the counties of Northumberland and Durham, recently retired, gave judgmen in this matter while an active member of the Judiciary. His ruling was that a farmer who has a deed to land bordering on a stream can prevent trespass by posting notices.

Bought Hastings Garage.

H. Oliver of this town has purchased the garage at Hastings, formerly operated by R. N. Simpson and Son, and will take possession at once.

New Notes.

Leading Liberals of Campbellford are in Warkworth today attending the annual meeting of the party for the Federal riding of Northumberland county.

Lieutenant Bradley, the new Salvation Army officer, who is a skilled cornet player, plays accompaniments on that instrument to the singing of the Army on the streets evenings. He never fails to attract a crowd.

Farmers are getting ready for an early opening of spring work. They report that the bright sunshine followed by frost at night is injuring the wheat and clover fields which are now completely bare of snow.

LAKEFIELD NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Louther and Miss Lillian Manley were the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Louther, Selwyn, over the week-end.

Your doctor advises internal cleanliness

HE WILL tell you that the first results of constipation — headache, sleepless nights, biliousness, backache, etc.—warn that the body is flooded with intestinal poisons. In time these poisons may cause the breakdown of health and lead to serious disease.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. For sale by all druggists.

RABBITS RAVAGE FRANCE

Bill Calls Bunny "a Nuisance and a Noxious Animal."

PARIS, March 25.—Protection against the ravages of wild rabbits is another phase of the security problem which recently has occupied the attention of the French parliament.

A bill declaring the rabbit "a nuisance and a noxious animal," signed by Premier Herriot, Minister of Agriculture Queuille and Minister of Justice Renoult has been introduced It is couched in a similar language for that aimed at the wild boars infesting Normandy and Auvergne, passed by the chamber some weeks ago. It gives authority "to any one, at any time and anywhere, to destroy rabbits by any and all means.

THE BUDGET.

As prophesied, Hon. Mr. Robb's Budget speech did not contain any startling announcements in regard to taxation or tariff changes.

The Income Tax and the Sales Tax remain completely unchanged—no relief from either of these levies could be hoped for in view of the heavy falling off in revenue last year .

The tariff changes, with the exception of that dealing with bituminous coal, are of little general importance.

Mr. Robb made that clear when he observed that "for the present the opportunity of unobstructed observation of extensive tariff changes made last year should be afforded."

In fact, the speech of the Acting Minister of Finance was more striking in its presentation of the country's financial condition than it was by reason of its tariff changes—a reverse of the usual conditions.

That he was, in spite of a decrease in revenue of $52,831,000, able to show a surplus of revenue over expenditure of $1,823,000 is indeed, as the Minister puts it, "a remarkable result."

Ordinary expenditures were decreased by over $5,000,000, while Canada's favourable trade balance with the world increased to $263,414,526.

AN UNFORTUNATE FAILURE.

The failure of the representatives of the Unionist and non-concurrent Presbyterians to reach a common ground in regard to legislation dealing with the distribution of the church property and educational institutions of the Presbyterian Church will be generally regretted.

In a sense the issue is a challenge to the leaders on both sides of this question—a challenge to show the world that it is possible for Christian men to deal with a problem of this nature in a Christ-like way.

The strict application of the competitive spirit of modern business to the settlement of the distribution of the property under controversy may be justified—and yet most people look to church bodies for something on a higher plane than that.

As a contemporary points out, they are the exponents of a gospel that teaches that riches do not consist in the abundance of things a man possesses; they have read of the man who prepared to tear down his old barns and build greater in order that his wealth might be a source of personal gratification, only to find that his impoverished soul was soon to be demanded of him.

A STUDY OF TWO CITIES.

No evidence offers more conclusive proof of the value of public health work than a comparison between the two largest cities in Canada, Montreal and Toronto.

Montreal, with a population of 655,000 people, had a death rate last year of 51 from typhoid fever, as compared with 4 deaths from the same disease in Toronto.

During the same period 3,151 Montreal infants under one year old died, while in Toronto the total was but 912.

Montreal victims of tuberculosis in 1924 totalled 977, as compared with 340 deaths in Toronto from the same cause.

The death of children from diarrhoea (chiefly milk borne) reached a total of 1,172 in Montreal, while only 76 Toronto infants were claimed by that disease.

The contrast is most striking, yet the explanation is simple.

One city has made a systematic effort to protect the health of its citizens; the other has been almost criminally derelict in its duty in this respect.

Thus we find that while Toronto's water supply is pure, the water being both filtered and chlorinated, the Montreal water is only regarded as fair and there is not so much attention paid to it.

In Toronto all milk supplied to the citizens is pasteurized; in Montreal all kinds and conditions of milk is allowed to be sold.

While the Ontario capital carries on an extensive campaign of health education, there is much less activity along this line in the metropolis.

Toronto, too, shows a firmer control of epidemics, and as a result has fewer to handle than Montreal, where the people seem much less amenable to discipline of this nature.

The comparison has been extended far enough to show unmistakably that public health work, if intelligently and energetically taken in hand, can produce most remarkable results.

If you have any doubt of that re-read the figures given in this article.

PROVINCIAL EXPENDITURES.

Mr. W. A. McKague, editor of the Monetary Times, is the author of a most interesting booklet on the finances of the Canadian Provinces that is well worth the perusal of every citizen who takes the slightest interest in public affairs.

Mr. McKague has made an exhaustive study of his subject, and his summary, especially in regard to Provincial expenditures, is striking in the story it tells of the rapid increase in the amounts spent by the various Provincial administrations.

The original four Provinces constituting the Dominion, he points out, spent less than $4,000,000 a year, while the total for the nine Provinces at present is almost $150,000,000 a year.

This can be estimated on a basis of population as an increase per capita from $1 to over $15 a year, while making allowance for the higher price levels the Provincial outlay can be said to have increased by ten-fold since Confederation, by far the greatest part of the increase, of course, taking place since 1900.

Although the debts of the former Provinces were assumed by the Dominion at the time of Confederation, so many new debts have been incurred that the highest Provincial outlay at present is represented by debt charges.

Ontario alone had to provide $15,394,000 in 1923 for this purpose.

The next biggest increase is in the cost of education, the growth for all the Provinces being from $2,338,000 in 1900 to $24,468,000 in 1923, while in the same period the amount paid by Ontario increased from $758,466 to $9,835,000.

Another heavy expenditure is that made upon public charities.

In Ontario we paid $7,754,038 for this purpose in 1923, as compared with $1,013,100 in 1900.

It is an expenditure that few will quarrel with.

Half a century ago the Provincial policy in this respect was to merely extend casual, and whereas nowadays the Provinces have taken over the entire responsibility for the insane, the helpless and the feeble-minded through public institutions established for the purpose and for the most part maintained at the public's expense. Grants are also made for the support of ordinary hospitals for the sick, and public health work aiming at the prevention of disease is included as well.

As the Examiner has said more than once, if we were willing to go back to the old conditions it would be possible to materially reduce the expenditure and the tax rate.

Mr. McKague's booklet shows not only how great has been the increase in the outlay, but also how much we obtain from the expenditure compared to the "good old days."

Does any one sincerely want the former conditions back?

JUVENILE IMMIGRATION.

Some interesting observations upon the question of juvenile immigration are contained in a publication, "Canada's Child Immigrants," issued by the Social Service Council of Canada as the result of an exhaustive investigation conducted as a sequel to the unfortunate suicide of two young immigrants.

Commenting upon the suspicion that child immigrants are sometimes subject to exploitation, the committee of the Social Service Council declares that its enquiries, without condemning the system as a whole, have made it clear that this suspicion is not unfounded. It makes recommendations, based upon facts coming under its attention, which cannot fail to possess weight and which, it is hoped, will lead to improvement in the unfortunate conditions which have been found to exist.

"The most poignant danger," reads the report, "lies in the selection of the children in Britain. Startling revelations are found in a study of the clinics for unmarried mothers, venereal disease patients and psychiatric cases in the Toronto General Hospital. During the last seven years no less than one-tenth of the mothers who gave birth to illegitimate children in that institution had been brought to Canada by one single agency.

"The startling fact here is the prevalence of mental defectiveness. It is easy, with modern methods, to detect low grade of mental abilities. The physicians, either of the agencies or on the immigration service, should stop any of this type from passing from Britain to Canada. Moreover, this particular group has been brought to notice because it consisted of girls, and their plight forced them into the hospital. Boys of the same type escape this compulsion, and we can only wonder, since four times as many boys as girls are brought over, if we have not now a large number of weak-minded men thus added to our national burden of pauperism, vice, crime and insanity."

Startling are the revelations contained in statistics supplied by the Social Service Department of the Toronto General Hospital. Of 130 women treated in the hospital who were known to have been brought to Canada as juveniles, seven were reported to be insane and 114 were mentally defective. Up to the time of their treatment in hospital, these women had produced 131 illegitimate children, although there was a minority who were not mothers. Fifteen were described as prostitutes, three as thieves, one as a sexual pervert and one afterwards committed suicide. Several had served terms in jail. In the case of 43 of these women, it was possible to calculate from the records the age at which they had been brought to Canada, the average of which was 11 1-2 years.

"We are justified in asking how these girls slipped through the 'selection sieves' in Great Britain and at the port of entry to Canada," says the report. "Mental tests can be imposed upon children of this age. Did the Home authorities know that they were defective when sent to Canada? If so, why were they sent? Or if the Home authorities did not know, why were they ignorant of such a vital fact? How did these girls pass the inspection of the superintendent of emigration at his office in London? How did they elude the vigilance of the port doctors? And, finally, why should the citizens of Toronto shoulder the cost of the treatment and relief of these defective women and their almost certainly defective offspring?"

These and other disclosures lead the committee to the conclusion, which will be shared by many others, that it is not sufficient to relax supervision over the youthful immigrants at a time when they are ill-prepared to face the trials and responsibilities of life. "This glimpse of the 'backwash' of juvenile immigration as it appears in Toronto carries us back to the question with which this report began—is child immigration from Great Britain based upon a sound social principle?" we read. "If we agree that the principle is sound, then we may go on to ask whether the system is satisfactory in its actual working. Is the welfare of the child the first consideration at each stage of the transaction, from its primary separation from its own home and family, to the provision for its independent citizenship when it arrives at the age of freedom from guardianship? Is the impermanent guardianship of an institution, coupled with the oversight of an official at Ottawa, the best that Canada can do for these young people? Has the Province no responsibility for their replacement, their health and their education? Has the municipality no voice in a policy by which it may be so vitally affected, in health, morals and expenditures? Such are some of the questions, aroused in the minds of your committee, by their study of the various phases of this movement."—Brockville Recorder and Times.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 24. — Too many cattle were landed on the Union Stock Yards on Monday for the good of prices. The receipts were 5,437 and the sales only 3,731.

For good to choice shipping steers the top was $8.40 a cwt., but the Harris Abattoir took a load for home consumption at a nickle a pound above this. On the average except cows export stuff was down 25 cents a cwt.

Short keeps for export cost $6.75 to $7.40 a cwt., heifers $7 to $7.50; cows $5.50 to $6.50 and bulls, $4.50 to $5.50 Today will wind up this week's export business, and any cattle taken later will go over till next week. Trade is bad in stockers and feeders not so much because of the demand but on account of the high prices. There were 14 loads of these on to-day's market, and one load was sold at $6.50 a cwt. These averaged 900 lbs. each.

The market was very dull this morning and butchers' cattle outside of the good choice hanry weights are being cut easily 25 cents a cwt. In one alley there were 10 loads of export steers from yesterday not sold because of the lower bids. Choice handyweight butchers sold at $7.50 and good handyweights at $7 a cwt. Common butchers were slow and easier in price. Butcher cows were steady and good to choice cows sold from $5.50 to $6 a cwt. A number of medium quality baby beeves made $8 to $8.50 a cwt., A fair proportion of to-day's cattle will have to be held over.

The expected heavier run of calves has not yet materialized and this is keeping prices steady with a little Buffalo assistance Top calves were 13 cents and bunches of good ones 11½ to 12 cents. Medium calves were 10 cents and common calves 6 to 8 cents.

With only an occasional deck of lambs coming in the market here is easily held steady. A couple of packages of fair quality ewes sold at 16 cents a pound. Spring lambs brought $12.50 to $14.00 each.

There appears to be no change in hogs and prices are wavering. A good many sales were made on Monday at $13.25 a cwt., f.o.b., but today the packers are united in standing on paying no more than $13 a cwt

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, March 24—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.78 1-8.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, March 24.—The market for eggs shows very little change. Receipts are not yet sufficiently heavy to further affect prices. In United States reports state there has been some storing and this at prices fully 5 cents per dozen higher than at the commencement of storin- last year.

Toronto—Jobbing specials 39; extras 37, firsts 35, seconds 32.

Montreal—Jobbing extras 40, firsts 37, seconds 34. Ontario extras are costing delivered 37, firsts 34, seconds 30 to 31.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, March 24.—Receipts 497 cattle, 54 calves, 1,215 hogs, 4 sheep.

With approximately 60 cattle held over from yesterday, trading this morning opened slow with a weak market on butcher stock. Butcher females were around 25 cents lower than last week and very few sales were made on butcher steers.

The hog market opened steady, thick smooths selling at $12.75.

There were not sufficient sheep on the market to establish a price range.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 24.—Dwindling away of new buying left the wheat in a shaky condition today, especially at the last. In particular, fresh demand from Europe was lacking, and export business appears to have been brought to at least a temporary halt. Wheat closed nervous, 1 3-4 to 5 cents net lower, May 165 1-4 to 165 1-2 and July 145 1-4 to 145 1-2.

Corn finished 2 3-8 to 3 1-4 cents down, oats at 1-2 to 1 cent off and provisions showing 25 to 70 cents decline.

Lowest prices of the day prevailed in the wheat market at the close. Shrinkage in volume of transactions rather than unusual pressure to sell was noticeable. In this connection the extreme violence of the swing of late was given as a reason for the falling off in general speculative trade, and so too was the fact that a government investigation is in progress to determine whether the recent sudden big changes in price, and the simultaneous huge aggregate of dealings had been warranted.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, March 24. — Apart from a little business worked in Canadian Western oats here with the United Kingdom the export business in grain today was very quiet. There was some enquiry on spot for No. 2 feed oats at five cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., Bay Ports, which sellers would not accept. The tone of the market for spot supplies of oats was easier at a decline of 1-2 cent per bushel, and little business was done.

The demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent for Spring wheat flour was again of a very limited character, but there was some business accomplished with the British West Indies. There was no further change in prices. On the other hand Winter wheat flour was weaker and prices were reduced another thirty cents per barrel, which was attributed to the more liberal offerings from Ontario millers.

The volume of business in eggs was large and the tendency was firm. The tone of the cheese market remains very firm with fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods quoted at 22 to 22 1-2 cents per pound, and No. 2 grades at 21 to 21 1-2 cents per pound.

The butter market was inactive, but steady.

Beans were fair at $2.70 per bushel.

Electric lights over the water at fish hatcheries are used to attract insects and aid in feeding the fish.

PERHAPS it has never occurred to you that your troubles from indigestion are really caused by torpid liver action and consequent constipation of the bowels. Stomach tablets and lotions sometimes afford temporary relief but they do not get at the cause.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively remove the cause of trouble by their direct and combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. A single box will convince you of their efficiency.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

He did not travel very fast, spending two days in covering the twenty-five miles between the first and second trap-line cabins. At the second cabin he remained for three days, and it was on the ninth day that he reached the Gray Loon. There was no change. There were no tracks in the snow but his own, made nine days ago.

And then, of a sudden, Baree made a change. He spent a night in the tepee. After that, whenever he was at the Gray Loon, during the day he always slept in the tepee. The two blankets were his bed—and they were part of Nepeese. And there, all through the long winter, he waited.

If Nepeese had returned in February and could have taken him unaware, she would have found a changed Baree. He was more than ever like a wolf; yet he never gave the wolf-howl now, and always he snarled deep in his throat when he heard the cry of the pack. For several weeks the old trap-line had supplied him with meat, but now he hunted. The tepee, in and out, was scattered with fur and bones Once—alone—he caught a young deer in deep snow and killed it.

Again, in the heart of a fierce February storm, he pursued a bull caribou so closely that it plunged over a cliff and broke its neck. He lived, well, and in size and strength he was growing swiftly into a giant of his kind. In another six months he would be as large as Kazan, and his jaws were almost as powerful, even now.

The winter passed, and spring came, and still Baree continued to haunt his old trails, even going now and then over the old trap-line as far as the first of the two cabins. The traps were rusted and sprung now; the thawing snow disclosed bones and feathers between their jaws; under the deadfalls were remnants of fur, and out on the ice of the lakes were picked skeletons of foxes and wolves that had taken the poisono-baits. The last snow went. The swollen streams sang in the forests and canyons. The grass turned green, and the first flowers came.

Surely this was the time for Nepeese to come home! He watched for her expectantly. He went still more frequently to their swimming-pool in the forest, and he hung closely to the burned cabin and the dog-corral. Twice he sprang into the pool and whined as he swam about, as though she surely must join him in their old water frolic. And now, as the spring passed and summer came, there settled upon him slowly the gloom and misery of utter hopelessness. The flowers were all out now, and even the bakneesh vines glowed like red fire in the woods. Patches of green were beginning to hide the charred heap where the cabin had stood, and the blue-flower vines that covered the princess mother's grave were reaching out toward Pierrot's as if the princess mother herself were the spirit of them.

All these things were happening, and the birds had mated and nested, and still Nepeese did not come! And at last something broke inside of Baree, his last hope, perhaps, his last dream; and one day he bade good-bye to the Gray Loon.

"Again, in the heart of a fierce February storm he pursued a bull caribou so closely that it plunged over a cliff and broke its neck"

CHAPTER XXIV.

It was early in August when Baree left the Gray Loon. He had no objective in view. But there was still left upon his mind, like the delicate impression of light and shadow on a negative, the memories of his earlier days. Things and happenings that he had almost forgotten recurred to him now, as his trail led him farther and farther away from the Gray Loon; and his earlier experiences became real again, pictures thrown out afresh in his mind by the breaking of the last ties that held him to the home of the Willow. Involuntarily he followed the trail of these impressions—of these past happenings, and slowly they helped to build up new interests for him. A year in his life was a long time—a decade of man's experience. It was more than a year ago that he had left Kazan and Gray Wolf and the old windmill, and yet now there came back to him indistinct memories of those days of his earliest puppy-hood, of the stream into which he had fallen, and of his fierce battle with Papayuchisew. It was his later experiences that roused the older memories. He came to the blind canyon up which Nepeese and Pierrot had chased him. That seemed but yesterday.

And now, for the first time in many weeks, a bit of the old-time eagerness put speed into Baree's feet. Memories that had been hazy and indistinct through forgetfulness were becoming realities again, and as he would have returned to the Gray Loon had Nepeese been there, so now, with something of the feeling of a wanderer going home, he returned to the old beaver-pond.

It was that most glorious hour of a summer's day—sunset—when he reached it. He stopped a hundred yards away, with the pond still hidden from his sight, and sniffed the air, and listened. The pond was there. He caught the cool, honey smell of it. But Umisk, and Beaver-tooth, and all the others? Would he find them? He strained his ears to catch a familiar sound, and after a moment or two it came—a hollow splash in the water. He went quietly through the alders and stood at last close to the spot where he had first made the acquaintance of Umisk. The surface of the pond was undulating slightly; two or three heads popped up; he saw the torpedo-like wake of an old beaver towing a stick close to the opposite shore—he looked toward the dam, and it was as he had left it almost a year ago. He did not show himself for a time, but stood concealed in the young alders. He felt growing in him more and more a feeling restfulness, a relaxation from the long strain of the lonely months during which he had waited for Nepeese. With a long breath he lay down among the alders, with his head just enough exposed to give him a clear view. As the sun settled lower the pond became alive. Out on the shore where he had saved Umisk from the fox came another generation of young beaver. —three of them, fat and waddling Very softly Baree whined.

OFFERS FREE SITE FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Hastings Considers Offer of John Coughlan, a Separate School Supporter.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, March 25.— When the agitation for a new school building in this village first reached a serious stage, one of the first problems to be faced was the question of a suitable site for the proposed structure, a question which so far has not been disposed of. The present site is smaller than the law requires and the surface is so rough and broken that it is useless as a playground.

John Coughlan, who is a Separate School supporter, offered the village a free site for a Public school building on his farm, just outside the residential section of the village, and it is understood that the offer is still open.

Mr. Coughlan was the first white child born in what is now Hastings Village, the house of his nativity standing on what is now a vacant lot on Front street. He has spent all his years in this place and is still vigorous, taking an active interest in every improvement planned for Hastings.

SEARCHING CLOCK.

COPENHAGEN, March 25.—To prevent suspicion being cast on honest workers in factories handling gold and precious stones, where searchers are necessary to keep down thefts, a Danish engineer has perfected a clever invention. It is a sort of an electric time clock which can be set so that it flashes a red light at irregular intervals. The red flash means that the worker who punches the clock will be searched that day, simply because he happened to punch at that time and not because of any suspicions regarding him.

TAKING $100,000 FROM CANTEEN FUNDS OPPOSED

Hon. Dr. Manion Favors Adjustment Bureau But Not Method of Financing.

HOUSE DEBATE.

Let D.S.C.R. Administer It and Cost Be Borne by Parliament.

OTTAWA, March 25. — (Canadian Press). —Debate on the question of the distribution of the canteen funds now held by the government, was resumed in the House of Commons Tuesday afternoon by Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative-Fort William and Rainy River).

Dr. Manion opposed the payment of $100,000 out of this fund for the establishment of an adjustment bureau. This money was held in trust as the property of returned soldiers and should not, he paid out in this way. He favored the establishment of such a bureau and believed that annual grants necessary for its maintenance could be made by parliament and provided for in the estimates. Such money voted should, in his opinion, be paid to a board of trustees appointed wholly or party by parliament, and composed of such men as Sir Arthur Currie.

Dr. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment said he had intended to ask Sir Arthur Currie to act as head trustee in the event of the bill passing, and as Dr. Manion suggested. He was prepared if the resolution was passed, to draft a clause into the bill appointing Sir Arthur Currie, provided he was willing to act. The various governments of the Provinces would appoint boards of trustees to handle the fund consisting of five in Ontario, and three in the other provinces. The majority of each board was to be ex-service men.

Dr. Beland read a letter from Sir Arthur Cuurrie in 1923 approving the principle of the adjustment bureau.

Toronto Opposition.

J. E. Harris, (Conservative-East York) regretted that the government should require the use of $100,000. For the establishmment of a bureau. The Department of Soldiers' Civil Reestablishment should be able to administer the distribution of the canteen fund quite adequaetly. Dr. Harris read telegrams from veterans organizations of Toronto opposing the general adjustment bureau idea.

Dr. Murray MacLaren (Conservative- St. John-Albert) pointed out that as the funds were the property of returned men it, was a doubtful principle to allocate $100,000 of this money for the establishment of an adjustment bureau. If such a bureau were necessary for taking care of pension and other matters, he thought it might be maintained at the government's expense.

Dr. Beland declared that an adjustment bureau was a very useful agency to the men and their dependents. The suggestion that $100,000 should be set aside for its maintenance followed the recommendation of the Ralston Commission.

Dr. Beland, in reply to a question from W. F. MacLean, (Conservative South York) stated that protests had been received against the apportionment of the sum of $100,000 to one organization only, for the maintainance and assistance of an adjustment service bureau. This matter he intended to look into. No protests however, had been received against the legislation proposed in the resolution.

T. L. Church (Conservative-North Toronto) stated that there was objection in his constituency to the proposed division of funds. He read a telegram from the Toronto and York G. W. V. A. to this effect. Dr. Beland asked to see the telegram, and when it was passed across the House, he replied that the two men who had signed the telegram had later appeared before him and approved of the proposed legislation.

Mr. Church continued that throughout Toronto there were Veteran organizations disapproving of the division. Surely, he said, the government was not so hard up that it had to go into trust funds for the establishment of his bureau. The canteen fund should be administered without cost to the Veterans.

ANTI-RELIGIOUS POLICY IS FATAL

Will Kill Affection For France, Says Alsatian Deputy.

PARIS, March 25.— (Canadian Press.)—A warning against goading Alsace and Lorraine to desperation by suppressing religious liberties was given by Alsatian Deputy Michel Walter yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Deputies. He spoke during the debate on the Government's proposal to modify the civil and religious regimes in the redeemed provinces until they are uniform with the rest of France.

"The Government's anti-religious policy is unhappily likely to cause some of the inhabitants to judge France by its Government's policy. The day such a feeling becomes dominant in Alsave and Lorraine, affection for France will be dead."

BIG STRIDES IN MEDICAL SCIENCE

Doctor Predicts Extermination of Tuberculosis in 25 Years.

LONDON, March 25 (Assosiated Press). — Twenty five years hence tuberculosis will be exterminated in the British dominions, or be as uncommon as leprosy is today Dr. C. W. Saleeby, spokesman for the London Medical Institute, has declared. He predicts that the greatest advance in medical science will be the successful combating of tuberculosis and cancer, and the reduction of infant mortality to almost nothing.

The last 25 years, Dr. Saleeby says, has seen medical science develop more than in centuries before, but he points out that this has been brought about by very limited numbers of medical men and scientists, drawn largely from Germany, Austria and the United States. He believes that today all the medical men of the world are vitally interested in perfecting the science of national health and that the result of this international ambition will be a perfect system of combating disease.

The latest methods used to prevent tuberculosis have already provided for a gradual decline in the number of tuberculosis victims for the future and, once health officers have been able to stop the spread of the disease, Dr. Saleeby believes it will rapidly disappear.

The attack on cancer presents greater difficulties, and only the most elementary steps have been made so far toward combating it, but Dr. Saleeby predicts that another ten years will find science in a position to begin an international movement to eradicate cancer.

Dr. Saleeby, who has been the leading exponent of the campaign to lower infant mortality in England has figures to show that the ratio in England and Wales has decreased from one in seven in 1906 to one in 14 in 1923. He asserts that the ratio will be about one in 22 when the present methods of handling natal cases are in common use.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

"WHY NOT-" HE ASKS.

To the Editor, The Examiner.

Dear Sir: Why not an embargo on pulpwood? And watch the thousands of young men said to have left Canada, rush back.

Why not an embargo on hydro-electric energy? And watch a hundred thousand families come here to utilize its advantages.

Why not an embargo on minerals and wood products? Until reaching a finished stage, and watch us grow.

Why not a reciprocal tariff embargo on wheat? And develop the greatest milling operations in the world, right here in Canada.

Why not convert all Canada's resources into finished products in Canada? And give employment to hundreds of thousands.

Why not urge Parliament to deal with most of these? Before the present session closes, so immediate results may be had.

Yours truly,
W. O. SEALEY.

POWER EXPORTED.

Hamilton, Ont.

To the Editor, The Examiner.

Dear Sir: The report tabled in the House of Commons on March 4, 1925, shows the greater part of the electric energy exported from Canada, is from Niagara Falls, and being under the impression that the Ontario Government or the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission owns or controls the greater part of it. Can it be that the Ontario Government or Hydro Commissions are directly or indirectly exporting large and ever-increasing quantities of electric energy?

A full and immediate explanation by the Ontario Government or the Hydro-Electric Commission, or both, is due the people of Ontario, and I trust it will be forthcoming through the press at an early date.

Yours truly,
W. O. SEALEY.

REV. A. T. MOORE FEARS 4.4 BEER

May Create Appetite For Strong Drink, He Told Congregation.

SPOKE AT OMEMEE.

OMEMEE, March 24.—Rev. T. Albert Moore, of the Department of Social Reform and Evangelism, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening. For upwards of an hour, the speaker held the congregation spellbound.

Dr. Moore took for his subject, "Is the Church a Failure," taking for his text, "And the Gates of Hell shall not prevail against it."

He told of the many wonderful things which have been accomplished in his department of church work, referring in no uncertain terms to the matter of prohibition. The liquor traffic was a menace to humanity, and Dr. Moore saw danger ahead and is afraid of the 4.4 beverge, which is not a beverage to be experimented with, but it is feared an appetite for drink might be created. The speaker then asked the congregation to strive to protect our churches, our homes, our children and to pledge themselves to never touch liquor that is intoxicating.

Dr. Moore later referred to the other phase of the work of his department, 231 boys are now scattered in good homes in Ontario and over 3,800 babies have been taken out of the clums and from irresponsible mothers and placed in good Christian homes:

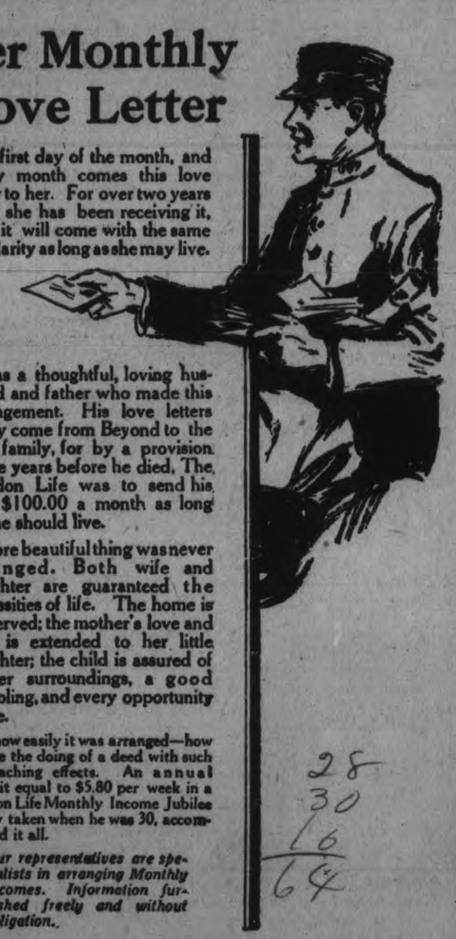
Her Monthly Love Letter

The first day of the month, and every month comes this love letter to her. For over two years now she has been receiving it, and it will come with the same regularity as long as she may live.



It was a thoughtful, loving husband and father who made this arrangement. His love letters really come from Beyond to the little family, for by a provision made years before he died, The London Life was to send his wife $100.00 a month as long as she should live.

A more beautiful thing was never arranged. Both wife and daughter are guaranteed the necessities of life. The home is preserved; the mother's love and care is extended to her little daughter; the child is assured of proper surroundings, a good schooling, and every opportunity in life.

And how easily it was arranged—how simple the doing of a deed with such far-reaching effects. An annual deposit equal to $5.80 per week in a London Life Monthly Income Jubilee Policy taken when he was 30, accomplished it all.

COMPANY REFUSES TO CONSIDER NEW CONTRACT WITH MINERS ON BASIS OF THE 1924 WAGE SCALE

Statement by J. E. McLurg, Vice-President of British Empire Steel Corporation.

HIS GRIEVANCES.

Alleges Miners Deliberately Loaded Stone Into Their Coal Boxes—Maintenance First.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 25.—(Canadian Press).—The following statement was issued Tuesday by J. E. McLurg, vice-president of the British Empire Steel Corporation:

"The newspapers on Saturday published a memorandum, dated March 19th, the day on which Premier Armstrong, Mr. Chisholm, Minister of Mines, and Mr. T. J. Brown, Deputy-Minister of Mines, had a conference with President McLeod and other executive officers of the United Mine Workers. This memorandum, which states it was prepared for the consideration of the Premier, the U. M. W. Executive and the British Empire Steel Corporation is apparently a tentative proposal and neither one of the three interests can be held responsible for its preparation. To clearly define the issues, for the purpose of bringing a settlement that much nearer the British Empire Steel Corporation issues the following statement setting forth its position in regard to the memorandum referred to.

"The first consideration is to maintain these mines in a workable condition, and the Corporation will not enter into negotiations for the purpose of effecting a settlement of the present dispute until the maintenance men are back at work and in the employ of the various companies.

"John L. Lewis, international president in a telegram to Mr. Wolvin, already published, states: 'The International United Mine Workers frankly recognize the obligation to furnish maintenance men at mines in the event of a strike as set forth in Clause 16 of expired agreement in District 26; the fact that the agreement has expired does not lessen the obligation, as Clause 16 was explicitly agreed to by both sides to meet such a situation as now exists.'

Excludes 1924 Wage Scale.

"After the maintenance men return to work and negotiations are resumed, it is only fair that the miners should know there is no possibility of the Corporation resuming negotiations for a new contract on the 1924 scale of wages.

"During the year 1924, the Corporation collected from its employees and paid over to District 26, U.M.W. of A., $247,130.47. Of this amount, $102,809.42 was collected as a special levy to enable District 26 to pay local merchants who had honored orders issued on them by the U.M.W. officials for relief purposes during the cessation of work from January 15 to February 15, 1924.

"With reference to the proposal to appoint a commission to hold an inquiry and investigation, we submit that the suggestion made by Premier Armstrong in paragraph six of his joint letter of February 23, 1925, covers the reference to a board of inquiry more completely: 'With a view to ascertaining the actual necessary costs of mining, transporting and selling coal, the ability of the companies to pay a rate of wages satisfactory to the employees, to earn a fair return on capital invested, and the bearing which the attitude and action of the employees have in relation to the efficient and profitable carrying on of operations."

Miners Loaded Stone.

"The above provides for an inquiry into the actions of both parties to the present dispute. We understand the suggestion is to form a board of inquiry to hold an investigation for the purpose of improving the relationship between the management and the men, and to improve conditions. Some of the points the company desires inquired into are: (1) Why many miners deliberately load stone into their coal boxes instead of coal; and (2) why the Dominion Coal Company in the year 1924 had to pay miners an amount of money for mining 15,038 tons of slate, instead of coal, the cost of producing this slate having added 2½ cents per ton on the cost of every ton of coal produced by the company that year.

"Another matter to be inquired into is why miners will not work more than five or six hours per day instead of eight, and why they are not allowed to produce in many cases twice the quantity of coal they are now doing.

"There are many other points with regard to the actions of the miners which increase the cost of coal, all of which could quite properly be subjected for investigation. In addition there is the big question of deductions from wages, commonly known as 'off-takes,' the practice at present being to make the company a collecting agency for various interests, the clerical work in connection with which is a burden on the company.

Reduce Cost of Coal.

"The reason why the Corporation must have a reduction of wages is to reduce the cost of producing coal to permit increasingly larger sales in competition with American coal in the St. Lawrence market.

"During the war the tremendous demand for coal resulted in many new mines being opened in the United States to the extent that experts now estimate conditions in the United States to be as follows:

"Estimated annual coal producing capacity of United States mines — 1,000,000,000 tons.

"Estimated annual consumption in the United States—400,000,000 tons.

"Estimated annual exports from the United States—100,000,000 tons to 150,000,000 tons.

U. S. Competition.

"It is a well-known fact that many mines in the various States have not produced a ton of coal for over a year. Many others are worked only a few days in certain months of the year. The result is that American mine operators are constantly seeking sales for their coal in Canada, and proof can be given that in many instances sales have been made at prices below the actual cost of production.

"The production of coal by the companies for the last three years was as follows:

"1922—4,243,370 tons.
"1923—5,105,605 tons.
"1924—4,397,489 tons.

"The amounts paid in wages by the companies to employees, not including salaries of officials or other staffs, were as follows:

"1922—$13,196,306.51.
"1923—$16,527,338.79.
"1924—$14,274,037.19.

"A great deal has been said about the relation between the 1924 scale of wages and previous scales. The contract known as the Montreal agreement, made on November 8, 1920, which expired on December 31, 1921, gave the mine employees the highest rate of wages they have ever received.

J. NELSON STONE IS PRESIDENT OF NORTHUMBERLAND LIBERALS

Warkworth Was Scene of Stirring Meeting—Duncan Marshall There.

PARTY IS ACTIVE.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, March 25. — J. Nelson Stone of Campbellford, is the new president of the Liberal Association of Northumberland county, and A. J. Meyers, mayor of the same town, is the secretary-treasurer. They were elected at the annual meeting of the organization, which was held at Warkworth Tuesday afternoon, and which was addressed by Mrs. H. Carpenter, of Hamilton, and Duncan Marshall, formerly Minister of Agriculture in the Province of Alberta, and now the energetic and ubiquitous Federal organizer for the Liberal party.

Recalled to Life.

After four years of torpidity — physical, but neither mental nor moral seeing that the members here have been keeping a close watch on passing political events during the period of their inactivity—the Liberal Association of the riding has taken its place again in the front of the stage and appears rather more vigorous than before its retirement. The very air in the Warkworth village hall where the meeting was held was vibrant with optimism. There was not a prophet of gloom in the entire audience, which was large enough to fill the building comfortably. The day star upon which the eyes and the hopes of the Liberals is fixed, is the West Hastings bye-election, and what was done in that riding last fall the stalwarts of the party believe can be repeated here.

Whenever the next Federal election is held the Liberals of Northumberland will not be caught napping. They did not select a candidate at yesterday's meeting but if they act on the advice of Organizer Marshall, as they are likely to do, they will hold a nominating convention in a short time so that the standard bearer chosen will have an opportunity to get busy among the voters.

Ladies Show Interest.

One noteworthy feature of the assembly was the large number of ladies present, they coming from all parts of the riding and the interest they took in the proceedings. Those from Campbellford were Mesdames A. J. Meyers, L. B. Glover, W. S. Wiggins and Mrs. Charles Macoun, the latter from West Seymour. The ladies were welcomed as members of the party and each municipality was allowed a member of the fair sex as its vice-president.

Young Voters and Veterans

All ages were represented in the audience, from the young men and women who at the next election will cast their first vote to the white-haired veterans who have spent all their years in the Liberal ranks. The dean of them all was Sam Black of this village who at the age of 92 is still active and alert in body and mind. Mr. Black was voting the Liberal ticket before the majority of those in the audience were born, voting that ticket when very often to do so meant social ostracism, if not actual personal risk. He was in the prime of manhood the year Confederation was accomplished, and has seen his party emerge from a weakly hopeless majority to hold on three occasions the control of the Federal government of Canada.

Another stalwart veteran present, and one who spoke on more than one question raised, was Dr. Watson of Cobourg, William Jordan of Campbellford were among the old guard.

Almost Ancient History.

When President J. D. Hayden of Cobourg called the gathering to order the following were invited to take seats on the platform: J. Nelson Stone of Campbellford, Mrs. Carpenter, C. W. Kerr of Toronto, standard bearer of the party in the last Federal election, when three candidates were in the field; Mayor Fraser of Trenton, Sam Dudley of Colborne, Dr. Ferris of Cobourg, and Duncan Marshall.

The minutes of the last annual meeting, held four years ago, savored so much of ancient history that it was though the records had lost all interest for the audience, and they were accordingly taken as read. Secretary Ferris, however, read the report of a meeting of the executive which was held in the fall of 1921, and of a gathering in Colborne on February 25 last, when it was decided to call the annual gathering held yesterday.

In a brief address, President Hayden welcomed the ladies and gave them the lion's share of the credit for the victory in West Hastings. He believed that in all future contests the ladies would give the party and its leaders the same loyal support.

President Elected.

There were two nominations for the position of president, J. Nelson Stone of Campbellford, and Dr. W. Robertson of Colborne. Dr. Robertson maintained that a nominating committee should be appointed and his motion to this effect was supported by C. H. Curtis of Warkworth and others. Before this motion was put, Dr. Robertson withdrew his name and moved that the election of Mr. Stone be made unanimous, and this motion was heartily carried.

On taking the chair, Mr. Stone said he was not ashamed to own that he had been a Liberal all his life. He recognized the fact that there was a lot of work ahead. The party had been discouraged by the activities of the Progressives, but now the outlook was brighter, and with the ladies on their side the Liberals would soon be in the lead. They had not always been defeated in the past and the new president hoped that no one would believe that the party had no chance in the next election.

The Speeches.

As President Stone was a member of the nomination committee which retired to select the other officers, Alex. Rutherford, ex-Reeve of Haldimand Township, presided in his absence. Two ladies, Mrs. M. Fisher, of Cobourg and Mrs. N. D. Richards of Warkworth were appointed on this committee.

While the committee members were preparing their report, the speakers were heard, Mrs. Carpenter being the first to address the audience. She spoke especially to the women, advising them to study the public issues of the day to organize for the campaign and to support the nominee of the party. Mrs. Carpenter has faith in Liberalism and told the ladies that they owed their franchise to that party and not to the Conservatives. The Premier had always been an advocate of Woman's Suffrage and she referred to him as the greatest statesman in the British Empire today. All of the achievements of the present Federal Government were alluded to and the speaker said that, while Premier King was boosting the country, ex-Premier Meighen, by his propaganda of calamity, was doing more to injure the reputation of Canada than any other man.

Mr. Meighen has only one remedy for the economic ills, a higher tariff and the speaker read extracts from the recent speech of Sir George Paish in which he maintained that free commercial relations between the nations of the world were the ideal conditions.

Mrs. Carpenter advised the ladies to organize an association of their own in every large town and told them that they had an excellent opportunity to redeem the riding.

"Maybee Can Be Defeated."

Mr. Maybee, the Federal representative of this country can be defeated just as the member from West Hastings was," said Mayor Fraser of Trenton in a brief address. The Liberals, he said, are not a free trade party but believe in a tariff in the interests of all the people instead of for a particular class.

Wrecking a Government.

C. W. Kerr praised the public record of Mr. Marshall, who had been one of the best Ministers of Agriculture that Alberta had ever had. He explained the party reverse of 1921 by saying that some Liberals at that time believed that the surest way to wreck the Meighen Government was to support a third party. Mr. Kerr believes that there are better days ahead.

Mr. Marshall's Address.

Mr. Marshall started his address, which was pronounced one of the best ever delivered from a Warkworth platform, by giving his hearers some practical advice as to the best method of conducting a political campaign. At the outset of his career, he was associated with the Patrons of Industry, and he recalled the fact that the head of that organization which flourished in the early nineties, was Caleb Mallory, who originally came from Warkworth.

Mr. Marshall said that the Conservatives were responsible for the organization of third parties in the past. The Tories' iron hand had been so lightly clasped on the throat of agriculture that the farmers were obliged to organize in self-defence.

Mr. Marshall dealt with all the live issues of the day as they concern the farmers, apparently recognizing the fact that the majority of the audience were of that calling. He was particularly severe in his denunciation of ex-Premier Meighen's general policy and of his attitude on the tariff especially. What the farmers need are markets, not tariff restrictions. The British preference was sturdily defended and what he alluded to as the fallacy of some Conservative promises, especially the talk of a duty on cheese, was eloquently criticized.

The Conservative "Moses."

In a brief reference to Provincial affairs in Ontario, Mr. Marshall said he was inclined to agree with a member of the Legislature that Premier Ferguson was a political "Moses," because Moses had led his followers into the wilderness, but failed to lead them out again. The Ontario Premier, on the platform with Mr. Meighen, ranted of the poverty of the people, and yet he proposes to wring another eight million dollars from them in new taxes on beer and gasoline. On the other hand, the Liberal Government at Ottawa took $50,000,000 less from the people last year than during the year before.

Farmers Prosperous.

As an evidence of the prosperity that is returning to the farmers under the Liberal regime, Mr. Marshall cited the fact that in Peterboro a harness factory has orders on its books to keep it busy until May 1 by running two shifts. When Mr. Meighen was in power the farmers were fixing their harness with hay wire.

When Northumberland Liberals choose a candidate and the battle begins, Mr. Marshall promised that he will come to the riding and lend a helping hand.

Mayor Meyers Chosen.

The report of the nominating committee, which was adopted, named Mrs. S. Dudley, of Colborne, for vice-president, and A. J. Meyers of Campbellford for secretary-treasurer. The latter will take up his new duties with a handsome bank account, the funds contributed by those at the meeting yesterday.

Going To Win.

"We are going to have the same co-operation they had in West Hastings," said the new secretary in returning thanks for his election. "We are going to win and we are going to carry the riding."

The Vice-Presidents.

The following are the new vice-presidents for the various municipalities:

Campbellford— Don W. Douglas and Mrs. L. B. Glover.
Seymour — M. West and Mrs. Charles Macoun.
Hastings—J. Collins and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee.
Percy— H. S. Aylesworth and Mrs. N. D. Richards.
Colborne—Rupert Clark and Mrs. H. Colter.
Cramahe— Clarence Massie and Mrs. Charles Wolfrain.

Cobourg— George Cochrane and Mrs. M. Fisher.
Haldimand—Fred Slade, R. Lawless and Mrs. W. Mann.
Hamilton—James Thompson.
Alnwick—George Dawe and Mrs. Del Brisbin.

The convention to nominate a candidate will be called by President Stone and Secretary Meyers.

CAMPBELLFORD PEOPLE AS LIBERAL OFFICERS

Intimate Glimpses Into Persons of Trent Town's Representatives.

Campbellford is well represented on the officers roster of the Liberal Association of the riding. President Stone has been attending Liberal meetings ever since he was able to make the trip clinging to the hand of his father, who resided near Warkworth. In all his years of activity, Mr. Stone has never stumbled from the party pathway or made a misstep. He has had long municipal experience, in Town and County Council, is a good organizer and an excellent platform speaker. President Stone was one of the best volunteer workers from outside in the West Hastings election last fall.

The Secretary.

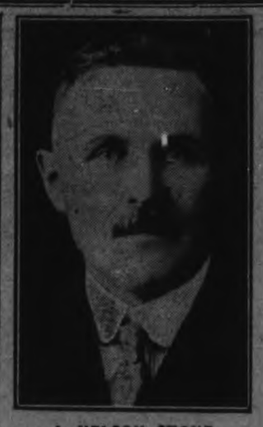
Whatver A. J. Meyers, the new secretary-treasurer sets his hand to do, he does thoroughly and it is believed that he will set a new pace when he buckles down to work in the office to which he has just been elected.

The Vice-President.

Mrs. S. B. Glover, a popular young society lady in the town, comes of a distinguished Liberal family, the Curtises of near Warkworth, a family that has held the present homestead for the past 104 years.

Don W. Douglas, a successful young business man, also a native of Percy Township, is a son of John Douglas, now of Toronto, one of the few Liberals who ever represented East Northumberland in the Legislature.

Mrs. Chas. Macoun, vice-president for Seymour is a pronounced worker in the Women's Institute, a good speaker and a first class organizer.



J. NELSON STONE,
Of Campbellford,, new president of Liberal Association of Northumberland County.

BRIGHTON FOLK HAVE A BRIGHT ENTERTAINMENT

"Miss Cherry Blossom" Was Presented in Town Hall by I.O.O.F.

REBECCAS HELPED

Every Seat Taken and Return Performance Called for Tonight.

BRIGHTON, March 25.—On Friday evening a delightful musical comedy, entitled "Miss Cherry Blossom," was presented in the Town Hall under the auspices of I.O.O.F. Lodge, No. 362, and Rebecca Lodge, No. 247, and directed by Mrs. F. J. Bradley.

As every available seat was taken for Friday night's performance, the play will be repeated on Wednesday, March 25. The stage was very fittingly decorated to represent a garden in connection with a Japanese tea house, by means of Japanese flowers, lanterns, etc. An eight-piece orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. J. F. Galvin, played the various musical selections in faultless style.

Mrs. F. J. Bradley, as Miss Cherry Blossom, was generously applauded by an appreciative audience. Much credit and praise is given Mrs. Bradley for her tireless energy in directing such a delightful musical entertainment, which could hardly be surpassed.

Dr. E. C. McKee, as Kokemo, a Japanese tea hous eproprietor, was very amusing and had the audience in an uproar time after time. Mr. Rannie McConnell, as John Henry Smith, a New Yorker, who fell in love with Cherry, acted the part faultlessly, and it is a safe wager that his days as an amateur are numbered. Mr. McConnell can always be depended on to take a leading part in a play with the ease and confidence of a professional. Mrs. Lee Smith, as Jessica Vanderpool; Mr. Joe Gossens, as Henry Foster Jones, Jack's pal, and Mr. Frank Bullis, as Togo, a rich politician, rendered their musical numbers excellently, and along with Mr. J. Bradley, as Horace Worthington, an American broker, and Mr. Harold Little, as James Young, the latter's secretary, helped to make the entertainment the best Brighton citizens have been able to attend in many years.

Nearly two hundred and thirty dollars was realized.

Personals.

Mr. Wm. Rudd of Toronto spent the week-end in Brighton.

Miss N. B. McConnell of Oshawa visited her brother, Mr. O. P. McConnell, over the week-end.

Mrs. J. J. Pollock of Peterboro spent a day with her son, Mr. R. H. Pollock of the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff.

Miss Evelyn Wilson of Toronto is spending a few days at her home, the Methodist parsonage.

Miss Margaret Jamieson is now back at her school after having taken an enforced holiday for a week or more at her home in Port Hope.

Rev. R. McCulloch has been called to and has accepted the pastorate of Colborne Presbyterian Church.

On Sunday evening about 8.30 p.m. fire broke out in the home of Mr. Joe Harnden. It proved to be but a small blaze, which mysteriously started in the kitchen, and was soon extinguished.

Birth—To Mr. and Mrs. Burton E. Brintnell, a son.

Whites of Eyes Tinged With Yellow? Muddy Complexion? Your Liver is Out of Order!

Mrs. Wm. Bourque, Fox Creek, N. B., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a long time, and was so bad I could not do any work. I had severe pains in my stomach that were so bad, at times, I could hardly stand them. My tongue became coated; I had a bad taste in my mouth, especially in the morning; the whites of my eyes were tinged with yellow, and I had a muddy complexion.

I had read a great deal about MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS, so decided I would try a vial, and after taking three of them I was greatly improved and felt more like living, and I can now do my own work without any trouble."

His mill was swept away in the big fire in Haileyburg in 1923 and after this loss he moved to his present quarters. As Mr. Dinwoodie handles only pulpwood that is cut on Government land, there is an embargo on the raw material all of which has to be manufactured in this country. ENCOURAGE COKING PLANTS IN CANADA

Drawback of 99 Per Cent. on Bituminous Coal Converted Into Coke.

OTTAWA, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—A drawback of 99 per cent. of the duty is to be allowed on bituminous coal imported into Canada for conversion into coke. This is done, it is announced, to encourage the establishment and operation of up-to-date coking plants in Canada.

It was explained at the Finance Department this morning that coke now enters Canada free of duty. Coking plants in Canada have been using slack coal for conversion into coke, but the budget introduced yesterday makes the duty on slack coal as high as the regular run of mine coal. In view of this, and because it is considered important that coking plants be encouraged in order to meet the demands for fuel, it has been considered advisable to provide a drawback.

Provision is made, however, that no drawback is payable during any month when the average ratio is less than thirteen hundred pounds of coke from two thousand pounds of coal.

5,000 WORDS ADDED

Radio Has Contributed to the English Language—Compiles New Words.

The English language has been increased by 5,000 words by the advent of radio, according to the Australian Musical News. Radio not only has promoted the exchange of ideas, but it has enriched our very speech with a vocabulary indispensable to those that would understand the mechanism.

Who ten years ago ever concerned himself with radio frequency problems? Who today would neglect to tune in and get his favorite station? We may have known of atoms, electrons, or protons and of triodes; but we now havea knowledge of inductance, of crystal detectors, of tuning coils, of variometers, of triode detectors and autodynes. Audion and potentiometer were once Greek to most of us, and the amplifiers, radio amplification and radio triodes were little less than a dead letter.

Today the radio world has enriched us by contributing not merely the working knowledge of these terms themselves which live wire in lexicography has placed on record, but by compiling new, useful and educational words to our language.

FELL 17 STORIES; STRUCK TAXI CAB

Harold Van Winkle Lived Long Enough to Tell His Name.

NEW YORK, March 25 (United News).—After falling 17 storeys through the air Harold Van Winkle, a 20-year-old clerk, crashed through the roof and floor of a taxi-cab standing outside the Hotel Pennsylvania and retained conciousness long enough to give his name and address.

He then became unconscious and died in Bellevue Hospital, about five hourse lated. In the operating room it had been discovered that the fall had broken both his legs and injured him internally.

The wreck of the cab showed clearly the terrific impact of the boy's body as it struck. The roof was splintered and the floor boards had given way, permitting the crushed form to slip through to the gutter. There was paint from the taxi-cab on the young man's suit, and contents from his pockets showered the pavement.

The police have been unable to learn whether Van Winkle fell or jumped. He was first seen hurling through the air and a woman who had just alighted from the cab narrowly escaped being struck.

Van Winkle worked for the Equitable Life Assurance Society, whose building is across the street from the hotel. It was from the assurance society's building that the form made its appearance in mid-air.

MUSICAL RECITAL.

Pupils of G. H. King Attract Large Crowd to Reid Street Hall.

The Reid Street Sunday School Hall was filled last evening for the first of a series of three recitals by the pupils of Mr. G. H. King. This recital, given by the senior vocal and piano pupils, was as successful as Mr. King's recitals always are, and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested in response to the offerings of vocal and instrumental music. In the instrumental section, one of the features of the programme was the playing of Master Walter Townsend. At the age of thirteen years, this young boy possesses a mastery of the pianoforte which might well be envied by mature players. Entirely from memory, with brilliant execution and firm, elastic touch, he played two of Chopin's difficult compositions, the Valse (Opus 42) and Valse (Opus 64).

On of the outstanding sections of the vocal programme was "Flora's Holiday," a cycle of Old English melodies for four solo voices and quartette. Hearty encores were vouchsafed the several numbers in this cycle, with special applause for the jolly old catch, "The Pedlar." Mrs H. Doig sang a soprano solo, "Love's Greeting;" Mrs. E Kitney a contralto solo, "Maidens, Beware Ye"; Mr. V. Boorman, whose voice is showing the result of careful study, the tenor number, "Tell Me, Charming Creature"; and Mr. J. Ridyard, Jr., the baritone selection, "Sound Argument." Quartette numbers were "Come, All Ye Lads and Lasses," "Gentle Dawn," "The Country Dance," and "The Commotion of Love."

Instrumental selections, played with careful attention to technique and pleasing, rounded tone, were Staub's "Sous, Bois," by Mr. Norman Watts; Schumann's "Scenes from Childhood," by Miss Lillie A. Brown; Beethovens "Andante," and Leschetizky's "The Two Larks," by Miss Alma Blanchard; Moszkowski's "Walzer (Op. 13) No. 3," and Chopin's Etude (Op. 10), No. 5" by Miss Elva Nugent.

Miss A Batten's light soprano voice was heard to good effect in Bishop's "Should He Upbraid"; Miss Beulah Payton, possessor of a rich contralto, sang Broome's "Love and Duty," and the lovely "Song of India," from Korsakov's opera Sadko; Miss Daisy Murrays clear, lyric soprano was splendid in Spross' "Awakening," and "Case's "Song of the Robin," and there was a great deal of finesse to the charming numbers by Mrs S. Sutton of Lakefield, who sang "Tell Me, My Heart," by Bishop, and Godard's "Angels Guard Three." Mrs. Ross Williamson's fine soprano was very effective in the "Voi che sapete from the Cavalleria Rusticana, and Hamblen's "When Singing Birds were Mute."

The vocal programme, which was marked by variety and careful selection of pretty selections, also included a well-received ladies' quartette, Pinsuti's "Welcome, Pretty Primrose," sung by Mesdames R. Williamson, H. Doig, E. Kitney, and Miss B. Payton.

At the conclusion of the programme, refreshments were served to the pupils and their friends, Mrs. C. C. Cragg and Mrs. C. S. McClelland pouring tea.

HONOR H P WHIDDEN AT MURRAY STREET

McMaster Alumni Association Tenders Banquet to University Chancellor.

The Sunday School auditorium of Murray Street Baptist Church was filled last evening, the occasion being a banquet in honor of Chancellor H. P. Whidden, of McMaster University, under the auspices of the McMaster Alumni Association of Peterboro. A feature of the banquet was the beautiful decorative effect in the colors of the University under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Pettit. The catering was done by Mr. Charles Cheu, a member of Murray Street Church, and the waiting by the young men of the Baraca Class. Among the guests were representatives from Park Street Church and Gilmore Memorial.

Mr. Joseph Wearing acted as toastmaster, and the following were the toasts of the evening, after the usual toast to the King:

"Our Educational Institutions," Mr. A. J. Madill, Mrs. H. H. Graham; "The Chancellor," Rev. N. R. McLeod, Chancellor Whidden; "Our Denomination," Mr. L. J. Pettit, Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose.

In responding to the personal toast, Chancellor Whidden sketched the past work done by McMaster University and pointed out its present needs. He laid strong emphasis on the fact that while high scholarship has and always will be insisted on in the University, at the same time the spirit of all the work done there must be along the line of developing strong Christian character in the student body. The scope of the work, too, must extend beyond Baptist circles so that the University may have a national as well as a sectarian influence.

During the evening it was pointed out that Murray Street Church has in its membership not only a number of graduates of McMaster, but also graduates of Toronto University, Queen's, Acadia, and Columbia.

The music was supplied by a male quartette of McMaster graduates: Messrs. C. S. Browne, H. H. Graham. Joseph Wearing and Dr. S. T. Graham.

Police Say They Used Sleight of Hand Tricks in Stealing.

NEW YORK, March 25. — The arest of six men early to-day as members of gangs that have preyed on Wall street bond and brokerage houses for months, has revealed that the robbers employed "sleight of hand" experts to steal bonds from messenger boys in crowded trains and elevators, the police say.

The six prisoners are charged with especially the theft of bonds and securities valued at two hundred thousand dollars from four Wall Street firms. As a result of the arrests $50,000 in securities has been already recovered.

If she only knew that she could put on at least 5 pounds of good healthy flesh in 30 days she wouldn't be worrying about her peaked face, hollow cheeks and neck and run down looks.

She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitalizing vitamines that make flesh, creates appetite, restores vigor, builds up the power to resist disease and chases away nervousness.

But it's horrible tasting stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are prescribing it and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, which Warne Drug Co. McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch and druggists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

It is a wonderful upbuilding medicine for skinny, backward children, especially after sickness and 60 tablets only cost 60 cents.

One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

LONDON, March 25. —(Canadian Press). —Dispatches from Calcutta report an amazing case of a sacrifice of childre nto the goddess Kali at Mandela, near Jabalapur in the Central Provinces.

The young son of a former native government official named Mulchand fell sick and the family, believing the boy possessed of a devil, decided a human sacrifice necessary to his recovery and offered up his sister as this sacrifice. When no improvement in the boy's condition was forthcoming they deprived him of food and bound him naked near a holy place where he died from exposure.

Mulchand and his two sons have been sentenced to death for the crime and a daughter in law to imprisonment for life.

DAIRY PRODUCTS BRING GOOD PRICE

Checker Enthusiasts at Brighton Looking For Worthy Foemen.

BRIGHTON, March 25. — Dairy butter is being sold at 40c lb., creamery 42c. Fresh eggs are selling at 32c a dozen, and chickens, which are scarce, command 25c lb. Sugar is worth $7.65 and $7.75 a cwt. Fresh maple syrup in small quantities, 65c a quart.

The Provincial Highway near Brighton is reported to be in first-class condition, as is the Campbellford road as far as Orland, where a bad stretch occurs. Traffic on the highway is considerably heavier, and the delightful weather experienced lately has been the cause of the appearance again of a number of cars that had been stored during the winter.

There is a great deal of enthusiasm among checker fans in the village concerning the proposed match between the veteran player, Ben. Ewing, and a player named Michael O'Donohue, from Campbellford. When interviewed, Mr. Ewing, who will be ninety years old in June of this year, stated that as yet he has received no acceptance of his challenge to play for the championship of the world for men eighty-five years of age or older, but in the event of such an acceptance of his challenge, the competitor must comply with the age requirement and the game would have to be played in Brighton, as he is unable to travel on account of his great age. He is quite willing to play with anyone under the age of eighty-five years for the sport of the game, but not the championship.

For the enlightenment of checker enthusiasts in Campbellford or elsewhere, Brighton has a number of very good and experienced checker players besides Mr. Ewing, and matches with them may be arranged through Mr. Archie Hatfield, the stage driver. Such players as Messrs. A. Flindall, A. Jackel and Wm. J. Mallett would welcome a game any time.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Cochrane have moved to Smithfield, where they will farm.

ENGLAND WORRIES ABOUT SCANDALS

Ministers Use Them as Texts For Sermons—International Effects.

(By Lloyd Allen—United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, March 25.—England is worried over its trilogy of scandals—the "Mr. A" case, the Dorothy Dennistoun case and the Waterhouse case, which ended last week.

These cases are being used as texts for sermons showing "corruption, debauchery and dishonor of every kind are their specialties," an editorial in the Daily Chronicle said to-day.

The editorial says that "this orgy of scandals" may have its effect internationally and seems convinced that the effect within the nation is not good.

It adds that already the anti-British press in Germany, France, Italy and Spain is attacking English society on the basis of the recent scandals.

All of the cases are practically ended, so far as the courts are concerned, except the Dennistoun suit.

Mrs. Dennistoun has not yet won her fight despite the findings of a jury in her favor yesterday, which included an award of 5,000 pounds.

The jury's finding must be passed upon, probably to-day, by the court. Arguments will be made by attorneys for Mrs. Dennistoun and for her husband, Lt.-Col. Ian Dennistoun, whom she is suing.

The ruling of the court will approve or disapprove the jury's award of damages.

The jury also has one more "question" to decide. It has to do with the counter-claim of Colonel Dennistoun for money he alleged he paid Mrs. Dennistoun for the upkeep of the flat in which she lived.

HOPE IN BUDGET.

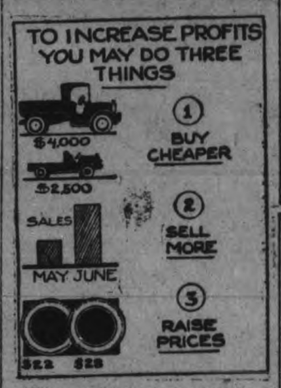
Hon. J. A. Robb May Solve Some of Coal Miners' Troubles.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 25. —(Canadian Press).—The budget of Hon. J. A. Robb is confidentially expected here to offer a solution to some of the troubles of the Nova Scotia coal mining industry, seriously threatened by the impasse reached by the British Empire Steel Corporation and its employees three weeks ago, when their effort to adjust the 1924 wage-scale broke down. By an increase in the tariff on American slack coal of from fourteen to fifty cents there have been removed, it is believed, all hindrances to an immediate settlement of the present dispute.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads; that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Money AT WORK



When profits begin to dwindle in business, there are three main paths open to start them mounting again.

1. Buy labor and materials cheaper. Usually the most effective way to buy labor cheaper is to get coordination within the organization. If there is dissention, relatively little work is done and labor costs are high. Sometimes material can be bought cheaper, too. However, the danger of getting poorer quality always exists. Better results are almost always obtained indirectly through efficiency rather than a direct slash in buying.

2. Sell more. Higher sales usually result in a decreased sales cost per unit.

3 Raise prices. Raising prices should be the last attempt, as the volume of business is likely to fall off, however, if after trying the first two, there are still no profits, it is evident that prices are too low.

Business is like baseball, it is out on the third strike.

Burrows on Regent street for a social evening in honor of Mrs. Sutton, who has been for the past three years a faithful and useful member of the choir. About fifteen were present and enjoyed a social evening. During the course of the evening Mr. Kenneth S. Madill, organist and choir master, read the following address and presented Mrs. Sutton with half a dozen cups and saucers.

Lakefield, Mar. 23, 1925.

Dear Mrs. Sutton,—At this gathering of the choir to wish you "farewell," we want to express our feelings of regret that you must leave our midst and also to tell you of our feeling of gratitude for your unfailing service to the choir and the church.

We are deeply sorry to lose you, both as a valuable member of the choir, whose place we shall find it hard to fill, and as a friend.

May you encounter nothing but prosperity, harmony and happiness in your new surroundings and prove as faithful and willing a member in your new church as you have among us.

With these good wishes we want you to accept this little remembrance from each one of us and may it always remind you of pleasant associations and happy hours with your Lakefield friends and well wishers.

Signed on behalf of the choir,
Kenneth S. Madill,
Organist.

Though Mrs. Sutton was taken entirely by surprise she made a graceful reply, thanking the choir for their good wishes.

Mrs. Sutton and Mr. K. S. Madill won the prizes in the cross word puzzle which was one of the features of the evening.

After the serving of refreshments the pleasant little party dispersed after a delightful re-union.

KINGSTON, March 25. (Special.) — "King Boo-Hoo," the bear mascot of Queen's Football Club is dead. The "King" has been in ill-health for some time, and following a consultation it was decided that his removal was absolutely necessary, and so he faced a firing squad, led by ex-Lieut. PAPERS CONDEMN DENNISTOUN CASE

Morning Post Criticizes Injury Done Memory of Great Man.

LONDON, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—The Morning Post to-day offers some sharp criticism of the famous Dennistoun case in which Mrs. Muriel Dennistoun claimed monies from her former husband, Col. Ian Onslow Dennistoun, which she alleges to have loaned him, and which was yesterday concluded with the awarding to Mrs. Dennistoun of 5,000 pounds damages.

"It remains an enigma," said the Post, "why any of the persons concerned should have consented to drag the squalid quarrel into public notice.

Perhaps one of its worst features is the injury inflicted on the memory of the late Sir John A. Cowans. Col. and Mrs. Dennistoun might well have left him to lie in his grave in peace and settled their pitiful dispute without dragging into public view the weakness of a great man whose friends loved him.

"In the mutual hate of two women fighting for possession of one man, shame was thrown alike to the winds and the reputations of both living and dead have been torn to pieces."

'VILLAGE DOCTOR' AGAIN PERFORMED

An Enthusiastic Audience at George Street Church Saw Popular Play.

The Sunday School Hall of George Street Methodist Church was well filled last evening with an enthusiastic audience, who applauded heartily the efforts of the talented group of actors and actresses from the Volunteer Bible Class of Knox Church, who presented the four-act play, entitled "The Young Village Doctor," in splendid style, under auspices of the Unity Club. This is the fourth occasion on which this class has produced this interesting play, and their work is particularly good. The director, Miss Annie Crocker, should be congratulated on the success of the cast.

The doctor (Stanley Hunter), with a very professional manner, treats all his patients successfully, and they all come back to congratulate him on his approaching marriage to Jane, the pretty nurse (Agnes Wallace). Miss Annie Crocker as Mrs. Crane, the gossip, added much to the merriment of the production, and Belinder Clinger (Ethel Kennedy) was greeted with much applause in her efforts to vamp the young doctor. However, foiled in her efforts, she turns to Mr. Lovejoy (Clare Hallowell) and brings him to the wedding reception.

Howard Hall as Simon Grabbe, a tight old farmer, was a real hit with his audience, and Miss Knowing (Sadie Lockie) was another successful presentation of a young, studious girl. Other roles enacted in fine style were those of Mrs. Frost (Vera Brock), who refuses to see the light side of life; Mr. Solomon Wiseacre (Art Pitchford), who is inclined to hang onto his money; Mr. Brief, the lawyer (Bill McKim); Mrs. Ware (Helen Madden), a poor widow; Mrs. Grabbe (Mrs. A. Pitchford); Mrs. Groan (Vera Brock), full of imaginary ailments, and an attendant physician (George Wallace).

Last evening, the production of the play was augmented by several excellent musical interludes, all well received. The Misses Ethel Kennedy and Dorothy Gillespie sang in duett, "Juanita," Miss Kennedy gave as a solo, "In Old Madrid," there was a very good chorus of male voices, including George Wallace, I. McKenzie, H. Hall, Bill McKim, D. Hill and W. Corner, and the George Street Sunday School orchestra played a number of times. This tuneful organization of good players made some especially fine contributions to the evening's musical entertainment, and were heartily applauded. Their direction is in the hands of Mr. W. H. Cunningham, and their music made a very enjoyable portion of the programme.

At the conclusion of the performance, light refreshments were served to the cast.

Accompanists of the evening were Miss K. Buchanan and Mr. Chas. Peaker.

JACK DEMPSEY ON BLACK LIST

Declared Ineligible By New York State Boxing Commission.

HIS MOVE NEXT.

NEW YROK, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, yesterday was placed on the New York State Athletic Commission's ineligible list.

The boxing board further decree that no licensed club, matchmaker, nor "any official connected with a licensed club in this state" shall enter into a contract with or have any negotiations for a match with any boxer suspended or declared ineligible by the Commission.

The action against Dempsey was taken because of the champion's failure to make a satisfactory reply to the Commission's ultimatum of March 6, giving him fifteen days in which to accept the challenge for a title match submitted by Harry Wills, the negro heavyweight, who has been on Jack's trail for several years.

Reply Unsatisfactory.

A recent letter addressed to the Commission by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, in which Kearns said Wills' challenge of three years ago had been accepted by the champion, but the Commission had ultimately refused to sanction the bout, was deemed an insufficient reply to the ultimatum.

Dempsey was not suspended, it was said, because he does not hold a New York license; hence the declaration of his ineligibility to box in this state was the only legal action the board could take against him. Before the Commission met there were rumors that it would declare the heavyweight title vacant, but such a step, it was learned, was not considered.

Two Members Present.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Commission, voted with William Muldoon, another member, to discipline Dempsey in this manner. George F. Brower, the third commissioner, was not present at the meeting.

Replying to a query as to whether the edict forbidding promoters from negotiating with an ineligible boxer would prevent Tex Rickard from angling for a Dempsey match in Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, Farley said: "We would not consider such action on the part of Rickard as 'clubby'."

The chairman also informed newspapermen that he regarded the Dempsey-Wills affair as closed. The champion, however, would be restored to good standing before the Commission were he to agree to box for Wills in a decision bout. Kearns, in his recent letter to the Commission, accepted the challenge of Tom Gibbons, but the boxing authorities considered this an evasion.

Rickard announced yesterday that he was proceeding with his endeavors to match Wills and Gibbons as the main attraction on the milk fund card in the Yankee stadium on the night of May 29. It had been planned to have the winner of this bout meet Dempsey in the Stadium in September.

$25,000 and Player Given By Robins For New Pitcher

TAMPA, Fla., March 25. — With two stars of his 1924 pitching staff missing, President Charles H. Ebbets and Manager Wilbert Robinson monday closed negotiations for an experienced minor league player to bolster the weakened pitching department. President Ebbets gave $25,000 to the Indianapolis Club of the American Association for Jess Petty, a southpaw pitcher, who won twenty-nine games and lost only eight last season. In addition to the $25,000. President Ebbets also included Pitcher Henry in the transaction. The fact that Burleigh Grimes still is a holdout and that Bill Doak practically had retired forced Ebbets to buy Petty. The Indianapolis club refused many tempting offers for Petty last winter.

TRISTRAM THE THINKER.

Cleveland Boss at Southern Camp Wonders What Fortune Will Bring His Indians.

UHLE'S ARM EDWARD'S KNEE LEFT FIELD QUESTION BURNS BATTING

LAKELAND, March 25. — Tris Speaker had high hopes for his ball club last season and it disappointed.

If he has pennant thoughts this year he keeps them to himself. However he is positive that the Indians of 1925 will be a much stronger combination than last year.

"In the first place, I have a much better behaved ball club," explains Speaker. "There were disturbing elements on the club last year that had a far reaching effect. These have been eliminated.

Reserve Strength Doubled

"The efficiency of my reserve strength has been doubled. I feel that I am reasonably well fortified at every position. This was not the case last year.

"While at present I have no outstanding star among the recruits, there are a number of likely prospects who should be helpful before the close of the season.

"I feel that pitching is a concern with every major league manager. I am no different from the rest. My pitching failed me last year and the club collapsed with it.

"Despite the fact that the pitching staff will be practically the same I am sure that it will be 100 per cent more effective.

"An injury to Edwards' knee put him out of the running. He appears to have entirely recovered. Uhle, who went five or six innings at top speed only to falter, is in great shape.

Edwards and Uhle.

"I am banking on Edwards and Uhle to win at least 20 more games than they did last year. Add 20 games to the won column of 1924 and take the same number away from the games lost side and you will note quite a difference in our standing.

"The good year Joe Shaute had last season is certain to prove helpful. He will have more confidence in his ability. Sherry Smith is still a great pitcher.

"A winning ball club must have a crack catcher who can be in there most every day. I look for Myatt to be such a backstop this year.

"The Indians of 1925 will be a hustling ball clubs. I have impressed on my players that fact. There is no place for the fellow who doesn't want to go the limit to win.

Hopes for Breaks.

"Finally I hope to get the breaks. We didn't get many last year. The losing clubs seldom do. Winning clubs are hustling clubs; hustlers often make the breaks!

The Washington club is an example of that truth.

"Where will the Indians finish? I don't care to get real definite on that subject. However I will be disappointed if we fail to finish among the first four."

It is just possible that a better morale, improved pitching, greater reserve strength, plus the punch the Indians are known to have, will make Speaker's hopes a reality.

OXFORD CREW FAVORED.

Annual Race at Henley Next Saturday.

On its present form the Oxford crew in the opinion of rowing experts, should be the favorite in the annual race with Cambridge next Saturday. Since 1829, when the first race was rowed at Henley. Oxford has been successful in forty of the seventy-six meetings. It won the 1829 race, but when the meets were revived a decade later. Oxford crews were hopeless until a philanthropic Cambridge oarsman came and coached them again to victory.

Lord Justice Chitty stroked the first of the great Oxford crews in 1842. A Cambridge man, Jack Hall, was the first to stroke four successive crews, appearing from 1858 to 1861. After his day Cambridge rowing fell off until the time of H. E. Rhodes, a brother of the South African poineer, Cecil Rhodes, who founded the Jesus College system of rowing.

One of the most ingenious strokes the races have produced was L. R. West, who rowed for Oxford in the early '80s. His fame rests upon a victory over a far superior Cambridge crew which he achieved by starting from the post at the amazing rate of forty-four strokes to the minute and completely demoralized the surprised Cambridge oarsmen.

West's successor, A. H. Higgins, was the lightest stroke on record. He went into the race at 132 pounds with a crew behind him averaging 175, and won by seven lengths.

Mr. Gorman added that he had passed the proposition on to Mr. Rickard and Tom Duggan and that there would be a conference shortly to consider the situation. He would not discuss it further.

It is understood that the proposed new circuit would consist of Toronto, Pittsburgh and Cleveland in the West, and Montreal, Philadelphia and New York in the East, thus embracing six of the biggest hockey centres on the continent.

HASTINGS FOLK SHOW SIGNS OF GROWING PAINS

Plan Big Paving Programme; Discuss Sewers and Water Works.

SOME DISPUTES.

Agreement Dealing With County Provincial Roads Is Not Quite Satisfactory.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, March 25.—A spirit of progress appears to have possessed the elected representatives of the people of this village. The new school is not the only improvement projected. The members of the village council have mapped out an extensive paving campaign which includes the following streets:

Front Street, from the Tannery to New Street.

Bridge Street, from W. Baker's to Front Street.

Avenue Road, the thoroughfare planted with memorial trees, from Front to Albert.

Victoria Street, from Front to Albert.

Bridge Street East to Clyde Street.

Albert Street from Avenue Road to Victoria Street.

An engineer who was engaged to make a survey of these thoroughfare has completed his work and an estimate of the cost is in the hands of the council, but is not to be made public for the present. Hastings is a connecting link in the provincial highway, and the legislative grant for paving all such thoroughfares was 40 per cent. of the cost. This year, it seem, the regulations are to be amended, so as to increase such grants to 50 per cent.

A Gentlemen's Agreement.

Reeve Hess is not satisfied with the agreement dealing with county provincial roads, as it exists between the urban and municipalities in the United Counties. The towns and villages agreed to a certain counties grant to their highways, provided they received in return an allowance for paving their streets of four mills on their equalization. Last June the Counties Council cut the sperial grant to two mills, the rural reeves and deputies voting solidly for the reduction.

Reeve Hess says that the compact was simply what is known as a gentleman's agreement, and that it can be broken at will by either party. He would be in favor of dissolving the relation altogether, especially if the reeves and deputies from the country insist this year on a further cut in the grant or another boost in the value of the town and villages.

Sewers and Waterworks.

All expense for street paving where it is met out of the general fund must be sanctioned by a vote of the taxpayers, or, if done under the Local Improvement Act, on petition of a majority of the adjoining property owners. The next meeting of the village council will be held on the first Friday of April, when the paving question will be advanced another stage.

There are some taxpayers who would prefer to see sewers and water works laid in Hastings before any paving is done. One of these residents said yesterday that there is a spring of excellent water on a high hill within a mile from the village, which would provide an ample supply for drinking purposes without filtration or chlorination. The height of the spring would provide natural pressure sufficient to send the water over any building in Hastings.

There is another place half a mile from the village limits where water could be secured from the river and brought to Hastings by a system of conduits without the use of one foot of artificial pipe. The latter would be reuired only to distribute the water throughout the village.

The citizen quoted, who has evidently looked into the problem, estimates that Hastings could have an up-to-date water system for drinking and sewer purposes at a cost of $25,000.

AUSTRALIA WANTS NAVY OF ITS OWN

Prime Minister Stanley Bruce is Unwilling That Britain Should Pay All.

ADELAIDE, South Australia, March 25 (Canadian Press). — Speaking here yesterday, Prime Minister Stanley Bruce declared that the defence ideal of the Commonwealth was a squadron of 10,000 ton cruisers, with submarines. He asserted that Great Britain had assisted Australia to keep away a possible hostile navy, but that Australia could not allow the heavily burdened people of Britain to bear all the burdens of Australian defence.

LAKEFIELD RINK LOCKS ITS DOORS

Officially Closed Saturday Night After Big Season.

LAKEFIELD, March 25. — The rink officially closed its doors for the season on Saturday night after a good season in which it sustained its repuation as "Lakefield's big playhouse."

The hockey players have put their sticks away in moth balls till next season and the baseball enthusiasts are dusting their clubs and getting a line on the big league events and players.

One of the unique features of the two hockey matches held last week was the fact that ice cream was on sale at the rink and many of the spectators between periods indulged in a cone. Lakefield had its first experience of this sort last week.

CANADIAN HOCKEY BREAKS WITH U.S.

U.S.A.H.A. Has Not Lived Up to Letter of Agreement, Alleged.

WINNIPEG, March 25.—(Canadian Press).—After two years very unsatisfactory experience in alliance with the United States Amateur Hockey Association, delegates at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association yesterday decided to cancel that alliance, and the U.S.A.H.A. will be given three months' notice of cancellation. It was pointed out that while the agreement with the U.S.A.H.A., calling for one year's residence rule by Canadian players moving to the States was satisfactory in the beginning, loopholes had been made so that it was of little of any value. Practically every speaker at yesterday's meeting was in favor of a break, and it was decided that, until satisfactory arrangements can be made with and lived up to by the U.S.A.H.A., no teams in the C. A. H. A. or its branches can play against teams in the U.S.A.H.A. or affiliated with that organization.

As Utterly Different In Results Now As a Year Ago

To the best of our knowledge there had never been a 3-inch motor capable of producing 68 horsepower, a speed of 70 miles an hour, with gasoline economy safely over 24 miles to the gallon, until the Chrysler Six arrived on the market last year. There is no other today.

That is what scientific engineering in the way of perfected gas distribution, special combustion chambers and heat distribution does for the Chrysler Six.

There has never before been a motor in which all sense of vibration has been so completely eliminated, never before a car in which side-sway and road-weaving are absent, never before a car with an overall length of 160 inches that afforded so much usable space—generously roomy for five large adults.

Examples might be cited by the score. But you can see for yourself how utterly different the Chrysler Six is and why the eager public bought more than 32,000 Chrysler cars the first year, if you drive the car but a few minutes. We are anxious to give you a Chrysler ride, to prove it the best-built car you ever sat in.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Chrysler dealers and superior Chrysler service everywhere.

Here's the picture for that theatre party

Don't forget Thursday is family night

PICTURE PARTIES are in vogue. Each week we reserve blocks of seats for more hostesses who find the press of social obligations coped with in this manner. Many invite their guests directly to the Theatre, the party adjourning to the refreshment places in a body when the performance is completed.

The management is able to all times to suggest dates of specially suitable entertainment for theatre parties. "Love and Glory" is one of them.

JUST LOOK AHEAD A THOUSAND YEARS

Physicist Sees Either Utopia or an Utterly Lifeless Planet.

By C. T. HALLINAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, March 25.—(United Press).—Peering ahead a thousand years from now, Professor M. E. E. Fournier D'Albe, physicist, sees just two things:

One is an utterly lifeless planet swimming around the sun.

The other is a planet covered with a healthy, happy, world-wide Utopia.

The next thousand years, he believes, will see one thing or the other.

Professor D'Albe takes no stock in the theory that the polar ice-caps might cover the world and extinguish all life, but he says that rays like the Gamma rays might emanate from the sun some day and sterilize all life on earth. He says:

"Gamma rays can penetrate several inches of lead. Higher up in the atmosphere, about seven miles up, another kind of radiation is found against which even five feet of lead would be no protection. If the sun, entering an unknown part of space filled with denser matter, were to develop a form of radiation leading to a considerable increase in the penetrating atmospheric rays, the persistent action of these rays upon the human germplasm might bring about the total destruction of the human race by reducing its birth rate to zero. The effect might not even be discovered until it was too late to remedy it ....It is difficult to see how even the greatest resources of science could meet such an emergency as that."

But assuming that the sun enters upon such murderous era, then Professor D'Albe says the world in the year 2925 will be a Utopia. It will be, he says:

"A globe laid out like a huge garden, with a climate under perfect control; the internal heat of the earth brought to the surface and utilized as a source of never-failing energy; portions of the interior of the earth reclaimed and made habitable; all machinery and sources of power widely distributed and made instantly available for all legitimate purposes; the earth's surface and the ripping ether in which it swims made into a vast playground of human thought and emotion, and all mankind throbbing in unison to every great thought."

Communication in those great days, he says, will be telepathic. Friends will send their thoughts to one another by something more suitable than wireless.

Travel will be almost effortless. "Everybody will be a globe-trotter," he says, "but the 'globe' will not be confined to the ordinary tourist resorts. Our descendants will pay an afternoon visit to Timbuctoo or Mt. Ararat much as we should visit the British Museum or the Lake District. And wherever they go they will find friendly voices, long familiar in the home through the service of radio-telephony."

In short, a universal language will have been evolved, a sort of secondary tongue which everybody will speak. Wars wil have ceased, says the scientist. "If a tribe is to be exterminated, nobody will be killed but all its members will be painlessly sterilized by X-rays or some such modern means so that the next generation will know them no more."

That last may sound a bit tyrannical ,but Dr. D'Albe thinks that the Utpia of the future will be like that.

Drury Denies Knowledge Of Smith's Investment

TORONTO, March 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Hon. E. C. Drury, former Premier of Ontario, said to-day that he had no knowledge of Peter Smith, provincial treasurer in the Drury Government, purchasing an interest in the Oshawa Reformer newspaper for $15,000, as intimated in a statement made and documents produced in the Ontario Legislature last night by Premier Ferguson.

E. I. Gates Held By Police, Is Said to be Connected With Case.

BELLEVILLE, March 25.—Dr. S. S. Lumb, of Eldorado, coroner, has opened an inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Nettie Wilson and her daughter, Shirley, aged 13 years, found drowned last week in Fraser Lake. The hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday night.

Autopsies have been performed on the bodies, with a view to discovering their condition and the cause of the deaths of the mother and child. Inspector E. C. Gurnett arrived here late yesterday afternoon from Fort Stewart, where the inquest opened.

E. I. Gates, arrested on a serious charge, said to be connected with the case, was brought to the county jail here yesterday evening, where he will remain until Wednesday of next week, when he will appear in court here. Gates was brought before Magistrate Jarman at Bancroft and remanded to jail.

NO ERROR IN PRINTS

Finger Print Expert Says Never Can Be Two Prints Alike.

LONDON, March 25.—C. S. Collins, superintendent of the identification bureau of Scotland Yard, who has made nearly 500,000 finger prints of criminals and suspects, retired recently after 39 years' service in the London police department.

From the finger prints on file in Collins' department some 260,000 identifications have been made, according to the authorities, without a single mistake. "I would stake my life on the probability that there never will be finger prints alike, even if the world goes on indefinitely," Mr. Collins said recently in speaking of his work. During the next generation, he asserted, finger prints would be more generally used everywhere, not only in the identification of criminals, but as a matter of record in births, and numerous other directions.

A NEW SONG.

Rock-a-Bye-Baby Leaps Into Popularity—On Home Theme.

Perhaps the most popular song the world has ever known is "Home Sweet Home." One of the most beloved songs in the world war was "Mother," ("M" is for the million things she gave me; "O" is only that she's growing old).

The latest song to jump into popularity is another dealing with the age-old themes, "Home" and "Mother." This song is called "Bring Back Those Rock-a-Bye-Baby Days."

Everyone now and then thinks back to the happy days of childhood. When worries and care harrass, then the picture of Mother with her kiss-it-all-away remedy is particularly appealing.

Eddie Cantor in "Kid Boots" in New York is making a hit with his rendering of "Rock-a-Bye-Baby Days." He is called back again and again by storms of applause. Hundreds of other singers are featuring "Rock-a-Bye Baby Days" over the footlights and the earphones. Ben Allan is featuring this song in the new "Dumbell" review.

The melody is of the fox trot type and is splendid for singing or dancing or as an instrumental solo. These are the words of the chorus:

"Oh turn the world around, So I'll be bound for Those Rock-a-Bye Days,
Where memory strays, Down Rock-a-Bye ways,
Just make me yesterday bound, let me play 'round that old cabin door.
Heap childhood blessings upon me, Give me my Swanee shore.
Oh! Swanee, Your black sheep is blue
Oh! Mammy! I'm pleading with you
Just sing the lullabies that closed the eyes of your Rock-a-Bye Baby
Bring back those Rock-a-Bye Baby Days."

WIDOWS ADD TO BURDEN

War Widows Fail to Remarry as Ministry Calculated.

LONDON, March 25—British war widows seem loath to take unto themselves a husband for the second time and, because of this coyness, the British taxpayer has to suffer.

When the ministry of pensions submitted its budget in March, 1924, for the amount of money to be paid war widows, it estimated that seven percent of them would remarry during the year. Unfortunately the calculations were wrong, for, up to the present time, only four percent have discarded their widows weeds. Consequently the exchequer has had to grant an extra $10,000,000 to pay their pensions.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

LORD CHUMLEY HAS GREAT CAST

Raymond Griffith Comedian in New Paramount Picture.

Viola Dana, Theodore Roberts and Raymond Griffith are featured in the principal roles of the Paramount picture, "Lord Chumley," which opens next Friday at the Capitol Theatre. The picture is an adaptation of David Belasco and Henry C. DeMille's tremendously popular stage farce, adapted to the screen by Bertram Millhauser and directed by Paul Iribe and Frank Urson. The production is a melodramatic mystery-comedy.

Roberts, who returned to the screen after an absence of a year in "Locked Doors," is cast as a retired admiral in "Lord Chumley." "Admiral" Roberts fits right into his nautical role because for two and a half years in real life he was Captain Roberts, commanding a schooner plying out of San Francisco. Miss Dana plays his daughter, in love with Chumley, a titled English gentleman.

Other big names in the cast include Cyril Chadwick, William Boyd, as the young naval lieutenant who loses a set of coast defense plans and starts all the rumpus, and Anna May Wong. Both Chadwick and Miss Wong have prominent roles in "Peter Pan."

It is Griffith who furnishes most of the fun in the picture. Remember him in "Changing Husbands" and "Miss Bluebeard"? A scream! And with Theodore Roberts, "the grand old man of the screen," back with us once again, cigar and all!

JULIAN SWEARS CHAS. DE ROCHE IS IDEAL ACTOR

Director Who Made "Merry-Go-Round" Makes New Spectacle.

"With every scene in which he appears, I am more and more convinced that Charles De Roche is the ideal man for the role of Pierre Du Pont," said Rupert Julian in speaking of De Roche's characterization in "Love and Glory," the Universal-Super-Jewel spectacle which Julian recently directed his first since the sensational "Merry-Go-Round."

The role which De Roche plays in the film is believed by Julian to be the strongest and most colorful part ever conceived for a motion picture player, adapted from the noted novel, "We Are French," by Perley Poore Sheehan and Robert Davis. In this role Julian became established as one of the leading character actors of the screen. A complete new treatment of the story is presented in the picture, which will have its first local showing at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

"I frankly believe that no other player in the film colony could enact the role with the strength of feeling that De Roche puts into the part. He is a Frenchman, and in this role, that of a French patriot, who gives all of the years of his life to serving his country, he has a part which fits his personality, his physique and his dramatic ability perfectly.

Best for Role, Julian Believes.

"He can play the role better than any other man that I have ever known can play it. He lives the role, and it is a role that is carved out of a life with the clearness of a cameo, a bit of life any Frenchman might well be proud of portraying."

The De Roche characterization runs the gauntlet of that of a young patriot of France who is loved in the peasant community as the village blacksmith to that of a broken-down old man of seventy, but in whose eyes still burns the love of France and whose carriage, though feeble, is as proud as that of the young soldier marching away to war.

"There's a picture which to me carried a throb in it," said Julian, as De Roche walked haltingly across the set in the make-up of an old man.

AT THE ROYAL

BABY PEGGY COMING.

The children always like to see a clever child on the screen and their parents who also like to watch the kiddies act, know that the pictures will be clean and the kind their children should see. Baby Peggy's first special comedy, "The Flower Girl," will be at the Royal to-morrow, Friday and Saturday.

"SCARAMOUCHE" IS COMING AT POPULAR PRICES

Rex Ingram Photoplay Pictures—Sabatini Novel of French Revolution

The latest Rex Ingram production for Metro, "Scaramouche," a picturization of Rafael Sabatini's novel of that name, will come to the Royal Theatre on Monday for a run of three days. The cast is headed by Alice Terry, Lewis Stone and Ramon Novarro.

"Scaramouche," according to advance reports from the larger cities, where it has been played as a two dollar attraction, is one of the greatest picture in screen history.

The story is laid in the time of the French Revolution and deals with the adventures of a young noble who takes the side of the people. Willis Goldbeck made the screen adaptation and the photography was by John F. Seitz.

"WANDERING HUSBANDS" LEAVES TOWN TO-NIGHT.

"Wandering Husbands," the latest Kirkwood Lee feature which will end its run at the Royal to-night, is one of those delightfully human domestic dramas that the movie fan loves. It is making quite a hit locally, especially with the ladies.

THE LATEST HOLLYWOOD STYLES IN THRILLS AND LAUGHS AT THE ROYAL TO-MORROW.

One of the best comedy productions turned out in 1924 is scheduled for the Royal to-morrow, "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter."

Alexander Carr and George Sidney play the title roles of the famous fifty-fifty partners in the Samuel Goldwyn production, "In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter."

Carr will be remembered for his characterization of Mawruss Perlmutter in the previous screen adventures of Montague Glass' well-known characters and for his creation of the same role on the New York stage. George Sidney, veteran stage star of nearly three decades' experience, is a new and valuable addition to the screen in his role as Abe Potash.

Vera Gordon, who also played in the first of the Potash and Perlmutter pictures; Betty Blythe, Charles Meredith, Belle Bennett, David Butler, Anders Randolf, Cyril Ring and Lillian Hackett complete the cast of "In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter."

In this First National picture, which Alfred E. Green directed, Abe and Mawruss have temporarily deserted the cloak and suit business for the motion picture industry. The complications which result when the partners attemvt to produce a vampire picture form the basis for the laughs, thrills and dramatic situations which combine to make this one of the comedy hits of the year.

The story was adapted to the screen by Frances Marion from the successful stage play, "Business Before Pleasure," by Montague Glass.

AT THE REGENT

"THE DIXIE HANDICAP FILM OF RACING AND ROMANCE.

A racing story that has interest for all is the promise made for "The Dixie Handicap," Reginald Barker's newest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which is coming to the Regent Theatre on Thursday This picture is said to contain some of the most exciting horse race scenes ever filmed and at the same time tells a beautiful love story.

"The Dixie Handicap" is a film version of "Dixie," story by Gerald Beaumont which appeared in the Red Book Magazine, and in its screen form is reported to follow the original idea very closely and add an extra thrill by presenting the racing scenes in authentic locations. Mr. Barker took a company all the way frrom that Culver City stuios to Latonia, Kentucky, to film the climax during the running of the International stakes in which Epinard, the French champion lost.

Frank Keenan as Judge.

Frank Keenan, who has often appeared as a Southern gentleman, has the leading role, that of Judge Jeffery Roberts, a man of aristocratic birth who has fallen into poverty. Mr. Keenan had the leading roles in "Women Who Give," "Hearts Aflame," "Brass" and "Lorna Doone."

Claire Windsor appears as Virginaia, the Judge's daughter, a girl who lives up to the best tradition of Southern beauty and culture. It is the first picture Miss Windsor has made for Metro-Goldwyn since the merger of the companies.

Lloyd Hughes, who was the villain in "The Sea Hawk," here returns to a hero's role as Johnny Sheridan, the "Dancin' Kid." From a fun-loving, careless youth, Johnny becomes a dependable man who remains faithful to the Judge through many days of poverty.

DIFFER ON ST. PAUL'S

One Expert Says Cathedral Unsafe—Others Say Perfectly Safe.

LONDON, March 25.— (United Press).—Around the old dome of St. Paul's has now gathered darkly a cloud of quarreling experts. The public is bewildered.

While the City Surveyor, John Todd, has officially certified the Cathedral to be a "dangerous structure" and demanded that the piers be entirely reconstructed and the whole cathedral placed on a concrete bed, the commission of experts which has been studying the subject with scientific instruments since 1921 replies rudely:

"Pure tosh!"

That commission, which is headed by Sir Aston Webb, a leading architect, asserts that:

There is no immediate danger that the dome of S. Paul's will collapse.

That while it is true the dome has tilted a little, there is every evidence that this occurred when St. Paul's was built and not since.

Which side is right?

The man in the street who looks apprehensively up at St. Paul's every time he passes it, afoot or on a bus would give a good deal to know.

As for the authorities, they are studying the mutually contradictory reports with considerable perturbation.

STRANGE CANNON FOUND

Bronze Muzzle-Loader Found on Pacific Coast Thought Spanish Relic.

SEATTLE, March 25.—A small bronze muzzle-loading cannon has been recovered from Neah Bay at the ocean entrance of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The origin of the find is a mystery. State historians advance the theory that the weapon is a relic of a Spanish occupation in 1790-1792, when a small band of wreck survivors lived in an improvised fort above the bay.

The cannon was recovered by W. S. Benjamin, a diver of Seattle, who was working on a sunken Japanese ship. The gun bears a design indicating a man in armor, carrying a bow in his right hand and an arrow in his left. Over his right shoulder a star is discernible.

THE HOBBLE STAIRWAY.

SKOWHEGAN, Me., March 25.—This town claims the only "hobble stairway" in the world. It has many short steps and appears to have been made for small children. The advent of the hobble skirt caused a dentist to build it so the ladies would have little difficulty in getting to his office. About the time it was completed, the hobble skirt passed out of the fashion picture, but the stairway is still used.

MAY DENY SURPLUS.

Conservatives Said to Claim There is a Deficit of $16,000,000.

OTTAWA, March 25. —(Canadian Press). — When the budget debate opens to-morrow, it is expected that Conservative criticism will turn largely upon the assertion made in the budget that there will be a surplus in the present financial year of revenue over expenditure. In his budget speech, acting finance minister Hon. J. A. Robb estimated a surplus of $1,823,000. Sir Henry Drayton, financial critic of the opposition continues his speech to-morrow. In his opening remarks yesterday he challenged the existence of a real surplus. Sir Henry argued that there was a deficit on the year's operations of sixteen million dollars.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.
Christ's death secures one probation or trial, for life everlasting, to every man. The Scriptures nowhere limit probation to present life; nor do they state that the world in general is on trial at the present time for life or death everlasting. They do state that "now" is the judgment or trial day for the "Church." Note the correct definition of the word "Church." The day of trial, probation or testing, for the world is in the future. Acts 17, 31. The penalty for sin in this life is "death"; to redeem from this penalty, Jesus gave Himself a ranson; and by so doing freed all men from that penalty. If man goes down to death everlasting, it must be on account of sin committ- after the resurrection from the first death. Whether a person ever hears of Christ or not, his action will bring weal or woe, to a more or less extent, in this life. And his doings will have a bearing in the great judgment or trial day, according to Luke 12, 13, 14, where, it is stated, that it will be more tolerable (less hindering) in the day of judgment; for some than for others. Those who are kind and helpful to the poor and weak shall be abundantly blessed in this life. Psalms 41, 1, 2, 3; Prov. 14, 21; Prov. 19, 17; Prov. 28, 27; Matt. 10, 42, and vice versa.

MACDONALD SEES SOCIAL DECLINE

Sign of Decay in Dennistoun and Similar Trials.

LONDON, March 24.—The succession of scandals in society which began with the $75,000,000 blackmail case in which Sir Harri Singh, Rajah of Jammu and Kashmir, was the victim, and which was continued in the Dennistoun and Waterhouse suits, is greatly perturbing the sociologists.

Former Premier Ramsay Macdonald, during a week-end in an oratorical tourney, denounced the growing materialism of society and declared:

"The sort of stuff which is now filling the newspapers makes you blush and wonder what is coming over society. Cannot we see that it is a sign of deterioration among these who are not doing decent work?

"I would be the last man to say these things are confined to one class of society, but if society were healthier in its capacity for sacrifice and thinking and acting honestly, fewer of these things would happen. The power of wealth is enslaving humanity."

Women Defends Them.

Mrs. Hal Fisher, wife of a former Minister of Education, denies these scandals imply the degeneration of women. She says all men and women love romance, and the public is naturally more interested in the recent cases than in the discussion of the Geneva protocol or the gold standard. She added:

"We should probably dislike and disapprove of these heroines of romance if they lived next door to us or were mixed up with us in any way, but we enjoy reading about them. They and their doings supply that element of adventure and that thrill which most of us need and which most of us lack in our daily lives."

Mrs. Fisher points out that Nell Gwynne, Helen of Troy and Cleopatra were attractive, romantic creatures, but were not typical of the ordinary every-day mass who lead regular humdrum lives.

Mrs. Dorothy Dennistoun spent the week-end on the south coast recuperating from the heavy strain of her suit against her former husband, Colonel Ian Dennistoun, now the husband of the Dowager Countess Carnarvon, for $6,000 she alleges she loaned and paid on his behalf.

GUELPH RATE UP; BLAME OVERDRAFT

Brought Forward Deficit of $25,000—Increase Taxes 2 1-2 Mills.

GUELPH, Mar. 25. —Subject to confirmation by Council, Guelph tax rate for 1925 will be 39 1-2 mills, 2 1-2 mills higher than last year. This was decided on after the Finance committee had wrestled for four nights with the estimates in an effort to provide for all necessary obligations and at the same time keep expenditures down to the minimum. The rate arrived at represents a working assessment, so far as 1925 is concerned, of 37 1-2 mills, as the city carried forward a deficit of over $25,000 from 1924, due to the fact that the Guelph Junction Railway earned less than year than anticipated and also to the fact that last year no provision had been made in the estimates for so great a loss on the Guelph Junction Railway had been overestimated by over $5,000. Provision is made for the payment of $9,000 a year for five years to the General Hospital for the installation of a central heating plant in that institution, to cost $45,000, and for the payment of $1,500 a year for five years to St. Joseph's Hospital.

GEORGE LOCKIE WILL.

Construction By Justice Lennox Makes Personal Estate Responsible For Debts.

TORONTO, March 25. — Justice Lennox in a judgment issued in construing the will of the late George Lockie, township of Monaghan, Peterboro, finds that the personal estate is the primary fund for payment of debts and funeral and testamentary expenses, and that except as to the expense of a conveyance, the real estate is exempt until the personal estate has been exhausted.

The funeral and testamentary expenses in this case amounted to $800, and the question was whether that amount should be deducted from the real estate specifically devised to a niece.

WANT NEW SCHOOL.

Ratepayers Refused on By-law—Board Applies to Council.

FERGUS, March 25.—The Fergus Board of Education has decided to ask the Fergus Council for a grant of $75,000 for the purpose of building a new high school this year. A special meeting of the Council will be held to-night to meet a deputation from the board, and it is understood that it will refuse to grant the request until the ratepayers vote on it. At the municipal elections in January the ratepayers voted on a by-law to raise $100,000 for a high school, but it was defeated by about five to one.

LABOR ADVERTISEMENTS IN OLD COUNTRY PAPERS ARE CONDEMNED

Peter Heenan Urged Provincial Government to Stop These Calls For Workers.

HELP UNEMPLOYED.

M. M. McBride Opposed Unemployment Insurance, Declaring it a Federal Problem.

TORONTO, March 26.—(Canadian Press).— Unemployment was debated in the Legislature yesterday on a resolution proposed by Peter Heenan (Labor, Kenora) that the government should take urgent measures for the better relief of unemployment. Mr. Heenan in support of his resolution asked the government to find out who was responsible for advertising in old country papers for hundreds of men to come to Canada. He said that the railways, Toronto terminal company and the steamship lines denied that they were advertising, and declared that it was up to the government to find who was doing it and stop them.

Mr. Heenan took occasion to put forth a vigorous argument for unemployment insurance, which he said did not prevent men from seeking work and that it was working satisfactorily in countries where it was law. He pointed out that industry could not live without a certain amount of unemployment as there must always be a reserve of labor.

M. M. McBride (Con., Brantford) could not see that Ontario should have unemployment insurance when other provinces did not have it. The result would be disastrous to Ontario if it were alone in such a scheme. He said unemployment was essentially a Federal problem and must be solved by the Dominion.

Buy Canadian Goods.

Hon. Dr. Forbes-Godfrey, Minister of Health and Labor, advocated the use and purchase of articles made in Canada to combat unemployment. He advised every member to see that he bought made in Canada goods. He also declared that there should be a 100 per cent tariff to protect Canadian industries.

Sam Clark (Lib., West Northumberland) accused Mr. McBride of deserting the Labor party and becoming a Conservative because the oats and bran were there. Mr. Clarke also stated that he thought very little of the man who would tell the secrets of his party caucuses to the Legislature adding that he was not referring to Mr. McBride. Leslie Oke informed the House that the information he gave the House Tuesday regarding the Farmers' Sun came from a meeting and not a party caucus.

Mr. Clark quoted a United States writer as stating that unemployment was as bad as in Austria and getting worse. He did not believe in the dole system.

Government's Aid.

The Premier said that Ontario the last season had suffered unduly from unemployment. He stated that the government had already done a great deal in new buildings and helping municipalities and in directly feeding those in distress. In Northern Ontario a million dollars extra had been spent to meet the unemployment situation. He did not think unemployment a provincial problem, but the government was ready to help in case of distress. He thought that immigrants to Canada should be ready to meet Canadian conditions where seasonal changes made it impossible for an ordinary laborer to get work all the year unless he went to a farm. The Premier said that unemployment insurance was a Federal matter. He thought that some scheme between governments in Canada might be worked out to overcome the annual difficulties in employment.

Mr. Heenan withdrew his amendment after reviewing briefly the arguments put up by those who had spoken in the debate.

DOCTOR'S X-RAY LABORS CAUSE 71 OPERATIONS

Has Lost Eight Fingers and Sight of One Eye.

BALTIMORE, March 26. — Dr. Frederick Henry Baetjer, noted roentgenologist of the Johns Hopkinds Hospital and Medical School, underwent his seventy-first operation Tuesday at the hospital for the removal of an infected finger on his left hand, caused by X-ray burns.

Dr. Baetjer through his study of physiological effects of the rays for more than 20 years, has lost eight fingers and the sight of one eye. The operation Tuesday leaves the doctor with one thumb and one finger.

His physicians will perform another operation on the hand in a few weeks to arrest the spreading malady. A skin grafting operation will be resorted to save his hand and arm.

Although he is greatly handicapped in further experiments with the rays, Dr. Baetjer will not discontinue his work.

FRENCH DOUBT GERMAN OFFER

Skeptical of Security Phase in Austin Chamberlain's Peace Plans.

WILL CO-OPERATE.

PARIS, March 26. — (Canadian Press).—The French Ambassador to Great Britain, M. DeFleurie, returned to London last night with instructions to co-operate in any way possible with Austen Chamberlain and to ascertain whether as the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs put it in the House of Commons Tuesday, Germany's security offer is sincere and honest.

Skepticism prevails on that point in French official circles, where it is pointed out that France's experience with the German Republic as well as with the Empire, has been such that specifications of the guarantees will be required before the French can rely on the Reich's signature.

It is admitted, however, that Mr. Chamberlain has taken the lead in the security discussion and that France must give full consideration to the German offer, as it is endorsed by the British Cabinet. The leaders of the Government's majority in the Chamber still have a lingering hope in the League protocol: the foreign relations committee of the Chamber has received M. Boncour's report on this subject, and next Wednesday will probably adopt a resolution favoring ratification.

The Government will support this measure, contending that postponement of the discussion of the proposed pact at Geneva, in spite of the attitude of the British delegates, ought not to put an end to the effort to make the League scheme acceptable.

Premier Herriot's plan, it was said last evening by one of his close collaborators, is to exhaust every means to make the European frontiers safe. If the German proposal turns out, when amplified and developed in detail, to promise effective security, he will gladly adhere to it. In the meantime, however, H. Herriot proposes to neglect no other possible means of arriving at the same result. There is considerable doubt in French circles whether Dr. Stresemann's suggestion will become a concrete proposition before the League assembly meets in September, and, if so, the French delegation will go to Geneva with instructions to make a determined effort to resurrect the security protocol and amend it in such a way as to eliminate the features most objectionable to the British dominions. It is honed that if the assembly should again endorse the pact drawn up at Geneva the British will be obliged to compromise.

BAD AIR CAUSES SLEEP IN CHURCH

Poor Ventilation and Not Poor Sermons is Cause of Drowsiness.

LONDON, March 26. — (United Press). — Poor ventilation and not poor sermons make church congregations yawn, according to Dr. Henry Kenwood, Professor of Hygiene and Public Health at the University of London.

"People begin to yawn and perhaps finally go off to sleep," he said, "because their mental and physical energies are depressed. Ministers ought not to blame their sermons. They should open the church windows and let in some air."

Peterborough People Organize In Winnipeg

That an Old-Timers' Association will be formed in this city of former residents of Peterboro county, Ont., was decided at a meeting of several representative citizens of that county, held last night in the Marlborough Hotel.

The meeting was a purely informal one, discussing nothing but tentative plans for the promotion of this association, and nothing definite was agreed upon. The city will be canvassed for prospective members, and the outlook is thought to be extremely hopeful.. Arrangements were made to hold another meeting, at which things would be gone into more fully, and officers would probably be elected The date agreed upon for this gathering was Tuesday, March 10.. Anyone wishing to obtain information about the venture can do so by communicating with L. Borrodale, 483 Spence Street. Invitations are extended to all former residents of Peterboro county to join the society.

BOER WELCOME AWAITS WALES

Toasted at South African Club Luncheon—Missed Horse Race.

GOT BET DOWN.

LONDON, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales, who is rushing around London arranging for the start of his South African and South American tour on Saturday, missed Tapin's victory in the Lincoln Handicap Wednesday. But he has laid his bet on a horse to place last week, knowing it would be impossible for him to see the race.

Predicting that the Prince would have a glorious time in South Africa, J. S. Smit, the new High Commissioner, who presided at the South African Club luncheon, said it was for the Prince to decide whether he wanted to drive a team of sixteen oxen or whether he wanted to assume charge of anything else his heart could desire within South Africa.

The Dutch farmers of Cape Colony, Mr. Smit said, were vying with one another to provide the British heir with suitable horses for his use during the visit. Or if the Prince cared to shoot lions, South Africa would provide plenty of them, or plenty of most anything in the wild animal line. If the Prince desired more feathers for his coat of arms, Commissioner Smit assured him that South Africans would show their royal guest the best of their ostriches and invite him to select the choicest of their plumes.

Among the guests were Lord Kylsant, Colonial Under Secretary Ormsby Gore, Sir Joseph and Lady Cook, Admiral Sir Lionel and Lady Halsey, the High Commissioners for New Zealand and the Irish Free State, and the Ministers from Argentina and Uruguay.

Responding to the toast, the Prince of Wales referred particularly to the latter, saying that he looked forward eagerly to visiting these two great South American Republics. The Prince assured High Commissioner Smit and his hosts of his appreciation of their efforts to make his tour enjoyable.

BOY SCOUTS ARE MAKING PROGRESS

Leaders Are Being Trained and Organization Perfected—Many Interested.

During the last three months there has been a revival of Boy Scout work under the direction of Provincial Headquarters, Toronto.

A number of men have interested themselves in the work, forming into committee of management with chairmen of finance, of property and other departments.

The public have been solicited for funds to carry on the work which has been running since October last with meetings in the Chamber of Commerce each Wednesday evening for the Gill-well course of lectures, and each Friday evening in the Market Hall for scout leader training. The Friday night classes will continue until the middle of May, after which troops will be formed under trained leaders.

The work is being sponsored by leading citizens, both lay and clerical, and District Commissioner Tyrer, who has had charge of all the instruction, both Wednesday and Friday evenings, expresses himself well satisfied with the progress made.

With the formation of troops under trained leaders who have a new vision of scouting, it is expected the work will be on a firm foundation and will function in all work covered by the Boy Scouts' standard.

Any adults who are interested are invited to view the training going forward each Friday evening in the Market Hall from 8 to 10 o'clock.

COMMONERS EXCLUDED FROM CHAMBER WHILE THE HOUSE IS NOT IN SESSION

Member Complained of Rule He Called Silly—No Parliament Affords More Freedom Than Canada's Says Speaker Lemieux.

OTTAWA, March 26.—(By Canadian Press).—What was prescribed as "a silly rule" was subject to discussion in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, when A. W. Neill (Independent-Comox Alberni) spoke on a regulation which prevents members from coming into the chamber when the house was not in session.

"It is because they do not think we can be trusted with the furniture of the House, or is it the mace," asked Mr. Neill.

Speaker Lemieux said that he had been reading the regulations of other parliaments and had come to the conclusion that in no other was there such freedom as in the Canadian Parliament.

Mr. Neil declared that he had come to the chamber yesterday morning and had been unable to obtain access to his desk. Only one small door was open to the Commons Chamber, he said. Members sometimes desire to show their constituents around the building and incidentally into the Commons Chamber. "Why should they have to poke then through a small opening like the coal hole in a cellar?" he asked.

Amid laughter, Speaker Lemieux stated that there were two small doors giving access to the chamber open when the House was not sitting.

"They are not open, Mr. Speaker," retorted Mr. Neill.

"I pass through them myself every morning," the Speaker replied. He then called the House to order and there was no further discussion on the point raised by Mr. Neill.

STEEL COMPANY PROMISED 1924 WAGE TO MINERS

Accepted as Basis of Negotiations in Letter to Premier Month Ago.

NOW REPUDIATED.

Will Not Return to Work at Rates Less Than Last Year's.

GLACE BAY, N. S., March 26. —The following statement, signed by J. W. McLeod and A. A. McKay, on behalf of the district executive, was given out at United Mine Workers of America Head-quarters here last night.

"We have noticed the public statement given by vice-president McLung of British Empire Steel Corporation to the press on the 24 instant, setting forth the stand of his corporation in regard to the present wage dispute.

"As we are the greatest sufferers from the present cessation of work, we wish to avoid any controversy regarding the details of this statement at the present time, which may have the effect of delaying a settlement. Covering it generally we may say that it is grossly inaccurante.

Had Accepted It.

"One point, however, should be accentuated as strongly as possible, namely, that Mr. McLurg definitely rejects the 1924 scales of wages, even as a basis for the resupmtion of negotiations. This position is taken by him notwithstanding his prior acceptance of the proposal to resume operations on the 1924 rates, contained in the letter of Premier Armstrong some three or four weeks ago. The Premeir did then "urge and recommend that the company agree with its employees to continue the present rate of wages during the inquiry to which I shall hereafter make reference, and for such time thereafter as shall be necessary for the finding of such inquiry to be made public or as such inquiry may direct." This was resumption of work upon the 1924 wage scale and was accepted by the corporation.

Will Not Return.

This change of attitude either creates an extremely embarassing situation, because of the fact that we will not return to work at rate less than the 1924 rates, or the entire situation is window-dressing.

"For the present we refrain from dealing in detail with the other aspects of the statement, but notice the corporation admits that its extravagance in one direction only has been costing $800,000 annually.

PLEAD FOR PROTECTION.

Woollen Manufacturers Ask For Repeal of British Preference.

TORONTO, March 26. — Protests against the present preferential tariff with Great Britain and repeated pleas for the appliction of higher protection by customs tariffs, furnished the chief themes yesterday at the seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association at the Queen's Hotel.

CANTEEN FUNDS BILL IS GIVEN FIRST READING

Resolution Including Allocation of $100,000 For Adjustment Bureau Was Adopted.

SOME CRITICISM.

Conservatives Urge That Bureau Be Founded From the Public Treasury.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 26. — (Canadian Press). —The House of Commons spent the greater part of yesterday's sitting in further discussion of the government's proposal for distribution of the canteen funds. Criticism turned largely on the proposed adjustment bureau, one point taken being that the money for the bureau should come from the public funds and not from the canteen funds. Col. Arthurs of Parry Sound thought the bill would be better named "a bill for passing the buck."

Hon. Dr. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment retorted that the title would not be applicable if the government decided to administer the fund itself. He further added that no legislation within the past twentyfive years had been surrounded, as the present, with so many precautionary measures to prevent misuse of funds.

In the end, the government resolution passed and the bill based thereon received first reading.

Objected to Detail.

General J. A. Clark (Conservative Burrard) said that he would go a long way toward endorsing the principle of the adjustment bureau proposed in the resolution. There were some details, however, which he objected to. In the first place, he thought that the three trustees who were to have charge of the fund for the bureau, should all be ex-service men. He understood that it was the intention of the government to appoint two ex-service men as trustees. Secondly, he thought that the funds for the adjustment bureau should be provided by parliament, and not through a deduction from the canteen fund. Thirdly, the bureau should be independent of all soldier organizations, and independent of the government itself. It should be responsible only to the board of trustees.

The Uniteed Service fund of Great Britain was suggested by General Clark as an example that might be followed the administration of the canteen funds. He suggested that the bill when brought down should contain advisory clauses which might direct the provincial trustees in administration. The trustees, as soon as appointed, would be the targets of manipulators and the funds should be safeguarded by general directions which might be given in the bill.

"Passing the Buck."

Col. James Arthur (Conservative Parry Sound) suggested that when the bill based on the resolution was introduced, it should bear the title "bill for the purpose of passing the buck."

Dr. Beland demarked that the title would certainly not be applicable if the government decided to administer the fund itself.

Col. Arthur retorted that there was absolutely no danger of the government's following such a course. The government was so used to "passing the buck" that it could hardly be expected to change. He wondered why there was any necessity for another board in Ottawa, to look after the interests of returned men. The Federal appeal board had been appointed for this

BARN DESTROYED WHILE FARMER SLEPT SOUNDLY

Loss of $6,000 on Farm Near Petrolia.

PETROLIA, Ont., March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Fire totally destroyed the large frame barn and all the contents of Dan McCaw, a well-known farmer residing on the Tenth Line two miles East of here while the owner slept unaware of the destruction. About 4 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. McCaw was suddenly awakened by a heavy crash and when he looked out he saw the barn a mass of smouldering ruins.

The loss was estimated at $6,000. Three horses, eight head of cattle and three sows were burned while fifty tons of hay and 300 bushels of grain as well as implements, buggies, harness, etc., were utterly destroyed. The nature of the fire remains a mystery. It is supposed the building was struck by lightning.

MISS MACPHAIL SAYS STRIKERS SHOULD STAND

Urges Them to Fight For Their Children and Grandchildren.

CONDITIONS BAD.

Language Could Not Exaggerate the Destitution She Found in Cape Breton.

SYDNEY, N. S. —March 26. — (Canadian Press). —That their battle was not for themselves but for their children and their children's children, that they might not be forced to live under similar conditions, conditions which language could not exaggerate, was the statement of Miss Agnes McPhail, Federal Member of Parliament for South East Grey, Ontario in addressing a mass meeting of over 1500 miners in the Savoy Theatre Glace Bay. Miss McPhail stated that she came to Cape Breton primarily because she wished to see for herself if the stories of destitution and poverty were true and not exaggerated.

"I found them only too true and as for exaggeration language could not exaggerate the condtions I met with in my brief tour of the district yesterday."

She concluded, "I say to you men that for the sake of your children and your children's children, you should not accept any reduction in wages until absolutely forced to do do. Your motto should at least ze "what we have, we hold."

WOMAN ELECTED.

British Society of Engineers Admits Her to Associate Membership.

LONDON, March 26.—(Associated Press.)—For the first time since its formation in 1854, the British Society of Engineers has elected a woman, Miss Annette Ashbury, of Fulham, associate member of the organization.

Miss Ashbury was a munition worker during the war, and within two years became head of a department where large shells were made for the big guns at the front. After the war she established a company which specializes in the manufacture of machinery parts and wireless apparatus.

ALD. STOCKER WEARY OF LEISURE BECOMES CLERK OF CITY MARKET RESIGNING HIS SEAT IN COUNCIL

His Tender of $975 Highest of Three Received By Property Committee.

TAKES POST APRIL 1.

Would Be Happier With Something to Do, He Told His Colleagues.

Declaring that he "would be happier with something to do," Alderman Walter Stocker automatically walked out of the City Council and into the "Senate," as the office of the toll-gatherer of the city's market place is called, last night, when, at a meeting of the Property Committee, his tender for $975 for the market tolls for the year commencing April 1st, 1925, and ending March 31st, 1926, was accepted, and the late alderman became the new Market Clerk.

Exclamations of "are you sincere?" and "do you really mean it " from his colleagues of the Property Committee greeted the reading of Mr. Stocker's tender, the marked cheque for $200 which was enclosed, being mute evidence of his good faith. "I want a job of some sort," declared the tenderer, whose ability to bid for such a position, while holding the office of a city father, was questioned by Chairman M. McIntyre. City Clerk Armstrong, however, decided the legality of the procedure by saying that Mr. Stocker was quite at liberty to tender for the position, and, if successful, would automatically vacate his seat in the City Council.

This action will necessitate the immediate naming of another alderman to fill the vacant seat, as Mr. Stocker assumes his duties on April first, and the next meeting of the Council takes place after that date.

Three Bids Received.

Three tenders for market tolls were made at last night's meeting, one from Sidney Armstrong, 270 Reid street, for $910, Mr. Stocker's bid for $975, and a tender of $840 from the present market clerk, Walter Fisher, whose successful tender last year was $804.

City Clerk Armstrong was of the opinion that it might be a good plan to think up some scheme for getting rid of some of the other aldermen as easily, and Alderman Crowe enquired of the new Market Clerk why he had not consulted him in the matter. Mr. Stocker replied that he hadn't even asked his wife. "Begad, then," said the dean of the Council, "you haven't got the job yet."

The surprise of the evening came at the end of the session, and the members of the Property Committee were enabled to put through several resolutions with regard to minor matters before their nerves were shaken by Mr. Stocker's dramatic action.

It was resolved that Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald be requested to amend the plans of the Maria street property purchased by the city, by curving Engleburn Boulevard from the north-west corner of Lot 7, making a crescent, and by extending the lane westward to Engleburn Boulevard.

It was resolved that Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald be asked also to define and put in posts on the line of the property that the city recently purchased east of the James Stevenson Park.

Offer Lots to City.

A letter was read from Mr. J. Wearing, saying that two men named Manley would give a deed to the city for two lots on George street west, south of Hilliard street, if relieved of the unpaid taxes on the same lots. It was decided to accept this offer.

There were present at last night's meeting chairman, Ald. M. McIntyre, Aldermen Crowe, Stocker and Fife, also Alderman Denne, Mayor Turner and City Clerk Armstrong. Aldermen Greene and Jones were absent.

The cost of Brazilian coffee is now more than three time as much as before the war.

Boycott Lindsay Grocers If They Stock New 4.4 Beer

LINDSAY, March 26. — Threats of boycott of local grocers should they handle 4.4 beer have been made locally following the government's proposal to have these stores handle the brew. This week two prominent grocers were called up over the phone by women who informed the merchants that certain housewives in the town had decided to boycott all grocers handling the beer.

A canvass of the local grocers discloses the fact that none of them are very anxious to handle the new beverage. Some of them state, however, that if there is a demand for the beer on the part of their customers, they will certainly stock up in order to hold a trade that might drift to the merchant who would make it a specialty.

COURT REFUSED SHEPHERD BAIL

Alleged Poisoner Assured of Swift Trial If He Wishes It.

FAIMAN BIG FACTOR.

CHICAGO, March 26. — Release from jail on bail yesterday was denied William D. Shepherd, charged with the murder by typhoid of Wm. N. McClintock, his foster son, to gain the boy's million dollar estate.

"The most I can hold out for this defendant," said Chief Justice Jacob Hopkins, of the criminal court, in rendering the decision, is speedy trial if he wishes it." The judge mad e itclear that he was ruling only on the question of fact as to whether proof of guilt was evident or presumption great.

"If Faiman's testimony is true," said Judge Hopkins, referring to the statements of C. C. Faiman,also under indictment in connection with the death of Billy McClintock,"the defendant and Faimen entered into a conspiracy diabolically conceived and cruelly executed.

"If Faiman's testimony is untrue," he continued, "the defendant is the victim of a monstrous injustice, enmeshed in a net of coincidences and circumstances that are unprecedented and painful to contemplate."

Judge Hopkins conceded that Faiman's credibility was material, but indicated that he believed that was for the jury to decide.

All evidence presented thus far tends to show Shepherd guilty of the charge of murdering his millionaire ward, Billy McClintock, Thomas Marshall, the assistant state's attorney, declared Saturday in the fight to deny Shepherd freedom on bond.

"The defense has failed to produce a single witness to offer proof of innocence," Marshall told Judge Jacob Hopkins. "The only witnesses the defence placed on the stand testified either to a murder plot or lack of knowledge of a plot.

"Not a single witness gave evidence in support of the defence claim of insufficient evidence."

Marshall cited numerous cases to support the state's contention that Shepherd is not admissible to bail.

The dingy courtroom was jammed with scores of men and women attracted by the bitter fight to give Shepherd freedom pending start of the trial.

DIPHTHERIA AT HASTINGS

Only One Case Reported, But School Has Been Disinfected.

FARM PRICES.

HASTINGS, Mar. 26.—An outbreak of diphtheria in the village occurred on Saturday. Only one family is in quarantine.

On Sunday, Dr. J. A. MacDonald, the village medical health officer, disinfected the Public School, which was closed on Monday so that the pupils had a holiday. On Monday the school was aired and school was resumed on Tuesday.

Eggs are coming in quite plentiful at present, and prices range from 20 cents to 26 cents per dozen, graded. Dairy butter remains at much the same price 30 cents to 35 cents per pound. potatoes are being brought into the local market and are realizing 75 cents per 90 pounds.

Young People Meet.

The Young People's League on Monday evening had a social evening besides its usual programme. After the devotional exercises, Mrs. N. Beavis gave the topic. Miss J. Wilson sang a solo, Mr. Arthur gave an amusing reading, "The Definition of a Baby"; Margarite Schmidt sang a solo, which was followed by a reading by Miss K. Simpson; Misses Gladys Stevenson and Evelyn Beavis played a piano duet; Lillian Hinton gave a reading, and Mr. A Shand a violin solo, "The Spring Song."

A flower contest was partaken of and was won by Miss Dorothy Johnson.

Groups were formed to make up an old-time song, and each group was requested to sing the song it represented. This contest was won by "The Long, Long Trail" group. Lunch was served at the close.

Spring Birds Seen.

A large flock of wild geese, coming from the south and flying in a northerly direction, flew over the village on Saturday evening. The birds were flying extremely low and were making considerable noise.

Besides the spring birds, such as crows, blackbirds, and robins, local residents have also seen the wild yellow canary.

Attended Convention.

Those from Hastings who attended the Liberal Association convention, held in Warkworth on Tuesday afternoon, were Messrs. G. B. Stevenson, L. T. Huycke, A. B. German and J. J. Collins. The latter was again elected vice-president of the Hastings Liberal Association, as also was Mrs. B. F. Doxsee.

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Weakness.

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

RANEY DECLARES SMITH'S STOCK PURCHASE WAS UNKNOWN TO HIM

Leader of Progressives Says Drury Never Heard of Oshawa Paper Deal.

ANOTHER BATTLE.

Premier Ferguson Purposes Finding Out Where Monies Had Gone.

TORONTO, March 26.—Premier Ferguson and W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, had another battle of words in the Legislature Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Raney made a statement referring to the purchase of 50 per cent. of the stock of The Oshawa Reformer in 1922 by Aemilius Jarvis, Jr., for Peter Smith, then provincial treasurer. Mr. Raney read from newspaper reports what the Premier said Tuesday when he asked what connection Mr. Raney had with the transaction.

"The whole thing is fiction as far as I am concerned, and perhaps the Premir will have the decency not to say 'hear, hear.' "

Mr. Ferguson: "Hear, hear."

Mr. Raney: Perhaps he will be gentleman enough to retract, although I hardly expect it.

The Premier objected to the language of Mr. Raney, accusing him of taking advantage of the rules of the House.

Mr. Raney stated that it was true that at the council meetings his seat was next to that of Mr. Smith, but he never discussed Mr. Smith's private affairs with him and knew nothing of them.

"I never heard of the purchase by him or Mr. Jarvis of stock in an Oshawa newspaper until the Premier spoke of it. I have telephoned Md. Drury and he never heard of it. Members of the late government I have consulted knew nothing of it."

Premier To Find It.

The Premier said that the government would yet find where other money had gone. "Give us time and we will find some more of it," he said. "I have fairly good idea where some more of it is, and I propose to recover it for the province. I say, Mr. Speaker, that these monies were acquired as illegal and improper commissions or rake offs or tolls if you will, from sales that were made with you (Mr. Raney's) approval and under your direction as chairman of the treasury board. It is all very well for my honorable friend to come here today and say 'I sat beside Peter Smith in council.' I dare say Peter Smith himself regrets that today. That is not the point. My Hon. Friend and Peter Smith, during this critical period, were on the treasury board, authorizing these loans, recommending to council. Again I repeat, knowing the two men, who in this House or in this province will make any mistake in saying that the mind and the personality and the persistent, dominating disposition of my Hon. Friend from East Wellington was not the dominating factor in control of these things?"

The Premier said that it was well known that the "little attorney-general" dominated the Drury government, and that when any one went to see a cabinet minister they always had to see Mr. Raney.

Mr. Raney: That is another untruth.

Sougth "Sun" Control.

Mr. Ferguson objected, and the Speaker asked for more moderation in language. Mr. Ferguson said that the Drury following had tried to get control of The Farmers' Sun. Mr. Raney said he had no knowledge of this.

Leslie Oke (U.F.O., East Lambton) then rose and stated that a committee had been formed to get control of The Sun for the Drury wing. These on the committee, he said, were: W. A. Crockett, F. G. Sandy, J. B. Johnston, J. Freeborn, and Geo. Sewell all members of the House at the time, and J. S. Whitmore and S. J. Donaldson of the U.F.O. executive

The Premier said that Mr. Raney had a very convenient memory to forget such an important matter. However, even with that kind of a memory he could not escape responsibility for the nefarious transaction approved, promoted and recommended by himself as chairman of the treasury board to the government. "I think we will find some more of the money and satisfy our Hon. friend that he had some responsibility before we get through," concluded Mr. Ferguson.

MINERS ALLEGE MONTREAL STAR IS UNFRIENDLY

Suggest Steel Corporation Gave Paper Access to Private Files for Editorial.

CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

Due to Inability of Company to Conduct Business Successfully, Says Note.

GLACE BAY, N. S., March 26.—The United Mine Workers, District Executive, gave out the following statement, signed by President J. W. McLeod, and Secretary A. A. McKay, last night:

"Our attention has been directed to an editorial in the Montreal Star of Wednesday, March 18th, upon the subject of the wage dispute in this district.

"We should, of course, have preferred to have for a friend a paper so widely read as the Montreal Star, but if it is not to be, that ends it.

"The many thousands of readers of the Montreal Star may be interested to speculate upon the following situation: The Star's editorial of 18th March discloses knowledge of the stand taken by the international of the U.M.W. upon this wage dispute. But that stand was not made public until Friday, March 20. The information was in the private files of the British Empire Steel Corporation until March 20th, when it appeared as a news item from Montreal. Is it of interest to readers of the Star to know how the Star obtained information from the private files of the British Empire Steel Corporation to use in an attack upon the miners of Nova Scotia two days before that information was made public?

"The Star's editorial asks the following question:

"'Does the British Empire Steel Company have an irritating sound to certain foreign interests?'

"We are unable to answer that question, but if it is of any interest to the Star or anyone else to know it, the words 'British Empire Steel Company' have an irritating sound to practically all home interests in the Dominion of Canada not rendered deaf by collusion with it or corruption from it.

"For many months we have pointed out that the tragedy in the Nova Scotia coal fields is due to the single fact that the British Empire Steel Corporation cannot run its business successfully. On Saturday last he corporation itself supplied the proof of this assertion by publishing its annual financial statement. Surely no one can doubt any longer."

The statement roundly denounces the Montreal Star and the Montreal Herald, alleging association between these newspapers and the British Empire Steel Corporation, and continues:

"It becomes necessary for us in our fight to stave off starvation to mention the news policy of these Montreal newspapers as effecting our present wage dispute. For the time being then, we call attention to an independent despatch from here published Saturday, stating that the correspondents of certain newspapers here are instructed not to give the truth regarding starvation.

"Those are instructions from Montreal newspapers to their correspondents in Cape Breton. We can supply further details on short notice."

CANTEEN FUNDS

purpose. , He was opposed to the abstraction of $100,000 from the canteen fund, and he believed that the great majority of returned men were also opposed. Sir Arthur Currie had taken the ground that this money for establishing an adjustment bureau should be furnished from the public funds.

From Public Purse.

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative Fort William) repeated his contention that the money for an adjustment bureau should come from the public funds, and not the canteen fund. He asked the minister to arrange the bill so that appointments to the board of trustees should have no political strings, and he thought all the members of the board should be returned men.

Dr. Manion suggested that such clauses should be incorporated in the present bill as would restrict the funds entirely for use in the interests of returned men and their dependents.

Dr. Beland remarked that the functions of some of the provincial boards would be rather heavy inasmuch as in one case the distribution of an allotment of $800,000. Would have to be looked after. His personal idea had been that the trustees of the central board would organize in Ottawa. An adjustment bureau service with the necessary details. Sir Arthur Currie, in his opinion, would be an excellent appointee, and he believed he would accept. The president of the Canadian Red Cross ex-officio would be a proper second member, and the third to be selected by returned soldiers' organizations.

After consultation with the returned men all over Canada, stated Dr. Beland, the Ralston commission had recommended the arrangement proposed for the establishment of an adjustment bureau. The legislation contemplated was favored by returned men, the only protest being against an allotment of $100,000 to one particular organization only for adjustment serivce purposes. The government had in mind suggesing to the trustees of the central board, when appointed, that the adjustment bureau etstablished should be satisfactory to all returned soldier's organizations.

Dr. Beland said that he knew of no legislation which had come to parliament in the last twenty five years which had been surrounded by so many precautionary measures to prevent misuse of funds as this resolution to provide for the distribution of canteen funds.

T. L. Church (Conservative-North Toronto) failed to see the need for an adjustment bureau in Ottawa. He advocated appointing "three big business men" to administer the fund. Money should not be frittered away on the establishment of a bureau.

Should Be Independent.

L. J. Ladner (Conservative-Vancouver South) favored the application of $100,000 of the canteen fund for the establishment of an adjustment bureau. This bureau should be absolutely independent. He suggested that it would not be long before there would be a number of old veterans, who gave their best for their country, who would require assistance because of their age. Their position should be taken into consideration in paying out the fund. He advocated the carrying out of the recommendations in regard to disposal of the fund made in the Ralston report.

CAMPBELLFORD DEPUTATION IN TORONTO ASKING BRIDGE GRANT

Four Members of Council Interview Department of Highways on Cost of Repairs.

STOCK JUDGING.

Contest Held on William Stewart's Farm at Menie.

CAMPBELLFROD, March 26. — Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson and Councillors Kingston and Abernethy went to Toronto yesterday to interview the officials in the Department of Highways with regard to the cost of the repairs made to the bridge over the Trent River last fall.

The contract price for the repairs was $9740 and of this the Counties Council were to pay three-fourths and the Town of Campbellford the balance. As the bridge is a link in the County Provincial Highway the Department made a promise, which the town interpreted as a pledge to make a grant equal to 40 per cent. of the cost of the repairs.

When the time for settlement arrived it transpired that the government grant was to apply only to the counties' share of the outlay. The town was required to pay one-quarter of the full amount. The council handed over $1461, giving a guarantee for the balance pending an appeal to the Department.

The grant to the counties was $2922, and of this the town claims $730.50, which it now claims in a difference of $243.50 arising from the Department of Highway's action in limiting the grant.

Stock Judging at Menie.

Another of the stock judging contests that proved so interesting and profitable in this vicinity was held at Menie at the farm of William Stewart, the pioneer breeder of Ayrshires in Central Ontario, and one of the oldest, if not the very oldest, man, engaged actively in the stock business in Canada. Mr. Stewart, although over 80 years of age, takes entire charge of the 20 animals in his barn, and not a herd in the county can boast of better care.

One of the experts who took part in the judging contest was W. R. Stewart of the live stock branch of the Agricultural Department at Ottawa, who has been in this vicinity for some time gathering up a car load of pure bred Ayrshire herd sires for the Western market. He secured a number of high class animals around here and left for Tweed to fill out his quota.

The Ottawa official gave the men at the judging contest many valuable pointers as to what constitutes the ideal type of Ayrshire. William Stewart and Alex. Hume were the local experts who took a prominent part in the judging.

Breeders of all varieties of stock were in attendance and the young men in the crowd appeared especially anxious to learn.

Married at Winnipeg.

George Nelson of Seymour West, has received word of the marriage in Winnipeg of his sister, Margaret, who on March 11th, was united in marriage to George Jenkins of Shoal Lake, Man. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Rev. Jas. Watson, one of the Presbyterian ministers, in the big western city.

Mrs. Jenkins is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson. She went to Winnipeg some years ago and has resided there ever since, some of her sisters being with her. While residing in West Seymour, Mrs. Jenkins was a popular young member of society in that township, as well as in Campbellford, where she was connected with St. Andrew's church.

Building Season Opens.

Robert Fraser is refitting the building on Tice street, which was badly gutted by fire over a year ago, and has been vacant ever since. This is the first building operation to be reported this season.

Personal.

Fred Nelson of Seymour West left yesterday for Shoal Lake, Man., where he has relatives residing.

Dr. and Mrs. George I. McKelway, of Washington, D.C., are visiting Mr and Mrs. J. A. Anderson and other relatives and friends in the town district. At present they are at the home of Mrs. McKelway's sister, Mrs. John Petty, of the Wilson settlement, who is very ill.

HOTELS PROTEST BEER AMENDMENT

Ask Exclusive Right to Sell Stronger Beer—Want Bar Retained.

CAMPBELLFFORD, March 26.—The hotel-keepers of Campbellford yesterday received circular copies of which have or will be, sent to every man in the business in Ontario, urging them to get to work at once to bring pressure to bear upon the Legislature to amend the liquor beer bill which is expected to come up in the House to-day for the second reading. The circular is sent out from the Hotel Association of Toronto and is autographed by George H. O'Neil, the president. What the hotel men want is that the bill be emended to give hotels the exclusive right to handle the new beer and to sell it by the glass.

Quick Action Urged.

The hotel men are urged to form a committee to wait on the political organizations to which the members of the Legislature in the different ridings belong, to drop their politics and get after Liberal, Conservative, Progressive and Labour men, alike. Every influential man known to the hotel-keeper is to be asked to write, wire or if possible, to see each member of the Legislature personally and request such member to vote that the new beer be sold in hotels only and to pay particular heed to the letter the association has sent him.

Letters to Legislature.

The Hotel Association has sent to every member of the Legislature a circular letter, copies of which have been received here, asking them to vote for the amendment to the bill as outlined above. This letter sets forth in detail the objection of hotel men to the Bill as it now stands. It states that a few years ago the right to sell liquor was suddenly denied the hotelkeepers, all of them suffered heavy financial loss and a number were financially ruined. No compensation was ever allowed them for the restriction of their business, promises of financial aid have since been made at various times, but these have never been kept.

Local Men Dissatisfied.

Hotelkeepers in the district which is visited by the Campbellford representative of The Examiner have voiced all these objections to the Bill before the circular letter was received from the Association. All of these hotels have maintained for the sale of soft drinks, the bars which were set up before the days of prohibition. If the Bill in its present form becomes law, the hotelkeepers will be obliged to tear out these bars and to remodel their premises in order to make room for tables. Restaurants can sell the new beer without going to this expense.

Beer can be sold by the glass over a bar in a comparatively small room as the customers are constantly going and coming. The small hotels in this district lack space to fit up their houses to comply with the requirements of the measure. If they use the main sitting room, guests who do not want to drink will be obliged to sit with those who indulge. One hotelkeeper declares that if the Bill becomes law, the lodgers in the hotels will complain that these places now so homelike have degenerated into mere beer gardens.

Object to Tables.

The hotelkeepers believe that the proposed sale of beer at tables is a backward step. Some years before prohibition was introduced the License Commissioners issued an order clearing bar-rooms of all chairs and tables. This was regarded as a move in the interests of modern drinking as men were less likely to linger with their feet on a brass rail than they would be if provided with tables and seats.

All hotelkeepers declare that they would prefer the patronage of a customer who takes a drink and goes out than the one who sits down at a table and loafs for an entire half-day or an evening, even if he continues to spend money, for so long as he is orderly the proprietor has no right to eject him.

Attention is called by local hotelmen to the fact that the Commercial Travellers' Association of Alberta, at the next election, will work and vote for an amendment to the liquor law of that province, putting an end to the sale of beer at tables in hotels.

No Grocers Interested.

It is not likely that any permits for the sale of the new beer will be issued here except to two of the hotels. So far as the grocers are concerned, not one who has any thought of going into the beer business as a side line can be found.

SPRING AT ORLAND.

Butterflies Fly and Road Man is Out With His Apparatus.

ORLAND, March 26.—Magistrate Floyd and Provincial Constable Cousins passed through here on their way to Wooler for the trial of Walter Ellis, who some weeks ago in a brawl in Easterly's pool-room in Wooler, struck Wm. Oliver a severe blow with the butt end of a cue, felling him to the floor.

Oliver, who is a lad of between 18 and 19 years of age, sustained a bad gash over the left eye, and the physician who was called stated that he missed sudden death by about an inch.

The case was to be tried at 1.30 and was thrown out as a settlement was arrived at between the opposing legal representatives.

The case was to have been heard a week ago, but Ellis was so seriously ill from heart trouble that a postponement was agreed to by Magistrate Floyd.

Two good signs of spring are visible — butterflies busy in the maple bush after sap, and Walter Carr, overseer of the County Provincial Highway, is out with the road drag levelling up the ruts made by the early motorist.

Ready For Winners.

Some of the local checker players are much interested in the proposed match between Brighton and Campbellford. No doubt some of them will challenge the winner.

Mr. James Herrington will be moving back on his farm in the near future, he having gone to Toronto to pack up his effects.

The ice has all disappeared from the mill pond except along the south shore, which is sheltered by woods.

Trappers are busy on the open spaces, and while some report catches, many report having traps stolen, and no doubt if the offender is apprehended he will be made an example of.

THRIFT INJURES WIFE.

VITERBO, March 26.—(Associated Press).—Renato Bottari, a Viterban laborer, recently devised an original scheme to provide for his wife Nicolina, while he went to jail to serve what he thought would be a one-month sentence. With her reluctant consent, he injected a quantity of kerosene into her veins, hoping to make her mildly ill so that she might live in a public hospital during his incarceration.

The plan succeeded too well, in that Renato went to jail for a longer stay than he had anticipated, and his wife to a hospital where the doctors barely succeeded in saving her life.

PLEASES NOVA SCOTIA.

The benefit that is expected to be derived from the Budget tariff changes relatives to bituminous coal is best sized up in the satisfaction shown by the districts most affected by the increased duty on slack coal.

Thus Premier Armstrong of Nova Scotia declares that the effect of the proposed change will be a great impetus to the coal trade of that Province, and that will materially assist in the marketing of from three to four hundred thousand tons in the St. Lawrence market at a saving of 36 cents per ton in the selling price of the product.

It will, it is expected by those most closely in touch with the situation, reduce materially the importation of anthracite screenings and bituminous slack that have hitherto been strong competitors of Nova Scotia coal.

This importation has been steadily increasing, jumping 17 1-2 per cent. since 1920—and members of the Nova Scotia deputation which waited upon the Government a short time ago avowed that the unemployment in Nova Scotia mines was largely attributable to the quantity of slack coal imported from across the border.

THE MOTOR LEAGUE.

The annual meeting of the Peterboro branch of the Ontario Motor League, which is to be held on Friday night, should be marked by a large attendance and an influx of new members.

So much has been accomplished by the organization in the interest of car owners generally that it is only reasonable to expect that practically every motorist in the district would feel it incumbent upon him to support the Motor League to the extent at least of paying the annual membership fee.

The better marking of roads, the improvement of road conditions and many other matters of similar importance to motorists have been occupying the attention of the league for some time, and for what has been accomplished along these lines the officers and members are to be congratulated.

There is no reason why the membership of the organization should not be greatly increased during the present year, for surely the percentage of motorists willing to accept the benefit of the league's efforts without contributing a fair share toward the expense involved would be small once the situation was made clear to the general public.

Peterboro motorists generally should rally to the Motor League's standard and endeavour to make 1925 the most useful and successful year in the history of the organization.

THE POWER TAX.

The outstanding feature, from the viewpoint of novelty, in Hon. Mr. Robb's Budget proposals is the export duty to be charged upon hydro-electric energy.

The Acting Minister of Finance proposes to levy a tax of three one-hundredths of a cent per kilowatt hour, which figures out at approximately $1.95 per horse-power year.

Last year Canada exported to the United States electric energy represented by 214,131 horse-power years, so that a revenue of around $400,000 can be expected from this source.

Mr. Robb says that the tax is for revenue purposes only.

"We need the money," says the Acting Minister of Finance.

Yet it may have the effect of retaining Canadian power for the use of Canadian industries.

At present it is not quite patent how the levy is to be made.

The Federal Government will, of course, look to the exporting power companies for the tax.

The latter will have the choice of paying the tax themselves or of trying to collect it from their customers across the border.

The course to be ultimately decided upon is of importance to the people of Ontario, inasmuch as two units in the Niagara system of the Ontario Hydro-electric Power Commission between them export energy to the extent of over 86,000 horse-power years, and if the tax on this exported electricity cannot be collected from the United States customers the result will be higher power bills for Ontario municipalities.

A PLAIN DUTY.

Without wishing to dictate to any organization what its policy should be, the Examiner nevertheless feels constrained to suggest to the local branch of the Ontario Motor League that it should follow the lead of the President of the Provincial Motor League and endeavour to make 1925 a safety first year.

The Peterboro branch has in other seasons done something toward that end, and the work should be pushed with even greater vigour.

Traffic laws have their part in cutting down the number of accidents, but the adequate solution of the problem lies in the hands of the motorists themselves.

There are two self-evident features of the situation:

(1) The list of accidents in Ontario is appallingly large.

(2) By far the greater number of these accidents can be credited to reckless or careless driving.

Accepting these two axioms as a basis, there faces every Motor League branch in the Province the responsibility of conducting an educational campaign that will drive home to every car owner the vital necessity of exercising care in the handling of his machine.

In the first place, every member of such organizations can set the example for the whole motoring fraternity by a strict adherence to the traffic laws, by courtesy toward other traffic, by driving carefully at all times, by refusing to take chances that not only jeopardize his own safety but put the lives of others in danger.

And thus blazing the trail the Motor League [illegible] with a clear conscience preach the safety first gospel to the automobile brotherhood at large.

The motoring season of 1925 should be memorable for its immunity from bad accidents, rather than marred by the casualty lists that have featured other years.

FAVOR TO PUBLIC.

Jack Dempsey, so-called heavyweight pugilistic champion of the world, never will fight Harry Wills, the negro challenger for the title, we hear. And the impression one gets from the sport pages is that this is a calamitous thing, whereas it is nothing of the kind, but a favor that the millionaire exponent of the art of battery and assault is doing the general public, says the Hamilton Spectator. Boxing as a healthful exercise is something to be encouraged, but fighting for a purse of a half-million dollars is something else again. Dempsey's ability is the most over-valued product the world has ever known. The public has feathered the former hobo's nest with more than a million dollars and his money now buys his way into circles that would not have even given him a hand-out on the back porch in the days when he was riding the brake-beams and sleeping in flop-houses along the waterfronts. Dempsey was an interesting character when he was fighting his way to the top of the pugilistic heap, but when he arrived there he immediately ceased to be good copy. Boxing trunks and evening clothes should not be in the same wardrobe and one doesn't learn the histrionic arts in the prize ring. Dempsey may be the best prize-fighter in the world, but he is at the same time one of the worst movie actors to ever steal a close-up. The same public that paid fabulous sups to see him defeat Willard, Carpentier and Firpo now makes it possible for him to earn other fabulous sums in the movies. The public has been most generous in its treatment of Jack Dempsey. He can repay that kindness now by going into retirement.

HOLD FAST!

During the last half year or so, it is estimated Canadians have been leaving the Dominion for the United States at the rate of approximately ten thousand a month. It is reported that the greater proportion of these have no intention of returning. Circumstances, in many cases, will doubtless alter their decision, and it may be confidently predicted that Canada will receive back quite a few of the deserters when the industrial sky becomes brighter. In the meantime, it is proper to pass on the warning that those in the best position to know are giving would-be emigrants from Canada against taking too optimistic a view of the prospects of employment across the border. There are millions unemployed in the United States at the present time, according to organizers of the American Federation of Labor. Canadians, therefore, should think well before venturing abroad. "The States did not get the boom it expected with the election of Coolidge," declares the Vice-President of the Blacksmiths' and Boilermakers' International Union, "for the first time in years the New York Central closed its shops in Albany for a week." The trade journals of the United States are publishing special notices for the benefit of Canadian readers, warning them against the difficulty of securing employment in the big cities. It is reported by Canadian mechanics now in the United States that conditions have been bad ever since the autumn.

It is natural for those out of employment to cast longing glances in the direction where industrial conditions are supposed to be brisk. No man can be expected to suffer privation when by a little enterprise he might find a remedy for his temporary distress. When employment was plentiful and wages high elsewhere, it was very natural that the exodus should have set in from this country, caught as it was in the trough of a temporary depression. The situation today, however, is different; there are signs of a trade revival in Canada which makes the Dominion just as attractive as foreign parts. It is inexplicable why immigrants from the Old Country, for instance, should be so eager to get back to a land which is very much more badly off, industrially, than Canada is. Yet it is reported that no fewer than 700 applications have been received for thirty vacancies on cattle boats leaving for England, and, according to the agency which had charge of this business, such a response is no uncommon experience. To leave Canada for England in search of employment would seem like jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire. It is a sign of the panicky condition to which many of the workers have been reduced. To become stampeded in this way is only to aggravate an unfortunate situation. Those who hold on with patient courage and resolutely face their difficulties will certainly have a far better chance of surmounting them than those whose one thought and desire is to run away.

SERVING THE PUBLIC.

To the man who remembers the first trip of the first street car that ever ran in his town—or who has stumbled from one dim patch of light to another thrown at intervals upon a dark street by flickering gas lamps—or who recalls with a shiver the winter days when he was forced to leave his warm bed to start the breakfast fire in the old cook stove—or who ever lived ten miles from a telephone or telegraph station, the development of urban and interurban transportation, of lighting, of gas and electric stoves, of the telephone and the telegraph, is a source of never-ceasing wonder. To the younger generation, who remember none of these things, and who accept the conveniences provided by public service corporations as a part of the natural order of things, full appreciation of the value of these services is more difficult, says the American Exchange National Bank.

A strike by the employees of the street railway, or a breakdown at the power plant, gives a brief glimpse of conditions as they would be without the services that are accepted as a matter of course. But temporary suspensions of public service facilities often lead to suspension of all other work and effort as well, so that the public of today only knows the difference between having these services and not having them. It knows little or nothing of the great improvement modern public service offers over the old methods. Today, if the transportation service is obstructed or the power and light plants go out of commission, we simply sit down and wait for them to resume. If storms interfere with communication, we go without news, many business operations come to a stop and we limp along until things are fixed up again.

When we consider the maximum of convenience that is ours and the corresponding debt that we owe to the developers of public service as we know it, says the Financial Post, there should sink into our consciousness an appreciation that should cause us to be exceedingly lenient in our criticism of temporary inconveniences and to be deeply interested and generous in our attitude toward all steps that are taken for the promotion and progress of the things that are essential to a happy, social and economic environment.

A THOUGHT.

FRIENDSHIP.

Friendship is to be valued for what there is in it, not for what can be got out of it. When two people appreciate each other because each has found the other convenient to have around, they are not friends—they are simply acquaintances with a business understanding. To seek friendship for its utility is as futile as to to seek the end of a rainbog for its bag of gold. A true friend is always useful in the highest sense, and not only for that which may be obtained from him.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 25.—Good to choice butcher steers and heifers were in a good steady market and from $7.25 to $7.75. Medium butcher stuff a little draggy, but everything gradually cleaning up with practically no change from Monday's quotations.

Market continues good and active for choice stockers and feeders; best quality feeders at $6.50 to $7.

Fat cows, choice, firm, at $5 to $6.

There w-- a comparatively light run of fresh cattle in today, but with a holdover of about 1,000 there was no scarcity. Monday's surplus of heavy export steers were shipped over the border. A few heavy prime beef cattle were wanted today and were readily picked up between the local packers and exporters at from $7.50 to $8.25.

Calves steady at $12 to $13.

Sheep and lambs firm, with light offerings

Hogs ar weakening, with every prospect that today's market would settle at the packers' bid of 25c lower, at $12.75, f.o.b., and -13.75, thick, smooth, off cars.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, March 25—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.78 7-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Wheat advanced sharply in price today, bad crop reports from Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas annd Nebraska attracting much more attention than heretofore of late. There was enlarged general buying, and wheat closed strong 2 to 2 5-8 cents net higher, May 167 1-2 to 167 1-4 and July 148 1-2, with corn 1 1-2 to 2 1-4 cents up, oats showing 1-8 to 1-2 cent gain, and provisions at a rise varying from 5 to 42 cents.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, March 25.—The volume of business being done in the larger consuming centres is fairly large and there is a steady feeling with prices practically unchanged.

Toronto—Extras, jubbing 37, firsts 35.

Montreal—Extras, jobbing 39 to 40, firsts 36 to 37.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 25.—The export trade in Canadian grain here today was again very slow and the volume of business in ocean grain room so far this week has also been small. There was some demand on spot for No. 2 feed oats and sales of odd loads were made at 1 1-2 cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and bids of 10 1-2 cents per bushel over the May future were made for No 2 Canadian Western, f.o.b. Montreal, for first-half May shipment. Prices for oats in the local market closed 1-2 cent per bushel higher.

Extreme dullness marked the egg trade, but the tendency was steady. The feature of the butter trade was the weaker feeling, and prices for all grades of creamery butter were reduced 1-2 cent per pound, which was attributed to the more liberal supplies coming forward and the continued limited demand from all sources. The volume of business in cheese was small but prices were unchanged with fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods quoted at 22 to 22 1-2 cents per pound, and No. 2 grades at 21 to 21 1-2 cents per pound.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

TARIFF AIDS DRILLING.

Reduction of $7,000 In Cost of Sinking Oil Well.

LETHBRIDGE, Alt., March 26.—That the cost of sinking an oil well in Alberta will be cut by $7,000, as a result of the tariff cut on well drilling machinery, is the belief of those interested in oil development here. Coal mine operators believe that some good will result from the increasein duty on United States slack coal. This will apply particularly to steam coal mines in the Crow's Nest Pass.

FISHING BIRDS.

TOKYO, March 26.—The Japanese have taught cormorants to fish for them. Rings around the necks of the birds prevent them from swallowing the fish they catch in the sea glades. The fishermen control the birds with long cords.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

All that night he lay in the alders. The beaver-pond became his home again. Conditions were changed, of course, and as days grew into weeks the inhabitants of Beaver-tooth's colony showed no signs of accepting the grown-up Baree as they had accepted the baby Baree of long ago. He was big, black, and wolfish now—a long-fanged and formidable-looking creature, and though he offered no violence he was regarded by the beavers with a deep-seated feeling of fear and suspicion. On the other hand, Baree no longer felt the old puppyish desire to play with the baby beavers, so their aloofness did not trouble him as in those other days.

All through the month of August, Baree made the beaver-pond his headquarters. At times his excursions kept him away for two or three days at a time. These journeys were always into the north, sometimes a little east and sometimes a little west, but never again into the south. And at last, early in September, he left the beaver-pond for good.

For many days his wanderings carried him in no one particular direction. He followed the hunting, living chiefly on rabbits and that simple-minded species of partridge known as the "fool hen." This diet, of course, was given variety by other things as they happened to come his way. Wild currants and raspberries were ripening, and Baree was fond of these. He also liked the bitter berries of the mountain ash, which, along with the soft balsam and spruce pitch, which he licked with his tongue now and then, were good medicine for him. In shallow water he occasionally caught a fish now and then he hazarded a cautious battle with a porcupine, and if he was successful he feasted on the tenderest and most luscious of all the flesh that made up his menu. Twice, in September, he killed young deer. The big "burns" that he occasionally came to no longer held terrors for him in the midst of plenty he forgot the days in which he had gone hungry. In October he wandered as far west as the Geikie River, and then northward to Wollaston Lake, which was a good hundred miles north of the Gray Loon. The first week in November he turned south again, following the Canoe River for a distance, and then swinging westward along a twisting creek called the Little Black Bear With No Tail. More than once during these weeks Baree came into touch with man, but, with the exception of the Cree hunter at the upper end of Wollaston Lake, no man had seen him. Three times in following the Geikie he lay crouched in the bush while canoes passed half a dozen times, in the stillness of night, he nosed about cabins and tepees in which there was life, and once he came so near to the Hudson's Bay Company post at Wollaston that he could hear the barking of dogs and the shouting of their masters. And always he was seeking—questing for the thing that had gone out of his life.

At the thresholds of the cabins he sniffed outside of the tepees he circled close, gathering the wind the canoes he watched with eyes in which there was a hopeful gleam. Once he thought the wind brought him the scent of Nepeese, and all at once his legs grew weak under his body and his heart seemed to stop beating. It was only for a moment or two. She came out of the tepee—an Indian girl with her hands full of willow-work—and Baree slunk away unseen.

It was almost December when Lerue, a halfbreed from Lac Bain, saw Baree's footprints in freshly fallen snow, and a little later caught a flash of him in the bush.

"Mon Dieu, I tell you his feet are as big as my hand, and he is as black as a raven's wing with the sun on it!" he exclaimed in the Company's store at Lac Bain. "A fox? Non! He is half as big as a bear. A wolf—oui! And black as the devil, M'sieus."

McTaggart was one of those who heard. He was putting his signature in ink to a letter he had written to the Company when Lerue's words came to him. His hand stopped so suddenly that a drop of ink spattered on the letter. Through him there ran a curious shiver as he looked over at the halfbreed. Just then Marie came in. McTaggart had brought her back from her tribe. Her big, dark eyes had a sick look in them, and some of her wild beauty had gone since a year ago.

"He was like—that!" Lerue was saying, with a snap of his fingers. He saw Marie, and stopped.

"Black, you say?" McTaggart said carelessly, without lifting his eyes from his writing. "Did he not bear some dog marks?"

Lerue shrugged his shoulders.

"He was gone like the wind, M'sieu. But he was a wolf."

With scarcely a sound that the others could hear, Marie had whispered into the Factor's ear, and folding his letter McTaggart rose quickly and left the store. He was gone an hour. Lerue and the others were puzzled. It was not often that Marie came into the store it was not often that they saw her at all. She remained hidden in the Factor's log house, and each time that he saw her, Lerue thought that her face was a little thinner than the last, and her eyes bigger and hungrier looking.

WARKWORTH TO ENTER LEAGUE

After a Year's Absence Will Again Compete in Northumberland League.

MANY GOOD PLAYERS.

WARKWORTH, March 25.—After an absence of one year Warkworth wil again be represented in the Northumberland Baseball League during the coming season. At a meeting in the Leonard Hotel on Friday evening a number of faithful followers of the game organized the Warkworth baseball club for 1925, and decided to enter a team in the league. The following officers were appointed to carry on the business for the year: President, Harry Beswetherick; vice-president, Morley Smith; manager, Corey Zuefelt.

The president, the manager, and Mr. Joseph Dixon, a former president of the league, were appointed as delegates to the annual league meeting, which will be held in this village the latter part of April. The appointment of a captain was left to the players of the team.

Prospects are bright for a strong team this year. The Orland team, which was made up last year chiefly from the Warkworth G.A.U.V. team of 1923 cup winners that year, will not operate this year and the majority of the players will be back with the local team, combined with a number of promising players from the juniors who have developed wonderfully in the past two years, also a number of former players who are residing here. Manager Zuefelt should have no trouble in rounding up a strong team. Archie Zuefelt, leading pitcher of the league for the past two seasons, is still here and with Dawson and Bound, the latter a junior, should give the locals the strongest pitching staff in the league.

There is a complete outfit on hand to commence the season and if the players receive the necessary encouragement from the fans they should be strong contenders for the Clarke cup, which at present is held by Roseneath.

MURDERS INCREASE.

Berlin Finds More Slaying Since Abolition of Death Penalty.

BERLIN, March 26 (Associated Press).—There have been no executions in Berlin since 1921, and it is now being alleged that the number of brutal murders has increased in the German capital because of the disposition of the courts to impose sentences of life imprisonment instead of death.

Berlin has no executioner and the discussions in the papers as to the advisability of restoring capital punishment have brought more than 100 applications from men who want to serve as hangman.

DOVER CHICKENS GONE.

Even Wire Fence and Bolts Failed as Barriers.

CHATHAM, Ont., March 26.—(Canadian Press).—County Police are investigating the theft of many chickens from the farm of Robert Smith, Dover township Tuesday. A few weeks ago thieves visited the Smith farm and got away with several chickens. Then Smith erected a wire fence around the chicken house and placed the fowl under lock and key. Tuesday night the thieves broke down a portion of the fence and smashed the door of the coop.

EXPORTS INCREASE OF CANADIAN MOTOR CARS

New Zealand Heaviest Purchaser in February.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Canada's export of automobiles continues to increase, and New Zealand is the Dominion's best customer for such vehicles. Last month a total of 4,008 passenger autos, valued at $1,843,551, were exported, and of these, New Zealand took 1,114. In aJnuary of this year, 3,732 autos were exported, and in February 1924, 3,230.

Freight automobiles exported last month totaled 1,128, of which all except three were of one ton or less capacity. Most of these went to Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. The export of trucks in January last reached 1,448, but in February 1924, it was only 783.

ITALY, TOO, HAS AN IRISH SAINT

Lucca Thinks St. Frediano Was Just as Wonderful as St. Patrick.

BISHOP OF LUCCA.

I' anv one in New York or Dublin should suggest that Ireland had ever produced a greater saint than St. Patrick he would probably find himself at outs with the "wearers o the green." Yet in Italy, and especially in the City o Lucca, St. Patrick plays second fiddle to the Irish saint, Frediano.

San Frediano's history is largely legendary. The Lucchesi say that he was the son o' an Irish King, Cairbre o' Ulster, whose kingdom, in the sixth century, included much of County Down. He was christened Finnian because of his fair hair. He studied at a monastery at Dromore, attended school at Nendrum, on an island in Lough Strangford, and went with Bishop Nennio to Galloway.

The young Finnian set out on a pilgrimage to Rome. On the way, in Ayrshire in Scotland, he performed his first miracle, the turning aside of a river. Pope Pelagius I. made him a priest and directed him to return to Ireland to continue the conversion of the Irish, which had been interrupted by the death of St. Patrick. It is said that he carried the first complete copy of the Bible ever to reach the Island. He baptized his parents, founded a monastery in County Down and wrought a very famous miracle.

The monastery mill was so far away that much time was wasted by the monks. Finnian decided to build a mill closer. The site he selected was without water, and the country people made fun of him. When the mill was finished and many spectators were on hand, Finnian knelt and prayed. Immediately a billside opened and a great torrent of water gushed out. Some of the jeerers were drowned. Again Finnian prayed. The billside closed over the torrent, which thereafter ran in an underground channel to the mill.

The Saint Saves Lucca.

We find him some years later at Lucca in Italy, a hermit among the Pisan hills. But the great name of Finnian made it impossible for him to remain a hermit. He became Bishop of Lucca.

A few years after Finnian had become Bishop Frediano, the Lombards poured into Italy and laid everything in ruin. Lucca did not escape. But it took more than fierce Lombards to quench the mighty spirit of Frediano. He built churches to replace those destroyed, he repaired the city walls and set himself to the seemingly hopeless task of converting the barbarians. Many of them embraced the faith and became stauncher Christians even than the Lucchesi.

The River Serchio rushed by the walls of Lucca and in time of flood threatened to sweep the city away. A great flood overspread the country, devastating the crops and undermining the city walls. In terror the people appealed to Frediano.

The Bishop prayed diligently, then gathered his frightened people about him and went down to the edge of the torrent. With a rake he traced a new bed for the river, at the same time commanding the waters to follow him. No less a person than San Gregory the Great tells us: "The waters, leaving their accustomed course, ran after him, making a new bed wherever the saint marked the way. Whence the flood ceased to cause damage in the fields and among the fruits raised by the countrymen."

That St. Frediano knew something about the art of engineering is certain. The bed of the River Serchio has been changed, and there remains little doubt that the new channel was marked out by Italy's greatest Irishman. He superintended the building of embankments, walls and bridges. He was in office in Lucca for twenty-eight years and he averaged building a church a year. Some of these twenty-eight churches are still standing after 1,500 years.

St. Patrick was a great saint, but if you go down into the hills of Italy, especially in the neighbourhood of old Lucca, you will be told that the greatest of all saints that ever came out of Ireland was St. Frediano. He is the St. Patrick of Italy.

FIFTEEN BOYS GET RECEPTION

Immigrants Under the New Scheme Welcomed by Mayor of Napanee.

FIRST OF 500.

NAPANEE, Ont., March 26.—Not every newcomer who arrives in Canada is accorded the distinction of a civic reception and to that extent the fifteen lads who stepped off the international limited here will possess a memory by which to mark the final stage of the journey to their new homes.

The boys, all British, of keen well set up type were brought to the Dominion through the instrumentality of the British Immigration and Colonization Association of Canada, arriving at Halifax on board the Antonia and then proceeding to their destination over the lines of the Canadian National Railways with a brief stop at Montreal.

These boys had all been spoken for in advance and as it was the first occasion on which such a group of new Canadians had come into the counties of Lennox, Addington and Frontenac it was decided that it should be marked in a special manner. Accordingly the Mayor, Dr. E. Ming, the councillors, the local clergymen, the President of the Chamber of Commerce J. W. Robinson; Representatives of the Department of Agriculture of the Province of Ontario and officials of the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian National Railways joined in an official welcome. The spirit of the occasion was so thoroughly imbued in everybody that the taxi owners of Napanee generously offered their vehicles to transport the boys and their conductors from the station to the town hall. The farmers who had made application to the British Immigration and Colonization Association of Canada were all on hand and with then came a number of friends who were so impressed with the fine upstanding appearance and manly bearing of the boys that M. J. O'Brien, the Dominion organizer who had accompanied the group to Napanee, was fairly overwhelmed with applications from men who wanted to get similar boys and the sucessful farmers were envied by the less fortunate. From the Mayor to the clergymen everybody had kind words for the boys but for downright enthusiasm there was nothing to compare with the speed and alacrity with which the lads trooped after his worship as he led them into the towns leading restaurant for a feast which included generous supplies of ice cream.

After various legal formalities had been complied with Mr. O'Brien sent off each boy with his new employer and there was no doubt at all but that the start of their new life was auspicious. It is the aim of the British Immigration and Colonization Association of Canada to bring a number of boys to the Dominion, they figure for this season being set at 500. Some have already reached the country and the experiences so far have been of a most satisfactory nature. The boys brought over average around sixteen years and come from families who are willing to trust their sons to the care of the Assocoation. No institutional boys being taken. When a farmer makes application for the services of a boy he must obtain certificates from his clergyman and from his bank and must satisfy the representatives of the Association that he will provide for the boy a comfortable home and give him a proper opportunity of learning Canadian agricultural methods. After a boy has been placed with a farmer an inspector of the Association will visit the employer within a period of six weeks to learn for himself the conditions and then make an agreement as to the wages to be paid which date from the time of the boys arrival. The minimum wage is $120 per annum and ranges from that to $150 per annum. The employer must forward to the Association periodical statements as to the monies expended for clothing and necessities, the balance remaining, and the latter amount will be placed to the boys credit in a bank account. At the end of the first year an inspector will visit the farmer to see that second agreement is made upon an equitable basis. In the speeches of welcome today the boys were advised to stick it out despite the natural feelings of homesickness and numerous instances were quoted of those who had made good. On the other hand the farmer employers were advised to be patient and sympathetic and to remember that everything was new to the lads. It was said that the fifteen boys who landed at Napanee were worth far more to the country than shiploads of immigrants from undesirable countries and the point was stressed that this movement will do a lot to keep Canada British. A tribute was paid to the Colonization and Development Department of the Canadian National Railways for the manner in which the boys had been cared for during their journey from Halifax.

THE MARQUISE RETURNS HOME

Gloria Swanson Tells of Romance in Her Sojourn in Paris.

HUSBAND WITH HER.

NEW YORK, March 26. — Gloria Swanson, motion picture actress, returned from Paris Tuesday.

Her most ardent admirer was her husband, the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudraye. Miss Swanson and the Marquis were married in Paris as the result of a studio romance, she explained. The Marquis, a red-cheeked young man, who asked his Marquise to "excuse" him every time he left their stateroom, got a job with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Company while Miss Swanson was in Paris making the picture of "Mme. Sans Gene."

The producers considered the Marquis likely film material and were surprised when he expressed a desire for employment which would not require his appearance before the camera. In deference to the Marquis they used him as interpreter for Miss Swanson in a cast in which she was the only one not speaking French. Referring to the romance Miss Swanson said:

"He had heard that I was a vampire. I had heard that he was an irresistible man with the ladies. So I said to myself, 'Wait until I see that man. I'll show him!' So we met, each curious about the other, each determined to take the other down a peg. And so—and so—"

"Was it love at first sight?"

It was the young reporter speaking again. Gloria looked at him.

"Who knows what love is? Do you?"

Miss Swanson's left hand flashed with a square cut ruby ring—her engagement ring, she explained—about the size of a lima bean. When surprise was expressed that she wore a ruby for an engagement stone she said her grandmother wore a ruby engagement ring.

The screen actress parried questions designed to show whether or not her engagement ring was larger than the 18½-carat diamond engagement ring worn by Pola Negri when Miss Negri sailed to Europe on the Leviathan last Saturday, without naming her fiance. She said:

"I'm not going to let you think that I'm jealous of any one. All I wish is that every one may succeed."

"There isn't any jealousy between Miss Negri and myself. I admire her tremendously. I think she is a wonderful actress. I have entertained her in my home. This whole thing started out of a ridiculous and untrue story about Pola's cats. The story was to the effect that Pola wanted to kill all the cats around the Paramount studio in Hollywood, and therefore I saved their lives."

Gloria presently arose and excused herself and went on deck, where the photographers had their way with her and her husband.

Miss Swanson said she was extremely happy to be back in the United States after her illness. She felt much improved, had enjoyed a smooth voyage and intended to do no work for the films for six weeks, she said. She lost twelve pounds, she declared, but the principal evidence of her illness was lack of color.

She denied having signed a contract for a weekly salary of $17,000, as had been reported. Miss Swanson said she hoped to retire within the next ten years so that she might devote her time to her daughter and adopted son. She and the Marquis went to the Hotel Ritz-Carlton.

FASCISTS ARE IN DIFFICULTY

Dissatisfaction Among Labor and Capital During Mussolini's Illness.

LEADER HAS CANCER.

GENEVA, March 26.—(Canadian Press.) — Rocks stand across the path of the Fascist government of Italy.

While the hand of Premier Mussolini has become too weak to control the helm, dissatisfaction has spread both in the ranks of labor and among the captains of industry.

The dictator is in isolation, and according to persons in a position to know the facts is suffering from cancer. The latest problem is the sudden reappearance of strikes in all industrial centres. Many captains of industry accuse the Government of a breach of faith. They condemn the inept Fascisti unions and demand that negotiations be carried on only with the Socialist Confederation of Labor, which still holds labor's affections and confidence.

"Well, dad," she replied, "you might have told me that you had painted the garden seat. Fred and I sat on it last night, and Fred got his coat and trousers in a dreadful mess!"—London Telegraph.

CANADA IMPORTS LARGE AMOUNTS WOOLLEN GOODS

Increase in Three Years Was 17,000,000 Square Yards of Cloth.

NOT SUPERIOR.

Canadian Mills Are As Well Equipped and as Skilled as Overseas.

TORONTO, March 26 (Canadian Press).—All vocations interested in producing woollen and knit goods, including farmers growing wool, supply houses handling wool, soap, dye and chemical firms, organized labor and manufacturers, met at the seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association here yesterday.

George A. Dobbie, president, in his annual address said: We have labored under two adverse conditions during the past year. The first is the contraction of the consumer market in Canada due to wages put in circulation by industry being reduced through part time work and shut downs, coupled with the consequent loss of population to our protected neighbor to the south, and largely caused by the fiscal policy of Parliament since the war and the uncertainty of the fiscal policy of Parliament in the future. The second is the smaller share of the diminished home market left us by our competitors abroad, who fully realized in 1924 the advantages offered them by reductions in the Canadian tariff.

He reported a sharp decline in production in Canadian mills, while heavy imports continued. Imports of woollen and worsted cloth from Great Britain in 1921 were 13,095,000 square yards, which in 1924 had increased to 30,154,200 square yards. The total imports in 1921 were too high at $29,194,012, but after reductions in duties they averaged $39,574,539 for 1922, 1923 and 1924.

Protection Needed.

Canadian mills were as well equipped as mills abroad, he said. The workers and technical men were as skilled; and as good quality of goods were made, but protection was necessary "because our main competition comes from Great Britain and the Continent where the workers accept lower wages and exist on a lower standard of comfort."

Emphasising the importance of the textile industry to Canada, he said that if the textile factories in Canada were wiped out, five in every hundred people in the country would find the source of their maintenance gone, and that the woollen and knitting mills comprised a quarter of the total textile industry.

In conclusion, he said: "Our mill executives have faced adverse conditions in a courageous way, displaying business tenacity and sagacity actuated by faith in future of country. Let us still keep our courage in the hope that relief will be granted our industry against unfair competition from abroad. Then, with the stabilizing of conditions we can look forward to certain growth of our industry with that of Canada."

Resolutions were passed advocating that the specially low duties granted Great Britain be discontinued and that the research laboratory of the Association, the only one of its kind in Canada, be continued.

At the luncheon, at which "roast Canadian 1925 lamb" was served, the guests of honor were Col. Robt. McEwen, president, and the directors of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, and Mr. H. G. Foster, labor member of the Ontario Minimum Wage Board. Mr. Foster and W. A. Dryden, director of the wool growers, were the principal speakers.

Industry Hard Hit.

Mr. H. G. Foster said, in part: "I am at this meeting as organized labor's spokesman. Industry in this Dominion is sadly depressed. The woollen industry is hard hit. This is because the Canadian market is thrown open to competition from European countries where the standards of living and wages are lower than ours.

"Workers in Europe work at very low wages and for very long hours, naturally they can sell the goods they produce very cheaply. We cannot compete in the open market unless we bring our standards of living and wages down to theirs. Labor in Canada has no desire to live under such conditions. Industry should support workers in a wholesome way.

"In Canada we have laws governing workmen's compensation, mother's allowance, minimum wages, factory acts, sanitation and construction, all of which has to be paid for. Labor demands these protective measures and its reasonable that sufficient protection should be accorded manufacturers to enable them to carry on.

"Increased population is talked about. But what is the good of spending government money to induce emigration when we have no jobs to offer. How much more simple the process would be if we built up industries. Labor follows the job the world over. If we encouraged industries through protection we would not need to spend one cent to bring emigrants here.

"Without industries, without industrial workers, how could we carry our National Debt and our vast railway system? They cannot be carried by agriculture alone. We must also think of our National credit. We must salvage the industries of Canada which are being rapidly destroyed through lack of protection."

Mr. W. H. Dryden said, in part: "In Canada we can grow successfully every type of sheep, including merino. Sheep growing in Canada is economically sound. We do not suffer droughts or disease which injure sheep in other countries. Yet in Great Britain they maintain 24,000,000 sheep while we maintain 2,500,000.

Sheep Fit In.

"Sheep should be kept on every farm in Canada as part of good farm practice. They fit into mixed farming as do no other farm animals. They need little attention, little feeding, and kill more weeds than does the farmer with his hoe."

He said that except for areas in the West sheep in Canada should be kept for two purposes, wool and mutton, and that Eastern Canada was a small flock country. There was no reason why at least 50,000,000 pounds of the 70,000,000 pounds of wool consumed in Canada should not be grown here. The reason why there was not a flock of sheep on each Canadian farm was that our farmers did not know enough, or learn enough, about keeping sheep.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: C. G. Cockshutt, Brantford, president; J. A. Burns, Dunnville, vice-president. Executive—W. W. Weed, Almonte; Douglas Woods, Toronto; C. W. Bates, Carleton Place; Jos. Beaumont, Glen Williams; D. C. Dick, Cobourg; H. Barrett, Paris; C. H. C. Hunt, Hamilton; C. A. Murphy, Galt; Jas. Moodie, Hamilton; D. N. Panabaker, Hespeler; A. E. Craig, Toronto; R. L. Baker, Toronto; Boyd A. C. Caldwell, Perth; Wm. Mitchell, Kincardine; H. G. Smith, Hamilton; Geo. A. Dobbie, Galt; Bertram Davis, Toronto.

MOUNTAIN MOVES.

Peak in Colorado Reported Travelling Like Waves—Goes 300 Feet.

MEEKER, Col., March 24.—"Moving Mountain," a peak approximately 2,000 feet high, continues to move slowly across the Rio Blanca Valley between Rifle and Meeker to-day. With a wave like roll the western side of the mountain is shifting from its original base still further towards the west. Last night and this morning a further movement of 25 yards was registered over a length of approximately a quarter of a mile.

Yesterday the movement had been over a distance of approximately 75 yards, making a total of 100 yards.

According to the reports of residents the slope of the peak, which was originally at an angle of 45 degrees is "rolling down" to a less steep inclination. At times to close observers it is reported tremors on the mountainside, which are comparable to a slight ocean swell, are almost perceptible.

Traffic on the highway is blocked by the shifting of the mountainside, and for a distance of 600 yards vehicular traffic is forced to take a detour.

The present movement of the mountain is the second perceptible "shifting," according to residents, a previous change having been recorded in 1909.

REPULSE READY FOR THE PRINCE

The Huge Cruiser Has Been Scrubbed and Polished for the Voyage.

A CRACK SHIP.

PLYMOUTH, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Everything is in readiness aboard the H.M.S. Repulse for the Prince of Wales' voyage to South Africa and South America, beginning Saturday. The grim battle cruiser has been scrubbed and polished until she looks like a jewelled ship, with brass and nickel blazing in the sun, and her decks and sides spotless. The twelfth successive man-of-war to bear that name under the Union Jack, the Repulse will be the crack ship of His Majesty's Fleet during the time the Prince is aboard. She is 794 feet long, of 38,000 tons, carrying a main battery of six 15-inch guns and a crew of 1,350 men, with engines capable of hurling the whole mass through the water at 33 knots an hour.

All the time the Prince is aboard he plans to carry out a daily programme of gymnastics. The gym. apparatus includes a mechanical horse, to substitute for the hunting rides in which the Prince has indulged intensively this year.

The latter is said to have offered Kirkwood police protection, which he refused.

FIND NEW WAY TO USE RADIUM

Bottle Beta Rays in Tiny Glass Tubes For Distribution.

INCREASE VALUE.

LONDON, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Experts of Middlesex Hospital in London have announced an important discovery enabling the curative value of any given quantity of radium to be multiplied thousands of times.

Briefly the discovery consists in bottling radium gas, known as radon, in tiny glass tubes.

Radium emits three kinds of rays, known as Alpha, beta and gamma, but hitherto only gamma rays have been harnessed. The present success concerns beta rays which experts now are capturing, purifying, condensing and confining in glass tubes little thicker than a human hair to which is given the name "seeds."

These "seeds" they are prepared to distribute to other hospitals for curative purposes, and suggest they may prove useful in treating cancer, although they deprecate the idea that they are likely to prove revolutionary or offer a certain cure.

LOUD SPEAKER ARRESTED.

Test Case to be Made Whether It Constitutes a Nuisance.

CLEVELAND, March 26.—Police Prosecutor Stacel ordered a warrant issued for the owner of a loud speaker placed in a store front. He was to be charged with conducting a nuisance, in a test case following complaints from residents in the neighborhood. "If it is found that these loud speakers placed in windows and store fronts around the city can be classed as a nuisance," Stacel said, "we will put a stop to them."

REV. DR. C. W. ROSE ENDORSES APPEAL

Local Council of Women Ask Help For Starving Women and Children.

The effort being made by the Local Council of Women to secure relief for the starving women and children of Sydney mining district, Nova Scotia, is worthy of our immediate attention and financial response. The following article from the Ministerial Association of Sydney bears the stamp of reliability. If the strike should be settled at once in these Cape Breton colliery districts there would still be for weeks need of relief.

C. W. Rose, Pastor,
Murray Street Baptist Church.

APPEAL FOR RELIEF.

Sydney, N.S., March 22.—Further evidence of the necessity of relief work among the destitute people of the colliery districts of Cape Breton where the miners are now entering on their third week of their wage struggle with the British Empire Steel Corporation, was forthcoming to-day, when after painstaking and searching investigation on the part of the Ministerial Association, comprising representtives from all the Protestant denominations, the following appeal was read in the city churches:

"After careful consideration with representatives of the Citizens' Relief Committee of Glace Bay, the Ministerial Association of Sydney urgently appeal to the sympathy and generosity of the people of this city on behalf of the needy and suffering men, women and children of the colliery towns of Cape Breton.

"Without taking sides in the industrial dispute, without passing judgment on the claims of strike or lockout, without political prejudice and without exaggeration, we believe that the dire need for food and clothing on the part of hundreds of families in these districts cries aloud to every feeling of humanity and every sense of human kindness.

"Other and far distant cities, towns and individuals are responding to the cry for help. Shall we who are near to the needy and who ourselves have so recently felt the pinch of hard times fail to do what we can for our needier neighbors?

"The Roman Catholic churches of our city, responding to the appeal of Bishop Morrison, are to-day making their contribution. In like manner we solicit a generous response on behalf of of the human need that from all the rest of the community knows no boundaries of creed or sect.

"Mr. W. L. Carson, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has kindly consented to act as treasurer and will receive our gifts and forward them to the Central Relief Committee at Glace Bay.

"On behalf of the Ministerial Association of Sydney.

"L. E. Ackland, President.
"John McIntosh, Secy."

EUROPE COMING BACK QUICKLY

Many Countries Have Stabilized Their Currency at New Par.

OTHERS HAPPY.

BY HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

GENEVA, March 26.— (United Press.)— Europe is rapidly coming back, according to the Permanent Financial and Economic Commission of the League of Nations.

This commission, composed of some of the best financial and economic authorities in the world —men who created the League of Nations, plans for the financial reconstruction of Austria and Hungary— are regarded as the highest possible authorities. They have followed it in detail ever since the first financial and economic conference held in 1920. In fact, it has been due largely to the adoption by the various European governments of the recommendations made by that conference, that Europe is now getting back onto its feet.

According to the League's commission the definite progress being made in Europe is to be seen first of all in the manner in which the various countries are getting their currencies stabilized and in the balancing of their budgets.

Countries which up to the present time have virtually succeeded in stabilizing their currencies are, according to the commission: Austria, Germany, Hungary, Switzerland, Czecko-Slovakia, Sweden Finland, Esthonia, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Dantzig, Serbia, France, Belgium and Italy.

The next great question which these countries will now have to solve in their march back to the normal, will be whether they will try and get back to the pre-war parity as regards the value of their currency or whether they will establish an entirely new basis.

Among the countries which have decided to accept the latter and solution and which have established their currency parity on the basis that exists at the present time are Austria, Hungary, Germany, Poland, Dantzig, and Esthonia. Both Czecho-Slovakia and Finland have also announced their intention of stabilizing their currencies at the present rate of exchange.

Other countries like France, Belgium and Italy, however, are still hopeful of greatly improving their exchange rate before being obliged to stabilize.

Equally as important as this stabilization of the currencies, if not even more so, is the manner in which the European countries are getting their budgets balanced.

The commission now expects to concentrate its efforts on a campaign to get all of the leading countries to come back to the gold standard basis.

BROTHERS IN LEAGUE.

Carlyle Boys Break Into American League This Year.

AUGUSTA, March 26.—There will be another brother pair in the American League this year in the Carlyle boys.

The elder, who had played in the Southern last season, goes to Washington, while the kid of the two is with the Tygers.

Both are southerners, and it is the opinion of the experts down this way that the Detroit club got the real prize of the Carlyle family.

Last season the Tyger rookie played with Augusta and was the town hero. He is a six-footer, weighs about 170 pounds and takes a fine cut at the ball.

DOG MAY CHANGE HOME.

If Canine Chooses New Home Owner Can't Protest.

LONDON, March 26 (Associated Press).—The old understanding in law that "finding is keeping" may be superseded by "following is keeping" in the eyes of the London sessions, which interpreted the code recently to mean that if a dog follows a man home, the person followed was not bound to communicate the fact to the canine's owner.

The owner however, it was decided, may prosecute the person for stealing the dog's collar, if it happens to be wearing such an article, but he cannot go nto court and prosecute for stealing the dog. In other words, if a dog desires to select a new owner, he may do so at his leisure.

Scientists Seek X-Ray to Penetrate Large Steel Castings.

LONDON, March 25.—It will be possible, in the near future by the aid of the X-ray, to see through steel eight inches thick, Professor Pullin, director of the Radiological Research department at Woolwich Government arsenal, predicted in a recent address before the Royal Society.

It is an easy matter at present by the use of the X-ray to penetrate pieces of seel three inches in thickness, Professor Pullin asserted, but what is sought by scientists is an apparatus to enable them to examine into casting ten or twelve inches through. This is desired so that flaws may be detected in castings, and to avoid serious danger to workmen's lives.

SAP FLOWING AND HOUSE CLEANING ON

Signs Show That Spring Has Defintely Arrived at Burnbrae.

BURNBRAE, March 26.—The warm spring weather of the past week has started the flow of sap and the syrup and sugar industry is flourishing.

The average housewife has also entered upon her spring orgy of cleaning and paper-hanging, and the average man is taking to the woods rather than beat carpets. Of course, there are exceptions.

The opening of the creeks has led the usual quota of trappers to start the spring rush. This district will soon have more trappers than rats if last year's history is repeated.

Mr. H. C. Simpson held an old-fashioned sawing bee last week, the victims being two of the few large elms left in what was once a heavily wooded spot. Three cross-cut saws, however, were not equal to the whole job, as two large logs were left at the end of the day's labour, although it was estimated that over three cords were cut. The countryside is being rapidly depleted of the gigantic trees that once were so common.

On Sunday last, Rev. D. A. McKenzie preached from the Book of Ezekiel, this being the sixth sermon from the Prophets. He chose as his text, chapter 37, verse 3, "Son of man, can these bones live." Just as the Spirit of God raised Israel into a nation after her years in bondage, so the Spirit was working in the world to-day. The mighty Prophets were not dead, their influence was still for the Glory of God.

Mr. McKenzie has succeeded splendidly in the difficult task of applying the thoughts of days long ago to modern life. The services have been well attended, showing that the congregation appreciate the effort their minister has put forth to present these sermons in an interesting and instructive manner. On Sunday next Mr. McKenzie will preach the last of the series, "The Prophecy of Jonah."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A LIE NAILED IN THE HEAD.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The anti-prohibitionists of this city have been very prominent in circulating the report that 1,800 permits have been issued for making home-brew in the city. Now as the returns have come down from the customs department at Ottawa shows that only 10.049 permits have been issued in all Ontario. Mr. Ferguson, the premier, made the statement in one of his speeches that there were 28,000 permits issued (of course he is liable to say anything these days).

Now of the 10,049 permits issued Toronto took first place with 2743, Hamilton took second place with 2,203, and London took third place with 557. Where does Peterboro come in? Not so bad after all.

When will the moderationist learn to be moderate. Thanking you, I remain,

W. H. MERRELL.

OBITUARY

COLONEL DAVID SUTTON.

COBOURG, March 26.—The funeral of the late Col. David Sutton took place, from his late residence here yesterday by motor to Gardener's cemetery, north of Millbrook, for interment in the family plot. Col. Sutton for the last four years has been turnkey at the counties' jail here and was held in warm regard by citizens. He was a well-known former citizen and agriculturist of Cavan township.

Col. Sutton enlisted as a private in the cavalry and worked himself up to the rank, which he retained at time of his passing. He married Miss Barnhardt of Cavan township, who, with three sons, survives him, and for them much sympathy is felt because of the death of a loving husband and father. The sons are Austin, on the homestead near Millbrook, Fred of Cobourg and Louis of Rochester. The latter came over from the Flower City for his father's funeral.

Col. Sutton was quite ill before the new year and recovered to some extent, although he did not fully regain his health. He was confined to his bed for two weeks before his passing, and gradually grew worse until the end.

PRAISES STAND OF METHODISTS

Moderator of Presbyterian Church Says Their Courtesy Splendid.

CEMENTS UNION.

TORONTO, March 26.—In the course of an interview on the Church Union situation, Principal Clarence Mackinnon, Moderator of the General Assembly, said he was glad to find the agitation over the voting was generally dying down. In answer to a question regarding the future relations of the Unionists and Anti-Unionists he said "I have had several requests that I take steps to call a conference for reconsideration of some of the phases of the situation. The difficulty in that connection would seem to be that there is no one with authority to call such a conference. It would have to be informal as it could have no official authority. Its decisions would probably only increase the irritation that everybody wishes to allay.

"Speaking only for myself, I am not quite sure that a conference could suggest, anything better than has been done. It is true the old Presbyterian church has been divided, but under the new alignment each person can now worship in the particular church in which he will be most happy. If he wishes to have an unmodified confession of faith he will be at liberty to do so without provocation. If he believes, on the other hand, that conditions in the Dominion of Canada call for a more elastic spirit, a more rapid rate of progress, he will find his natural affiliation in the United Church. It does not seem to me that anything would be gained by bringing pressure to bear on either party to sacrifice its convictions. We are really better off apart.

"After Union is effected there will, no doubt, be an opportunity for the suggestion of Dr. Drummond, of Hamilton, of a scheme for a federated church movement, in which the various churches will retain their individuality, but will associate with one another for co-operative purposes. Should this happy result follow, and it is one I personally should strongly favor, such a federation would not necessarily be confined to the churches at present involved, but might embrace nearly all the other Protestant denominations that would wish to affiliate. This could result in nothing but good to the Dominion."

The Moderator paid high tribute to the attitude of the Methodist Church. "Nothing," he said, "could exceed the courtesy of the Methodist Church in every part of the Dominion, its patience and its readiness to assist. This has gone a long way to forming the sentimental and spiritual union which after all is the heart of the whole movement. If the Legislatures will give legislation which is just and speedy and which will not involve prolonged litigation it will, I think, be what the public very greatly desires. Happy relations with non-Unionists are being established, and old friendships will not be disturbed to any great extent," he said. "Whatever side old church leaders have taken, their work will never be forgotten, and their friendship will be cherished, and this augurs well for future relationships."

ONTARIO

A request for Co-operation

Made by the Department of Public Highways

The highways of the Province of Ontario represent an investment within the last 10 years of over $160,000,000.

Whether constructed entirely through the Government of the Province, or partly through the Government and partly through the counties or townships, it is the people who have paid for these roads. It is the people's money which will be used to maintain them.

Abuses which do the greatest damage are the overloading of trucks and the driving of trucks and passenger cars at inordinate speeds. Even a light vehicle does damage if driven too rapidly, but the damage is much greater if the load is heavy, even if the speed is less.

It is the duty of the people to see that their property is not abused. Mr. Taxpayer, this is important to you.

What the public can do

To conserve this public property, The Highways Act provides against overloading of vehicles and driving at excessive speeds.

To secure voluntary co-operation of the users of the roads, the Highways Department proposes to place before the people, through the columns of the press, the reasons why regulation of the use of the road is in the interest of the motorist and the public generally. To this effort it invites the assistance and co-operation of motorists and truck owners, Automobile and Good Roads Associations, and all other bodies and individuals who take an intelligent interest in public affairs.

Don't overload now

At this season of the year the foundations of even the hard-surfaced roads are "churned up" by heavy loads, and disintegration follows. The roads which are not hard-surfaced are in a porous or soft condition, and fast driving and heavy loads are especially destructive.

The law provides that during March and April trucks (outside cities and towns) "shall not be loaded in excess of one-half the carrying capacity of such vehicle as registered with the Department, without obtaining a permit as provided in Section 31."

Compliance with the law is urged on all drivers and owners, but while co-operation is requested in the public interest, notice is given here that infractions of the law will be dealt with vigourously.

An advertisement issued by the Ontario Department of Highways to secure the co-operation of motorists and truck drivers, Automobile Clubs and all other public spirited bodies, in abating the abuse of the roads of the Province.

DETROIT MAN SHOT IN A BUSY STREET

Remonstrated With Man in Car and Was Murdered in Cold Blood.

DETROIT, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Earl Maher, 26, was shot to death this morning at Cadillac Square, one of the city's busiest intersections, byt one of three men who escaped in an automobile.

Maher and two companions, Llewellyn Brill, of Windsor, Ont., and Leo Stransky, of Detroit, were crossing the square when they narrowly escaped being run down by an automobile containing three men. The car stopped across the street, and Maher, Brill and Stransky went over and remonstrated with the driver for his carelessness. In reply one of the men in the machine fired a shot, the bullet entering Maher's chest. The car with the gunmen then fled up the avenue and disappeared.

MOST OLD FOLKS REQUIRE A HEART AND NERVE TONIC

After middle age little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly as the heart action becomes weak and uncertain and the nerves are not as steady as they were in the younger days.

Now is the time when all aged people who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy unimpaired should use

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, and fainting spells. I was advised, by a friend, to try Milburn's H. & N. Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since. I am 80 years of age and I always keep them in the house, and feel that with their help I will see many years yet. I always recommend them to anyone who is suffering from heart trouble."

Money
AT WORK

In economics the word demand not only means that people want something; it also means that they are able to PAY for what they WANT.

Over in China the natives might want all of the food, clothing, and automobiles that we could send them. In ordinary conversation some one might correctly speak of the "unlimited demand" for automobiles and food in China.

Yet, from the business man's standpoint this would be incorrect. The only demand he is interested in is from those who can pay for what they want. He can't sell anything to a pauper, no matter how much the pauper wants it.

It is clear then that in economics the word "demand" is really only a measure of the demand from those who can pay.

Produce on Display is Showing Varied Delicacies of Season.

MAPLE SYRUP.

Chocolate Eggs and Fuzzy Chicks Are Ready For Easter Day.

Maple syrup and strawberries are the latest novelties in the food line in local stores. Not that they are associated together on many tables. Maple syrup has its usual pal in pancakes and strawberries in cream, for, no matter how dietists may declar ethat cream and strawberries, like oranges and cream, are inimical to the inner chemistry of the human system, still people continue to eat them together and exclaim over them.

Fresh maple syrup with flaky pancakes! That is a breakfast dish fit for the gods. The maple syrup this year, according to a local grocer who gets a large stock, is not running as well as usual, and the season is anticipated as being a little shorter than heretofore. This dealer gets his supply from Robert McCamus of Cavan, who makes a regular business of the gathering of the sap of Canada's wonderful tree, and has a thousand trees tapped on his property.

Maple syrup, which is described this year as being of very good quality, opened at 75 cents a quart and $2.75 a gallon. "Bring your own container" is the advice recorded on some of the advertisements for the syrup, whose opening price this year is a nickel under that of last year's supply. The contention that the sap is not running as freely as usual is not borne out in Peterboro City, at any rate. More noticeable than in other years is the number of maple trees that are "weeping" on the sidewalks under a warm morning sun.

The strawberries that are just making their bow to luxurious tables are nice looking specimens, not as "strawy" as the early arrivals of other seasons. Although in Toronto wholesalers are said to be paying 75 and 85 cents a quart box, here the price is fairly low for opening quotations. Pint boxes came in at 60 cents, dropped within two days to 50 cents, and can be purchased today at 45 cents. They are in the neat little new wooden containers that will be standard, like the new quart boxes, for dealers henceforth.

Malaga grapes, at the tail end of the season, are scarce, and their price of 60 cents a pound has advanced within a fortnight by fifty per cent. Pineapples from Cuba are 40 and 50 and 60 cents apiece.

Asparagus from the South, at 15 cents a bunch, and eggplant, at 40 and 50 cents each, are new in the vegetable line.

Dairy products are fairly stationary, with the exception of eggs, which have dropped within the past two weeks by 15 cents on the dozen for "fresh extras," and 9 cents on the dozen for "fresh firsts."

Eggs, which the Department of Agriculture finds difficulty in classifying as either "dairy produce, fruit or livestock," finally agreeing on putting them in the latter category, cause dealers a good deal of concern. Merchants of Winnipeg City, for instance, charge that other retailers are "bootlegging" in eggs, and ask for stiffer enforcement of regulations with regard to grading, while county grocers of Chatham have just passed a resolution, asking Hon. Mr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, to amend the laws so that after grading for quality grocers may be permitted to buy and sell eggs by weight.

For buying ungraded eggs a dealer in Western Ontario was recently fined $100 and costs, or in default of payment, two months in jail, this being a second offense, while an Edmonton firm was last week fined $40 and costs for selling eggs containing a large percentage of undergrades. Poultry men of British Columbia are demanding a tariff of not less than fifteen per cent. on imported eggs, claiming that importations of American and Chinese eggs have shattered the home product in British Columbia at a time when egg laying had increased in the Fraser Valley. Thus, "a great and growing industry in British Columbia" is menaced, according to poultry men, who demand more protection. The great Canadian hen, it appears, is a wonderful asset to the country. Like her sister, the great American hen, of whom it was once said that the annual income from her output was superior to all the Rockefeller millions, she is capable of raising considerable trouble for her owners when she doesn't keep on working. However, as one of her admirers has remarked, "a chicken is a very accomodating bird. You can eat it before it's born and after it's dead, with equal relish, and in the meantime, it keeps on laying eggs for you."

Flour, following the decline in the wheat market, has decreased in price. A sensational advance through recent winter months was recorded in flour, some dealers predicting a return finally to war prices of $7 a half barrel, but the advance was halted by the break in the wheat market. From a price, two weeks ago, of $5.75 a half barrel, flour has declined to $5.40, with 24-lb. bags registering like smaller decreases.

Prices to farmers on their fall and spring wheat have also been lowered, from a high mark of $1.75 to a quotation in local circles of $1.25 a bushel, and corresponding small decreases in the prices of rye and buckwheat. However, very little is coming in, the agriculturists concentrating their attention just now on seed supplies.

The farmer is getting an advancingly high price for his porkers. Hogs and their derivatives have been on the up-grade for some time. Two months ago the thick, smooth animals were quoted at $10.25 and the select graded at $10.50, while dressed hogs were $17 and $18. The latter then dropped to $15.50 and $16.50, while present quotations on them are $19.50 and $20.50; thick, smooth are $13.50, and select graded, $14.75.

Although retail prices have not advanced according to wholesale quotations on hog products, as many of the dealers have contracts with their supply houses, the wholesale price of lard is up by 3 cents on the pound, and bacon by 10 cents.

In the stores are the fish supplies that make the backbone of many Lenten tables, from dried, odd-looking plaice to funny silvery small smelts, that a local eating-house proprietor advertises on his menu card, with a missing letter in the announcement, as "fried smells," and also the fish in cans. A visiting lady speaker, recording her experiences at Wembley, at the Canadian Pavilion, spoke of the efforts of one of the attendants to educate his English audiences to the merits of "canned salmon," and his final subjection to their desire to call it "tinned fish." These tinned fish have odd coverings. There is the little French sardine tin, with its slogan, "the fish she is very small," the "glacier" sardine and the "thee-tea" brand, whatever that may be, and also the suspicious sounding "soused" mackerel.

In the stores, too, are harbingers of Easter, in the big chocolate eggs for "Albert" and "Mother" and "Lucille," the little fuzzy yellow chicks, and the tiny white bunnies carrying with them their dinners of bright orange carrots.

UNINVITED GUESTS ATE REFRESHMENTS

Masked Ball in Washington Presents Many Difficulties.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A masked ball in Washington society presents a most difficult problem for the host and hostess. Sir Auckland and Lady Geddes tried it at the British Embassy a few years ago.

Several hundred uninvited guests, their identity, concealed by their masks, ate all the refreshments before the invited congressmen and government officials arrived. Prince Caetani, retiring Italian Ambassador, recently gave a masquerade and required that all the guests unmask at the door. Special admittance cards also were sent out the day before the party, as another means of keeping out the uninvited.

THOMAS SCOTT HURT.

Father of Russell T. Scott Struck Down by an Automobile.

DETROIT, Michigan, March 26.—The efforts of Thomas Scott, aged 70, to save his son Russell form the Chicago gallows, on a murder charge were halted yesterday, when an automobile struck him down.

The identity of the driver who struck Scott has not been ascertained. He brought the old man to Grace Hospital, and then left.

Scott's condition is reported to be serious.

FIXTURES FOR WIRING SHOWN

Manager of C.G.E. Plant Explains History of Wiring Devices.

OLD TIMERS SHOWN.

C. S. Mallett, manager of the Ward street works of the Canadian General Electric Company, Toronto, was the speaker at the meeting of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada last night.

Mr. Mallett spoke on wiring devices, past and present. He had a great many samples of switches, rosettes and fuse blocks, both antique and modern. The old fuse-blocks were on wooden bases and there were no standards as to the distance apart that bare conductors might be put. Mr. Mallett said that on some of the first wiring in Toronto forty years ago the wires, covered with a so-called rubber composition, were fastened in place with tape and plastered over. In those days there were no standard threads and each manufacturer made his sockets a different size so that people would be forced to use his fuses and lamps.

In speaking of the difficulties of manufacture to-day, Mr. Mallett said that it is hard to get people to realize when large quantities are spoken of. In key sockets there are seventeen different parts and on some of them there are many as eight different operations. As his factory turns out about 9,000 sockets a day this makes an immense number of machine operations. Some of the parts, both metal and porcelain, are made up in lots of hundreds of thousands or millions.

The Hydro and the Underwriters' Association set very strict standards for all these parts. They specify the composition of the material and in many places the size or shape of parts and have a very high standard of performance before they will approve a new type. Mr. Mallett showed a key socket which had been turned 6,000 times with a load of three amperes (equal to over three hundred watts) and then was tried at different loads until it reached 39 amperes or enough power to run a five horse power motor. It was then put in a lathe and turned several thousand times a minute without damaging the contacts. This he gave as an example of the strong construction of a switch to pass the test requirements.

Mr. Mallett ascribed the successful development of new and better fittings in his own plant to the co-operation he had received from the men in the shop. He said that instead of educating the employees to "Safety First" be believed in making it easier to be safe than careless. The same method was used in keeping the stock. The material went from place to place on trays and if an employee were tempted to take anything the incomplete look of the tray was a deterrent.

W. M. Cruthers introduced the speaker and acted as chairman for the evening. Messrs. E. R. Shirley, R. L. Dobbin, and P. P. Westbye, the retiring chairman and immediate past chairmen, were appointed a nominating committee to draw up a slate of officers for the coming year.

The branch passed a resolution approving of daylight saving for the summer months.

PUT OUT OF MISERY.

Dog Marooned on Niagara Island Shot By Coast Guard.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 26. — A mongrel dog marooned on a small island in the upper river for a week, was shot and put out of its misery yesterday by a United States coast guard. With the ball from a sharpshooter in its body, the dog leaped into the water, and tried to swim across, but was caught in the current and carried over the Falls. Several attempts had been made to rescue the animal but without success, and its maddened howling by day and night aroused much sympathy.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

CLEANLINESS AND SANITATION AND A SUPPLY OF PURE WATER ARE THE SECRETS OF GOOD CHEESE

R. W. Ward, Dairy Instructor, Tells Peterborough Cheese Makers How to Improve Their Products—Gives Address at Convention on Science of Business.

HIGH IDEALS SHOULD BE SET.

Suggests That Producers and Factory Owners Should Pay Makers a Premium on Number One or Special, and Penalize Them on Lower Grades.

The following is the text of an address delivered by Instructor R. W. Ward at the Cheesemakers' Convention in Peterborough last week:—

Our object in meeting here to-day is to discuss ways and means whereby the dairy products—cheese and butter—may be improved in quality in Peterboro and Lindsay sections, and I trust there will be plain statement of facts and then fair honest criticism by all, and only in this way will we arrive at our faults and should then be in a position to apply the remedies which will make improvement, Mr. Ward said

During the last week I have gone over all the reports that I have written since I have been instructor and with a great deal of interest, and I note the burden of my appeals for the improvement of the dairy industry have been very much the same with a gradual increase in stronger appeal for cleanliness, sanitation and a pure water supply.

My appeals have been as follows, namely, "a pure, clean, cool delivery of milk at the very earliest hour in the morning possible, a properly equipped factory so constructed that it can be kept clean and sanitary both inside and surroundings outside, a pure water supply, and flies should be excluded as far as it is possible to do so."

In going over these reports, the fact was very noticeable that what constitutes a perfect chedar cheese to-day, and how to obtain it, is very much the same as it was 25 or 30 years ago, but as time has gone on many things have come to our knowledge through scientific investigation, experimenting and practical experience, that we did not know a quarter of a century ago, which enables us to control the process of manufacture and thereby enable us to turn out a more uniform fine article every day.

To obtain the high type of dairy products that we are aiming for each and every detail are co-related and dependent each upon the other, from the cow until the product is marketed, sold and delivered, and I will go farther and state that the producers' interest should not cease until his product is in the hands of the consumer for the best advertisement any one can have are satisfied customers.

To obtain these ideals in our dairy products, all, I think, are free to admit that we must have sound raw material to start with pure, clean and cool milk and cream.

To obtain this kind of raw material it will be necessary for the makers, at the receiving door, to be careful and strict in grading and reject all that is not fit to make finest cheese and butter.

If this is done and everything is right after it passes the receiving door and the makers are competent and do their part, the result should and will be finest cheese and butter.

Re the grading of dairy products, there is no question but it is an advance in the right direction, and I think the standards set for specials and firsts are very reasonable, and as time goes on the tendency will be to raise them rather than to lower them.

To my mind I think it unfortunate that the impression got so generally circulated that makers would not be held accountable to make good on undergrade cheese.

If we are all honest with ourselves we will have to admit that we all have to have straps on at sometime to keep us up to our best.

Years ago, when our cheese were sold on the cheese board and we were looking for the buyer to come and say whether he could pass them as O.K., we all had straps on every maker that has ever made cheese in this country.

And it has its merits. There was no whey returned in milk cans, no cheese left curing-room shelves until they were ten days old, cheese were sold every two weeks, buyers had ten days to inspect and take them out. Those were the days that we did have straps on, for everything had to be right and the cheese made right to stand up and give right account of themselves.

In looking back over those days, I think we can take some pointers that will be a benefit to us all, and make an improvement in our dairy products in this section.

The trouble in grading, so far, has seemed to be in placing the loss sustained on account of cheese being under first grade where it rightfully belongs and making the guilty party suffer.

The intelligent competent maker, that gives the best that is in him in application of thought and time, and keeps his factory clean and sanitary, certainly should not pay the loss, neither should the ideal patron that always furnishes a right milk supply, suffer the loss, so, in that case, the maker has a great responsibility in protecting him (the patron) in grading the milk at the receiving door, for that is the only protection he has.

I have heard it remarked a good many times that cheese makers should not suffer any loss on account of flavor of their cheese being wrong, a statement I cannot fully concur in, for it may be their fault.

I have been thinking of a scheme of having producers and factory owners pay the maker a premium on all cheese grading number one or specials, and penalizing them on all cheese grading below number one.

I think the producers and owners would be well advised to give this consideration.

There is no doubt but the time has arrived in the history of dairying in this country when there should be sane thinking and plain speaking, and the very excellent dairy laws of this province enforced where necessary.

Let me again call the attention of factory owners and makers to the necessity of seeing that factories and surroundings are in perfect condition before opening day for this season's operations.

Now, gentlemen, you no doubt are aware that we made a very poor showing, as a whole, from this section last season on the quality of our cheese, a little over one-fifth, or 20% of the cheese graded under number one.

I will read you a statement of the grading for season of 1924:—

2 factories had none under No. 1 grade; 3 factories had less than 5% under No. 1 grade; 3 factories had over 5% and under 10% under No. 1 grade; 5 factories had over 10% and under 20% under No. 1 grade; 2 factories had over 20% and under 30% under No. 1 grade; 3 factories had over 30% and under 40% under No. 1 grade; 2 factories had over 40% and under 50% under No. 1 grade; 3 factories had 50% and over under No. 1 grade; 2 factories had none of their cheese graded.

Total number pounds of cheese made in Peterboro section in the season of 1924, 2,438,051 lbs. 79.7% graded No. 1 or above, and a trifle over 20% graded under No. 1.

A cut of one cent per pound on the 20% of under grades amounts to $4,876.10.

I will now make a final appeal to the cheesemakers of this section to put forth your best efforts in 1925 and win back the high reputation you have had, and I know you will be able to do so if you all apply yourselves with that object in view, and if I am acting as your instructor there will be no work too hard, or hours to long, for me in assisting you in reaching the desired goal—100% No. 1 grade.

In Other Years.

A few extracts from recommendations taken from report of 1910:—

Composite test of whey. Increased production per cow. Clean, cool delivery of milk. Properly equipped factories and perfect sanitation. Skilled maker and cool curing rooms.

Clause from 1918 report:—

The cheese have been mostly of very good quality. There has been a few lots classed as seconds, more than should have been if proper care and attention had been given to the receiving of the milk and the process of manufacture, for the inspection and grading has been very lenient as is always usual in any commodity when in strong demand and high in price.

Clause from 1919 report:—

Some of the makers have not been as careful and painstaking as they should have been, and to my mind this is a natural sequence as a result of high prices, strong demand and careless inspection of the cheese. I would strongly recommend that all cheese be graded by a disinterested party and sold on their merits, for I believe that we shall never obtain the results that we should in improving the quality of our cheese until this is done.

NEW IDEA AROUT BEES.

BERLIN, March 26. (Associated Press).—Prof. von Frisch, of Berlin university, who has made a special study of apiculture, believes that bees who collect honey from roses, for instance, will not pay attention to any other flower. He declares that bees specialize on some one flower for the reason that they react to only one perfume.

SHEEP RAISERS HOPEFUL.

Sheep raisers in Alberta are just as optimistic about the outlook as the growers of wheat, with their prospect of $2 a bushel. The best feature of the Western situation is that the day of the one crop farmer is passing where it has not already passed.

Goose Is Among Longest Lived Domestic Creature

NEW YORK, March 26.—Elephants and whales are the Methuselahs of the animal kingdom. Studies indicate that they live as long as 200 years.

The turtle is also a contestant for longevity honors, with a known age of 150 years and some authorities claiming more than 200. The goose and eider duck have been known to live 100 years; the swan, 102; the golden eagle, 104; the donkey, 106; the parrot, 100; the canary, 24; the stork, 70; the toad, 40; the blackbird, 18. The queen bee often lives for five years, while working bees usually die after about six weeks.

River crawfish sometimes live 70 years.

Better Market Abroad Open To Canadian Wool

MONTREAL, March 26. — The general wool shortage of the world, coupled with a better understanding on the part of buyers, and grading to conform with generally accepted standards has resulted in a much increased sale of Canadian wool to British and continental trade. In 1924 over 1,000,000 pounds were sold in London and Bradford, which compares favorably with the total foreign sales of the previous year of 500,000 pounds. To-day Canadian wool is looked upon, grade for grade, as being the equal of similar foreign wools. Owing to the decrease in the number of sheep, the wool domestically grown showed a decrease in 1924 from the preceding year.

CHEESE MAKERS TO START WORK AT WARKWORTH

Meeting on Wednesday to Plan Season's Work in Factory.

REPORT OF 1924.

Last Year Saw 3,370,539 Pounds of Milk Disposed Of.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, March 26.—The annual meeting of the patrons of the Warkworth cheese factory will be held here on Wednesday afternoon when arrangements will be made for the coming season's campaign. Secretary-Treasurer H. S. Nelson has completed the report of the year's work and this will be submitted to the meeting.

This shows that 3,370,939 pounds of milk was received at the factory during the season of 1924. There were 295,691 pounds of cheese manufactured.

The gross receipts amounted to $49,767.41 and the cost of manufacture was $8,870.73. The total paid to patrons for milk was $40,897.02.

Half the value of the whey butter manufactured was $1,261.97. The maker receives half the price of the whey butter, besides three cents for every pound of cheese turned out as his compensation. W. V. Drewry, who owns the factory, is cheesemaker, and president. J. F. Freure is auditor.

It required 11.39 pounds of milk to produce a pound of cheese and the average price received for the output during the season was 16.83 cents.

Increase Over 1923.

The record for 1924 shows an increase in business over that of 1923. In the latter year the total output of cheese was 251,120 and the gross receipts were $48,163.36 and the amount distributed among the patrons was $40,629.76. The dividends would have been proportionately greater this year but for the fact that the price of cheese was lower than in 1923.

Warkworth cheese has always been sold independent of cheese boards or co-operative associations and never failed to command top prices.

WHEAT AFFECTS FLOUR STOCKS

General Declines in Prices Follow Debacle, But Export Better.

OPTIMISM LOST.

That the worst crash in the wheat markets since war times should have at least a psychological effect on the various branches of the milling industry is inevitable. A decline of 65 cents in less than two weeks followed by erratic fluctuations in prices has changed the outlook from the standpoint of securing further raw materials, and the situation with each individual miller hinges on whether or not a large quantity of wheat, bought at high prices, is on hand. If the miller has hedged his commitments he is not particularly concerned with the price change, but if he was carried along on the tide of optimism, expecting price strength to continue, his present position is less favorable. But there is a third situation in which a miller may find himself, and it is stated that some of the largest are in this group—to have been fortunate enough to have made large purchases before the price rise.

Coming on top of something of a slackening in foreign demand for Canadian flour, the wheat price decline knocked down the price of flour by 40 cents, making a net reduction of more than a dollar within two weeks. Whether or not this is to be blamed entirely for the decline in flour stocks is debated. At any rate, there were five losses, no gains, and one unchanged, among the Canadian flour stocks during the week, the most important of these declines being St. Lawrence.

In foreign business, however, prospects are excellent for a busy season during 1925. Flour was exported to 44 different countries during January, no less than 347,226 barrels having gone to Russia alone. The next heaviest buyer was Great Britain with 233,346 barrels, followed by Germany with 89,310 barrels. Greece took 18,408 barrels, Denmark 14,706, China 16,778 the Irish Free State 14,889, and Jamaico 13,485 barrels. During the twelve months ending January, exports of flour were 11,300,000 barrels, or 75,000 more than for the preceding year.

WHY FARMERS FAIL.

An investigation in a western state showed that the cost of producing wheat varied from 73 cents a bushel to $7.00.

SUGARING-OFF WAS GREAT TIME IN THE FARM OF OLDEN DAYS BUT GROVES ARE NOW DEPLETED

The Indians Had Learned the Virture of the Pleasant Sap Before White Foot Trod Their Domain—Birch Bark Container Was Used.

ART LEARNED FROM SAVAGES.

Early Settlers Substituted Sap Buckets and Iron Kettles—To-day the Business is Commercialized Except on Farms Where Only Home Needs Are Supplied.

COBOURG, March 26.—The reports that have come from the northern and other parts of Central Ontario state that this season the prospects are fair for maple sugar. In the olden days this industry was general throughout the country, but now it is little more than a memory in the recollection of many residents of the older parts of Canada, where the maple groves are seen no more, having given away to cultivated fields. The industry is, however, an important one still through large areas of Quebec and in some parts of Ontario.

It may not be generally known, however, that before the advent of the white man on this continent, the Indian had learned how to extract and concentrate the sap of the maple tree. On the approach of spring, the Indian braves, in the olden days, would gash the stately maples with a tomahawk in a slanting direction. Then he would insert a chip, or spout, to direct the flow of the sap into some receptacle resting upon the ground beneath the tree. Often this was a birch bark dish. Then a fire was kindled in some open space. The squaws gathered the sap into earthen kettles and boiled it over the open fire. By this means the Indians obtained a small quantity of thick, dark syrup, which was the only sugar or rather sweetening commodity that they had for use, and which they highly prized. Thus it will be seen that sugar making from the maple, which is confined entirely to North America, had a very early beginning.

The early settlers from the Old Land and the United Empire Loyalists who hewed for themselves homes from the unbroken forest, learned from the Indians in Ontario the art of sugar making and followed it for many years, with little improvement in their mode of manufacture, excepting that the white man substituted wooden pails or, as they were called, "sap buckets," for birch bark dishes, and huge iron kettles in which the sap was boiled for the clay or earthen vessels. Sometimes wooden troughs were used to catch the sap. These the men would empty into buckets, carrying two of these by means of what was called a "neck-yoke," at a time. In this way the farmer made the rounds of his sugar-bush, once and sometimes twice or thrice a day, if the flow was particularly good. Snowshoes were often used by the men also in making their rounds through the bush. Quantities of the sap was boiled to the consistency of syrup which the good housewife stored away in jars for use throughout the year. Then the remainder was boiled still longer and turned out into pans, and set in the snow to cool. There were many families who had no other sugar than this for their family use.

But the grand event of the season was the "sugaring-off." This social affair was regarded by many as the event par excellence of the year, and not excelled by the old-fashioned husking-bee or spring-bee. Social events were not formal affairs in the olden days, and the news that such a neighbor was going to "sugar-off" on such a night justified all who could by any means participate in the pleasure, to gather. Imagine if you will a moonlight evening, the air crisp, it is true, but not too cold to spoil the enjoyment. With miles of virgin forest and plenty of good axes, and wood of little or no value, there is no reason for any person being cold, for an immense camp-fire is soon built. Another axe is heard ringing, and down comes a hemlock, which is soon stripped of its boughs, and these piled together make a fragrant and comfortable seat, for those who are inclined to rest, and pass the time in social converse and the "spinning of yarns." A cord or two of wood for an evening was regarded as no waste, and with the air cold enough to make the heat agreeable, the logs cut from twelve to fifteen feet long, are piled high and the match is struck underneath, where has been gathered together dry leaves and twigs. Or, if matches are not available, a few live coals are carefully carried in a shovel from the nearest dwelling, and the camp-fire lighted in that way. This formed the reception-room, the grand outdoor parlor, where the guests were entertained.

In a sheltered nook near by, two poles had been driven into the ground and from a cross-bar resting upon these, hangs the huge iron kettle containing the syrup, boiling briskly and fast taking upon itself the consistency of warm sugar. The master of ceremonies stirs the contents with a wooden ladle, ever and anon dropping some of the soft mass into a pan of snow to test it, to see if it has boiled enough. The ruddy-cheeked boys and girls watch this process with deep interest and are often rewarded by being allowed to sample the first-fruits of the feast. It is a great occasion, and one which no person, who has once witnessed it, can forget.

And so for years the sugar-making industry was carried on with little change, but during the past forty or fifty years it has fallen in line with other branches of agriculture, until to-day it has become in some districts a highly organized commercial industry, while in others primitive methods are still employed by the farmers, who do little more than provide syrup for their own families, and a few gallons for the local market. An early improvement was the substitution of the auger for the axe in tapping. Coopered buckets took the place of the birch bark case or hewn sap trough, while the big iron kettle gave way to the evaporating pan, which has in later years developed into the modern evaporator with corrugated bottom and separate compartments. The wooden spout has almost disappeared also in most advanced sections, in fact, the tendency is to use metal wherever possible in all articles of equipment. Then, again, the increasing cost of labor has made the old laborious methods largely impossible, and the fluid in a well-equipped plant now flows of its own accord from the collecting tank to the storage vat, from thence to the evaporator, and, when boiled, to a proper consistency, into the receiving can. There are also sugar orchards, as they have come to be called, where pipe lines are laid to conduct the sap from outlying collecting centres to the camp where evaporation takes place.

Sugar orchards are operated from two to four weeks in the spring, according to the flow of the sap. Warm days and frosty nights are said to be the best weather conditions. But although improvements in the sugar industry have been many, it is doubtful if anything of modern conception can equal the old-fashioned "sugaring-off." In commercializing the industry we have doubtless robbed it of much of its romance. The tramp to the woods on a spring day, the aroma of the escaping steam from the big cauldrons, the partaking of the syrup from a wooden paddle by means of a chip-like scoop, the tasting of the "wax" that has been allowed to harden on the clean snow, are delights that will never be forgotten.

New Tomato Ripens Earlier Than Old

EAST LANSING, March 26.—An improved tomato that promises to create a sensation in agricultural circles has just been developed by Prof. George E. Starr, the "Luther Burbank" of the Michigan Agricultural College.

The Starr tomato, an improvement over the Earliana and June Pink varieties, is almost seedless and contains more pulp than the ordinary tomato. It is a solid product, keeps in storage well, and is of smooth uniform size. Under proper conditions of soil fertility it is said to be very productive.

Perhaps the greatest advantage credited to the new product is its early bearing qualities. Initial experiments would indicate that this fruit will be ready for marketing several weeks earlier than the ordinary tomato.

Consumers Benefit.

If this materializes it will affect the tomato market of the country to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars every summer.

For Canning.

That the Starr tomato has great possibilities for the canning trade is indicated by the fact that a representative from one of the country's great tomato packing houses is planning this year to test it at several of his stations in the United States and Canada.

The Starr product is adapted to any section of the country.

Wheat Exports Smaller And Grades Are Lower

OTTAWA, March 26.—Exports of wheat during February were 4,146,439 bushels, as compared with 11,769,000 for the corresponding month last year. Owing to the much higher wheat prices, the value did fall off to nearly the same extent as the quantity, being 7,799,000, as compared with 11,769,106 in February, 1924.

At the same time, on the total exports for the seven months ending February the increase in prices has not anything like offset the falling off in the volume of such shipments. During this period of the exports was 151,492,000, a decrease of about 39,000,000 from that of the preceding year. The volume of exports has fallen from 191,455,000 bushels to 99,818,000 in that time.

MANY FARMERS VISIT COBOURG TO SEE STOCK

Government Better Live Stock Train Attracted Great Attention.

EDUCATIONAL VALUE.

F. M. Robertson, of Seymour, Was Official—His "Robin Hood" Shown.

COBOURG, March 26.—Quite a number of county agriculturists were in town as interested spectators with citizens of Cobourg when the Government Better Live Stock train arrived at the down-town Canadian National yards. The exhibit remained here until noon when the train went on to Colborne, where it showed until five o'clock. Their next stop was at Trenton and from there they went to Consecon, Wellington and Shannonville in Prince Edward County.

A staff of lecturers and demonstrators did all in their power to add to the educative value of the train's visit here. County agriculturists were pleased to see among the Government officials F. M. Rutherford of Seymour, whose noted Ayrshire prize-winning bull, "Robin Hood," from the well-known "Springbank Farms," was shown as a particularly good herd sire, Mr. Robertson having loaned him to the Government for the purpose. The exhibit consisted of live beef cattle, of the best grades, fine types of dairy cattle, prize-winning sheep and swine, and poultry of the best laying strains, and for table use. There were also special exhibits of wool, of much interest to the owners of some fine flocks of sheep in Hamilton Township; of bacon which was viewed with interest by the farmers who specialize on the bacon hog; of good seed, the importance of which was strongly emphasized, and also the grave necessity of keeping out spurious and crop deteriorating weeds; and of fertilizers, the showing of the latter exemplifying the necessity and profitableness of more intensive farming on the part of the agriculturists of our province. To make two blades of grass grow, where one formerly grew, is certainly an achievement. The horses lent for exhibition work were certainly fine types. Among them were two very high class horses. One a heavy draught gelding loaned by the Cooksville Shale Brick Company, and the other an express type gelding loaned by the City Dairy Company, Toronto.

Among the dairy cattle exhibit was the famous Holstein bull owned by D. A. McPhee, Vanleek Hill, "Sir Francey Marcena Burke," which won the championship at the great National Dairy Show at Syracuse in 1923. Then, besides Mr. Rutherford's famous Ayrshire bull, there was a fine Jersey bull from the herd of Mr. A. T. Little, London.

The necessity of good breeding sire was strongly emphasized by the lecturers, and the entire exhibit was of much interest and value to agriculturists of this district.

U.F.O. CLUB MET IN PETERBORO

Business Session Was Followed by Excellent Programme of Music.

PRIZES OFFERED

The Peterboro' U. F. O. Club No. 519 held their regular meeting last week in Simcoe street hall. After orders were taken for salt, seed corn, and binder twine, an excellent program was given by the young people, of School Section No. 12, Otonabee, consisting of songs and recitations.

The program was: Song, De Wes' Winds, James Petrie. Recitation, Mistah Johnsing's Defence, W. K. Petrie. Duet, Hiram and Sophia at Peterboro' Fair, James and Ivy Petrie. Recitation, Ivy Petrie. Duet, Kenneth and Ivy Petrie. Recitation, Mae Petrie. Solo, Earl Petrie.

A good radio program was given by the Duffus Motor Sales Co. with one of their best machines. Excellent dance music was heard about 10.30 p.m. from stations in United States.

The U. F. O. is in a flourishing condition, and new members are joining up on each meeting night.

The club has decided to give a special prize to the girl and boy scoring the highest points in each class at the stock judging contest at the Peterboro' fair this fall. The next meeting of the club will be held on April 21.

REDUCTION OF TEN PER CENT ON ALL TYPES OF IMPLEMENTS ANNOUNCED BY SOME DEALERS

Salesman at Campbellford is Not Prepared to Say Whether Lower Price is Attributable to Removal of Duty—May Be Just Business.

TO SPEED UP MANUFACTURE.

Initial Payment of 25 Per Cent. of Cost Has Been Cancelled This Year and Nothing is Required Until July—A Concession.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 26.—Local dealers in farm machinery announce a reduction of 10 per cent. in the price of all types of implements from the schedule of 1924. When one of the dealers was asked if he attributed this cut to the removal of the duty on farm machinery a year ago, said he was not prepared to express an opinion as to that. He is, however, inclined to believe that the manufacturers had come to the conclusion that something had to be done to speed up business, and had entered into an agreement to let up on their prices and on their terms of payment. Now that the price of nearly everything that the farmer has to sell has picked up and the purchase of farm machinery has been made easier, the dealers are looking forward to a banner year in their business, which has been quiet for several seasons past.

Terms of Payment.

Last year the farmer who bought a binder was required to pay spot cash for 25 per cent. of the price upon delivery of the machine. This year he is not required to make this initial payment until July 15, even if he took the binder from the warehouse during the winter. July 15 is about the time in a normal season when the new machine will be set to work in the wheat field. The object of this concession to the farmer, the dealers say, was to encourage early deliveries, so that shipping binders just before the beginning of the harvest, as was the case in years past, would not so clog traffic as to delay deliveries.

The same relaxation in the regulations with regard to initial payments has been made in the case of all seasonal farm machinery. Harrows and implements of that class are not to be paid for until April , manure spreaders until May, corn cultivators until June, rakes tedders and mowers until July 1. Corn binders, which are not used until late in the season, are to be paid for on September 15.

Cash on Delivery.

Cash payment on delivery must be made for cream separators, feed cutters, engines, wagons, grinders and sawing outfits.

The farmer who wants time for the payment of a binder—that is the payment of 75 per cent. of the machine after the first payment is made, must furnish a satisfactory note and will be charged interest at the rate of seven per cent. If he fails to pay the note on maturity the interest charge thereafter will be eight per cent.

This year, as formerly, cash payment will be insisted upon for all repairs.

GRAIN DECREASE COST RAILROADS THIRTY MILLION

Operating Income Lower While Overhead Charges Remain Fixed.

VOLUME FELL.

Widespread Effect on Industry of Falling Off in Western Grains.

OTTAWA, Mar. 26.—The falling off in the 1924 Western grain crop, as compared with that of 1923, probably cost the railways of Canada $30,000,000 last year. The total operating revenues were $441,249,000, as compared with $471,236,000 in 1923.

If the crop had been as large as in 1923 there is no doubt that the 1923 figures would probably have been repeated. During the first part of the year, ordinary traffic was heavier than during the preceding year; but after the middle of July, traffic fell away badly. This will be readily realized when it is pointed out that the volume of grain traffic was 2,300,000 tons below that in 1923.

Labor and business generally felt in a marked manner the effects of this slump in traffic. Operating expenses were cut by $28,000,000, the cut in the payroll being no less than $15,000,000. Nor is this surprising for the average number of employees throughout the year was 8,500 less than in 1923.

There has been quite a drop in the number of employees and wages paid during the last six years. In 1919 the average number of employees was 185,177, and the wages paid $290,510,000. That is to say, 26,000 fewer persons were employed by the railways last year than in 1919, while the payroll was about $59,000,000 less.

Taking the railways individually, the Canadian National, over the whole of the system in Canada and the United States, had a net operating income of $11,689,000, or $1,550,000 below that in 1923. That is to say, it had this amount to apply on its fixed charges of nearly $70,000,000. The operating income of the Canadian Pacific was $242,000 below that of 1923.

The operating ratio of the Canadian Pacific last year was 79.24 per cent., or a little more than one per cent. lower than in 1923. On the Canadian National the operating ratio was 94.15 per cent., or less than one-half of one per cent. below that in 1923.

Of course, fixed charges are the real load, those of the Canadian National being about $70,000,000, whereas the total figure in the form of fixed charges, and dividends on the C.P.R., are only a little over $36,000,000.

CANADIAN BACON DEMAND.

A much stronger feeling has existed in the English markets for Canadian bacon during the past two weeks owing to the marked improvement in the demand for supplies and the somewhat smaller offerings with the result that a more active trade was done. Trade in American bacon was quite quiet.

The average length of life in the United States is now 56 years, an increase of 15 years since 1870.

DREAMS AT EVENTIDE

By MRS. REUBEN MOORE.
Birdsalls, Ont.

Sitting alone at the close of the day,
Thinking of loved ones, from earth passed away,
Their voices come floating sweet and clear
In the sigh of the wind I can feel them near.

One by one they have drifted away—
The friends I have loved in the yesterday.
They have gone to the mansions bright and fair,
Where the flowers never fade in the balmy air.

One comes to me with her sweet girl-face,
Her soft blue eyes and her form of grace;
And she whispers to me of that land afar
Where all of my loved ones in safety are.

One by one they have drifted away,
The friends that I loved in the yesterday,
Gone to the mansions fair and bright
They walk with the Saviour in spotless white.

One comes to me with her eyes of grey,
With a mother's words and a mother's way,
And she sings and she speaks in her voice so mild
And she leads me along as a little child.

One by one they have drifted away,
The friends I have loved in the yesterday,
Gone to the mansions fair and bright,
They walk with the Saviour in spotless white.

Another comes with her cheery ways
And she smiles at me with her loving gaze.
They silently gather around my chair
And softly they smooth back my thin grey hair,
Then fade they away in the evening air
And night settles down on my dream so fair.

One by one, they have drifted away,
The friends that I loved in the yesterday.
They have gone to the mansions fair and bright,
And walk with the Saviour in spotless white.

PORT ARTHURS WIN ALLAN CUP

Western Finalists Make It Two Straight From Varsity at Winnipeg.

SCORE WAS 3-2.

WINNIPEG, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—With only three and a half minutes of the third period left to play, Varsity were leading Port Arthur by two goals to one in the second game of the series for the Canadian Senior amateur championship and the Allan Cup here last night but the Ports summoned all their forces, and by means of a magnificent attack which caused the Blue and White to falter, slipped in two goals in that short period of time, the second coming with only fifteen seconds of the regulation time to play and when it appeared an overtime struggle was a certainty.

The final goal of the game gave the Manitoba champions the series, title and possession of the Allan Cup, which has been in the East since Varsity lifted it from the Manitoba custodians four years ago.

The Senior title was won by the better team. The Ports had the punch and reserve energy to turn the seeming defeat into victory. While the losers' supporters were disappointed at the outcome, they admitted that the better team won.

DUNDEE WINS 2-0.

Qualify to Meet Celtics For Scottish Cup.

EDINBURGH, March 26.—(Canadian Press). — The ground of the Hibernians, at Easter Road here, was the locale of the game yesterday afternoon between Dundee and Hamilton Academicals, which put the bars up on Hamilton's further aspirations towards honors in the Scottish Football Association Cup competition. The Dundonians, after having drawn with the Academicals last Saturday at Tynecastle park, made certain of meeting the Celtic in the final round to be played on April 11 by defeating Hamilton by two goals to nothing.

The game was strenuously played with Dundee having the advantage all the way and keeping Hamilton on the defensive most of the time. No such error as produced the draw five days ago when McNab kicked the ball through his own goal, giving Hamilton a counter, took place on Wednesday. It was a clean-cut victory for Dundee, and the form observers are satisfied that the men from the jute town will give the Celtic a fight for it when the curtain rings up on the final game.

HOCKEY SCORES

Hockey games played last night resulted as follows:

Allan Cup Finals.

Port Arthur 3, Varsity 2.

(Port Arthur wins championship.)

Memorial Cup Final.

Regina Pats 5; Aura Lee 2.

(Regina wins championship.)

HUGGINS BANKS ON THEM.

Hoyt, Jones and Shawky Carry Much of Yankee Pilot's Hopes This Season.

LEFT TO RIGHT—HOYT, JONES AND SHAWKEY

ST PETERSBURG, March 26.—Three of the New York Yankees "Big Five," Hoyt, Jones and Shawkey, are straightaway pitchers. They depend on speed, the curve and a change of pace for success. Herb Pennnock is a southpaw, and Urban Shocker, a spitball pitcher.

Neither Hoyt, Jones nor Shawkey came up to expectations last season. Miller Huggins is hopeful the trio will turn in at least 20 more victories than last season.

LOWLY BERTH FOR PHILLIES?

Fletcher Faces Real Job in Attempt to Mould Presentable Team.

(By Billy Evans.)

BRADENTOWN, March 26.—John McGraw and his New York Giants need have no fear of the Philadelphia Nationals.

The Phillies after May 1, at the very latest the 15th, should be comfortably resting in the cellar berth with the mental strain removed for the rest of the year.

Only the Boston Braves threaten to annony the Phillies in the undisputed possession of the "booby" honors.

Manager Art Fletcher, great shortstop in his day, knows his stuff, but Fletcher can't make base hits, score runs and stop the batting rallies of the opposition.

In all probability Fletcher will get everything possible out of the material at hand, but such a statement shouldn't cause much enthusiasm in dear old Philadelphia. The talent isn't there.

Sort of Formality.

Playing out the schedule has been more or less a formality of the Philadelphia Nationals for several years and this season hardly promises to be an exception.

Heine Sand, who shifted from the sport sheet to front page headlines when he exposed the attempt to bribe him by certain members of the New York Giants, appears to be the only infielder of last year's team certain to start as a regular.

Sand is to open at shortstop, but the rest of the infield will be made up of material acquired from the majors and minors. While it may lack experience and cohesion, Fletcher undoubtedly feels that it will be an improvement over the many combinations that at various times last season essayed to play the infield for the Phillies.

Some years ago the New York Americans brought a highly touted outfielder by the name of Hawks, who was naturally nicknamed "Chicken." He was fast and could hit, but was no great fielder and had a porcelain arm. In those days a strong, accurate whip was more or less an asset for a major leaguer.

Hawks was finally turned adrift as just a bit shy the major league stndard. In drifting around the minors for several years, he was converted into a first baseman. He comes back to the majors in that role with the Phillies.

At third base, Huber looks by far the best, and on present form is certain to start at that position. He attracted the attention of the Philly scouts by his work in the Texas League with Beaumont.

Walter Kimmick, who several years back gave much promise as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, is certain to start at second. Kimmick was secured from Vernon. I rate him a pretty good infielder and was surprised when he was waived out of the National League.

Ring, Pitching Ace.

The veteran Jimmy Ring, a great pitcher who never quite reached the heights of which he is capable, is the ace of the pitching staff. Hubbell, who was a holdout when I visted the Philly camp, is about due to be a winning pitcher in the National League.

After floundering around for several years, just an in-and-outer, he had a good year last season despite his rather ordinary average, and is about due to win consistently if he gets the breaks.

In an era where southpaw pitching carries so great a punch, Fletcher is lacking, having only two portsiders, the veteran Mitchell a spitballer, and the undersized Ray Pierce, who has seen service with the Cubs.

There isn't a thing about the Phillies' play to make you think they are going anywhere this season. No mental strain of a gruelling race for them.

NEW SPORTING UNION SUPREME IN GERMANY

The Central Body Now Has Charge of All Branches of Athletics.

After many years, marked by strife and defeat, the German athletic supporters and enthusiasts finally have been able to form a central union, which now has charge of all sports within the country. The German Sports Union, as it is called, is supreme in all branches of athletics. It sets dates and places for important games and meets, it controls the registration of amateur athletes, it accepts and after due deliberation stamps records as official and it confers with other countries on international events.

The authority of the Sports Union is supreme, a thing never heard of before in Germany. For years the athletes got along as best they could their only recourse being to the organization which had charge of their particular sport and even then not a great deal could be done because none of the organizations was very powerful. Now all the organizations have taken out membership in the union and the head of each division is a member of the Executive Board. Disputes are brought to this board and there are settled by ballot, each member having a vote. This plan does away with partiality and allows every case to be settled on its merits.

With the formation of the union, Germany now looks forward to admission into the leading athletic competitions of the world. It has an organization that is supreme in Germany and it can negotiate with other countries and carry with it an official and material backing. Germany believes that one of the reasons why it has not been able to re-establish itself in athletics since the war has been its unorganized state. If a foreign promoter entered Germany and tried to arrange to have a cyclist compete, say in Spain, he was faced with a hard task because there was no one who could advise him what cyclist would best suit his desires. On the other hand there was no way for a cyclist or boxer to know that he was in demand, but now the central bureau keeps all this data on file and the leading fighters, riders and wrestlers are known.

The union plans to conduct a press bureau to be composed of the newspaper men of Berlin and Munich and to see that meets and games receive publicity, a factor which has been absent and has hurt modern athletics to a great extent. The headquarters of the union now are in Munch and it is felt that they will remain there rather than in Berlin.

To talk through your receiving set, leave the set turned on, with loud speaker connected, put the phone tips on the P and B terminals of the first audio transformer and use the phone as you would a telephone transmitter.

Neutroformers should be at an angle of exactly 57.3 degrees to the panel. To get this inclination measure and cut out of paper the correct angle and adjust the position of the neutroformer to it.

REGINA TAKES JUNIOR TROPHY

Won O.H.A. Memorial Cup For West in Two Straight Games.

BETTER TEAM WON.

TORONTO, March 26.—(Canadian Press).—Regina Patricias defeated Aura Lee 5 to 2 last night, making it two straight wins in the series for the Junior championship of Canada, and will carry West the O.H.A. Memorial Trophy, after one year's stay in the East. While there was some doubt as to the best team after the first game on Monday, the Pats proved their superiority in no serve the honors won. The speed of uncertain manner last night and de the Abbott Cup holders, and their ability to take advantage of opportunities, carried them through in their third try for the Junior title. It was a hectic game from start to finish, the fastest and most exciting of a long season. Just after Parks had tied the score for Aura Lee in less than thirty seconds, after the start of the second period, "Shrimp" McPherson and Ken Doraty got into a fight, and before it was squelched every played on both teams, including the subs and Ingram, who was serving a penalty, was out on the ice standing toe to toe exchanging punches. The police finally got into the affair, and when it was all over "Shrimp" McPherson and Doraty were in the penalty box having a good laugh and apologizing to each other.

FOR GOLFERS.

The Examiner Has Arranged For Chester Horton Lessons.

Great news for golfers!

Chester Horton, foremost golf teacher and tutor to champions, is to tell golfers of Peterborough the secrets of his "straight line" principle for the hips and, for good measure, of the famous Chester Horton "pull down."

These Chester Horton contributions to the science of golf leaders in England and Scotland.

You get these secrets next week in Chester Horton's great feature, "Inside Golf," which will appear in the Examiner.

Chester Horton says:

"It is compafatively easy to play 80-90 golf. Every golfer afflicted with cards showing 100-120 scores should be twenty strokes better. I have never seen my 'straight line' and 'pull down' fail to make them so. I want all golfers to know these principles. I contribute them for the good of the game.

Play golf with Chester Horton at your side.

The Examiner is getting the BEST for golfers. Horton's articles start on Monday.

FALCONS CLOSE ACTIVE WINTER

Played Nine Games, Winning Four—Had 13 Players on Roster.

LOOKING AHEAD.

The Fire Hall Falcons Hockey Club ended their 1925 playing season last Thursday night. The Falcons have had a very good season, playing 9 games, winning 4 and losing 5. 24 goals scored by them, with 23 against them, with one scoreless game. They played such teams as the Canadian Telegraphs, Unknowns, Lansfield's Pressers, Lavoie's, Alley Rats, George Street Stars and the Examiner.

The Falcons had 13 players on their contract list, including 2 officials. Many of these were new members to the team. Below will be found a complete list of the players and their positions:

Danny White who played centre was a new addition to the team, hailing from Campbellford, where he formerly played with the Campbellford Bearcats. He turned in some great performances and was a big help to the team.

"Lefty" White, who subbed at left wing, and a brother of Danny, also played with the Campbellford Bearcats. He showed a great turn of speed and was a nice stickhandler. He proved a help to the team.

Dundas, who played on the defence was also a new member. He proved to be a good player and was a valuable asset to the team.

Evans who played at right wing was another new man. He showed great speed and clever stickhandling and strengthened the team in good shape.

Gimblett, who subbed on the defence, turned in some good games. He is an old member of the team.

Warde, in goal, was the best find the Fire Hall Falcons have made since their organization. He turned in some stellar games this season and is on par with any goalie in the city.

Smith, who played defence, is an old member of the team. He showed great judgment in his position and turned in some corking good games.

Lewis, who subbed on the defence, is an old members of the team, and he has not lost any of his speed or cunning, and handled himself well, when used.

Naish, subbing on the wing, is also an old member of the team, and his work was good whenever he was on the ice.

Cheu, subbing on the wing, did not get in the games till after the O.H.A., showed the same ability with the Falcons as he did with the O.H.A. team.

McNeeley, who played at left wing was captain of the team. His great backchecking and sensational rushes were a big help to the team.

Homer Lundy, manager and president of the Falcon Hockey Club, looked after the business end of the team. He did good work in this line, arranging some good games for the team, and getting the team together for the game. He also appeared on the lineup in several of the games when the team was short.

Jack Lewis was secretary of the club.

The Falcons would like to see a Mercantile or City League organized next year, so as to give the boys a chance to get in some real games, and also to encourage the sport.

LORDS DISCUSS THEIR REFORM

Conservative Government Hasn't Had Time to Formulate a Policy.

LONDON, March 26. — Reform of the House of Lords, one of the subjects which the Conservative party hoped to deal with when it obtained its unexpected huge majority at the last election, was discussed yesterday by the noble lords themselves.

All British parties are agreed that some sort of reform of the Upper House at Westminster is needed, but reform means different things with each party. In the minds of most Conservatives, reform of the Lords means the removal of the restrictions placed on the powers of the Upper House by legislation during the stormy period of Lloyd George's earlier career in the Asquith administration during 1910-11. But even Conservatives find themselves unable to agree on any one policy of reform. Moreover, since the days of 1910 the great Labor party has arisen has been in office, and probably many years will be in office again.

It was the Labour party that evidently caused yesterday's query in the House of Lords by the Duke of Sutherland, who asked the government to indicate its policy on the reform issue.

"An unreformed hereditary House of Lords on the existing lines would not be endured six months by any Labour government with a real majority," observed the Duke, who further expressed his belief that the present was the last chance for a Conservative regime in England.

Lord Haldane, a Labour peer, expressing the view of his party, advocating leaving things as they are, while Lord Chancellor, speaking for the government, gave no hope of any immediate action. He merely announced that the government had not had time to formulate any reform proposals and that a committee of the cabinet would be appointed to fully examine the problem with the hope that "possibly next year" the government might be in a position to submit reform measures to parliament.

GERMAN MAKES MAGIC BOILER

Inventor Claims Production of 500 Pounds of Steam Per Hour.

WATER SPRAYED IN.

(By E. A. Mathis, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, March 26.—A "toy" which produces 600 pounds of steam per hour will, if its inventor is right, revolutionize the heating technique of the world.

Bernard Becker, an engineer in the little village of Norha, in Thuringia, has constructed a steam-boiler about one two-hundreth of the usual size. It needs just a little chimney, no special boiler-house, but its activities are just as great as those of an ordinary big boiler.

While it takes at least five hours to heat big boilers in order to secure a pressure of six to eight atmospheres, Herr Becker's construction works prodigiously fast. In five minutes fifteen atmospheres are reached.

The secret of this magic boiler lies in the fact that there is no water-boiler, and that sprayed water is pressed into the tube which instantly is transformed into steam. Everything in this boiler works automatically, and Herr Becker intends to construct a big model with which he believes he can secure 150 atmospheres and even more. The heating is done with oil, and less is used than in an oil motor.

A boiler which produces enough steam for a whole factory looks like a little stove, its size being roughly a cubic metre. It is of double brick construction, wherein a generator for steam consisting of several curved tubes is fixed. When the inventor demonstrated his invention to the press, he secured a pressure of twenty atmospheres in four minutes. Herr Becker claims that the chief advantage of his boiler lies in the fact that residue is produced and that therefore the working of the machinery is practically unlimited.

While thus the optimists dream of a new Golden Age to come more sceptical people point out that the invention is nothing else but a machine described already a hundred years ago by Perkins. Perkins' boiler proved to be impracticable because of the enormous amount of "kettle-stone" or residue produced which in a short time destroyed the tubes. The only possibility of avoiding this production of "kettle-stone" was use of distilled water which should cause such an increase of costs that the ordinary boiler is more profitable.

FUNERAL MRS. WM. COX IN LAKEFIELD

Tribute Paid by Rev. P. L. Jull to Her Exemplary Life.

LAKEFIELD March 25. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Cox (nee Isabella Hendren) took place on Wednesday afternoon from the home of her brother, Mr. Abel Hundren on Ermitinger Street. Rev. P. L. Jull, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. Mr. Jull spoke briefly but very suitably of the mother life, which has crossed the great divide. She was a real worker extending her love, not only to her own large family but many, not bound to her by ties of blood, have reason to know her mother love which was generously given. A mothers life though one of pain, as she herself has to go down into the valley of anxiety, still it is one of toil and sacrifice and one of anxiety still is one of love and joy in the realization of having fulfilled the purpose for which she was created. Mother love is the dearest earthly counterpart to God's love and is a beautiful thing to have known and is a basis of our belief in the world to come as the mother in love and faith says to her children "I am going on, I'll be waiting for you." God be with us till we meet again.

The bearers were six nephews of deceased lady Messrs George and John Hendren of Lakefield, Gordon and Roy Hendren of Toronto and Allan and Bert Hendren of Warsaw.

The chief mourners were Mr. Wm. Cox of Moosejaw and Mr. Abel Hendren of Lakefield, son and brother of Mrs. Cox and Mr. Harry Bamforth of Vancouver. Among those present from out of town were Mayor and Mrs. J. J. Turner, and Miss Margaret Turner, Mr. John Todd, Mrs. James Vincent of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hendren and Mr. Gordon Hendren of Toronto and Messrs Bert and Allan Hendren of Warsaw.

Mr. Francis Condon of Peterboro Normal School spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Wm. Condon.

It is timed for two hours and a quarter, which is filled with romance and comedy from beginning to end.

The caste of characters are as follows:—Silas Halcomb, a simple-minded, tender-hearted farmer, full of humor, who is owner of Valley Farm (Morley Petherick); Alvira Halcomb, a typical old maid (Miss Verna Barnum); Hetty Halcomb, a bright young country girl (Miss Agnes Thomson); Isabel Carney, a proud, haughty city belle (Miss Jennie Fry); Harold Rutledge, a handsome young man of fashion (Everett S. Fairman); Mrs. Rutledge, Harold's mother (Mrs. Fred Barnum); Lizy Ann Tucker, a fussy old woman (Miss Hazel Brown); Perry Deane, a sturdy young farmer (Earl A. Fairman); David Hildreth, a New York lawyer (Roy Fry); Azariah Keep, a clock tinker (Ray Fry); Jennings, a butler at the Rutledge mansion (Clarence Barnum); Verbena, a gawky country girl (Miss Gladys Simpson).

Those who have an opportunity to see this play have a real treat in store for them.

Miss Cora Petherick is improving rapidly after a serious attack of bronchitis.

Mr. Wilfred Spencer has returned from Ottawa where he was sent as a delegate to attend the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of British America.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

BACK OF THE FILM IN THE PRODUCTION OF "SCARAMOUCHE"

How the Paris of the French Revolution Was Built in Hollywood.

The enormous amount of money and material used in making a big film spectacle is illustrated in the case of "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's production for Metro of Rafael Sabatini's story of the French Revolution, which is coming on Monday to the Royal Theatre for three days. "Scaramouche" easily exposed as much raw film as "The Four Horsemen," which held the record for some time. More than 500,000 feet of film was used during the "shooting" of the picture.

The amount of raw film consumed, however, is only one item in the cost of producing pictures of any size. The actual "shooting" process is not the chief expense, what is "shot" makes the debit side of the ledger mount up.

The biggest item was the construction of sets representing the palace of the Tuilleries, an old chateau and city streets of the France of 789. Kennels, pens, stables and cages had to be built for dogs, pigeons, ducks, cats, oxen, horses, canaries, peacocks and other birds and animals. Carriages and coaches had to be reconstructed with perfect historical accuracy. Costumes had to be made for the 10,000 persons who appeared in the mob scenes. There were uniforms for the soldiery, and outfits of especial magnificence for players representing the nobility.

11,200 Persons Involved.

The total number of persons involved in some capacity in the production reached the figure of approximately 1,200. Ten thousand of these made up the mob that rushed through Paris when the Revolution broke. Of those with definite other places in the picture's making were 30 principal players, 34 assistant directors, 8 research experts, 22 cameramen with their assistants, 23 property men, 65 electricians, 55 costumiers, 54 wig makers, 11 architects, 630 carpenters, 75 plasterers, 88 painters and scenic artists and 48 chauffeurs and teamsters.

Each Unit Supervised.

Each section received special instructions from Mr. Ingram and was under direct supervision of an assistant director who manoeuvred his man in accordance with the director's orders.

The problem of furnishing this gathering with costumes offered a hard nut to crack. The fifty-five costumers worked day and night to complete the necessary clothes. Some idea of the labor accomplished by them may be gleaned from the amount of material used. There were 40,000 yards of muslin, 10,000 yards of satins, brocades and velvets, 10,000 yards of other cloths, 300 hides of leather, 10,000 spools of cotton thread, 10,000 spools of silk thread, 4000 hats, 1000 miles of gold and silver thread for embroidery, 10,000 yards of lace, 10,000 wigs, 200,000 buttons, and 300,000 hooks and eyes.

"Scaramouche" was adapted to the screen by Willis Goldbeck and photographed by John F. Seitz. Curt Rehfeld was production manager and Grant Whytock editor. The costumes were designed by O'Kane Cornwell and Evamay Roth, and executed by Van Horn.

GREAT COMEDY PRODUCTION AT ROYAL

"In Hollywood With Potash and Perlmutter."

If Montague Glass' famous team of "Potash and Perlmutter" were funny upon the stage they are twice as funny upon the motion picture screen. And the proof of it is in Samuel Goldwyn's second Abe and Mawruss movie, "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter" which was shown for the first time at the Royal Theatre. Much of the humorous dialogue of the play is retained in the sub-titles, and in addition Messrs. Potash and Perlmutter are given a wider field by the motion picture camera for the display of their nimble wits.

There is a fundamental humanness, a blending of humor and pathos in this First National picture that appeals to everyone, regardless of age or sex. The story starts with a chuckle and ends in a riot of laughter.

Heading the cast in the title characters are Alexander Carr, already well known to theatregoers for his creation of the role of Perlmutter, and George Sidney, a stage veteran for the past thirty years. Vera Gordon again plays Mrs. Potash, and Betty Blythe is the alluring vampire. Charles Meredith, Belle Bennett, David Butler, Anders Randolf, Cyril Ring and Lillian Hackett complete the cast.

RALPH GORDON, CARTOONIST ENTERTAINER, AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

A clean novelty offering has been added to the Royal programme for the last half of this week. Ralph Gordon, cartoonist and lecturer. Mr. Gordon has played the Chatsqua circuits for years and comes highly recommended. The kiddies will delight in his rag picture and novelty cartoons.

AT THE CAPITOL

"LOVE AND GLORY."

Carl Laemmle, producer of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is responsible for "Love and Glory," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the middle days of this week. Just as in the tale of Quasimodo, he spun a wonderful story with a rather sad atmosphere, so in "Love and Glory." It is not the sort of picture in which the fans usually delight. To see young love sacrificed on the altar of duty to country, and the lovers re-united only when they are both old and feeble, after a lifetime of searching, is not just what ordinary human beings crave for, but it makes wonderful "sob stuff" and is a real departure from the ordinary run of movie production. Throughout the entire picture runs the thread of fine direction, the artistic production that Laemmle imparts to his pictures.

The characterizations are splendid and there is a real French touch to the dramatic acting of the principals. Charles De Roche is the hero, Pierre Du Pont, magnificent in age as in youth, faithful to the last to his old friend, Anatole Picard, hero of numerous engagements in the African campaign. Madge Bellamy is Gabrielle Picard, presented in all the splendor of her youth and beauty in the opening scenes, torn from her lover and her brother by the demands of cruel warfare, then appearing in the final scenes as a little gentle old lady.

Realism is the keynote of "Love and Glory." Possibly its producer has wearied of the ordinary type of movie. At any rate he does not soften the tragedy of life for his audiences. It is a colorful and beautiful picture, admirably photographed, filled with action of a dramatic tyne, but it hasn't a happy ending.

Whether there are sufficient movie fans toe njoy this type of picture in preference to the production which ends on a merry note, is a question. —Jeannette.

IT DEFIES CONTRADICTION! SCREEN'S GREATEST LAUGH!

Lord Chumley at Capitol.

Lord Algernon Cholmondeley—

That is an awful name for anyone to have to go through life with, and Raymond Griffith couldn't even stand it for a motion picture, so he cut it short to Chumley for his characterization of a titled English gentleman in the new Paramount picture "Lord Chumley," due at the Capitol tomorrow. Griffith is featured with Viola Dana and Theodore Roberts in the picture which was directed by Paul Iribe and Frank Urson.

Some of the picture's biggest laughs —and greatest thrills for that matter —are contained in water scenes wherein Griffiths puts over some great stuff in a speed boat. Here's where Ray's training as a sailor proved a big help. Griffith has long been the owner of a combination sailing and power yacht and his insight into nautical affairs is second only to that of old man Netune himself.

And when his horse, which he had just ridden over the steeplechase course, sits down on the edge of a fountain and Ray slides down his back and is soon playing among the swans and water lilies! Here's a real laugh!

During the filming of the picture Ray leaped over furniture and stair railings during a single handed battle against a band of crooks.

He had to swim for his life while making scenes on the broad blue Pacific ocean, far from terra firma.

In fact, he tumbled and fought and ran and jumped until he lost all of two pounds, quite a reduction for a young man whose normal weight is only 130 pounds.

"Lord Chumley" was adapted to the screen by Bertram Millhauser from the stage farce by David Belasco and Henry C. DeMille. Cyril Chadwick, William Boyd, Anna May Wong and others play in support of the principals.

CONNIE PICKS WEEDS IN LAWN TO REDUCE

"Picking weeds out of the lawn is better exercise than golf, tennis or horseback riding," declares Constance Talmadge. "I like to swim and I like to drive an automobile, but when I want to reduce I crawl around the back lawn and pick out weeds. When I fill two bushel baskets with weeds I consider that I've had enough exercise for one day."

Constance recently finished "Her Night of Romance," a First National comedy, produced by Joseph M. Schenck. It will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next Monday. Constance's leading man is Roland Colman.

AT THE REGENT

"DIXIE HANDICAP" AN EXCITING FILM.

Reginald Barker Photoplay Rates High Among Racing Dramas.

For thrills, comedy, beauty, and more thrills we recommend "The Dixie Handicap," Reginald Barker's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which comes to the Regent Theatre today, as one of the most all-around satisfactory pictures of the year. Rarely have we seen any picture as exciting, or at the same time, as pleasing to the eye. There are several reasons for both.

For excitement there are a number of horse races that surpass anything done before on the screen picturing the "Sport of Kings." The earlier ones take place at a county fair, and the climax race is the international contest between the horse of the film and the English champion. These scenes were taken at Latonia and their authenticity added a good deal of interest to the picture.

A "Different" Hero Role.

Lloyd Hughes is delightfully different as the hero. His is a role that combines comedy with straight heroics, an extremely difficult combination that Mr. Hughes conquers with ease.

The remainder of the competent cast includes John Sainpolis, Otis Harlan, Edward Martindel, Otto Hoffman, and Joseph Morrison.

Mr. Barker's direction is flawless, his handling of the racing scenes being especially effective.

Waldemar Young wrote the adaptation of the story by Gerald Beaumont, which tells how a young man, picked up on the verge of imprisonment, and the cold he has developed, bring the old Judge back to the affluence and position that were once his. The romance is centred on the love of th youth for the Judge's daughter.

"Altogether, "The Dixie Handicap" rates high in the racing field.

CURED HIS RUPTURE
I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 489L Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

CHICAGO.

Crop news is the dominating feature in wheat and the export demand is the leading feature in rye. The new buying is going into July wheat with commission houses getting a larger run of new buying from the outside. The atmosphere was much improved at the close. The break in May corn is regarded by some of the traders who have been bearish as sufficient for the time being. Considerable buying and selling of May wheat at 31c. premium for May was a feature of yesterday's trading for a time. Minneapolis millers were said to be buying number one northern wheat there and there was an outside milling demand with 20,000 bushels bought to come to Chicago. One of the largest traders expressed himself as bullish on wheat last night based on prospect of scarcity of number two winter before another crop is raised and predicted that unless conditions are changed within the next two weeks in the southwest there will be a short crop of wheat. Sentiment on the whole was much more friendly to the buying side and there was a covering of shorts credited to foreign account.

ELECTION ASSUMES RELIGIOUS ASPECT

German Churches Are Injecting Church Lines Into Vote.

(By Carl D. Groat—United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, March 26. — Politicians are greatly alarmed that the Presidential campaign is assuming a religious aspect.

The Centrist "Germania" to-day bitterly protests the fact that the Evangelical group and others are attempting to inject church lines into the election, which is to be held on Sunday.

Fear of the development of serious church warfare in the interim between Sunday's initial balloting and the second election of April 26th is expressed by the Germania. The paper emphasizes the fact that Former Chancellor Wilhem Marx is running as a patriotic German and not as "a Catholic."

Meanwhile the public in general is indifferent in that people realize that Sunday's test will undoubtedly be non-decisive and that the second election, in April, will be necessary for the choice of a new President. Moreover, a majority of the seven candidates are not known nationally and this is confusing to independent voters.

More election rioting occurred today and several participants were slightly injured, but the situation generally is "quiet."

Police officials announced that forces would be held in reserve during Sunday's election, although it was anticipated the voting would develop no serious demonstrations.

GOVERNMENT'S CLAIM OF SURPLUS AN INSULT TO INTELLIGENCE OF COUNTRY – ASSERTS DRAYTON IN ATTACKING BUDGET AND URGING PROTECTION

Opposition's Chief Financial Critic Says $700,000,000 Paid for Imports Would Provide Work in Canada for Hundreds of Thousands.

CANADA IS REGARDED ONLY AS AN EXTENSION OF THE UNITED STATES

Sir Henry Drayton Contrasts the Industrial Activity and Increased Immigration of France With the Depression in Britain.

DUE TO PROTECTIVE POLICY

OTTAWA, March 27. Canadian Press. — The debate on the Budget was continued in the House Thursday by Sir Henry Drayton, chief financial critic of the official opposition, who opened his speech with a criticism of the methods of finance adopted by the Government. He compared the financial statement of Right Hon. W. S. Fielding covering the year 1922-23, with that delivered by Mr. Robb on Tuesday last. Mr. Fielding, while showing ordinary revenue some $50,000,000 greater than his ordinary expenditures, had admitted a deficit of $31,000,000. This Government with revenues but $24,000,000 greater than expenditure, yet claimed a surplus. Such financing was "an insult to the intelligence of the country," Sir Henry asserted.

Sir Henry, referring to conditions existing in Canada to-day, insisted that the solution for many of the economic difficulties was a tariff which would afford protection to Canadian industries. He claimed that Canada had not had a high protective tariff for many years, nor had this country one to-day. Not one item in the present tariff constituted the protection enjoyed by any Canadian industry, he said. As a matter of fact, conditions in Canada had reached a point where in many lines of industries it was cheaper to manufacture in the United States and bring the manufactured product back to this country.

If the tariff was so high why did goods continue to come into Canada in such large quantities, Sir Henry asked. He believed that there should be a measure of protection sufficient to enable all Canadian industries to function, and in this way to give employment to Canadian labor. He proceeded to quote figures illustrating the importations of various commodities.

$700,000,000 for Imports.

The sum of $700,000,000 of the amount being sent out of Canada to-day for imports could be kept in this country providing work for the building up of Canadian industries, and employment for hundreds of thousands of workers. The idea of protection was to change the state of affairs such as existed. Sir Henry stated that 60 per cent. of the price to the consumer is looked upon today as representing the cost of labor for such product. While some might maintain that the percentage was as high as 80 per cent. in some cases, he was quite satisfied to accept 60 per cent., and be under the mark. It was quite easy to compute therefore without further argument, the number of men who would be given employment, were this money kept in the country and expended here in production. To-day these workers, instead of being in their native country, were in the United States.

"Is it worth while trying to keep Canadians in Canada?" Sir Henry asked. Surely the responsibility rested on the government, and Canadian workers should have the benefit of their own market.

Economic Annex of U. S.

Sir Henry quoted from a publication of the United States Department of Commerce which stated that "economically and socially Canada may be considered a northern extension of the United States," and that trade might be considered more as domestic than foreign so far as the United States was concerned. Such statements were "unpalatable to any Canadian who sees his country as a great nation of the future. Canada could only be great provided her resources were not exploited.

"This country is simply a shandygaff to-day, so far as its finances are concerned," said Sir Henry. As a result of the years since 1893 when the United States had an excess balance of her world's trading of $29,664,777,356 she received in payment of this balance excess gold to the amount of $1,994,928,000. "My friends the free traders, need not think the U.S. exporters are out that balance —not at all—it is covered at a good rate of interest by loans, and by the acquisition of business and other properties in countries subject to the industrial domination of the United States."

Canada for Canadians.

Our excessive purchases in the United States have resulted not only in our being regarded as a northern extension of the United States industrially but also as a special field for American financial operations said Sir Henry.

"We ought to extend to our American friends, sincerest of all forms of praise and flattery—imitate them, and apply to our tariff the principles they have so successfully applied to theirs. Let us start running Canada for the Canadians."

Sir Henry declared that the British preference as used by the government, hurt Canadian industry. "Look at the results in the wool and boot industries," he said. The preference should be used in changing the purchase of goods resulting in our great adverse balance of trade with the States, to Great Britain and Europe.

The evidence of Sir Henry Thornton and other officials of the Canadian Merchant Marine had shown that one reason for high ocean freight rates on commodities moving east was the small amount of freight offered for the western movement. The eastern movement had practically to bear the cost of the round trip. Given proper tariff provisions this condition could be remedied in large measure. He advocated a tariff here which would give Great Britain a share in Canadian markets but not at the expense of Canadian workers.

Example of France.

The former Finance Minister contrasted conditions in France, which country, he said, had a high protective tariff, with those in free trade England. The cost of living he had found much cheaper in France, having regard to the value of the franc, than in England. In England there was unemployment and poverty. In France there was plenty of employment. Since the armistice France has received and assimilated over a million and a half immigrants, who were provided with work.

"How is France paying her national debt, as compared with England?" queried John Evans, (Progressive, Saskatoon.)

"She isn't," replied Sir Henry Drayton.

"If I didn't pay my debts, I would have lots of money," interjected Mr. McMaster.

Sir Henry asked if Mr. McMaster thought that the remark which he had made, constituting, as it did, a reflection on France, was called for?

Mr. Macmaster said he meant nothing derogatory to France, he was merely trying to meet the argument adduced by Sir Henry.

Sir Henry retorted that if there was any sense in Mr. MacMaster's remark, it constituted a reflection on a country which had not paid her debt. He reviewed the terrible conditions which had prevailed in France following the war, and the almost insurmountable difficulties which that country had been called upon to face. He then quoted figures to illustrate how France has increased her tariff since 1913. These increase ran from 190 to 2,000 per cent. "These increases are characteristic," he said. "France maintains a very stringent policy of protection."

Under these protective measures, France's exports had greatly increased, and the home market had recovered to a great extent.

"Despite all theories to the contrary, under these protective measure, France's exports have greatly

Conservative Amendment To Government's Budget

OTTAWA, Ont., March 27.—(By Canadian Press).— The Conservative amendment to the Budget moved in the House yesterday afternoon reads as follows:

"That conditions in Canada urgently demand reduction of taxation, especially of the sales tax and other levies which have been increased by the present government, and the House regrets that the financial statements now presented show no evidence of economy necessary to make such reductions possible but rather disclose an alarming increase in the public debt."

STRONGER BEER AMENDMENT WON

House Adjourns at 2.10 A.M. After Raney Amendment Defeated.

VOTE 70 TO 24.

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—The Government's 4.4 per cent. beer legislation at an early hour this morning in the Ontario House was given its second reading. The Raney amendment was defeated by a vote of 70 to 24, and the second reading of the bill was declared carried on the same division. The House adjourned shortly after 2.10 a.m.

The following Conservatives voted against the second reading: A. Sweet, Dundas; R. J. Patterson, S. Victoria; Major Belford, E. Northumberland; A. H. Acres, Carleton.

The Raney amendment, moved towards midnight, was little more than the Progressive party's protest against the passage of the legislation. It came as the culminating point in the debate after Hon. Mr. Nickle had again argued the legislation as being the salvation of the Temperance Act, after the Liberal leader, Sinclair, had criticized it not because of its wisdom but because of its claim that it represented the broken pledge of the Prime Minister, and after Mr. Raney himself had presented an academic thesis to argue that 4.4 per cent. beer was intoxicating.

As worded by the Progressive leader, the resolution urged that "the bill be referred to a select committee of this House to be named by the Prime Minister with instructions to enquire and report whether liquor containing 2.5 per cent. alcohol by volume is an intoxicating beverage."

BRITISH LEADERS BID FAREWELL TO VOYAGER

Premier and Cabinet Take Leave of Prince

LONDON, March 27—The Prince of Wales is nearing the end of his long round of goodbyes prior to sailing for South Africa. At St. James' Palace yesterday he received among others, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, and J. H. Thomas, who was secretary for the Colonies in the Labor government. The prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, and the other members of the cabinet, will bid him bon voyage at Victoria Station Saturday morning, as he starts for Portsmouth.

Prince George, who has made a good recovery from his recent operation, was out driving Thursday for the first time; he will await the departure of his brother and will then proceed to Southern France next week, possibly joining the King and Queen on their cruise for a short period before going to Eastern waters to resume his duties with the Chinese squadron.

Prince Henry will accompany the Prince of Wales to Portsmouth, as will also Prince George, if his doctors consent.

PULP INDUSTRY CENTRING HERE

Wall Street Journal Sees Wide Expansion in Canada.

RECOMES SUPREME.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—The opinion that the Canadian newsprint industry is due for wide expansion, is expressed by the Wall Street Journal Thursday in commenting on the acquirement of the Riordon and Gatineau properties in Canada by the International Paper Company.

"A cogent reason why international will do its future expansion in Canada is furnished by newsprint production figures for February," the paper declares. "In that month, for the first time in history, Canadian mills turned out more newsprint than their competitors in the United States. Since 1912 production in this country has remained almost stationary while Canada's tonnage grew to 1,353,000 tons last year, from 256,000 in 1912, our mills turned out 1,471,000 tons of newsprint, against 1,432,000 tons in the former year."

The paper is of the view that the absence of an import tariff on newsprint in the United States has been the chief factor in accelerating the Dominion's growing supremacy in the newsprint trade.

"Lower costs arising from natural advantages have done their share, but lack of a protective tariff has worked to the disadvantage of the United States mills and enabled the Canadians to take advantage of natural resources," the Journal declares. "International is already participating in these benefits at its mill at Three Rivers, Quebec, which has been operating two full years and has shown substantial profits. Abundance of power, water and proximity to timber reserves combine to make a low cost product."

SAW MILL BURNS WITH BIG LOSS

Old Warsaw Landmark Was Wiped Out in Disastrous Blaze Last Night.

NO INSURANCE.

WARSAW, March 27.—(Special to The Examiner). — Fire last night destroyed the sawmill owned by Allan Payne, one of the old landmarks of this district. The mill building, all the machinery, and twelve logs inside, were completely destroyed, and logs stored nearby were scorched. Heroic efforts by neighbors managed to save the engine and the barn. It is understood that there was no insurance carried.

The sawmill was an important industry in this section, handling all the lumber from the north country, and this past winter has seen an immense business done. The present owner was born in the nearby house, taking over the business from his father, George, who had in turn purchased it from one Edward Payne, who was not related although of the same name.

NO DISSENTERS FROM DAYLIGHT SAVING PROJECT

Men in All Walks of Life Here Approve Summer Time.

ASK FOR CHANGE.

Petitions Are Being Circulated in Peterborough—Hundreds Sign.

Peterboro has experienced a change of heart on the daylight saving plan since 1921, when a slim vote on a by-law turned down the project. The shock of a vote of 694 to 437 that year has held the proponents of the plan in check ever since, but this month has seen a revival of the agitation for a change that would put Peterboro in line with Toronto and other large centres. Petitions have been going round and are being signed by many citizens.

Here are the opinions of city folk obtained by The Examiner:

Mayor J. J. Turner—It does people good to get up early on a fine summer morning. Whether or not one goes to bed an hour earlier doesn't make any difference as long as the ordinary hours of sleep are obtained.

Andrew Brown, President Peterboro Motor League—Daylight saving is a good thing.

Charles Lacheur, Postmaster — Would be a good thing although the Post Office would have to work to the same time as the railways.

Fire Chief George Gimblett — It means you have to get up an hour earlier and you go to bed an hour later.

H. O. Fisk, Manager Utilities—It won't make any difference to the Utilities. Personally, I am very much in favor of it.

James Skinner, C. P. R. Ticket Agent—All the trains going through in the summer run from Montreal and Ottawa to Toronto and return and are operated on summer time, and it would be much more convenient if Peterboro were on daylight saving time.

Alderman Walter Stocker—It has been permanently added to the laws in England, France and Belgium, and should be a Dominion-wide change.

Harry Beal, Gas Superintendent, H.E.P.C.—The present system is inconvenient. Either everybody should have it or nobody. Personally I like daylight saving.

Jack McCann, Street Railway — Personally likes it, but doesn't think the men like it. Gives the young fellows a chance to take their girls for a paddle.

Chris Graham, Empress Hotel — The principal trains run an hour earlier to agree with Toronto and Montreal time, so it would help hotel keepers.

I. L. Clifford, Superintendent Street Railway—Likes it very much.

J. B. Doran, C.N.R. Ticket Agent — The C.N.R. will not change its train times but will continue to operate on standard time.

T. H. Hooper, Confectioner — It means more work for us, but is a good thing for the citizens generally.

The general sentiment among the merchants seems to be that it won't make any difference to business. Some like it personally and some don't.

J. M. McHardy, Manager of the Bell Telephone Co.—During the period of daylight saving in Toronto the number of cancelled calls increases. If the time in Peterboro were the same as in Toronto it would be more convenient. Personally I like daylight saving very much.

PRAIRIE VILLAGES IN NEBRASKA DESTROYED

Three Persons Reported Dead In Indian Reserve.

VALENTINE, Neb., March 27.—(Canadian Press).—Three prairie fires were raging in the Rosebud Indian Reservation last night while ranchers and Indians fought desperately to check the flames. Three villages had been burned to ruins by the blaze, and one report received here told of a woman and two small children being burned to death at Tuthill.

Another fire, described as covering 100 square miles, burned north of here. Valentine, a town of about 1,200 persons, was not endangered.

The country being swept by the fires is a vast rolling region, settled sparsely and spotted only now and then with pine trees. The chief crop of the region is hay, but at present, not much is on hand. Owing to this fact, it is believed the loss of the fires will be small and unless it gains such a momentum as to destroy ranches. Two or three minor fires were extinguished at O'Neill and near Gregory, South Dakota.

BILL BEING DRAWN.

Law Clerk Has Church Union Bill After Drafting By-Committee.

TORONTO, March 27. —(Canadian Press).— Consederation of the matter which shall constitute the Church Union bill, ended yesterday before the sub-committee of the private bills committee of the Ontario Legislature which has had the problem in hand.

In conference with nine members of the legislature, in whose hands the somewhat delicate negotiations had been placed, lawyers for both sides of the controversy reached substantial agreement upon what should constitute the contents of the bill, and the matter was left in the hands of the legislature law clerk for drafting.

NO COLLECTIVE VOTE.

Allies Will Reply Separately to Streseman Security Pact Suggestion.

PARIS, March 27. — (Canadian Press).—The Allies have decided to reply separately to a memorandum from Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany, suggesting a security pact.

It was discovered that the preparation of a collective note raised immense difficulties, by reason of the fact that each of the entente powers looks upon the security problem from a different angle.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday the temperature was up to 66 degrees in the shade. This is the highest this season. Last night's rainfall amounted to .35 of an inch. It was a warm rain as the lowest the thermometer reached was 40. The snow, which has almost all disappeared in the open, has left us gradually, and has had an opportunity to soak into the ground, where it will be drawn upon as a reserve store in the coming summer. Much snow still remains in the woods. I have already noticed one man digging his garden, but he confessed that he found frost in some places.—W. P.

Attorney-General Opens Debate on Amendments to the Temperance Act.

A WHITNEY POLICY

Severe Penalty for Bootlegging—Drunkenness Will be Regarded as a Crime.

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—The debate on the Ontario Temperance Act amendments including 4.4 beer started Thursday with Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, leading. Mr. Nickle explained in some detail the proposals and put up a vigorous defence against the criticism levelled at the government since the announcement in the speech from the throne that the government proposed to increase the strength of beer. W. E. N. Sinclair, the Liberal leader followed. W. E. Raney, Progressive leader will probably speak today, and it is expected that there will be quite a lengthy debate. The government also introduced yesterday the redistribution bill which is in skeleton form. The details of redistribution will be left with a committee selected from all groups in the House. Hon. Mr. Nickle also introduced a bill amending the Workmen's Compensation Act so that a workman cannot collect compensation in two provinces at the same time. Quebec province is passing a similar bill.

Opinion Divided.

Mr. Nickle at the outset stated that there was a vast difference in public opinion regarding the temperance proposals of the government. There were some who regarded the slightest indulgence in liquor as a sin, and who also regarded the government's proposals as a heinous crime. Mr. Nickle said he would not try to reconcile the opinions of the people which were poles apart. He expressed the opinion, however, that the amendments, in days to come, would be regarded as the wisest step towards true temperance in many years. He declared that no great reform could be brought about by coercion of people or through punishment.

Mr. Nickle pointed out that the great increase in export or so called export of liquor from Ontario had been a tremendous hinderance to the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act. He said this export had grown from $3,000,000 in 1923 to $10,000,000 in 1925. The revenue from this was the reason that the Federal government would not try to stop it. Mr. Nickle said that the Federal government also secured a tremendous revenue from the sale of liquor through Ontario dispensaries. Of the $5,500,000 taken in through Ontario dispensaries the dominon government got in taxes $2,190,000 or almost one half the money taken in. This he explained was also the reason for the so-called high price of ernment brings in a bill which de the tax was $3 a gallon and in 1924 it was $10. For instance the price of 12 bottles of Scotch whisky in Scotland was $21, the duty was $25.15; sale tax $1.28 and other costs made the total cost to the dispensary in Ontario $50.54 for the 12

Deer Are Plentiful In The Kingston District

KINGSTON, March 27. — (Canadian Press).— Deers are reported as exceedingly plentiful in the district surrounding Kingston, although they are apparently being harassed by dogs which are allowed to roam the country by their owners. The deer are present in comparatively large numbers in the vicinity of Collins Bay, and Wednesday afternoon two dogs, chased a small doe, forcing the animal to take to the water and swim to one of the smaller islands of the Brothers group. The island upon which the animal sought sanctuary is of rocky formation and the doe would be quite unable to find food. An effort will be made to get the deer off.

SHOE IMPORTS UP 90 PER CENT

Nearly 50 British Firms Have Travellers in This Country.

HOME TRADE HIT.

MONTREAL, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—During the past year the importations of British shoes increased ninety per cent. in number and sixty per cent. in value over the preceding year, declared L. P. Deslongchamps, past president of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association, Thursday, in commenting on tariff provisions. He strongly advocates the application of the general tariff rate irrespective of the country of origin of the imported article.

"At the present time there are very few shoe factories in Canada which are even breaking even," Mr. Deslongchamps said. "Many have been losing money heavily for several successive years.

"The exemption of shoe lasts and patterns from sales tax is welcome because it removes one of the charges which the Canadian shoe manufacturers have been obliged to pay while their competitors abroad have escaped all such levies. We are grateful for this legislation, but it does not improve to any very appreciable extent our positon relative to that of British shoe manufacturers who have been cutting into the Canadian trade.

"Some idea of the efforts which British firms have been making to canture Canadian shoe orders is afforded by the fact that between 40 and 50 British shoe manufacturing firms now have salesmen regularly soliciting the wholesale and retail shoe trade in the Dominion."

Disarmament Conference.

Britain Ready to Participate Whenever U. S. Takes Action.

LONDON, March 27.—(Canadian Press). — The Daily Mail says it learns that, in addition to assurances given to Mr. Kellogg before he left the London Embassy to become United States Secretary of State, the Government sent a note to Washington reasserting Great Britain's willingness to participate in a disarmament conference whenever one was summoned by the United States. It was also indicated that the Dominions were ready to accompany the British.

GOVERNMENT'S CLAIM OF SURPLUS

increased," declared Sir Henry; "but what is even more important, French workmen have supplied the requirements of the French market. You cannot possibly, by your purrhases, support workmen in foreign countries, and at the same time support your workmen at home. You have to make your choice one way or the other."

France's exports to Great Britain in 1919 were 2,116 million francs, and in 1923, were 6,155 million in woollen goods alone, she sold Great Britain 15 million francs' worth in 1919, and in 1923, 352 million; while in automobiles, the figures were 12 million, and 165 million respectively. "The export of manufactured articles by France in 1923," stated Sir Henry, "exceeded the export of 1922 by 458.000 tons in weight and 2,900,000,000 francs in value."

More Jobs Than Workers.

"How has all this progress and activity resulting entirely as it has under protection, full and complete, affected the worker," asked Sir Henry. The result was that the worker in France was working where there were more jobs than workers. Since the armistice, France down to January 1, 1924, had absorbed 1,500,000 immigrants. Last Summer they were going in at the rate of 6,000 per week, and there was still a dearth of workers for the mines and agriculture. "What a contrast between that and our exodus, between that and the Mother Country's burden of 1,200,000 unemployed," remarked Sir Henry.

Free trade was introduced into England in order that with cheap foodstuffs the manufacturers would be able to obtain cheap labor. "Free trade is entirely based on the principles of supply and demand," he declared, "and these principles today are impossible of application. Sixty per cent. of the cost of industrial production, that is, labor, is entirely removed and properly removed from the operation of that law. Does the Free Trade advocate seriously contend that all the different provisions labor is interested in—Workmen's Compensation, Factories Acts, Hours of Labor, etc—should be scrapped, and the condition of labor returned to those of the dark centuries? Must our workers adopt the standard of living of Coolies? It is ridiculous."

Sir Henry stated he believed in Protection—Protection which would be passed by the House of Commons, but he did not believe in Protection that gave to any department a yardstick with which to place values on imported goods. The anti-dumping clause in the Budget was wrong because it rested on an import value which could be fixed by the minister or his department.

In concluding his speech, Sir Henry Drayton moved the Conservative amendment to the Budget.

Liberal's Speech.

J. J. Hughes (Liberal, King's-P.E.I.), said that Sir Henry Drayton was not alone in Canada in his concern over the railway problem. It was the greatest problem of the Dominion, and were it not for the railways, the national debt and taxes could both be reduced.

"Protection never was, never will be, and never can be of any advantage to the farmers and fishermen of Prince Edward Island," Mr. Hughes stated. In illustrating the inadequacy of the home market, he stated that Maritime Province fishermen could catch sufficient fish in two weeks to supply Central Canada for 52 weeks. He claimed that, on the basis of prices charged for Maritime Province coal in the Montreal market, an excessive price for the same product was being asked in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Hughes stated that coal in the Maritime Provinces cost $1.50 more per ton than in Montreal. "In other words, the other industries of the Provinces farmers, fishmen and lumbermen, will pay about $1,500,000 a year for the support of the coal mines."

As a Free Trader, Mr. Hughes would have preferred to have the duty on round coal reduced. He referred to a letter signed by Col. Cantley, director of the British Empire Steel Corporation, and former director of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, in which the latter had stated that the coal mines in Nova Scotia were being "ruined by bad management." The sooner industries were told, declared Mr. Hughes, that they must stand on their own feet, the better. The Maritime Provinces in becoming parties to Confederation, had been "deceived."

Improve Trade Relations.

The government could do much for the Maritime Provinces by improving trade relations with the West Indies, and Mr. Hughes was sure that everything possible was being done.

Conservatives were demanding larger doses of the medicine that had produced the trouble in Canada originally. Mr. Marler had a sort of scientific tariff which appeared to be a "kind of jackpot where everybody would get out exactly what he paid in," but it would be beyond the power of angels to put such a tariff into practical operation.

The United States was prosperous in spite of protection. It was the largest Free Trade area in the world. There was no country in the world where Protection could do so little harm as in the United States, and no country where it could do so much harm as Canada, where its effects would be inevitably sectional.

The so-called National Policy, said Mr. Hughes, was the first blow aimed at Confederation; the rejection of the Reciprocity Act in 1911 was the second. If by great misfortune, a Conservative government should be returned at the next election, and if it "gave the tariff screw a few turns upwards," that would be the end of Confederation. The Maritime Provinces could not stand it.

Progressive Leader.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, said that he agreed with those who had described the Budget as a "stand-pat" Budget." The acting minister of finance had said "as you were," leaving Canada in the same position the country was in during the past twelve months. The Budget represented no progress.

He thought there could be a less complicated system for the national bookkeeping. At the end of the year the ordinary man on the street ought to be able to form some idea as to the exact condition of the country's finances. The financial statement as now presented left the issue very much in the air so far as the ordinary citizen was concerned. It enabled the supporters of the Budget to make things look just a little better than they were, and its opponents to make things look a little worse. Personally, while he did not think that conditions in Canada just now were satisfactory, he also did not believe that conditions were so hopeless as some members, notably the ex-minister of finance (Sir Henry Drayton) was representing them to be.

Before he submitted some inferences he had drawn from the financial statement, he would like to draw attention to the announcement that there had been an increase in receipts from the income tax. It might mean the country is more prosperous, but "I hae ma doots," added Mr. Forke. He hoped that increase did not mean that the country was betting into fewer hands, that there was more wealth; more property. If that was the situation it was greatly to be deplored. That was the opposite of what the country most needed.

COL. T. D. JOHNSTON WILL VOTE FOR GOVERNMENT'S AMENDMENT

O.T.A. Worked Well in East Peterborough, But Needed Drastic Measure Elsewhere.

STRONGER BEER.

HAVELOCK, MARCH 27. — The following letter from Col. T. D. Johnston, Conservative representative for East Peterboro in the Provincial Legislature, stating his stand on the new beer scheme, was received by Mr. A. C. Denike, county secretary of Prohibition Union in reply to a request from the association for his opinion regarding the matter:

"Yours of February 13th to hand and I might say that I purposely delayed replying until I had an opportunity of hearing the discussion on both sides and seeing the proposed amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act. I am firmly convinced after hearing the discussion, that the Attorney-General's proposed amendment is in the best interests of the Ontario Temperance Act, in general. While I freely admit, and brought to the attention of the Government on every possible occasion, that the Ontario Temperance Act was working satisfactorily in our riding, I am firmly convinced after hearing all the evidence that it was not working satisfactorily in many parts of the Province, and while I am not absolutely confident that this amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act will do away with bootlegging entirely, this traffic has become so great that some drastic measure became necessary. My stand on this question is this: I believe the Government to be sincere in their attempt to wipe out lawlessness in this Province. Whether this proposed measure wil do what they think, I do not know, but I think that the people of Ontario ought to give this proposed amendment a trial."

Supports Stronger Beer.

bottles. The cost per bottle was $4.31 cents which the government dispensaries sold for $5.25.

"The policy is that the dispensaries reduce the price of liquor to the very lowest cost that the business can stand," said Mr. Nickle, speaking of the liquor prescribed for medicinal purposes.

Jail For Bootleggers.

Mr. Nickle declared that rings of bootleggers had been formed in Ontario which defied the best ingenuity of the provincial police. Great wealth was being accumulated by these men who defied the law "and it is in realizing this that this gov- In the forged bottles the worst kind prives the bootlegger of his liberty on the first offence against the act." He stated that it had been proved that fines did not stop some classes of men in continuing in their crime. The bill proposed the most drastic punishment for men who debauched the community. Mr. Nickle said there was a growing tendency in the province for the consumption of hard liquors and that the present beer had not proven a refreshing drink and to some was even nauseating.

Mr. Nickle then showed the House forged labels and forged corks on whisky bottles filled by the bootleggers of Ontario. It required an expert, he said, to tell the difference between the genuine and the forged. In theforged bottles the worst kind of poison was being sold. He also showed a small bottle of a certain extract which had been found to contain 44 per cent alcohol. He declared that in some districts in Ontario the people were not sufficiently behind the act to enforce it.

Penalties Are Heavy.

The next few months, he said, would be an answer to all criticism because the new beer would be sold and other clauses in effect and, the government could not escape responsibility for them. He added that he knew that every drunken man seen on the streets would be charged against the bill but he asked the co-operation of the public, the brewers and those to whom permits for sale would be given to uphold and enforce the law. He hoped that no request for quarter would be made by those who broke the law and stated that the act imposed very heavy penalties. Drunkeness he said would be regarded as a crime. A better system of appeal from magistrate's decisions had been made because it was better that ten men be found not guilty than one innocent man should go to jail. In conclusion Mr. Nickle appealed to the members to help him carry on the work started by Sir James Whitney making sure of each step in temperance and consolidating it before taking another.

Sinclair's Comment.

Mr. Sinclair said that it must have been the mumbling of the earthquake of public opinion which had forced the Attorney-General into another long defence of the government's proposals. The new beer was to cure all evils existing under the O.T.A. and yet that beer was intoxicating. If it was no. intoxicating then no relief was given to the wets. He could not understand how Mr. McCausland could applaud the Attorney-General if the beer were not intoxicating because that member had been shouting loud and long for real beer. His support of this measure is one of the marvels of the century, said Mr. Sinclair.

OTTAWA, March 27.—(Canadian Press). — Immigration to Canada during February amounted to 2,210, an increase of 203 over the previous month, according to an official statement by the Department of Immigration and Colonization. In immigrant arrivals, January and February are the low months of the year, as mid-winter is a season in which immigration is not encouraged by the Canadian Department.

Of the February arrivals, 542 were British, 800 from United States and 868 from other countries. Immigration from the United States shows an increase of 168 over January.

Canadians returning from the United States after having been in that country for six months or over, and declaring their intention of remaining permanently in Canada, totalled 2,012. Since the beginning of the fiscal year the number of such returning Canadians is 41,044.

Immigration for the eleven months of the fiscal year to February 28th has been 49,905 British, 14,521 from United States, and 40,361 from other countries, a total of 104,787. THE TOURIST INDUSTRY.

The Ontario Tourists' Research Bureau, for the organization of which the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce was primarily responsible, will endeavour to raise a publicity fund of $140,000 with which to boom Ontario from a tourist standpoint.

It is hoped by this means to secure $40,000,000 more business this year, it being estimated that tourists last year left $100,000,000 in Ontario.

The publicity campaign should be supported enthusiastically in all parts of the Province.

The influx of hordes of summer visitors into the playgrounds of Ontario will mean an impetus to business that will be especially appreciated under present conditions.

In addition to that, motor tourists will help to pay for Ontario's roads by contributing 3c per gallon of gasoline bought here during their sojourn in the Province.

If $40,000,000 worth of business can be secured for $140,000, the plan is worthy of general support.

THEY WANT TO COME BACK.

That old residents of Peterboro still have a warm spot in their hearts for their old home city is evidenced by the movement on foot in Winnipeg to organize a Peterboro old timers' association.

The Peterboro hockey club had similar proof of this loyalty to the Electric City on the part of former residents in their many games in Toronto during the past winter, when hundreds of Peterboro old boys and girls, many of whom have not lived here for years, gathered to cheer the blue and white to victory.

These incidents are proof that with proper organization an old home celebration in Peterboro could be made a great success.

There are thousands of former citizens scattered all over the Continent whose affection for this city has not diminished during their absence.

They would be glad to come back for a real reunion, where they could meet not only the friends who have never left Peterboro but also those who, like themselves, have wandered far from the Otonabee.

All many of them are waiting for is a suggestion that the old timers are coming back from the ends of the earth for a get-together celebration in the old town.

IMMIGRATION.

Elsewhere on this page today the Examiner reprints an article from the Border Cities Star on immigration, not because we agree with the opinions expressed, but because the editorial contains views that have a considerable following in Canada, and it is well that the subject should be discussed from all angles.

As a contrast to the Border Cities Star's opinion may be offered the emphatic declaration of W. S. Dobbs, Superintendent of the Toronto office of the Employment Service of Canada, that "there is no excuse for extensive immigration at the present time unless there is a positive guarantee that the immigrants will remain on the land."

Mr. Dobbs is not dealing with theories, but with conditions.

It is his duty to find work for the unemployed, and it is becoming a difficult task.

His experience confirms what the Examiner has frequently charged, that the majority of immigrants brought to Canada to go on the land reach the urban centres eventually.

"I would venture to say," declares the employment official, "that 75 per cent. of those who have been brought here to go to the farms have drifted into the cities within three years."

If they could be absorbed by the urban industries the situation would not be so bad, but they cannot be provided with work under present conditions.

What possible advantage, therefore, would there be in keeping on bringing over thousands more of the same type?

Just how many could Windsor provide with employment at the present time? is a fair question.

CARING FOR IMMIGRANTS.

The motion of Mr. Woodsworth in the Commons last night to the effect that the Canadian Government should be responsible for the maintenance of an immigrant for two years after he has landed in this country gave the House an opportunity for reiterating some of the platitudes about immigration that are the stock in trade of the politician.

There is sound ground for the stand which Mr. Woodsworth takes that the Government, which is at least partially responsible for bringing settlers to Canada, cannot divest itself of this responsibility the moment the new settler sets foot on these shores. The work of immigration may be said to end when the immigrant ship ties up at the Dominion port or the immigrant train whistles its passing of the border into Canada, but the work of colonization begins at the very point where immigration ends. This does not mean to imply that the two subjects are not closely correlated. The difficulties of colonization will be immeasurably increased if the immigration methods are careless and slip-shod and the work of colonization will not only be comparatively easy, but as likely to be far more valuable if care is taken in the selection and the winnowing of would-be immigrants at the port of embarkation.

Yet while it is good news to hear the principle of responsibility for the welfare of our immigrants accepted so generally, it does not follow that a bill fixing the responsibility of the Government for the newcomers' maintenance for two years is equally sound in principle. This time-limit introduces a factor into the situation which complicates the problem. It need not be pointed out that there are some new-comers as well as old settlers who regard the Government as a gold mine, in which they can delve as a right. Moreover, two years might not be long enough to get some settlers established, while three months would see others started on their chosen careers and saying little.

There is one point regarding which Mr. Woodsworth is likely to have widespread support, however, and that is his criticism of misleading advertising in England. It is unfortunately true that a good deal of this exists and it is undeniably responsible in some degree for the coming to Canada of immigrants unsuited to the climate and unfitted for the strenuous life. The Government would do well to ensure the exercise of much closer supervision over its official invitations to intending settlers, for it would certainly save the country considerable future expenditure. There would seem, in any event, to be a definite responsibility placed upon the Dominion of repatriating those who prove unsuitable and who are likely to be a permanent charge.—Montreal Star.

MORE PEOPLE NEEDED?

Something went wrong with the immigration machine last year, according to the report of Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. This failure of immigration to measure up to estimates hit the ocean steamship trade hard, Mr. Beatty declares in his annual statement.

The drastic immigration laws of the United States, he reports, coupled "with the failure of Canadian immigration to reach the proportions expected by the Government and the transportation companies, were the principal causes of the unsatisfactory showing." (The "showing" was a decrease of $1,743,000 from 1923 in west-bound earnings for the Canadian Pacific steamers, and this despite the fact that the company put on ten additional sailings for the St. Lawrence route last year.)

Almost on top of this comes a statement from Colonel Stoughton Dennis of Mr. Beatty's company, that several hundred thousand immigrants are expected this year. The C. P. R., he says, is prepared to handle 100,000 of these. But this is a prospect only and unless the immigration department is prepared to back it up, it will continue to be a prospect.

Let us be frank about it. The country needs millions upon millions more people. It is not getting them, save in small handfuls. With nine millions of people today, Canada is handicapped by high taxes and burdened with enough government for six times that number. Millions of acres of land are within easy reach of railroads, ready for people. In Great Britain and in Europe generally are plenty willing to come. The United States' barrier is Canada's opportunity. Canada is apparently neglecting it, either by not going after new citizens or by hand-picking them too stringently when it has them.

It is cheerful to hear Sir Arthur Currie predicting a national era of prosperity; it is equally comforting to know that Premier King, Hon. Thomas A. Low and other Federal Ministers are forecasting good times. But their predictions collapse into a fog of uncertainty and a mirage of distance without more people. Real prosperity is fundamentally impossible with nine millions of people where we should have six times that number. We must not blind ourselves to the fact, for the situation boils itself down to just that. We haven't enough population to make the money required for the degree of prosperity our resources warrant.

It is well to be optimistic, but it takes more than hope to pay taxes, and more than after dinner speeches to populate vacant lands and dig hidden wealth out of the earth. Our national debt is two and a quarter billions, between $250 and $300 per capita of men, women and children. With 50 millions of people that per capita debt would be between $45 and $50. Interest and liquidation of the debt are uncontrollable, but the number of people who could help pay it is not. In Ontario in 1903, there were 2,182,947 people; in 1923—two decades later—there were 2,933,662, an increase of 34 per cent. This is according to an Ontario Government publication. Is it healthy growth? Is it real prosperity? The natural increase is more than that in 20 years; therefore we have not only lost a number equal to all our newcomers, but some of our own native-born as well. It takes more than complacency and sonorous prophecy to handle a situation like that; it takes action, plenty of unremitting action.

Natural wealth is a good thing to have; Canada is singularly blessed with it, so well blessed that this country should have the very pick of the Old World emigrants in vast numbers to produce that wealth. Year after year the Speech from the Throne at Ottawa has included that portentous announcement: "The Government will take measures to develop an intensive immigration policy," or words to that effect. Yet Mr. Beatty has to report that for 1924, his company's west-bound earnings dropped nearly two millions.

Somebody is to blame, but why bother to blame anybody? Weeping over the past will not help the future. The thing now is to find new methods. The old ones have not produced satisfactory results. It is not enough to say that our immigration machinery is highly organized and "should work." It must work, or give way to better machinery, backed by a Government that will force it to work.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Evidently the West is as progressive in hockey as it is Progressive in politics.

There is always a target available so long as Mr. Raney is a member of the Provincial Legislature.

The stories of the distress of the families of the Nova Scotia miners are becoming even more serious. Relief is urgently needed, although Peterboro has shown little signs of recognizing that fact so far.

Oshawa Council is being asked to pass a daylight saving bylaw at its next meeting. The movement is growing in popularity, and this summer will see more municipalities under summer time than there have been since the scheme was general throughout Canada.

It is claimed the Drury Government tried to get into the newspaper business. The U. F. O. administration was undoubtedly badly in need of journalistic support.

Mr. Raney may not relish the charge that he deserted his colleague, Peter Smith, when the latter got into trouble, but he will have hard work showing that he ever extended a helping hand to the former Provincial Treasurer.

Sault Ste. Marie's declaration that she is going to make a bid for tourist traffic, of course, has no connection with the hockey situation.

Jack Dempsey is barred from fighting in New York State. But is there any evidence that he wants to fight there, or anywhere else?

A THOUGHT.

THE MAN THAT WHISTLES.

I like a man that whistles as he goes about his work,
And splits his face with (now and then) a smile;
A feller that is cheerful isn't apt to be a shirk,
And you'll mostly find him doing things worth while.

A gink that smiles and whistles has a clean and healthy mind,
And a conscience that will let him
sleep at night,
And a genial disposition that to other folks is kind
(As a general proposition, he's all right).

But darn a man that whistles, when
at half-past one a.m.,
He breezes in and wakes me from my sleep!
The tune may be a classic, or the latest jazzy gem,
With which he yanks me from my slumber deep.

But I've no "ear for music" at some hours, it appears,
And I wouldn't miss my early morning snooze
To hear the Heavenly choir chant
"the music of the spheres"
(Or any other music they might choose).

A man should do his whistling while he does his daily grind;
But at night, when other folks have gone to bed,
And are trying to catch up some of the sleep that they're behind,
He ought to keep the stopper in his head!

—Will Thomas Withrow.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 26.—With a light offering everything was cleared at good steady prices. A feature of the small run was a load of 20 fancy butcher steers, 1,052 lbs., shipped to Quinn & Hisey, from the Brandon fair. The load was bought by George Rountree for the Harris Abattoir at $8.75, a record price this season for animals of this class and weight. There was nothing else of importance in the market, prices holding steady and unchanged.

As there are two boast scheduled for next week's sailings, it is expected there will be a more active demand for export cattle than there was this week.

Small meats steady.

Hog market unsettled, but weaker. Packers bidding $13.75, thick smooths, off cars. In view of light run, shippers holding out for even money.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, March 26.—(Canadian Press)—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 5-8.
Sterling Cables $4.79.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 27. — Heavy selling that was associated with sprinkles of rain in Kansas and with apparent absence of any great amount of export business, turned the wheat market suddenly downward to-day notwithstanding that earlier the trend had been upgrade. Wheat closed weak at two cents to 3 1-4 cents net decline, May 164 1-2 to 164 3-4 and July 146 1-4 to 146 1-2, with corn 5-8 to 1 cent down, oats 1-8 to 3-8 cent off and provisions showing losses ranging from seven cents to 37 cents.

Most of the selling of wheat came from houses with eastern connections and many of the earmarks of profit taking on the part of speculators who had previously been active on the buying side of the market Among the reasons for buying were estimates from a leading authority that the abandonment of domestic winter wheat acreage this season would amount to 18 per cent., the second largest total on record. There were also estimates that the condition of the 1925 winter crop is 10 points below the average of the last ten years.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 27. — While there was an improved enquiry from United Kingdom buyers for Barley and oats here to-day, there was no increase in the volume of business owing to the fact that prices bid for No. 2 Canadian Western oats for April shipment were in most cases 2 1-2 cents per bushel below cost, and the bids on barley were 1s per quarter under what exporters were disposed to make sales at. The demand from Canadian and American exporters for ocean grain room was of a limited character and the market was quiet with no important change in prices. To note for May loading.

The feature of the domestic cash grain market was the continued steady demand for odd loads of oats for export account and sales of 75,000 to 100,000 bushels were made including some No. 2 feed at 4 1-2 cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, C. I. F. Bay ports. The demand from local and country buyers was reported quiet, and the tone of the market was easier at a decline of 1-2 cent per bushel.

A fairly active business was transacted in egg in a wholesale jobbing way and prices ruled firm. A weak feeling again prevailed in butter and prices were reduced 1-2 cent per pound. The feature of the cheese trade continues to the stronger tone and prices scored a further advance of 1-2 cent per pound.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

Increased Indemnity Meets No Opposition

TORONTO, March 26. —(Canadian Press). —A caucus of government supporters this morning discussed redistribution, lights on all vehicles, sessional indemnities and the natural gas bill.

The indemnity question occupied only moments and there is no opposition to an increase in pay.

Principles of redistribution were laid down by the Premier. County boundaries will be maintained as far as possible. New seats will be in large cities and northern Ontario is not likely to get much increase in its representation.

Another principle of the skeleton bill which the Premier hopes to introduce in the House within the next few days is that the rural unit of representation will be considerably smaller than urban unit.

The committee of the house will complete the bill in detail.

No decision was arrived at on the lights on vehicles measure.

I heartily recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to everyone afflicted with intestinal trouble.

Yours gratefully,

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

In his own heart there was a great yearning. Many a night he passed the little window beyond which he knew that she was sleeping; often he looked to catch a glimpse of her pale face, and he lived in the one happiness of knowing that Marie understood, and that into her eyes there came for an instant a different light when their glances met. No one else knew. The secret lay between them—and patiently Leroe waited and watched. "Someday," he kept saying to himself—"Someday"—and that was all. The one word carried a world of meaning and of hope. When that day came he would take Marie straight to the Missioner over at Fort Churchill, and they would be married. It was a dream that made the long days and the longer nights on the trap-line patiently endured. Now they were both slaves to the environing Power. But—someday——

CHAPTER XXV.

The trap-line of Pierre Eustach ran thrity miles straight west of Lac Bain. It was not as long a line as Pierrot's had been, but it was like a main artery running through the heart of a rich fur country. It had belonged to Pierre Eustach's father, and his grandfather, and his great-grandfather, and beyond that it reached. Pierre averred; back to the very pulse of the finest blood in France. The books at McTaggart's post went back only as far as the great-grandfather end of it, the older evidence of ownership being at Churchill. It was the finest game country between Beindeer Lake and the Barren Lands. It was in December that Baree came to it.

Again he was travelling southward in a slow and wandering fashion, seeking food in the deep snows. The Kistisew Kestin, or Great Storm, had come earlier than usual this winter, and for a week after it scarcely a hoof or claw was moving. Baree, unlike the other creatures, did not bury himself in the snow and wait for the skies to clear and crust to form. He was big, and powerful, and restless. Less than two years old, he weighed a good eighty pounds. His pads were broad and wolfish. His chest and shoulders were like a Malemute's, heavy and yet muscled for speed. He was wider between the eyes than the wolf-breed husky, and his eyes were larger, and entirely clear of the Wuttool, or blood-film, that marks the wolf and also to an extent the husky. His jaws were like Kazan's, perhaps even more powerful. Through all that week of the Big Storm, he travelled without food. There were four days of snow, with driving blizzards and fierce winds, and after that three days of intense cold in which every living creature kept to its warm dugout in the snow. Even the birds had burrowed themselves in. One might have walked on the backs of caribou and moose and not have guessed it. Baree sheltered himself during the worst of the storm but did not allow the snow to gather over him.

Every trapper from Hudson's Bay to the country of the Athabasca knew that after the Big Storm the famished fur animals would be seeking food, and that traps and deadfalls properly set and baited stood the biggest chance of the year of being filled. Some of them set out over their trap-lines on the sixth day; some on the seventh, and others on the eighth. It was on the seventh day that Bush McTaggart started over Pierre Eustach's line, which was now his own for the season. It took him two days to uncover the traps, dig the snow from them, rebuild the fallen "trap-houses," and rearrange the baits. On the third day he was back a Lac Bain.

It was on this day that Baree came to the cabin at the far end of McTaggart's line. McTaggart's trail was fresh in the snow about the cabin, and the instant Baree sniffed of it every drop of blood in his body seemed to leap suddenly with a strange excitement. It took perhaps half a minute for the scent that filled his nostrils to associate itself with what had gone before, and at the end of that half-minute there rumbled in Baree's chest a deep and sullen growl. For many minutes after that he stood like a black rock in the snow, watching the cabin. Then slowly he began circling about it, drawing nearer and nearer, until at last he was sniffing at the threshold. No sound or smell of life came from inside, but he could smell the old smell of McTaggart. Then he faced the wilderness—the direction in which the trap-line ran back to Lac Bain. He was trembling. His muscles twitched. He whined. Pictures were assembling more and more vividly in his mind—the fight in the cabin, Nepeese, the wild chase through the snow to the chasm's edge—even the memory of that age-old struggle when McTaggart had caught him in the rabbit snare. In his whine there was a great yearning, almost expectation.

Slowly he followed the trail and a quarter of a mile from the cabin struck the first trap of the line. Hunger had caved in his sides until he was like a starved wolf. In the first trap-house McTaggart had placed as bait the hind-quarter of a snowshoe rabbit. Baree reached incautiously. He had learned many things on Pierrot's line; he had learned what the snap of a trap meant; he had felt the cruel pain of steel jaws; he knew better than the shrewdest fox what a deadfall would do when the trigger was sprung—and Nepeese herself had taught him that he was never to touch a poison-bait. So he closed his teeth gently in the rabbit flesh and drew it forth as cleverly as McTaggart himself could have done. He visited five traps before dark, and ate the five baits without springing a pan. The sixth was a deadfall. He circled about this until he had beaten a path in the snow. Then he went on into a warm balsam swamp and found himself a bed for the night.

The next day saw the beginning of the struggle that was to follow between the wits of man and beast. To Baree the encroachment of Bush McTaggart's trap-line was not war; it was existence. It was to furnish him food, as Pierrot's line had furnished him food for many weeks. But he sensed the fact that in this instance he was law-breaker and had an enemy to outwit. Had it been good hunting weather he might have gone on, for the unseen hand that was guiding his wanderings was drawing him slowly but surely back to the old beaver-pond and the Gray Loon. As it was, with the snow deep and soft under him—so deep that in places he plunged into it over his ears—McTaggart's trap-line was like a trail of manna made for his special use. He followed in the Factor's snowshoe tracks, and in the third trap killed a rabbit. When he had finished with it nothing but the hair and crimson patches of blood lay upon the snow. Starved for many days, he was filled with a wolfish hunger, and before the day was over he robbed the bait from a full dozen of McTaggart's traps. Three times he struck poison-baits—venison or caribou fat in the heart of which was a dose of strychnine, and each time his keen nostrils detected the danger. Pierrot had more than once noted the amazing fact that Baree could sense the presence of poison even when it was most skilfully injected into the frozen carcass of a deer. Foxes and wolves ate of flesh from which his supersensitive power of detecting the presence of deadly danger turned him away. So he passed Bush McTaggart's poisoned tit-bits, sniffing them on the way, and leaving the story of his suspicion in the manner of his footprints in the snow. Where McTaggart had halted at mid-day to cook his dinner Baree made these same cautious circles with his feet.

"The Black Wolf!"

WALL FELL ON MAN.

Thomas Purvis Has Miraculous Escape From Death—Horses Buried.

KINGSTON, March 26. —(Canadian Press). —When a stone wall caved in suddenly, Thomas Purvis, a resident of this city for many years, had a miraculous escape from death. He was engaged in tearing down an old stone building on Simcoe Street, when the wall toppled over. Mr. Purvis escaped with slight injuries but his team of horses were buried in the debris. The horses were dug out and one had a very bad gash on its leg but the other was none the worse for its experience.

CARIBOU SCARCE IN EAST CANADA

Twenty Years Ago They Were Plentiful in Several Provinces.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., March 26.—(Special).—Caribou are coming back to New Brunswick, says the Chief Game Warden of the Province. This is regarded as a testimony to the protective methods employed by the guides who are more and more coming to be regarded as ex-offirio wardens and who are well aware that the best means of protecting their livelihood is to see that the hunting of big game is not carried too far.

A further indication of the development of hunting in the province is given in the figures of moose and deer shot in 1924. Five hundred more moose and 1,599 deer were killed in 1924 than in 1923, the record being 1,511 moose and 3,898 deer in 1924. These figures are remarkable for the fact that last year was not as good a hunting season as 1923.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

ABOUT THAT POLICE RAID.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In March 14th paper there was a statement that the police found 3 men purchasing beer in my home. I wish you to say all they found in the house was my friend and myself. I asked that my name be not printed. I see I was the only woman named. Is this fair giving names, why not all? Please correct the statement and say plain and short there was not anyone in my home, only my friend and myself, and oblige,

CANADA'S PULPWOOD.

To The Editor:

Dear Sir,—Shall we export raw pulpwood, or manufacture it at home—which?

"Wise cutting, not miserly hoarding, is sound conservation," is a good herring to draw across the trail, which can and should be practised whether the product is exported or not; but I fear it is very little practised in either case, but believe the cut for the home manufactur fhas the best of it in this respect.

The whole situation boils itself down to the question, whether Canada is going to continue cutting and exporting raw pulpwood at $10.00 per cord, or cut, manufacture and refine our pulpwood in Canada, with $60.00 and upwards distributed in wages and profits at home.

Canada must use her own best judgment and take her choice.—Yours truly,

W. O. SEALEY.

RAILWAYS AND WATERWAYS.

To The Editor:

Dear Sir,—Why not put our Canadian National Railways on the same basis as our Canadian National Waterways?

Our Government provides the road beds, and upkeep of same, for water transportation, including canals, harbours, lighthouses, danger signals, dredge grading docks, terminals, etc., the water-borne traffic only paying for the use of the freight and passenger carriers and their operating expenses.

Why not write off the cost of railway, road bed, bridges, etc., as well as terminals and their upkeep, which would reduce the cost of overhead, upkeep, etc., to the railway traffic by half or more? Then we could get Alberta coal to Ontario at $3.00 or less, and Nova Scotia coal at $2.00, without asking any favors. We would then get fair competition between our inland and water and rail transportation.

This would build up a mighty interprovincial trade so badly needed.

Attention to our distant and foreign trade is all important, of course, but why neglect our inter-provincial trade almost entirely for the more distant and, perhaps, less profitable trade?

Canada produced more fruit, and many other articles, than required in the whole of Canada, but transportation east and west is so expensive that we lose half of it for foreign products. —Yours truly,

W. O. SEALEY.

EXHUME TWO IN SHEPHERD CASE

Bodies of McClintock Kin Who Died Mysteriously, To Be Examined.

BOTH DEAD YEARS.

CHICAGO, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—Two graves, those of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of Wm. N. McClintock, millionaire orphan, whose death led to the indictment of his foster father, William D. Shepherd, and C. C. Faiman, and that of Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the municipal court, will be opened, beginning to-day. The exhumation of the bodies was ordered by Coroner Oscar Wolff, Thursday afternoon, when the State took cognizance of charges by Justice Olson that Mrs. McClintock and Dr. Olson had died under mysterious circumstances subsequent to visits from Shepherd. Both have been dead a number of years. Justice Olson also initiated the investigation into the death of young McClintock.

Shepherd, who was refused release on bail Wednesday in a decision by Chief Justice Hopkins of the Criminal Court, was paraded in the bull pen of Murderers' Row yesterday, and one of two witnesses, said he believed Shepherd "looked like" a man who purchased a microscope from his firm.

The indictment charges that Shepherd obtained typhoid germs from a bacteriological school here and gave them to young McClintock.

In a will made just after he reached his majority McClintock left the bulk of his $1,000,000 estate to Shepherd with the exception of an $8,000 annuity to Miss Isabelle Pope, his fiancee. Faiman, head of the school of bacteriology, testified in the preliminary investigation by State's attorneys and before the grand jury that he supplied the germs to Shepherd with instructions how to administer them.

At several stages of the investigation, Judge Harry Olson has demanded that the bodies of his brother and Mrs. McClintock be exhumed, but that matter had been delayed on the ground that it would be difficult to trace poisons in bodies so long buried. Mrs. McClintock died sixteen years ago and Dr. Olson three years ago.

NAUTCH DANCER ONCE FAVORITE FLED MAHARAJA

Escaped From Home of Indian Prince of Indore—His Third Wife.

FOUND ASYLUM

Protector Slain by Maharaja's Agents, Who Attempted to Abduct Her.

BOMBAY, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—Numataz Begum Mustapha, a beautiful 22-year-old Indian Nautch girl, once the favorite of the Maharaja of Indore, told a sensational story on the witness stand Thursday when the case known as the Malabar Hill trial opened in the Chief Magistrate's court of the Bombay President. Vast crowds assembled outside the court.

Nine men of Indore, some of them of great prominence, are charged with attempting to abduct the girl, after she had made her escape from the Maharaja's household and taken asylum in the home of a wealthy Mohammedan merchant named Abdul Kadir Baula. The tenth man under charges, who was Chaula's chauffeur, was pardoned when he turned King's evidence.

Mumtaz was the first witness called. She entered the court-room closely veiled, but partially raised her veil when she took the stand. After outlining her experiences in the household of the Maharaja where she first was a singing and dancing girl and later the mistress of the Maharaja, she told of her flight when the Maharaja's affection for her cooled and of threats to punish her if she did not return. She then related the attempt to kidnap her from the home of Baula, how he was killed in endeavoring to prevent her capture and how she herself was stabbed in the forehead by one of the men. This man she identified as Shafi Ahmed, commander of the Indore mounted police.

The stepfather of the Nautch girl deposed that Mumtaz lived at the Maharaja's palace as the Maharaja's third wife. He said she informed him the Maharaja had told her she could leave him. This she did, but the accused men came after her to persuade her to return. They pursued her wherever she went and ultimately she came to Bombay, where she became acquainted with Baula.

During yesterday's session of the court Mumtaz appealed to the magistrate for protection for herself and her family, saying they were in constant fear for their lives.

CHURCH APPEAL FOR MINER'S AID

Issued to Presbyterian Clergy of Maritime Synod by Moderator.

DISTRESS ACUTE.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 27.—(Canadian Press).—The following appeal for assistance to relieve destitution among the idle miners and their families in the Cape Breton coal centres, unemployed because of the present wage disagreement with the British Empire Steel Corporation, was issued to the clergymen of the Presbyterian Church in the Synod of the Maritme Provinces Thursday by the Moderator, Rev. Dr. John MacIntosh. Dr. MacIntosh is pastor of St. James' Church, Whitney Pier, Sydney:

"My dear Brothers,—May I be permitted to appeal to you to present to your people the needs of the miners employed by the British Empire Steel and Coal Company, who, owing to the unfortunate disagreement between themselves and the company, are out of employment. I am not asking you, or am I myself passing judgment by this action, on the merits of the case, but there is no doubt about the fact that many families are dependent upon the generosity of their fellow-citizens, and if we are to avert much suffering we must respond to the appeal that comes to us in behalf of the needy and we should do it as speedily as possible. A great many of the miners have been employed only part time for months, and were not able even then to meet demands upon them, and when the work ceased they were at once in dire need. The Presbyterian people have always been noted for the breadth of their interests and their readiness to hear the cry of the destitute in any land, and I am sure that they will not turn a deaf ear to the cry of their fellow-citizens, especially of women and children, when the appeal is made to them. I know that in you, brethren, the cause of the needy will find the most sympathetic advocates and that by your efforts redress will come to them."

AMERICANS INVADE BRITISH MOVIES

English Producers Say Colonies Are Being Americanized by Films.

LONDON, March 27.—(Associated Press).—The moaning and wringing of hands over the sad state of the British moving picture film business waxes louder day by day. Perhaps the public cares, but it shows no inclination to cease crowding into the hundreds of British theatres where American films are run off almost exclusively, year in and year out.

The British film makers cast many an envious eye at Hollywood, and they lift their voices, fervently hoping to catch the ears of both Government and the people, and protest that even England's own dominions and colonies are being Americanized by the subtle propaganda contained in the celluloidal products of the studios of California and New York. Lest their arguments fall on deaf ears, trade, the very life blood of the Empire, is brought into play. It would seem that trade has broken itself of the habit of following flags; these days it follows the film. There is a very active campaign on to have the Baldwin Government slap a heavy tax on foreign films, and help the tottering movie magnates of this country until their business grows up and becomes steady on its feet. The Government has so far kept silent upon its intentions, if any, as regards the movies.

Meanwhile dollar-laden magnates of the movies breeze in from Broadway, one after another, and whizz around the British Isles, building up defenses against competition from other sources and bolstering their English business. Some of them have even gone so far as to begin building or buying large theatres of their own in the precincts of Piccadilly Circus.

Constantinople's old Imperial Palace, which dates back to the 16th century, now is used as a museum and storehouse for national treasures.

"The easy way—wash clothes with less rubbing"

Mrs. Experience gives her method of getting clothes spotlessly white merely by soaking.

"It's so easy, really! There's no hard rubbing, so wearing on clothes—no boiling, no toiling over wash-tubs. Here's the way I do my weekly wash.

"I merely soap the clothes lightly with Sunlight Soap, roll them up tightly and put them to soak for 30 minutes or an hour. That's all. Sunlight dissolves all dirt and grease-spots, so that in rinsing, the dirt just runs away. A pure soap like Sunlight rinses away quickly and completely; an impure soap stays and injures the clothes.

"For dishes and all housework, Sunlight is excellent and really economical, too, because every bit of it is pure, cleansing soap. And more good news—Sunlight keeps the hands soft and comfortable." Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto, make it.

CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL BOARD

Cadets of High School to Have Uniforms For Inspection.

REPORT RECEIVED.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 27. — When the High School Cadets muster for their annual inspection on May 6th they will be arrayed in new uniforms, the purchase of which was authorized by the members of the Board of Education at their regular meeting last night. At the February meeting Major Bygott, chairman of the Board, and Principal Greig were appointed a committee to look into this question. The latter reported last night that uniforms made of the same grade of cloth as that used for military dress could be purchased for $6.50 each, plus the sales tax of five per cent. He stated that about 70 uniforms would be required.

The present uniforms have passed the stage of usefulness, and the Government a year ago, when the corps was inspected, gave notice that there would be no further grant unless new suits were provided by the Cadets.

The new uniforms will cost the Board little, if anything. The Government makes a grant of $1.25 for every cadet appearing for inspection and this money, which can be used for no other purpoose than paying for the maintenance of the corps, has been accumulating for several years. The committee was accordingly given power to buy the outfits at the figures quoted.

P. S. Inspector's Report.

P. S. Inspector Boyes sent in the following report of his official visit to the various departments of the High School:

"Your attention is again called to the fact that there must be two ways of getting to the top floor of the old High School building (now occupied by two Public School classes) in case of fire. Otherwise the accommodation and equipment are satisfactory.

"The organization is satisfactory, the work and the pupils are fairly divided among the teachers and no room is overcrowded. In my estimation the teachers are placed in the rooms where they can do their best work. They are doing excellent work and have good control of their classes. The pupils are well advanced with their year's work and are making satisfactory progress."

Mr. Wilkinson's Public Spirit.

School Attendance Officer J. R. Wilkinson last year was engaged to plant a number of evergreen trees, taken from his farm on the Grand Road, on the grounds of the new High School. Some of these trees died, for lack of care or for some other reason, and Mr. Wilkinson informed the Board last night that he intends to replace these this Spring free of charge.

Mr. Wilkinson also submitted a report of his work during the past month, looking after cases of truancy, and this was received.

Improving School Grounds.

When the old Public school annex was removed last year the purchaser left the foundation walk behind and Caretaker Massie was given permission to remove the material, this to be given him for his labor.

Cost of Education.

Trustee Loucks stated that the Finance committee, of which Dr. Longmore is chairman, has important work on hand this year as the members should ascertain the cost of educating each pupil in the High school so that a proper bill could be rendered the Counties Council for the maintenance of that institution. Mr. Loucks believes that the cost per pupil has increased considerably within the past few years.

Principal Greig explained the system which is used in preparing the bill which is sent to the Counties Council each year. The yearly grants for the counties at present is about $60 per pupil.

Boost in Charges.

The charge hitherto for the use of the Assembly room in the High school has been $25 a night except in a few special cases. Last night it was decided to charge an additional $5.00 per night to any society that begins the evening with a play or concert to be followed by a dance, such a programme requiring the moving of the chairs after the first part of the performance, a task that involves considerable labor. Some of the trustees suggested an increase of $10 but the lower rate prevailed on motion of Trustees Cock and Benor.

Vice Chairman O'Sullivan presided in the absence of Major Bygott, and those present were Trustees Dr. Longmore Dr. Watson, Dr. Richardson, Loucks, Cock, Stephens, Benor and Jeffs.

Miss Hay's Scholarship.

Miss Mabel Hay, of the Toronto Normal school, has given a scholarship to be awarded the student who secures the highest proficiency standing at the June examination, the winner to attend Normal school this year. The scholarship consists of $5.00 worth of books, with the prospect that the value will be increased in the future.

Miss Hay is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Hay of town and is one of the graduates of the local High school who have attained distinction in educational circles.

Auto Licenses.

C. H. Davidson, who issues the auto licenses for this district, has to date transacted business with over 800 car owners. The season this year opened about two weeks earlier than in 1924, and the demand for licenses is unusually brisk.

Personals.

John Hendricks, formerly in business on the west side, is spending a few days in town visiting friends.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan, of Toronto, and Rev. Father Whibbs, of Lindsay, formerly parish priest here, were recent visitors to Campbellford.

WARSAW, March 27.—The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in Warsaw Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, and in Cottesloe on Sunday afternoon.

Owing to various circumstances, the annual executive meeting of the Peterboro County Sunday School Association had only two representatives for the whole session: Mrs. Forsythe and Cecil Bolton: Mr. Weir attended in the afternoon.

Signs of Spring.

Syrup-making has not progressed very rapidly so far. Chipmonks are out, several flocks of geese have passed north: other spring birds as well as robins and crows are to be seen and heard.

While the boundary is open, the traffic is not yet on the road all the way, but off to the east side on the hill. The unbroken drifts are still on the road. There is so much earth mixed with it that the melting process is slow. Cars can and do go out from either end all right, but not from the centre, though on Sunday a car was brought straight up over the drifts: the driver had a little trouble. On Monday Hilliard Hamblin came down, but was completely stuck in the mud-hole on the hill-side. Ice had to be chopped away before a team of horses could draw the car out.

The annual meeting of the Warsaw Cheese Factory patrons will be held on Tuesday, March 31st.

At the regular meeting of the U.F.W.O. on Thursday last, plans were made for sending eggs to the egg-pool.

Sawing machines are again in the neighborhood.

Personal.

After being incapacitated for two weeks because of illness, Miss Irwin was able to return to school Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper gave a large party for their daughter, Miss Elsie, on Friday evening.

Mrs. Croter and daughter are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sargent.

Mr. Sargent has the crates for the egg-circle.

Mrs. Thomas Cullen and son, Stewart Cullen, Smith, visited relatives in the district last week.

The annual meeting of the W.M.S. will be held in the church basement on Thursday afternoon, April 2nd.

RED TAIL LIGHTS HELD DANGEROUS

Hamilton Proposal To Substitute Green Lights on Cars.

QUEBEC, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—A campaign to obtain international legislation having for its end the elimination of the red tail-light on automobiles, its replacement by a green light, and the elimination of red signal lamps or lanterns at all except places of danger, is now on foot.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the local Automobile Club, a letter was received from the Board of Trade of Hamilton, asking the club to support the campaign which will be made continent-wide. The campaign is designed to cut down motor and other accidents caused by misunderstanding of signal lights or danger signals.

It is pointed out that motorists driving along roadways frequently mistake danger signals for automobile tail-lights.

SINCLAIR LEADS ATTACK ON BILL

Asks How Amendment is Temperance When Wets Pleased and Drys Displeased.

POINTS NEMESIS.

TORONTO, March 27. — The Government stronger beer amendment which was given its second reading by a majorty of 46 this morning at 2 o'clock was attacked by liberal leader, W. E. N. Sinclair, chiefly on the ground that it embodied a broken pledge by Premier Ferguson. Continuing after the supper hour Mr. Sinclair asked how could the governments O. T. A. amendments be considered as in the interests of temperance, when they apparently pleased the wets and displeased the drys.

If Mr. Nickle's amendments constituted a temperance measure, declared the Liberal leader, why the reference to sticking a stilletto in former Premier Hearst's back? It ill became the Prime Minister, he thought, to say the temperance people deserted Hearst and voted politics, when the Conservative party did not even have the O. T. . mentioned in their campaign handbook in that year. Why all reference to the increase in doctor's prescriptions and liquor drinking, when if it were alla temperance measure that was proposed it would be need any expianation at all.

When the Government set itself up in authority over the expressed will of the people the remedy was for the people to take matters into their own hands when the proper time came. Before another year rolled around the Premier would find that the argument as to the non-intoxicative quality of 4.4 beer were just as accurate as the arguments on the judicature act.

WEDDING BELLS.

SHEA-BROOKS.

HASTINGS, March 27. — A quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. George's Anglican church, Hastings, on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock, when Nellie Gwendolin Brooks, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, of Percy, was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Wallace Shea, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Shea of Percy.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Annie Louise Brooks, and Mr. Wiliam Donald Hoar of Warkworth, supported.

Rev. W. A. Pippen, rector of St. George's church, performed the ceremony.

The young couple left on the C.N.R. evening train for points west.

SCHOOL QUESTION UP AT HASTINGS

Outside School Districts Oppose Proposal to Have Consolidated School.

HASTINGS, March 27.—The Public School Board met on Thursday evening for the regular monthly meeting. After the usual routine of business, the matter of the new school subject was discussed.

The School Board secretary, Mr. Doughty, gave a report of the outside school sections' view on the prouposed Consolidated School. The reports were to be in by the 26th of March, and only three were heard from and all were opposed to the proposition, and decided that they would not agree to go in for consolidation.

The Board have several sites in view, but have not decided on any definite site up to the present time.

Mr. R. W. Johnson, a farmer resident of Haliburton, and a member of the School Board of that place when the beautiful public school and continuation school was erected, gave many points which were interesting and beneficial to the board.

Mr. C. P. Doughty, secretary of the Board, was appointed delegate to the Ontario Trustees' Association to be held in Toronto on April 14, 15 and 16. While in Toronto, Mr. Doughty will interview the Minister of Education and get all the details possible regarding the new school question.

Ladies' Aid.

FORKE AMENDMENT IS SUBJECT GOSSIP

Questioned Whether Progressives Will Support Leader on Showdown.

OTTAWA, March 27. — The question that is now exciting the tongues of the corridor gossips is whether or not the Progressives as a group, will stand by the position enunciated in the Forke amendment and vote against the government when it comes to a final showdown. Ontario members of the group who thus far have supported the government on most questions, are stated to have accepted the Forke amendment without protest in caucus, but there is a feeling that they are far from wiling to take any action that might result in a dangerously close vote.

Mr. Forke's disqualified substitute read as follows:

"That the House regrets that the budget presented by the acting Minister of Finance contains evidence of the application of unsound principles of public finance, affords no relief from excessive burdens of indirect taxation, and constitutes a failure to carry into effect the substantial economies in public expenditure and the fiscal policy of the Liberal party as from time to time enunciated, and that the policy of protection maintained in the present budget has greatly increased costs of living and production and has failed to provide adequate revenues or to prevent serious depression in trade and industry.

"And be it further resolved that revision of the tariff schedules based on the needs for revenues, instead of on the principle of protection, is long overdue, and should be immediately undertaken in order to bring down the cost of living, and to place our industries on a permanently sound basis."

War pensions now are costing Great Britain about $200,000,000 a year less than in 1920, because of the re-marriages of war widows.

QUEBEC INDIANS CLAIM RIGHT TO TRAP WITHOUT LICENSE IN THE MARSHES ALONG TRENT WATERS

Contend Privilege Antedating White Man's Ownership is Still in Effect.

RIPARIAN PROBLEM

Police Court Case Adjourned to Enable Them to Engage Counsel.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 27. — The question as to whether Indians may trap muskrats in season, without the payment of the license fee is still unsettled so far as this district is concerned. The cases set for hearing in the police court yesterday were adjourned until Thursday of next week as the three defendants against whom charges had been laid, appeared without counsel, and Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr, of Cobourg, who had charge of the case for the prosecution did not care to take what might seem an unfair advantage of the trappers. At the adjourned hearing it is likely that the defendants will be represented by a lawyer from the Indian Department.

Defendants From Quebec.

The charges of trapping muskrats without the payment of the license fee were brought by R. J. Allan, the local inspector, and J. W. Coffey, of Ottawa, inspector for the Eastern Ontario, was on hand to watch the proceedings. Police Magistrate Payne presided.

The three Indians who were hailed into court were Tom Foote Joe Sherow and Peter Sam, all from St. Regis, Que. To all non-residents of Ontario the license fee for trapping muskrats is $50.00. This fee the defendants have failed to pay, but as it appeared that Peter Sam had not attempted to do any trapping since coming to this district, the case against him was dropped. The others make no denial of the fact that they have trapped, their contention being that as Indians they are not required to take out licenses.

In taking this stand the defendants have been acting on the advice of their chief, James Moses, a letter from whom was produced in court. The chief cites a statute dated 1904 and his interpretation of this Act is that Indians are exempt from the payment of license fees.

"As long as grass grows or water runs," wrote the chief, "Indians can trap, hunt or fish."

Magistrate Payne Explains.

Magistrate Payne explained carefully to the defendants that the case would be adjourned on condition that until it was finally disposed of the Indians would give an undertaking that they would do no trapping.

It was then decided that this would work a hardship to the defendants by shortening the trapping season, which closes on April 15. They were offered the privilege of carrying on if they each paid into court $50, the price of a license, and to this condition they agreed. Peter Sam, however, made no deposit and must not trap.

Magistrate Payne told the defendants that they have no more rights as trappers than white men have, according to a ruling by a Justice of the Supreme court. They had been trapping without licenses outside of their reserve, hence the charge against them. The hearing was adjourned to give them a chance to be represented by counsel.

All of the Indians resident in Ontario who are trapping at Bradley Bay and Hoard's Station, have taken out licenses, which costs them $5 each.

Under the Act farmers and their sons are given the right to trap animals, other than mink and otter on their own land and it is held that this right is conceded Indians so long as they confine themselves to their own reservations.

Two Lacrosse Players.

Among the men who came from St. Regis to this district to trap were Tom and Paul Thomas, who played with the Campbellford lacrosse team when that famous aggregation was leading all competitors. The Thomas borthers, rather than put up $100 for two licenses, returned home without setting a trap. They remarked on the difference between the reception given them now that they are no longer athletic stars. When they were in the heyday of their lacrosse career, they were acclaimed by the people of the district everywhere, and were accorded the freedom of the town of Campbellford. And this year, for a short chance to earn a little money a fee of $50 each was exacted.

NO TICKET, NO VOTE

Electors in Uruguay Must Carry Elaborate Cards to Get Ballots.

MONTEVIDEO, March 27. — (Associated Press).—Uruguay believes it has put an end to fraudulent voting for public officers, a practice that flourished exceedingly, and with many ingenious evasions, in previous elections.

At the recent polling for national senators each voter had to present an elaborate card bearing his number, name and surname and any other name by which he was known, his signature, his photograph and his finger print.

MANY ARE SMUG IN CONVERSION

We Must "Turn" Again and Again to God, Says Pastor.

MARMORA SERMON

MARMORA, March 26. — The Feast of the Annunciation was duly observed with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 a.m. and Litany and Sermon at 7.30 p.m. At the latter service the preacher was the Rev. G. O. Davis, B. A., of Rawdon who took as his subject for the fourth of the series of Lenten sermons "Conversion," He commenced by saying that the term conversion was used very loosely in describing the attitude of those who are Christians.

Literally conversion means turning again. It gives the picture of a man upon a certain road turning around and then retracing his steps. The act of conversion is our turning towards our Heavenly Father and permitting ourselves to be overpowered by His Grace. We should not think that converted, we were always converted. We must, because we have no power to help ourselves, turn again and again. Prayer and sacraments must follow on after conversion. We do not learn our Faith suddenly We are learning it until our last days on earth. The question has been asked "Which is right, sudden or gradual conversion? " Both are right. Some people who have been opposing God need a shock to set them thinking right and God may employ in their case a sudden method of conversion. It may be gradual conversion in the case of one who has not done anything grievously wrong. We all need conversion. There is the tendency to become too satisfied with ourselves The religious people of Christ's day would not be anything but grown up people before God, so Christ said to them. "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven."

The chief offence of the cross, it has been said is its simplicity. We do not need religion to be able to admire a glorious sunset. We do need Christ to help up to consecrate and beautify the trivial things even of our life. Resultant from true conversion are humility, penitence and amendment of life. When a man reaches the age of twnety-five, the world gives him a certain character He is pigeon-holed and the world fastens that particular on to him for life. Jesus taught differently to this. He taught the possibility of conversion. Since of ourselves we cannot help ourselves we should even turn to God for grace to do our part in His Kingdom.

SHAME HIDES FACES OF SCANDAL PRINCIPALS

SHAME. The finger of Scandal scrawls that caption across this picture.

On the left is Mrs. Dorothy Dennistoun, plaintiff in the sensational trial in London involving high persons in social circles.

On the right is Alimina, dowager Countess of Carnarvon, present wife of Col. Ian Dennistoun, defendant in the suit brought by his first wife.

Both were photographed while on the way to court where all the scandalous features of the lives of the principals were exposed.

See, they swathed themselves in clothes so that their faces were covered and they were hidden from the public gaze!

The pertinent thing is that they could not hide their own thoughts from themselves and it was their own thoughts which caused them to seek protection from the public eye.

Shame is an inward curse. It lies not in the eyes of others.

LENTEN SERVICE HELD IN DELORO

Social Activities of Community Should be Under the Church.

KEEP SUNDAY HOLY

MARMORA, March 26.—A Lenten service was held in Deloro on Wednesday night. Rev. J. M. Whyte, of Eldorado was the preacher for the evening. He spoke from Exodus, 14:15, "And the Lord said unto Moses: Wherefore, criest thou unto Me? Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." The subject was the "Problems of the church and how to meet them." He said the social activities of a community should be under the church. Also of the laxness of keeping the fourth commandment.

The Sabbath preparations should be made on Saturday, and the Sabbath is a day of worship and rest.

The only way for the church to go forward is through consecration to Christ.

Mrs. Williams sang a much appreciated solo.

Young People's League.

The Young People's League of the Methodist church was led on Wednesday night, by the Busy Bees class of the S. school. There was a good attendance. 'MY IRISH ROSE' AT JANETVILLE

Splendid Play Given by Young People in the Foresters' Hall.

GOOD AUDIENCE

On Friday evening last, in the Foresters Hall, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church, the play entitled "My Irish Rose" was staged by the young people and was an unqualified "hit." The intervals between the acts were occupied by instrumental, literary and humorous vocal selection, which were followed by storms of applause. Jean Stinson excelled herself as she represented in most delightful monologue, a typical Irish character, setting forth the philosophy of the common Irish crowd. Miss Richardson of Tweed, school teacher of North Janetville, and Mrs. W. E. Sanderson of the village, also delighted the audience with well chosen selections on the Hawaiian guitar. Harry Thornton and Archie Stinson were in their element and "on their toes," as they rendered a number of humorous, homespun, rattling ditties, which, while admitting of apt local application, were received with pleasure and applause, bringing into the limelight two of Janetville's jolly good sports, and putting the audience into right good humor.

The characters represented in the play were composed of six men and six women, and were as follows:

R. J. Burn, as Colum McCormack, a prosperous Irish farmer of County Kildare; John Cawood, as Maurice Fitzgerald, a rich young Dublin artist; Percy Walker, as Terry Creigan, McCormack's nephew, a young Irish Patriot in exile; Archie Stinson, as Mr. Archibald Pennywitt, a wealthy English tourist; Victor Blatherwick, as Michael Peperdine, an eminent Dublin barrister; W. E. Sanderson, as Shawn McGilly, the laziest man in County Kildare; Miss Gray, as Ann Mary McCormack, Column's sister, with a true Irish heart; Mrs. R. J. Burn, as Widow Hannigan, with money in the bank, and an eye on Colum; Mrs. W. E. Sanderson, as Eileen Fitzgerald, a Dublin heiress; Miss Richardson, as Lady Agnes Barricklow, who hesitates at nothing; Freda Jacket, as Pegeen Burke, a servant on the McCormack Farm; Miss Bone, as Rose Creigan, a Wild Irish Rose.

It is not too much to say that each and every in the cast acquitted himself with the greatest credit.

The committee in charge, Mrs. R. J. Burn, Mrs. J. Bradburn, and Mrs. W. E. Sanderson, are to be congratulated on the selection of the play, and the request has been made that it be repeated in the near future.

Cecil Robinson presided at the piano with his usual ability, while one of the largest audiences of the season filled the hall, the proceeds amounting to the neat sum of $66.00.

The play was opened by a few words from the pastor, and then the program proceeded without interruption to its close.

ATTRIBUTES OF AN IDEAL WOMAN

Her Character Delineated by Rev. F. H. Howard in Millbrook Address.

MILLBROOK, March 26. — "The Ideal Woman" was the topic for discussion at the Young People's League this week, the pastor, Rev F. H. Howard, giving the address which was listened to with close attention, and which brought up many interesting points for consideration. Some attributes noted were a refined simplicity, intuitive, practical wisdom, delicate and beautiful blossoms of imagination, and a more sincere and ardent piety than man, generally speaking, possesses. "Virtue, modesty, and truth are the guardian angels of true womanhood, and compassion her highest excellence, charity being the root from which it springs."

The ideal woman may not be met with every day, any more than the ideal man, yet her characteristics, in not so small degree, are encountered in the wife who is a kindred spirit, and adaptable, helpful companion to her husband; in the mother who takes the best advantage of the opportunity of making first, and highest impressions on the minds of her children, realizing that there are always the deepest and most permanent.

"The Ideal man" will be the topic taken up by the league in the near future.

Readings, suitable to the subject this week, were given by Misses Marjorie Skitch, and Dorothy Crossley, and a solo, "The Hymns of the Old, Home Church," by Miss Phyllis Richards, added to the evening's enjoyment.

The series of Slides on "Canada's Water Powers," from the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, will be shown at the meeting on Monday, March 30th, under the auspices of the "Wide Awakes" C. G. I. T. group. The general public is cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. J. Stewart, of Peterborough, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, this week.

The sale of home-made baking, candy, etc., which the Woman's Missionary Auxilliary of the Methodist church is holding on Saturday March 28th, will be in C. C. Garside's store, instead of the one lately occupied by J. L. Byam, and now leased by the Millbrook Producers' Association, under the management of H. McDowell.

GOOD PRICES AT DOURO AUCTION

Cows Brought From $30 to $60 on T. Kennedy Farm.

DOURO, March 26.—The sale of farm stock and implements, owned in part by the estate of the late Mr. Edward Welsh, held at the farm of Mr. Tim Kennedy on Tuesday, March 24, brought good prices. Bidding on live stock was brisk and prices ranged as follows: Cows, $30 to $60; horses, only two old ones were offered and sold for a few dollars; year old calves brought $20.50 apiece; store hogs $21.50 apiece; hens $1.10 apiece; 20 cords of mixed wood, $4 per cord; machinery did not sell as well as live stock. On the 50 acres of land offered for sale a bid of $1,500 was made but the land was not sold.

In the Examiner correspondence from a southern town it was noticed that the residents of a southern township made a presentation to the telephone operators of the township in appreciation of the satisfactory service given. In other parts of Canada the "hello girls" and mail carriers are always remembered by those whom they serve, at the Christmas season.

Which prompts a word of praise to those who operate the Douro "central." They give an excellent service and patient, courteous treatment from the operators. We have practically a twenty-four service, which is more than we can expect for the small remuneration paid. In some nearby townships the central office closes at 9 p.m.

A tribute is also due to the "trouble man." Our lines here are kept in good condition and we have little or no trouble. Mr. Michael Whibbs held the position for some time, but a short time ago Mr. Chas. Towns took charge.

Mrs. Wm. Forsythe attended the Presbyterian Sunday school convention in Peterborough.

Mrs. Bridget O'Leary of Peterborough, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Timothy Garvey.

Quite a number from here attended the funeral of the late Edward English in Asphodel on Tuesday.

Several from the township attended the auction sale on the farm of Mr. Patrick English in Asphodel on Tuesday.

HUMAN CANCER IS STILL A MYSTERY

Scientists Still Unable to Find Cause of the Disease.

NEW YORK (United Press).—Cause of human cancer still baffles science, according to Dr. Michael Levine, biologist in charge of cancer research at the Montefiore Hospital, New York, who asserts that "the recent claims of the dicovery are preliminary reports and lack adequate proof."

Dr. Levine is engaged in an exhaustive study of plant concers, and in a report to the board of managers of the New York Botanical Garden he says it has been found that certain types of plant tumors, known as crown galls, "are analogous to human and animal cancer."

Dr. Levine's studies, directed largely toward making comparisons between cancer of animals and plants, are still in progress at the Montefiore Hospital, which is providing facilities for studying both [illegible] and animal cancer. Plant tumors are photographed under the [illegible] process of investigating cancer-like growths of plants.

Burkes Peerage Reveals Romance and Some Amazing Confessions.

TITLE CONTESTED.

Six Claimants to Asquith's Ancient Earldom of Oxford.

By F. CUNLIFFE-OWEN, C.B.E.

Here and abroad there are numerous pseudo-genealogists who, for a fee, will "establish" for you a blood relationship with foreign titled families on the strength of a mere similarity of patronymics. Many of these tracings are purely fictitious; yet it is true that records of families in the British peerage and baronetage mention instances of members who have "emigrated to America." As a consequence, it is no exaggeration to say, nearly every one of the 3,000 or so British and Irish peerages and baronetcies now in existence, and many that have become dormant, has from one to a score of American claimants.

To such searchers and claimants the appearance each year of Burke's Peerage is regarded in the light of an event. Founded more than a hundred years ago by John Burke, perhaps the most celebrated genealogist of the eighteenth century, no book, next to the Bible, carried so much weight with the average Briton as this time-honored genealogical pages.

Nowadays it is issued over the name and under the auspices of his grandson, Sir Henry Farnham Burke, K.C.V.O., Garter King-of-Arms and head of the Royal College of Arms, which since the reign of King Richard III, has been entrusted by the British Crown with the duty of regulating the grant and the bearing of heraldic devices and of coats-of-arms.

30,000 Correct the Proofs.

Compilation entails a colossal amount of continuous research. The contents of Burke's Peerage are constantly being invoked in all sorts of litigation. The slightest error may lead to lawsuits against the publishers and editors. Chief among the editors is that authority on all questions of ancestry and lineage, Alfred Butler.

The work of classification arrangement and correction is never ended for the reason that it is necessary to keep pace with the very large number of changes that are constantly taking place. Every day the newspapers are searched for notices of births, marriages and deaths, and a form is sent to each family concerned asking for confirmation. Each issue of the London Official Gazette, the oldest British journal in existence, is also gone through from first page to last for notices of new peerage creations, promotions, appointments and other honors. Every new fact so discovered is on the same day entered on the working proofs of the new volume.

In order to obtain the utmost accuracy nearly 30,000 proofs are sent out for each issue, not only to the heads of families, but also to all collateral branches of families whose addresses are known. Sometimes the validity of the tenure of peerages, baronetages and of entailed estates turns on a single such error of date. Thus, evidence from the discovery of an old family document that some one who is said to have died on June 12, 1551, did not, as a matter of fact, die until August 15, 1552, becomes important.

Dukedom Hangs on a Date.

A case in point is that of the historic and illustrious Dukedom of Somerset. The rights of General Sir Edward Seymour to succeed to it, put forward years ago, are being contested by the Marquis of Hereford, formerly Lord Yarmouth, the former brother-in-law of Harry Thaw. Lord Yarmouth, during the lifetime of his father, was unpleasantly known in America, as well as in Australia and in England, as the "Yarmouth bloater."

As in many similar instances, the whole issue of the Seymour claim turns on a question of dates. General Sir Edward Seymour, until the death of the fifteenth Duke of Somerset without male issue, in October, 1923, was regarded as the lawful heir to the honors and to what remains of once vast estates. He based his claims on descent from the eighth Duke's grandson, Colonel Francis Compton-Seymour of the Grenadier Guards.

There is no question as to the legitimacy of the Colonel's descent from the first marriage of the first Duke of Somerset, the great Lord Protector of the Realm during the minority of his nephew King Edward VI., the Duke's sister having been Queen Jane, one of the many consorts of Henry VIII. But in 1787 the Colonel contracted a romantic union with a beautiful woman, Leonora Perkins, widow of John Hudson, a petty officer on board a vessel owned by the East India Company.

John Hudson is recorded as having died at Calcutta and as having been buried there on Sept. 27, 1786. Indeed, the certificate of his burial at Calcutta on that date is in the possession of General Sir Edward Seymour, whose rights to the dukedom are contested. On the strength of this certificate of burial and of the subsequent probating of John Hudson's will by the courts in London, disposing of his savings and prize money, Colonel Francis Compton-Seymour married Hudson's widow in London on Sept. 3, 1787, at St. Michael's Church, Crooked Lane, three months after the probating of the will. In the following year, 1788, Mrs. Compton-Seymour gave birth to a son, of whom Colonel Francis Compton-Seymour was the father. That son figures in the standard peerages as the grandfather of General Sir Edward Seymour.

$1,000 for Marriage Certificate.

Now the Marquis of Hereford, who also is descended from the first Duke of Somerset, brings documentary evidence to show that John Hudson did not die at Calcutta, and that instead of dying he merely deserted his ship there, returning to England, where he lived at 28 High Street, Paddington, in London, until June 26, 1791, when he died in Middlesex Hospital and was buried in the churchyard of St. George's, Hanover Square, where he had married Leonora Hudson in 1768, as shown by the Paddington parish rate books and land tax returns.

The Marquis also insists that in the same year, 1792, five years after John Hudson's alleged death, in Calcutta, Colonel Francis Compton-Seymour and Leonora Hudson went through another ceremony of marriage, which would indicate that they were convinced of the illegality of their first marriage. In which case, of course, their son, born four years previously, would be illegitimate.

The certificate of this second marriage, which the Marquis needs to clinch his case against the General's rights to the dukedom, is missing. He has consequently flooded England with circulars offering $1,000 reward for any documentary evidence of this second marriage of Colonel Francis Compton-Seymour and Leonora Hudson.

The issue, which thus turns on the question of the date of John Hudson's death, is still before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords, which in due course will make its recommendation to the Crown.

And unless it can be proved to the satisfaction of the committee that John Hudson did actually die at Calcutta, instead of four years later in London, as shown by the Paddington Parish Rate Books, General Sir Edward Seymour will be debarred from taking his seat in the House of Lords as sixtieth Duke of Somerset. Then the Marquis of Hereford will be called upon to prove that his own claims to the Somerset dukedom, as well as the rights of his younger brothers, Lord Henry Seymour and Lord George Seymour, are without a flaw.

Amazing Confessions.

This case of the Tudor Dukedom of Somerset is not the sole example of romance, drama or tragedy in the new Burke's Peerage. There are the protests, legal and otherwise, which have been lodged against ex-Premier Herbert Asquith's selection of the Earldom of Oxford as the title of his peerage. There is the extraordinary confession of bastardy involving the fair name of his mother by Sir Philip Dawson. He is one of the most eminent of England's consulting engineers, the illegitimate son of Field Marshal Sir Neville Chamberlain, and he makes the confession in order to save his seat in Parliament. Likewise there is the amazing biography of the Earl of Durham's cousin, Arthur Lambton, entitled "My Story."

Arthur Lambton in his book, just published, deals with the stigma of his birth. Owing to selfish pecuniary considerations his soldier father refused, he says, to wed his mother. "After he had married her too late to legitimatize his children he refused to accord recognition to the children. Mr. Lambton describes an interview which, when a boy, he had with the then editor of Burke's Peerage. According to Arthur Lambton the editor exclaimed:

"I have had to listen to many painful stories in my capacity as editor of this Peerage. I have had women on their knees on this floor, wailing for me to put their names in the book, or to conceal the truth where it affected their honor and fair name, or that of those most dear to them. But never have I been more moved than in your case. The tragedy of a boy like you coming to me, a perfect stranger, to find out if your father and mother were married before your birth."

Earl Asquith's New Nickname.

Owing to the insistence of his masterful wife ex-Premier Asquith made it a condition of his withdrawal from the House of Commons into the dignified retirement of the House of Lords that his title should be Earldom of Oxford. Personally he wished to follow the example of retaining his own name like ex-Premier Arthur Balfour, who became the Earl Balfour, and Lord John Russell, who became the Earl Russell. But his wife contended that there was already a Lord Asquith in the uppern chamber, descended from the same Elizabethan merchant ancestor as her husband, and that it would be confusing to have a "Lord Askwith" and an "Earl Asquith" sitting in the same gilded chamber.

Both he and she were warned at the time that their insistence upon the Earldom of Oxford would cause protest, and possibly might lead to their being compelled to abandon their historic title. So a compromise was effected by the terms of which the ex-Premier's Earldom was gazetted as that of "Oxford and of Asquith." Whatever happens they will remain an Earl and a Countess, even if no longer "Oxfords."

Their friends and acquaintances have already transformed the style of this dual earldom into "Oxquith." It is said that neither of them offers objection to this compound name, but both find amusement therein.

Contest Asquith "Usurpation"

The protests and objections to the revival of the ancient Earldom of Oxford in honor of Asquith were not long in coming. All sorts of legal proceedings are pending, not only in the ordinary courts of law, where "caveats" have been lodged, but also before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords.

As shown in 925 "Burke's Peerage," there are at least twenty claimants to the Earldom of Oxford. It was created in 1142 by Empress Maud and afterwards confirmed by her son, Henry II, in favor of Aubrey de Vere, whose family was extolled by the historian Lord Macaulay as "the longest and most illustrious line of nobles that England has ever seen." The surname was derived from the village of Vere, near Bayeaux, Normandy, and was first established in England by Albericus de Vere, a companion-in-arms of the Conqueror at the Battle of Hastings.

There were twenty De Vere Earls of Oxford until the earldom was supposed to have lapsed in the direct male line in 70, the daughter of the twentieth Earl, Lady Diana de Vere by name, inheriting the Barony of De Vere, but not her father's Earldom of Oxford. Lady Diana de Vere, a peeress in her own right, married the first Duke of St. Albans, natural son of Charles II. and of his orange girl favorite, Nell Gwynne. Thus, among the dignities of the Duke of St. Albans to-day is the ancient Barony of De Vere, and he has long been a claimant for the Earldom of Oxford.

So, too, is King George's close personal friend, the Duke of Atholl, one of the heirs of the De Vere Earls of Oxford. Other claimants are the Marquis of Lincolnshire, the Marquis of Cholmondeley, and the Earl of Ancaster, who married Miss Eloise Breese of New York. Finally the banker, George Drummond of Pittsford Hall, Northampton, is a claimant. He is a member of the historic house of Drummond, of which the fifteenth Earl of Perth is the present head.

Indeed, it is George Drummond, a man of high standing in the social and financial world and abundant money with which to fight his claims, or rather to fight against what he denounces as the usurpation of the Earldom of Oxford by the Asquiths, who has lodged the principal caveat against him.

George Drummond contends he has been already acknowledged in law as the senior heir general and principal representative of the twentieth and last De Vere Earls of Oxford. The question of its revival in his favor depends entirely upon the legal decision as to whether the De Vere Earldom of Oxford, like most other peerages created prior to the era of the Stuart kings and queens, was, like all baronies of that epoch, heritable in the female as well as in the male line.

That issue has long been under consideration and will come up for final decision within the next twelve months. If it is determined that the De Vere Earldom of Oxford is heritable in the female line, as most genealogists are inclined to believe, then the Crown would be called upon to revive it either in favor of George Drummond, the Duke of St. Albans, the Duke of Atholl or one of the score of other descendants in the female line from the De Vere Earls of Oxford.

Herbert Asquith, however, affects to feel himself secure in the possession of the Earldom of Oxford through the fact that in 1712 "good Queen Anne," believing the Earldom of Oxford to be extinct, bestowed it at the instance of her unscrupulous favorite, Mrs. Masham, upon the latter's cousin, Sir Edward Harley. It is to him that the British Museum owes the nucleus of its world-famed library and collection of manuscripts. Many protests were filed against his adoption of the title of Earl of Oxford. But at that time no legal action was taken. Then the Harleyan Earls of Oxford became extinct with the death of the sixth Earl in 85.

But when, in 1892, Viscount Cranbrook, Lord President of the Privy Council, was advanced by Queen Victoria to an earldom he begged her to allow him to take for his new title that of the Earl of Oxford. He begged it on the ground that as member of the House of Commons he had ousted William E. Gladstone from the representation of Oxford in the lower chamber. The aged Queen was so overwhelmed with protests from those who claimed rights to the Earldom of Oxford by virtue of descent that she directed Lord Cranbrook to content himself with the title Earl of Cranbrook.

DIGGING INTO THE PAST

More pages of the world's history are believed to have been exposed by the excavation (shown above) made near the great Pyramid of Ghizeh in Egypt by the Harvard-Boston Archaeological Expedition. They have uncovered what is believed by many to be the tomb of King Seneferu, who ante-date King Tut by some 1500 years.

JAPAN GETS BACK TO NORMAL STATE

Business Man Says She Will Recover in Less Than Six Months.

TOKYO, March 26 (Canadian Press).—Japan, in the opinion of Dr. Takuma Dan, head of the far flung Mitsui interests, and one of the empire's greatest business figures, will get back on its feet economically within the next six months.

Dr. Dan believes that during that period the yen will get back close to its normal standing; that there will be a general renaissance in Japanese foreign trade; that there will be a restoration of confidence in business, and that exports will exceed imports.

"One of the chief factors will be the psychological stimulus," said Dr. Dan. "The nation is just now recovering, first of all from the post-war upheaval and unrest, and then from the cataclysm of the earthquake. We are just beginning to need less material for reconstruction from abroad and to utilize more of our own natural resources.

"Numerous industries in this country were inflated during the war, and others were created that had no justification for existence under normal conditions. Vast steel works, for example, were erected in the greatest haste to fulfil the requirements of a nation engaged in the temporary and wasteful business of war. Many of those industries that are not needed in peacetime have been weeded out, and many of those that were useful, but inordinately inflated, have been restored to normal by careful and stable reorganization. But a few survive and they are fairly certain to be eliminated this year, to the advantage of the country's industrial welfare.

"The men attracted to the city by the unnatural industries of the war and subsequent years were mostly from the country, and the country will absorb them, and is already absorbing them, again," Dr. Dan went on to say. "There is plenty of room for them all in the country. Japan has large deposits of coal and iron, in spite of statements to the contrary. One day these industries will be properly developed and this nation will become self-dependent. So here is another vast outlet for unemployment. Then there is the artificial silk industry that seems destined to reach vast proportions soon. As an industrial country Japan is still very young. Opportunities for expansion seem at present to be almost without limit."

Congressman Refuses To Take Increased Pay

WASHINGTON, March 27 (By Canadian Press).—Because he opposed a salary boost voted to members of Congress late last session, Representative Henry St. George Tucker, Virginia Democrat, refuses to accept $2,500 additional salary due him. As a result Sergeant-At-Arms Rodgers, who is also congressional paymaster, has this amount over and "doesn't know what to do with it."

The case recalls the action of Representative Tucker's grandfather who, in 1816, while a member of the house, refused a pay increase of $8 a day.

SONG WRITER HAS TAKEN SILK AT 76

Frederick E. Weatherley Wrote "Nancy Lee" and "Roses of Picardy."

LONDON, March 27—(By Mail).—Many Canadian lawyers who have from time to time pleaded before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council will learn with pleasurable interest that the name of Hon. Geoffrey Lawrence is included among fourteen members of the English Bar who have just been raised to the dignity of King's Counsel. Mr. Lawrence for many years past, has practiced extensively before the Judicial Committee, and has appeared in most of the Canadian appeals which have been brought there. He is the third son of Lord Trevethin, who was for some time Lord Chief Justice.

Among the other new K.C.'s is Frederick E. Weatherley, who "takes silk" at the age of 76. He is much better known as a song-writer than as an advocate, for his contributions in this direction number well over 2,000, and include such favorites as "Nancy Lee" (written in the space of a few minutes), "Darby and Joan," "The Deathless Army," and dozens of other popular ballads of forty years or more back. His more modern successes include "Roses of Picardy" and "Thora."

Death Ends Dog's Watch At Grave Of Master

LANCASTER, Ohio, March 27 (By Canadian Press).—A lonely death watch began last July by Nero, a dog, ended recently with the end of the canine's life coming as he stood guard over his master's grave.

When his owner was shot to death in a gun battle with prohibition men in July of last year, Nero followed the funeral to the cemetery where he has kept watch daily, leaving the grave at short intervals only for food. All efforts to coax the dog away failed.

JAPAN GAINS FROM TREATY

New Trade Pact Gives Japs Rights in Russian Raw Material,

DEVELOP SIBERIA

TOKYO, March 27 (Canadian Press)—Japan is expected to reap a commercial harvest as a result of the Japanese-Russian trade treaty that has recently been negotiated. A survey of economic conditions by experts shows that, when normal times return, Japan will benefit enormously because of the vast undeveloped natural resources of Russia, and that at the same time Russia will also profit much in the development of her raw materials and the general growth of her industries with the aid of Japanese capital and expert labor.

Japan will gain from Russian fishing rights, forest privileges, rice growing industries, shipping, oil and flax industries, while Russia will be able to supply her markets with Japanese cotton and silk textiles, chemicals, machinery, and take advantage of the other's shipping facilities.

That the fishing industries along Siberia's coast will witness rapid development is the belief of business men of both countries. Practically all of the East Siberian forestry rights will be in the hands of the Japanese when detailed agreements on industrial concessions are drawn up.

Although the Soviet government protects its textile industry by creating a trust, the cost of production is still high, and if Japanese cotton and silk goods can be placed in the Siberian markets, both countries will be able to benefit.

What Soviet Russia lacks most today is adequate shipping facilities. Most of her exports are carried by foreign ships, and in this respect Japan can come to the aid of the Russians by offering the services of her large merchant fleet.

On the heels of the signing of the commercial treaty, the launching of a huge Japanese business corporation for the exploitation of the lumber resources of Siberia, to be backed by some of the most powerful interests in Japan, has been announced. The company will operate under the name of the Russian Forestry Society.

Japanese interest also intend to develop the oil resources of Siberia and Saghalien, to which exclusive rights are now held.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

LOSE WEIGHT.

Two whole stewed dried pears, 1 soft boiled egg, ½ cup strained vegetable soup, 6 ounces roast leg of spring lamb, 2 tablespoons mint sauce, 12 stalks fresh asparagus, grapefruit and celery salad, 2 toasted water crackers with 1 ounce Roquefort cheese, "demi-tasse" black unsweetened coffee, 3 radishes, 2 olives, 1 stalk celery, 2 crisp pieces unbuttered whole wheat toast, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1101. Protein, 293; fat, 356; carbohydrate, 452. Iron, .0173 gram.

This menu is planned as a suggestion for a formal dinner at home or at a restaurant. The pears, egg and toast could be used as breakfast and the skimmed milk can be divided between luncheon and a hot "nightcap."

The pears are of course unsweetened and the egg is seasoned with salt and pepper but no butter.

Many persons on a reducing diet find it advisable to use very little or no salt.

GAIN WEIGHT.

Two whole well sweetened stewed dried pears, 2 tablespoons hash with 1 poached egg on toast, 1 cup cream of spinach soup with 1 tablespoon whipped cream, 4 ounces baked sausage with 2 buckwheat pancakes and 2 tablespoons maple syrup, ½ cup creamed carrots, ½ cup consomme, 6 ounces roast leg of lamb, 2 tablespoons mint sauce, 3 new potatoes in parsley butter, 12 stalks fresh asparagus with 3 tablespoons drawn butter sauce, grapefruit and celery salad with 4 tablespoons olive oil, ½ cup fresh strawberry ice cream, 4 macaroons, 2 toasted water crackers with 1 ounce Roquefort cheese, 3 radishes, 4 olives, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 "hard" rolls, 1 pint whole milk, 2 toasted bread sticks.

Total calories, 3956. Protein, 421; fat, 1652; carbohydrate, 1883. Iron, .0182 gram.

The whipped cream for the spinach soup is seasoned with salt.

No dessert is provided for the luncheon menu as the hot cakes and maple syrup are in the nature of a sweet.

In the event that sausage is not desirable, ham timbales or a club sandwich should be substituted. Hot water or very weak tea will be beneficial with the luncheon.

No coffee is suggested for the gaining diet as even a demi-tasse is too stimulating for undernourished nerves.

FALSE TEETH CLATTER.

Persons with false teeth can't entertain by radio. The least clattering of their teeth can be heard through the delicate microphone. That's why a speaker at KGO, Oakland, Calif., had to be disqualified.

FIFTH AVENUE SPRING STYLES

Skirts Are Short and Flaring and Bright Colors Are Worn.

PEARLS MUCH WORN

By HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor of the United Press
Written for the United Press

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 27.—
A short skirt that's daring,
A hemline that's flaring,
A color that's glaring,
Is what they are wearing!

As one walks up Fifth Avenue one finds similar evidence of Spring fashions on every woman who has been bold enough to forsake her winter furs. Skirts are short—very much so! The front flare of the hemline causes them to appear shorter than they actually are. Bright colors used in conjunction with black and complete outfits of softer colors, such as gray, light tans, mist, and ashes of roses are many. There are very few all black outfits this season and black and white combinations are not as popular as black combined with color.

Among the newest Spring outfits are long black satin coats, hip-length suits of double breasted design and ensemble suits. The young miss seems to prefer the hip-length suit of mannish material which she wears with a colorful crepe de chene blouse. Her blouse is made with a deep V-shaped neckline in front and has a scarf of self material attached at the back of the neck which she wraps about her neck, tucking the ends under her coquette and leaving the space formed by the V neckline in front bare. Where the suit is of dark material the blouse is likely to be of dull, brick-toned pink or turquoise blue. The small felt hat is smarter if entirely black as too much color about the face is liable to be unbecoming.

Long Coats Smart.

Long coats of heavy black satin are very smart and are worn by some of the best dressed women. Usually the back is straight-lined and the front flare which begins above the knees or at a low waistline is invariably used. This flare is usually trimmed with a light colored fur verging on yellowish tones and occasionally one sees white fur on black. Collars on these satin coats, as on most coats this season, are small and untrimmed by fur. Sometimes the collar is merely a little upstanding affair an inch wide. One of the few good looking coats which was carried out in black rather than in black and light color, was made with the straight, slender line in back and the circular flare in front, the flare being heavily trimmed with long, black monkey fur. A small black felt trimmed in a cabashon of monkey fur at one side was worn with this and black pumps with yellow-toned hosiery added a new tone. Collar and sleeves were entirely untrimmed by fur.

Ensemble outfits are many, but these are confined mostly to dressier types. The newer ensembles seem to be designed in solid color and are worn with hat, hosiery and shoes to match. Light gray or platinum tones, rust, light tan and golden brown are popular shades for the ensemble. Gray trimmed with gray fox or worn with a separate scarf of fox is particularly lovely.

Felt Hats Leading.

Felt hats are leading above all others with colors such as fushia, purple, rust, Lanvin green, ashes of roses an coral predominating. Two-toned felts are quite popular, especially in fushia or periwinkle shades. Tan felts worn with the tan costume and gray felts worn with the gray costume are perhaps a trifle smarter than the felt that contrasts with the frock or suit. It is much easier to look smart in solid color than in contrasting ones.

Scarfs are again appearing on well dressed women who forsook them some months ago. Some of them are among newer types which are effect, fastened with an animal pin of brilliants in front. Maline scarfs are among the newe types which are worn on the street. These are of soft tones, either matching or blending with the frock or coat or hat.

Many felt hats use the animal pin of brilliants as their only trim. Lizards, elephants, mules, etc., made of brilliants are placed at the center front of the crown.

A well dressed girl at the Ritz Carlton wore brown velvet pumps banana colored hosiery at teatime. The remainder of her outfit was of brown.

Pale lavender stockings are one of the newest notes for evening wear with the silver slipper. When on the leg, the stockings has a lovely misty appearance rather than an orchid tone.

Every second woman seems to be wearing pearls. While the stores are featuring chokers of huge beads in gunmetal and pinkish shades, the women one encounters on the Avenue wear several strands of smaller pearls of graduating lengths fastened at the back with a single clasp.

Corsages seem to have suddenly gone out of style. One sees very few of them. Occasoinally the real orchid or bunch of violets is worn at teatime, but the unnatural flower is a minus quality at smart places.

ROOSTER CAN COUNT.

CHICAGO, March 27.—The class in experimental psychology at the University of Chicago has found a rooster that can count. Kernels of corn were placed in a line on the floor with every third one tacked down. Then the third kernels were loosened and the rooster refused to pick them up, picking up two and then skipping one.

NO CHANCE TO OWN MOTOR IN RUSSIA

Red Tape and Bad Operating Conditions Prevent Extensive Use.

(By Nea Service.)

NEW YORK, March 26.—Communistic ownership of property, severe conditions of service and lack of service facilities make it practically impossible for the average inhabitant to own an automobile in Russia.

Walter M. Wolff, after observing automotive conditions in Russia, makes this report in a communication to "Automotive Industries."

"If a man wishes to purchase an automobile," he explains, "he makes application to the soviet commerce commission in Moscow or Leningrad, giving first of all his reasons for desiring to buy the motor car. If his reasons are valid and he succeeds in obtaining a permit his order is communicated to one of the Russian purchasing or trade commission in Berlin, Rome or London.

"The Soviet purchasing agencies then cast about, as unofficial trade organizations, for the most favorable opportunity to buy automobiles or other merchandise.

"But for the common man to own a motor car in Russia, as in the United States, is simply impossible."

There are about 25,000 serviceable motor cars in Russia today, with 5,000 or 7,000 motorcycles. These face the handicaps of unfavorable climatic conditions, rough roads, lack of good service and good mechanics. Besides most of these cars are of the pre-war type, half worn out from service.

In addition, Wolff says, rubber is scarce and high priced, and gasoline is equally expensive.

SAFEGUARD MILK

British Government Considers Holding Milk Congress in London.

LONDON, March 27.—An International Milk Congress in London, similar to that held in the United States last year, is under consideration by the ministries of agriculture and health. Veterinary opinion in this country is so impressed with steps taken by the United States to prevent the spread of tuberculosis through milk taken from infected cows, that strong representations made to governmental authorities here are expected to result in similar measures in England.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milky) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

FORMULA FOR A HAPPY WEDLOCK

Tested by Judge Who Has Heard 15,000 Divorce Cases.

MARRY EARLY

CHICAGO, March 27.—Young man and young woman! If you seek happiness, don't wait until you are 30 or 35 years old before marrying.

For early marriages, says Judge Joseph Sabath Chicago's champion divorce court jurist, as a rule prove happier than late marriages.

Judge Sabath can speak with authority on the subject of marriage and divorce for in the last five years he has heard 15,000 divorce cases. Through his efforts more than 1,150 couples who went into his court to have their marriages annulled have been reconciled.

"Young men and women should marry as soon after they have reached their maturity as possible," he says, "providing they love and understand each other.

"Waiting until he is 30 or 35 imposes a period of single cussedness on the individual. He looks upon marriage from the wrong angle. He regards it as an investment that must be safe.

"Marriage is not an investment. It is an adventure to which every life and soul is entitled."

And Judge Sabath cites his own case as an example.

"I was only 18 when I was married," he says. "My wife was the same age. We ran away from our homes in Chicago to Kenosha, Wis. —eloped is the word.

"I was earning only $10 a week as a clerk in a clothing store.

"That was 37 years ago. And today we are just as happy as on the day of our wedding. We have three children. All married young.

"Too many young men wait until they are in good financial circumstances before they get married. That is a mistake, for too often when a man has made a little money he changes his mind about marriage.

"Marriage is a union of two lives, and the best time for two lives to fuse is before they have become so set in their individual ways that growing together becomes difficult.

"Although I am an advocate of early marriages, I do not favor hasty marriages. The advice of parents should be considered always.

"But once a man and woman are united, the parents of neither should interfere. Even if they think the union is not a desirable one, they should help their children in making the marriage successful and happy instead of hindering them.

"Above all, the man and woman must know and understand each other before taking the most important step in their lives.

"Both should appreciate the value of money. They must realize that marriage is a 'give and take' proposition. They must be willing to shoulder their burdens together.

"In many of the cases that come before me, I find that the trouble has begun before marriage. Many people do not regard marriage as the creation of a sacred union, but simply as an act resulting from the physical attraction of the sexes.

"Fleeting fancies and superficial sentiment is often all there is to account for many unions."

THE COUGH OR COLD

That Settles on the Lungs Is Hard to Get Rid of

These are the kin dthat are dangerous; the kind that weaken the lungs, the kind that allow the germs of consumption to get a foothold in the system.

Mr. John E. Luloff, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"Last year I had a cold, and a cough which seemed to stick on my chest. I tried different preparations, but they did not seem to help me any. I was advised, by a friend, to try and when I had taken a few doses I began to feel that it was doing me good, so I kept at it and inside of a week I was relieved of my trouble."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 35 years; you don't experiment when you buy it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BRITON CRITICIZES HOLLYWOOD MOVIES

Says German Pictures Will Supplant Them Unless Change is Made.

LONDON, March 26 (Associated Press)—In penance for his sins, or perhaps just for the fun of it, a Briton by the name of B. Southcombe has "seen all the leading moving picture films that have come to Europe during the last 15 years." He has some suggestions to make for the Hollywood and Long Island producers. If the suggestions go unheeded, Mr. Southcombe firmly expects to see Germany beat America in the movie business within five years.

Here is Mr. Southcombe's advice to the movie magnates of America:

"1. Great Britain is tired of scenes in which hotel waiters are shot dead because the eggs are boiled too hard.

"2. In Europe no right-thinking man ever goes out in a straw hat with evening dress.

"3. We are tired of pictures showing a man hanging on a scaffold pole in Broadway.

"4. Cut out all cinema artists with horn-rimmed glasses. No more dining salons with the made-up black waiter.

"5. No motor-cars in films that date back 50 years."

SCRIPTURAL PROTEST.

ROME, March 27.—As a protest against the recent censorship imposed by the Mussolini Government, one Italian newspaper printed the first chapter of Genesis in the space usually reserved for its leading article.

BADGES FOR CARE

Careful Chauffeurs Given Emblems by London City Council.

LONDON, March 27.—(Associated Press).—Of 13,182 London vehicle drivers, most of them chauffeurs, who entered a "safety first" competition instituted by the London City Council, 8,399 went through last year without an accident and have been awarded special mention and badges.

All the drivers thus recognized, and especially the taxi-cab drivers, count it a distinction to wear the Council badges.

TWENTY-TWO CHILDREN.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 26.—John Snider, a milkman living just outside the city limits, has 22 children. The school board decided it would be setting a bad precedent if it allowed 12 of them to enter the city schools without charging tuition.

PRINCE AT WEMBLEY

H. R. H. Makes Inspection of Exhibition Before Departure on Tour.

LONDON, March 26. Special. — His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, paid a short visit of inspection to the Wembley Exhibition this morning, making his last tour of the building and grounds previous to his forthcoming tour of South Africa, and South America. At the Canadian section he was met by representatives of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Government, and he expressed great interest in the new developments connected with the exhibit of the government and the railway company.

His chief delight was the new children's playground, Treasure Island, one of the outstanding features of the exhibition this year. The main attraction of which is a Canadian Pacific model train in which the children will "tour the rockies." It is expected that both from educational and entertainment view point the Wembly Exhibition will this year excell that of last year and the management is making arrangements which will enable them to direct and handle far greater crowds than were in attendance last year.

PAGE PONCE DE LEON!

ROME, March 26.—Sallechio, a mountain village in Piedmont, Northern Italy, has suddenly become famous. No one has died there during the last three years. It is also claimed that no one there drinks wine, quarrels or steals and that perfect harmony reigns among the inhabitants. Many tourists are now flocking to the village.

MacDONALD MONUMENT.

To Be Erected in Quebec Legislative Grounds.

QUEBEC, March 27.—Soon there will rise to the memory of Sir John Macdonald a monument in the Quebec Legislative grounds, announced Hon. A. Galipeault, Minister of Public Works and Labor, when the estimates in his budget providing for a credit of $8,000 for embellishment of the grounds was being discussed. The contract is shortly to be given out, said the minister.

SUMMER BEFORE GOLD STANDARD DECISION MADE

British Government to Exercise Utmost Care in Handling Financial Problem.

MANY OPPOSED.

Sir Alfred Mond Points Out Dangers From New York Flurries.

LONDON, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—The British Government's decision concerning the restoration of the gold standard is not likely to be announced before the middle of May.

Asked for a statement on this subject in the House of Commons on Thursday, Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied he was anxious to announce the Government's decision regarding the embargo on exports of gold at the earliest possible moment, but that it was impossible to deal with the question before Easter. He thought it would be in the public interest that the Government should have a free initiative in the matter and that it should exercise the utmost care and vigilance in arriving at a decision.

As Parliament rises for three weeks for the Easter recess, Mr. Churchill's reply indicated it will be May and possibly even June, before the decision is announced.

Strong Opposition.

While the commercial and financial community is anxious for the removal of the uncertainty, there is still a strong body of opinion opposed to any hasty action to force the pace of the pound sterling toward parity with the dollar, because the high money rate which it would involve is considered as putting a brake on commercial and industrial enterprise.

In the course of an academic debate on the unemployment problem in the House of Commons, Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer during the regime of the MacDonald Labor Government, urged an early pronouncement of the British Government's decision on the gold question.

Snowden declared that British trade needed a feeling of security and stability, and although he realized that the restoration of a gold standard might have disadvantages, yet he believed that its advantages would far outweigh its possible ill-effects. He declared that all possible dangers from the restoration of the gold standard in Britain could be averted by an understanding of the United States. Such an understanding, he said, was absolutely necessary.

Harnessed to New York.

Sir Alfred Mond took an opposing view. He said:

"Now we are to be harnessed apparently to the money rate of New York. Our trade is to be further depressed whenever there is a flurry in Wall Street, because some people think we must hang on a golden cross. I hope that doctrine will be repudiated. I can imagine nothing more dangerous than to hitch our already depressed trade to the American money market as the guide, goal and lode star of Britsh finance."

WANTED FOR STEALING.

Kingston Man Said to be Arrested in New York—Wife Deserted.

KINGSTON, March 26. Special.—There were rumors in circulation here to-day that Prof. Joseph Andre, who is wanted in Kingston on a charge of theft, had been arrested in New York city.

Although the rumor could not be confirmed, it was learned that the American police authorities have been making an investigation and have communicated with the authorities in this city.

Dr. Andre, who was very prominent here in musical circles, is wanted for stealing a ring valued at $300, from a local jewelry store. He also deserted his young wife, a Kingston girl, to whom he was married three months ago. Mrs. Andre is here with her mother, who has made no charges against the accused, and does not know where her husband went.

CHIMES WAKE FANS DAILY OVER RADIO

Broadcast Bells Before Morning Exercises to Wake Sleepyheads.

NEW YORK, March 27.— With spring comes the return of daily morning setting-up exercises by radio.

This year the stunt is more popular than ever. It has been taken up by the broadcasting stations throughout the country. Radio fans are being waked up at any time between 6.30 and 8 every morning. They are being pepped up with snappy jazz music and orders.

With one broadcaster this is more than merely a new stunt in the annals of broadcasting. It is a serious effort to raise the standard of health among life insurance policy holders. For it means more in the pockets of the organization fostering the scheme.

This is true in the case of station WEAF in New York, which, with stations WCAP in Washington and WEEI in Boston, is broadcasting daily morning calisthenics for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Three separate classes are maintained each morning, each lasting 20 minutes.

The first class begins at 6.45, the second at 7.05 and the third at 7.25. The famous chimes of the Metropolitan tower in New York are used to wake up the sleepyheads.

Broadcasting station WLW, at Cincinnati, starts its morning "reduction" class at 8 o'clock. Station WOR, at Newark, N.J., has been one of the first broadcasters to take up this form of "entertainment." And many others throughout the country are doing likewise.

Of course, music, of the marchy jazzy sort, accompanies the exercises.

Pupils of WLW may write in asking for certain corrective exercises, which are accommodatingly given over the air for all "attending" the classes. Since Jan. 5, when these classes were started, the studio has gained some 200 pupils daily, it is estimated.

PROSPECTORS HAVE NOT DISAPPEARED

Adventurers and Sourdoughs Still Look for Gold in Yukon.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 27 (Canadian Press).—Keen-eyed adventurers who crowded the decks of the steamer Princess Mary when she sailed recently for Skagway belied the assertion that the old, picturesque prospector is now extinct—a more or less hallowed figure of the hectic-and romantic days of the gold rush of '98.

As it was in those days when every steam packet that could carry passengers to the land of the midnight sun left for the north closely-packed with boisterous argonauts, so it was again when the Princess Mary, her accommodation filled to capacity, sailed on an auspiciously bright morning. On her decks, as she left the dock, old-timers of the northern trails jostled with fresh-faced youngsters. Men used to roughing it stood side by side with those whose appearance seemed to indicate that they had previously encountered nothing more formidable in life than ledgers and adding machines. There were sourdoughs from all parts of the Pacific northwest whose yarns of the northland were eagerly listened to by the young chechakoes.

Brought together by the call of the north, these men would not await the coming of spring and the opening of navigation on the Stikine river. They will attempt to beat the expected stampede to the Dease Lake country, where the latest great strike is reported, by going in over the snow from the Yukon.

Once arrived at Atlin by railway and stage from Skagway, the adventurers will lash their supplies upon their sleds, hitch up their newly acquired dog teams—and mush! As to just what their destinations are, perhaps some of them are still a little hazy. But every man hopes that when he returns to "the outside" his poke will be bulging with the precious dust and nuggets. There is a light of hope almost amounting to a fever that shines in the eyes of the goldseeker, and it is unmistakeable.

It shone in the eyes of the old-timers and of the young men on the decks of the Princess Mary. All face the future with the same spirit that took the tenderfeet from all corners of the earth into the Yukon, into the Klondyke, into a land they feared but at the same time challenged—a land that is still untamed and teeming with the wealth of nature.

The same spirit, yes. But "the old order changeth," and the prospector of to-morrow will differ somewhat from his predecessors, according to a recent visitor in Vancouver, George E. Winkler, president of the Vancouver Island Prospectors' Association.

"The old-fashioned prospector," says Mr. Winkler, "was looked upon as a more or less necessary evil by certain elements in the industry, and if he was so fortunate, or unfortunate, as to acquire something that a big company wanted for little or nothing, he was regarded almost as an enemy.

"The old sourdough threatens to be eliminated by electrical prospecting devices, but I am strongly of the opinion that in a country such as British Columbia it will be found that such inventions will be used merely to supplement the work of the prospector.

"A development in prospecting that should not be overlooked is the attempt being made by one of our larger mining companies to develop its own prospecting force. This company had seventeen parties in the field last season. It would be interesting to know how results compared with costs, contrasted with securing properties under the old system.

"One thing I do know is that companies securing properties under option are not at all efficient in prospecting the surface. The engineer invariably does his work on the showings exposed by the prospector, and seems to have but little interest in exploring the surface for other showings. When a bond is taken on ground that the prospector has been able to explore thoroughly on the surface, it would be good business in many cases to keep the prospector right on the job for a few months and to lend him every assistance. It is surprising to me that this has not been recognized more generally.

"It will be a sad day for the English-speaking peoples when the spirit of adventure dies out and all the treasure hunters become extinct.

"I am a strong advocate of scientific prospecting. The day should have gone by when a picturesque old liar can wander in from a few days in the hills and tell a fairy story that will net him the price of several bottles of hootleg whiskey."

INSECTS MUST FIGHT BATTLE

Without Their Aid Man Cannot Conquer Harmful Species.

NATURAL ENEMIES

By DALE VAN EVERY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(United Press).—In the war against insects the Department of Agriculture is a man's general staff, with scientists as field marshals and entomologists as general officers, and the war is waged with every scientific method of frightfulness that can be devised.

The insect enemy is assailed with every variety of poison, is starved, his winter quarters destroyed, is surrounded and cut off from his base, while every ally, parasites, carnivorous insects, birds snakes and lizards is engaged to assist man in his battle.

But the general staff can only plan and direct. Against an enemy so numerous the general staff must have an army. In this army the department enlists farmers, children, housewives, and everyone who can be persuaded to help. Farmers are educated to realize the serious financial losses caused annually by pests and then taught to become bug killers. Housewives are urged to fight the pests which infest their gardens.

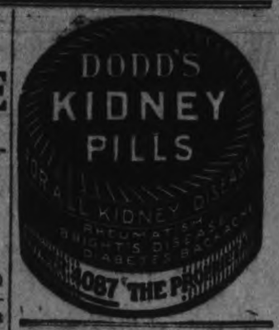
But in the long run man can not successfully combat his unbelievably numerous enemy. Airplanes may be resorted to to spray miles of cotton fields with poison but boll weevils continue to flourish. Millions may be killed, but other millions, secreted in hiding places, continue to destroy cotton. The only outstanding success ever won by man in fighting serious insect pests have been won by the use of insect allies.

The boll weevil, withstanding all man-made attacks, is routed again and again by parasites, ants, and other tiny enemies who seek it out on its own plane, destroying in a year immeasurably more weevils than man destroys with all his intelligence and machinery.

In this phase is the romance of the department's work. It has scientists searching the remotest corners of the earth for parasites and insects which may be brought to the United States to fight pests here. Bugs discovered possibly in the wilds of interior Asia or Africa are carefully transported to America and planted in the hope they may develop into killers of other insects.

The original introduction of pests like the boll weevil or the Japanese beetle into this country was accidental and the strange insects flourished because their natural enemies were not introduced with them to keep them down. The department is constantly searching for the natural enemies of foreign insect pests and whenever found the enemies are brought here to be enlisted in the continual war being waged.

But in spite of the supreme efforts being made, the depredations of insect pests continue to increase annually. In this fact the department sees the grave danger for the future. And it is for this reason the department hurries to attack the first appearance of new insects in this country, anxious to subdue them before they become such a menace as the boll weevil became.



BELIEVE QUAKE TO PUNISH FOR SINS

Hungarian Peasants in Village Where Church Was Desecrated Are Repentant.

By ROBERT H. BEST
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BUDAPEST, March 27.—Hungarian peasants living in the vicinity of Urlau are now firm believers in direct punishment from above for the sins of mankind. They are convinced that Jehovah metes out vengeance with the same promtitude and certinty that he used in Biblical times. Also they have come to have more respect for their church dignitaries as special representatives of God on earth.

Several weeks ago a number of drunken rowdies raided a church in one of the villages near Urlau. While in the church they began to quarrel, and finally one of them stabbed another. The Archbishop of Eger, on hearing of the event, sent a special proclamation to his parishioner in the village warning them that sure and certain punishment awaited them for having permitted such to take place.

Within a few days after the Archbishop's letter arrived, the whole district of Urlau was snaken by a series of destructive earthquakes. The damage was most severe in the village which had offended God by desecrating his temple. The church itself was almost totally destroyed.

Calling his flock together in an open plain, the local priest read a dissertation on respect for divine things and demanded that everyone must repent or a worse calamity might befall. The villagers needed no second urging, but fell over one and other in hitting the "saw-dust trail." They had never heard of Billy Sunday but they followed to the letter the instructions which he usually gives out to repentant sinners.

A dozen fragments of bones of the thickness of young trees trunks, and 14 huge ridged teeth, were unearthed.

OPEN UNIVERSITY IN THE HOLY LAND

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem Will Be Opened April 1.

JERUSALEM, March 27.—The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, which is to be opened here April 1 by Lord Balfour, who comes from London especially for this purpose, is the first European institution of its kind, says the university committee's announcement, "to be erected on oriental soil by an eastern people who, after 2,000 years absence, are returning to the east with the culture of the west."

The university occupies the summit of Mount Scopus, just outside the gates of the ancient city, overlooking the city of David, and in the distance may be seen the mountains of Moab and the Dead Sea. The aims of the institution were outlined at the laying of the cornerstones in July of 1918 by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, member of the central board of directors, in part, as follows:

"It seems at first sight paradoxical that in a land with so sparse a population, in a land where everything still remains to be done, in a land crying out for such simple things as ploughs, roads and harbors, we should be creating a center of spiritual and intellectual developments. But it is no paradox for those who know the soul of the Jew. It is true that great social and political problems still face us, and will demand their solution. We Jews know that when the mind is given fullest play, when we have a center for the development of Jewish consciousness, then coincidentally we shall attain the fulfilment of our material needs.

"Our university, formed by Jewish learning and Jewish energy, will mold itself into an integral part of our national structure which is in process of erection. It will have a centripetal force, attracting all that is noblest in Jewery throughout the world; a unifying center for our scattered elements. There will go forth, too, inspiration and strength, that shall revivify the power now latent in our scattered communities."

The university, as completed to date, was built by funds received from all parts of the world, several endowments of considerable amounts having come from the United States. The language to be used in the university will be the language of the prophets of old. Hebrew, and courses of free popular lectures are planned to begin this summer.

OBITUARY.

JOHN COULTER.

MILLBROOK, March 26.—Seventy-seven years ago the late John Coulter, who passed away, after a lingering illness on Friday, March 20 was born at Pontypool where the major portion of his life was spent.

Mr. Coulter's attractive personality and honest, upright character, endeared him to his relatives, and won for him a wide circle of friends. For eight years he held the position of tax collector for Manvers Township, and lately occupied the same municipal office in Cavan Township for seven years.

Following his marriage forty-seven years ago, to the late Beatrice Parker, of Bailieboro, they made their home for two years on a farm east of that village returning then to Pontypool where deceased successfully conducted a general store for some years the firm being Coulter & Perrin. His partner the late J. Perrin predeceased him about one year ago.

Retiring from business life, Mr. Coulter again took up farming, first near Pontypool, and twelve years ago removing with his son Mr. Alf. Coulter, to Zion, the latter having purchased the farm formerly owned by Hilliard Strong.

For three years Mr. and Mrs. Coulter lived in Millbrook making their home in the house on Prince Street now owned and occupied by Mrs. W. Lowes. It was during their residence here that Mrs. Coulters death occurred on March 20, 1919, exactly six years previous to the date of her husband's decease.

Two children, a boy and a girl, died in infancy, and the immediate surviving relatives are two daughters, Mrs. I. B. Walker of Medicine Hat, Man. Mrs. L. H. Northcott, of Hamilton; three sons: Walter and John, of Hamilton, and Alf. on the homestead; two sisters, Mrs. E. Syer of Millbrook, and Mrs. Eber Syer, 7th Line, Cavan; and three brothers, George of Millbrook; Thomas of Pontypool and William of Toronto.

A life-long member of the Presbyterian church, the high esteem in which deceased was held was evidenced by the large gathering which filled Grace Church, Millbrook, for the funeral service on Monday, at 2.30 p.m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan assisted by Rev. F. H. Howard.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes which covered the casket was a wreath from the Cavan Township Council, and a spray from the Cavan Women's Institute.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. J. W. Hamilton, S. Hamilton, H. Hubbeard, M. Brock, Stuart Fallis, and A. J. Henderson.

Interment took place in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral included: Mrs. Walker of Medicine Hat Man., Mrs. Northcott, and Messrs. John and Walter Coulter of Hamilton; two nephews, Ernest Syer of Orono and William Coulter of Toronto; Miss Jean Syer of Oshawa; Mr. Ernest Benson of Peterboro; Mrs. T. Parsons and Mrs. William Coulter of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Carscadden of Lindsay; Mrs. Percy Hanna of Campbellcroft; Mrs. William Coulter of Port Perry; Thomas Coulter of Pontnypool; Messrs. Harry Barnard and Richard Parker of South Monaghan.

OVER HUNDRED CANDIDATES IN SOLEMN RITE OF CONFIRMATION

All Saints' Church Was the Scene of Impressive Ceremony Last Night.

BUILDING CROWDED.

The combined confirmation services of All Saints' Church, and St. Luke's, held in All Saints' church, last evening, were well attended. The church was packed to the doors, the vestibule was filled, and lines of men stood at the rear of the building all through the service. The confirmation ceremonies were beautiful and impressive, and the large congregation listened in reverent silence to the address of the Bishop, and watched the solemn service of confirmation in the Church of England, of one hundred and five candidates, with fifty-one men and boys, and fifty-four women and girls. There was one candidate from St. John's church, thirty-seven from St. Luke's church, and sixty-seven were members of All Saints' Parish.

The confirmation ceremonies were conducted by the Right Reverend J. F. Sweeney, D.D., Bishop of Toronto, assisted by Anglican clergy of the city and district. Rev. J. K. Hughes, rector of St. George's church, acted as the Bishop's chaplain, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., rector of St. John's church, Rev. G. J. Bousfield, rector of St. Luke's, and Rev. J. D. Paterson, of All Saints, presented the candidates. Rev. Walter Cox of Lakefield, read the lesson, and Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton, of Norwood, Rural Dean, read the exhortation.

The altar of the church was beautifully decorated for the solemn occasion with a profusion of daffodils and carnations, a full-robed choir of senior and junior members was in attendance, and the candidates were attired for the solemn ceremony, the women and young girls in white frocks with white veils, the young men and boys in black suits, with carnation boutonnieres.

The Bishop opened his address with congratulatory remarks to the candidates, and to the rectors of the two churches, on the large class presenting itself, and on the splendid congregation attending the service. He regarded the occasion as a very auspicious opening for the first day of the seventeenth year of his episcopate, which commenced yesterday

Bishop's Address.

Taking as his text words from the tenth verse of the fourth chapter of St. Matthew: "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve," he went on to outline the proper spirit to be observed in worship of the Almighty. These are the words of our Master when He was wielding the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, in His conflict with our adversary, the devil, and He taught us by them how to put to flight that adversary which also menaces us. It was the first instalment in that final defeat of the powers of evil which He wrought upon the Cross."

The Lenten season, His Lorship pointed out, offered extraordinary opportunities to all or special worship and praise of God. "We may assume that God loves to have his sons and daughters worship Him in spirit and in truth, and we may also assume that if our hearts are right with God that we will love to worship Him in spirit and in truth. We must come unto God, exercising a purified faith, coming to Him because we believe that He exists, and because we believe also that He is the reward of them that seek Him, and we wish to express our recognition of the fact. But we are not simply dealing with the cold, intellectual fact that there must be a primal cause for everything that we see in the world. God wants us to give Him the worship of the head and heart together, the intellectual ascent and the ascent of the heart and the love that clasps the hand of God and says: "My God, I believe; help Thou my unbelief."

"Another characterization of the approach to God must be that of humility, with a true penitent heart. We must offer our invocations in the name of Jesus Christ, for "No man cometh unto the Father but by Me."

"We should worship God in the beauty of holiness. Being cleansed from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, with perfect holiness, in the fear of God; that is the ideal for the worship of God. And, thanksgiving is another thing we must have in our hearts when we come to the worship of God. And thanksgiving

"We assume also that when we return to God, He will return unto us; and that when we draw nigh unto Him, He will draw nigh unto us. That means when God implements His solemn promise, that we will enjoy not only pardon, but peace and rest. As St. Augustine said, in his great confession: "Oh, God, Thou has made us for Thyself, and the heart never findeth rest until it finds it in Thee."

"You cannot know God by the wisdom of the world, nor by what others know about Him. You must have a supernatural revelation to know God. You know Him as your Saviour because He loves and redeems you."

His Lordship addressed a word to the parents at the close of his discourse, exhorting them to place no obstacles in the way of spiritual advancement in their children, and to encourage them in the way of perfection by precept and example.

At the conclusion of the Bishop's address, the solemn rite of confirmation was bestowed upon the candidates, the men and boys being presented first, the white-robed girls and women later.

Several members of St. Luke's church provided cars to bring candidates from East City for the ceremony. These included Mayor J. J. Turner, and Messrs. G. L. Hay, T. Starr, Mark Burnham, Stanley Curtis, William Hepburn and R. H. Parsons.

The following candidates from St. Luke's church were confirmed last evening:

TUXIS SQUARE HAS BIG TIME

St. Andrew's Church Boys Entertain Park Street Square at Supper.

LOTS OF PIE.

The Tuxis Square of St. Andrew's Church entertained the Tuxis Square of Park Street Church at supper last night. Some forty boys gathered around the table which had been loaded with good things by the St. Andrew's boys' mothers and friends. There was pie and more pie and then some. After supper Chairman Dr. Marshall called the boys to order, and with Neil Porter at the piano, a roof-raising sing-song was enjoyed. Harley Weir welcomed the visitors in a neat speech, to which Neil Porter and Percy Luther replied with eloquence and enthusiasm. Songs, piano solos and recitations followed, contributed by Messrs. Alf. Thompson, Ernie Elliot, Percy Luther, Oliver Dixon, Ansell Taylor and Bill Saunders, all of which did not lack for vociferous applause. Favored special guests were Rev. Norman McLeod, Messrs. J. John, Joe Batten, Geo. Gillespie, J. R. Marshall and J. A. McKone, all of whom made brief speeches. The C.G.I.T. Class waited on tables.

Jack Hall in his toast to the ladies made a real hit. It was a big time.

The Two Extremes.

Mr. A. Hartshorn, 10 Victoria Avenue, keeps poultry. There is nothing unusual in that, but a day or so ago, one of his hens produced an egg which weighed a trifle over one-quarter of a pound—A little over 4 ounces. This egg was weighed on several different scales and the weight is authentic. Another hen, in an effort to keep Mr. Hartshorn in the limelight, went to the other extreme, and turned out a little round brown egg that tipped the scales at a fraction over one ounce.

BOOST PETERBOROUGH.

Visitor Has Recipe For Improving City—Think Positively and Not Negatively.

Ralph Gordon, cartoonist, at the Royal Theatre this week is a great booster of Canada and anything Canadian. Last summer he travelled extensively in the South with the Redpath Chautauqua and says he learned much from the American people. They are extremely enthusiastic for four things: first, their nation; second, their state; third, their county, and last, their town or city. They will say to you: "How do you like our city?" Then they will recount a number of things for which their state, or county or city are noted. They will say that more cotton is grown in their county than in an county in the state. Or it may be that more tobacco is shipped from their city than any other, or that the cilmate of their state is the most even of any in the south. They will have some outstanding feature to boost because they are enthusiastic.

How different, he says, Canadians are. We are always ready with the big stick or hammer to knock our own town. He suggests that we should tabulate the many things for which Peterborough is noted. Its world's biggest lift lock. Its many important and large factory industries. Its location, its many beautiful residences and much more. He also says that when slack times come, we are too prone to say there are so many men out of work, a hundred or two hundred or whatever the case may be. This is the wrong attitude, for there will always be more men working than idle, even in slack times. Get the list of men who are actually working and instead of saying: "We have two hundred men out of work," say: "We have a thousand men working." Get the positive and not the negative spirit. This city is a really delightful place of which every citizen should be proud. That pride should manifest itself in boosting all the time. Boost to outsiders, boost to yourselves, but boost. You'll like living here or any other place better if you boost. He humorously says that he saw twelve places in the United States where Lincoln was buried, and ten where Daniel Boone was born.

BRITISH SCIENTISTS HARNESS RADIUM FOR CURE OF CANCER AFTER YEARS OF EXPERIMENT

Experts Can Bottle Gas Given Off By Radium—Distribute to Individuals.

CONSTANT SUPPLY.

Supply Is Not Diminished or Badly Affected by Bottling of Gas.

(By Lloyd Allen—United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, March 27.—Radium has at last been harnessed by British scientists after years of experimentation.

Experts at Middlesex Hospital, the centre of British cancer research, have thus succeeded in simplifying the whole technique of radium treatment of cancer and skin diseases, it was explained in elaborating on the recently announced methods of "bottling" radium. The new development will permit a nation-wide distribution of radium gas without diminishing the available supply of radium salts.

The method just announced consists of bottling and distributing in quantity "radion," a gas which is constantly given off by radium salts, but which hitherto has been wasted except when the salts themselves were in actual contact with the patient.

This means that from a single unit of radium the hospital will be able to despatch a constant supply of "radion" throughout the nation without affecting either the quantity or the quality of the radium itself. Experts will also be enabled to utilize rays whose curative powers are even greater than those now used.

S. A. Courtauld, chairman of the Court of Governors of Middlesex Hospital, in announcing the development, said: "We have succeeded in harnessing radium by capturing and bottling an emanation which has hitherto been done only on the smallest scale by the Radium Institute."

Hospital authorities explained the containers charged with radion retain the full potency of the salts sufficiently to permit distribution to all parts of Great Britain for treatment of individual cases.

Thus for the first time the large supply of radium of one institution is made available for patients throughout the country.

Pensions amounting to 72,000,000 pounds (about $350,000,000) were paid to war veterans and dependents of those killed in the World War by the British Government in 1924.

STATES LAWLESS BY PROHIBITION

Says Speaker When New York Senate Rejects Proposed Enforcement.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27. — (United Press). — Prohibition took another blow on Thursday night when the State Senate defeated a proposed State Prohibition Enforcement Act by a vote of 26 to 24.

Only two Senators, the man who introduced it, and the Republican majority leader, defended the bill. All the other speakers united in condemning it.

"This bill is a poor plagiarism of the Volstead Act," Senator Nicoll of New York said in debate. "It's Andrew Volstead himself dressed up in new clothes, smoking a new fresh cigar."

"We obeyed not only the law but the wishes of officials before prohibition," Nicoll said. "We were the most law-abiding country in the world. In seven years we have changed to one of the world's most lawless civilized countries. Respect for law has disappeared and authority is laughed at. Statutes are openly derided and flouted. The juniper and the dandelion have become the national flowers of the United States. This is largely due to the fact that we have tried to prohibit by law something that cannot be prohibited by law."

Judges and other Federal and State officials "who voted dry and go to banquets and openly drink," came in for criticism by other Senators.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—Wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

SHOT AT FARMER.

George Schneider Narrowly Escaped Death—Ran to House.

MILDMAY, Ont., March 27 (Canadian Press).—George Schneider, prominent farmer of Carrick Township, narrowly escaped death at the hands of burglars when he interrupted a robbery which was being carried out in a barn on his farm near Deemerton, late Wednesday night. Four revolver shots were fired at him at very close range, two of the bullets passing through the peak of his cap.

When Schneider discovered that the burglars were armed, he ran to the house.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF LOCAL MOTOR LEAGUE ARE REVIEWED IN REPORT OF PRESIDENT BERTRAM

Signs Erected on Lake Shore Road Directing Traffic to Peterboro.

LEVEL CROSSINGS OF CITY SURVEYED

Sixty-Nine in City, Some of Them Without Any Protection.

ADVISED COUNCIL

Dr. P. E. Doolittle Tells of 5,350-Mile Motor Trip Across Canada.

The keynote of Dr. P. E. Doolittle's address at the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Motor League was expressed in his quotation from a speech by E. W. Beatty of the C.P.R. "The one link that will draw all Canada together into one nation is the highway."

Dr. Doolittle, who has been president of the Canadian Automobile Association, prefaced his address by reading a clipping from The Vancouver Province of July 3, 1924, about his trip from coast to coast, carrying a bottle of water from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean. He said that on the journey his speedometer registered 5,350 miles in addition to the trip by boat across Lake Superior. His pictures showed all sorts of roads, from fine paved highways to stretches of gumbo mud on the prairies which were fine roads when dry, but were impassable in wet weather. In comparing the trans-Canada Highway with the American Lincoln high wayfrom New York to San Francisco, Dr. Doolittle said that the Canadian route is more than a thousand miles longer and its highest point is a real mountain pass 4,500 feet above sea level instead of a stretch of sandy, windblown desert 8,835 feet in altitude.

Better Understanding.

The speaker said that trips such as his helped give a better understanding of the people of other parts of the country and helped the inhabitants of different sections fraternize with each other. He called attention to the beautiful scenery of Nova Scotia, only one-tenth of which can be cultivated, and spoke of the quiet country villages of Quebec with their little stone churches and peaceful surroundings. He mentioned the great province of Saskatchewan, with only three people to the square mile and sixty-seven different languages spoken, and of British Columbia with its Oriental problem of which the people in the East know very little. All these were reasons why motorists should visit the United States.

Dr. Doolittle said that his objects for the rest of his life were to help unite Canada and to devolop the trans-Canada highway.

The tourist traffic received a great deal of attention. The speaker said that it was the only game in which both sides won. The visiting Americans got the benefit of the wonderful climate of Canada, and Canadians got the money they spend so freely if treated right. In 1924 the tourists left a sum estimated at $130,000,000 in Canada, and the doctor hopes to see it reach half a billion dollars.

Develop Tourist Trade.

He urged the Peterborough branch to get after the tourists for this district. Within two days' motor trip of the Ontario borders there are, he said, 40,000,000 people who accumulated a great deal of the world's wealth in the later war. Their own resorts have become so that a man has to dress for dinner and fuss up as if he were at home, and he doesn't get a proper holiday. These people are free spenders away from home, and wanted real holiday resorts. Pointing to the 35-pound lunge on the wall Dr. Doolittle remarked what man wouldn't like to go home to Buffalo or Pittsburgh or other city and tell about catching such a fish near Peterborough. He said that he didn't know any finer place for the trade than Peterborough. He had been shown all the manufacturing plants and realized that they meant a lot to the city, but here was an industry that would put them all in the shade. Switzerland had developed the tourist business until it was worth $300,000,00 every year while her next industry, watchmaking, was worth $15,000,000. But the people couldn't sit back and fold their arms and say "We've got the scenery, the tourists will come to us," but would have to get after them and tell them what there was in the district. He said he would like to come back and address a larger gathering of the citizens generally, and not just the car owners and make them realize what a great business was waiting for development.

Dr. Doolittle had a great many slides taken on his trip from coast to coast. There were pictures of quaint old buildings and bridges in Eastern Canada, pictures of peaceful streams and winding roads, pictures of progressive cities and great buildings and pictures of bad roads and danger spots in the prairies and the mountains. He called attention to the fact that part of Nova Scotia is below tide level and is dyked looking like a scene from Old Holland. The pictures showed the beauty spots of those parts of Canada adjacent to the trail and were finely colored to show them as they really were. Dr. Doolittle said he hadn't made the journey as a joy ride, but to see what needed to be done to complete the highway.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Rodin, a past president of the Ontario Motor League; Dr. Winnett and Mr. Watson of the head office staff of the League, said a few words about the work that has been done since the inception of the League.

A hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was passed.

Finances Good.

The reports of the President, J. A. Bertram, and the Treasurer, were read by Leon Frazer, the secretary. These reports showed great progress and a good financial standing for the branch. The receipts were $1,915.93, and the expenditures were $1,763.35, which left a balance of $154.58. A. Brown, vice president, was chairman, owing to the illness of the president, J. A. Bertram.

The nominating committee brought in a slate of officers for 1925, which was adopted. The officers are: President, A. Brown vice president, W. D. Tyrer; secretary, Leon Frazer; directors, J. A. Bertram, James Juby, R. J. G. Sutherland, James Dutton, E. W. Borbridge, J. J. Duffus, H. O. Fiske, G. Dryland, Sr., J. W. Brightman, H. A. Perry O. S. Matchett, Thomas Sproats, R. S. Cotton.

The President's Report.

In their dissatisfaction they desired To Members of the Ontario Motor League, Peterborough Branch:

Gentlemen,— In submitting this annual report I believe it is your wish that it should be as brief as possible, and yet take ample time to enumerate the activities of your Branch during the past year.

Through the financial assistance of the City Council, we were able to erect at Welcome and Port Hope two large advertising signs directing tourists travelling east and west on the Kingston Highway to this city and the Kawartha Lakes. These signs have succeeded in so doing, a number of motorists having called at your office and stayed in our district for a few days, which otherwise would have been spent elsewhere.

To Mr. C. Perry, of the American Hotel, of this city, we are indebted for the prominent location of the sign at Port Hope, he having allowed us to erect our sign at no rental cost. We are paying a small yearly rental for the location at Welcome.

Through the co-operation of our Police Department welcome cards signed by His Worship Mayor J. J. Turner were handed to incoming foreign motorists.

Tourists' Bureau.

This has been followed up by service rendered by the Chamber of Commerce with the Tourists' Bureau giving all information required, and your branch was responsible for the distribution of maps free of charge which covered this district. The road information available at your office has also been increasingly used by the members. This service to visitors and members is such as can be secured at all centres in which a permanent office of the Ontario Motor League is situated, of which there are forty-two.

Level Crossings.

During the summer a survey was made of all level crossing in the city, of which there are sixty-nine, and recommendations made for more adequate protection. Six of the crossings were found to be without any protection whatever, which since the report was made, have now been protected. The City Council Board of Works Department, will consider in May that portion of the report dealing with cutting of trees, etc., which at present obstruct the view of the motorist in approaching the crossing.

Your committee's recommendation that all level crossing signs should be placed three hundred feet from the crossing, has received the support of the Ontario Motor League, and action to secure this is now being taken.

Approximately fifty road signs have been erected on various highways leading to and from the city, but I think you will agree that there is still a considerable amount of road signing to do.

This work is entirely dependent upon the generous co-operation of the membership in informing the office of requirements, and also erecting them.

The Deputy Minister of Public Highways has informed us that it is the intention of the Department to relieve to a considerable degree this portion of the Motor Club's activities.

School Signs Posted.

At the request of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, signs 'Drive Slowly' were erected at all approaches to school areas.

So as to secure a better spirit of co-operation amongst the motorists of this District, your Executive was able to make the initial action in forming the Lindsay Motor Club. From all reports, we believe the effort in this regard has been followed by complete success, the membership of the Lindsay Club being now approximately one hundred and fifty.

You no doubt will be pleased to learn that the Provincial Government has now under consideration the designating of the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway as a Provincial Highway. We have every reason to believe that this will be done and work commenced during the coming summer.

Rochester Ferry.

Your branch was represented in July on a large deputation from the Central Ontario District to Rochester, in reference to the establishment of a convenient auotmobile ferry service between Rochester and Cobourg, and were informed that everything possible would be done to establish that service during 1925. Just recently we were informed unofficially that action was now being taken. This information is now being confirmed.

A radical change in the method of issuing licenses was proposed by the Department of Public Highways, requiring that all licenses of motor vehicles would be secured from Toronto. This was opposed strenuously by your branch, with the successful result you are now aware of. In this regard you will no doubt be interested to know that of the four thousand licenses issued here last year, sixty per cent were issued to those who are not residents of the city.

A proposal requiring all motor vehicles to stop before entering or crossing George Street, at Charlotte Simcoe, Hunter, Murray, and McDonnel Streets was opposed by your Branch, on the grounds that there was insufficient traffic at the present time to warrant such an enactment.

Oppose Gasoline Tax.

The proposal by the Provincial Government to institute a gasoline tax in addition to the present license fees was opposed. This stand was taken believing that motorists at the present time were contributing a fair share of the cost of road work and that with the normal yearly increase in the number of motor vehicles in operation, the Government was assured of a growing revenue from this source without any further increase in the fees or collection of new form of taxes. It was considered that the gasoline tax was an equitable form of taxation, but if instituted should result in a lowering of the present license fees.

The revenue of the Province from license fees yast year was $4,756,000 and this year iwth the new scale of commercial vehicle fees should approximate $5,500,000. As it is understood that the expenditure on roads of all classes by the Government will be approximately $10,000,000, the motorists contribution will represent 55 per cent of the total.

It is estimated that the three cent tax on gasoline will secure $3,000,000 aditional revenue or over 62 per cent increase of taxation on the motorists in one year, resulting in a total tax on the three hundred thousand motorists in the province of over $8,000,000.

It is our belief that the motorists is willing to pay his fair share of the road costs of the Province.

To a large deputation representing the Ontario Motor League, the Prime Minister stated that consideration would be given to a reduction of license fee for 1926.

Legislation.

Several legislative subjects have received the attention of your Directors during the year, the most important being—the lights on all vehicles, the licensing of all drivers; the compulsory stop at railroad crossings; and compulsory automobile insurance.

The League has advocated for some time past that legislation be enacted requiring all motor vehicles in motion on the highway at night to carry lights. Legislation was passed two years ago permitting municipalities to enact local bylaws to this effect, and a number of cities have these by-laws. It is our belief that during the present session of the Provincial Government a bill will be passed requiring lights to be carried on all vehicles travelling at night on the Provincial Highways.

An annoucment has been made by the Minister of Highways that a bill will be introduced at this session requiring all drivers of motor vehicles to carry driver's permits.

It is understood that the fee for securing these permits will be a nominal one, and will not require examination. As stated by the Minister they will be "easy to get" and "easy to take away" for careless or reckless driving.

It has been proposed that all automobile owners must carry insurance against Public Liability and Property damage. This is a debatable question and I will just leave it with one observation.

It seems that this measure would certainly have a tendency to increase rather than decrease automobile accidents. The irresponsibilty which would be developed through all drivers finding themselves relieved of financial responsibility for accidents is a factor which must be given serious consideration.

In closing this report, which could have been elaborated on at great length, the question in my mind, and no doubt yours, what action could be taken to detriment of motorists if the Motor League was not existing to protect and assist the motorists in general?

—I think you will all agree that we must organize and express our opinions as a group of citizens anxious at all times to foster the best interests of all.

Before closing, I must express my deep appreciation for the loyal support given by the Directors during the past year, and also the cordial co-operation rendered by the membership of the Branch, and I must not forget on behalf of the League to express our appreciation to the daily press, which at all times, has liberally used its columns in the interest of this organization.

SEADOGS SLOW TO PRAISE ROTOR SHIP

Require More Experiments With Larger Ships Before Passing Judgment.

DANZIG, March 26.—(Associated Press).—Shipping experts are reluctant to pass judgment on the recent trip of the rotorship Buckau from this port to Scotland. They say the Buckau is so small, and the rotor substitute for sails so new, that long experimentation with larger ships will be necessary to test the commercial value of the new invention. Nevertheless the speed of the Buckau from Danzig to Grangemouth is regarded as satisfactory, in comparison with the average speed of sailing ships of the same size over a similar distance.

The memory of old clippers which crossed the Atlantic from Boston to Liverpool in 12 or 13 days will not fade from the minds of shipping men, who still look back with favor upon the great old sailing ships which were making records in the middle of last century, when sailing was in its glory. It is clear that the old-timers do not care to have it intimated that revolving steel towers will ever rival the romantic rigging of the old clippers, even if they do bring about economy in operation and lower freight rates.

Household Remedies

"My household remedies for years have been Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pleasant Pellets and Favorite Prescription," said Mrs. Mary Ellen Miers, (above) of 89 Monmouth Road, Walkerville, Ont. "My husband owes his life today to the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Pleasant Pellets.' He was a very sick man when I first wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He could not retain food and gas would form in his stomach. Finally, he lost all desire for food and would have fainting spells. Thru the advice of Dr. Pierce, I purchased some of his 'Discovery' at the drug store and very soon my husband was well and able to work.

"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the tonic and nervine that brought me safely thru the critical period of life when I had been having hot flashes, dizziness and spells of melancholia."

SINCLAIR WANTS FURTHER PROBES

Would Have Peter Smith and Others Tell of Commissions Paid.

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press).—W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, at the initial meeting of the Public Accounts Committee this morning, asked for the appearance before the committee of Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer; Charles Matthews, Jr., former Deputy Provincial Treasurer; H. J. Haney, at one time president of the Home Bank of Canada; Col. Clarence Smith, Casey Wood, R. P. Gough, all directors of the institution, and J. T. White. He wishes to have their testimony in connection with the commissions paid on the sale of Provincial securities to the Home Bank.

Mr. Sinclair was asked how he proposed to bring a witness from the penitentiary. "I can do it," was the reply, although he did not explain the method.

Several Conservative members thought the committee was going beyond its jurisdiction.

Sam. Clark, Liberal, who seconded his leader's motion, said that there was still a lot of talk and suspicion throughout the Province in connection with these deals, and declared that the whole thing should be cleared up immediately.

The Sinclair motion, he said, would be a start in the right direction. Although the motion was shelved, it will probably be brought up in committee again or on the floor of the House.

SUE DENNISTOUN FOR DEFAMATION

American Woman Will Produce Letters in Which He Ridicules Present Wife.

PARIS, March 27 (Canadian Press).—A suit for breach of promise and defamation of character against Lieutenant-Colonel Ian Dennistoun, defendant in the sensational London trial just ended will be filed in London soon by an American woman who is now in the United States, it was announced today by Dudley Field Malone, who will represent the plaintiff.

Mr. Malone declared that the evidence would include "a hundred odd letters in Colonel Dennistoun's hand, many of which contained highly derisive allusions to Lady Carnarvon." Lady Carnarvon is Colonel Dennistoun's present wife. The letters are said to have been written over a considerable period of time.

VETERANS OF 21ST ELECTED OFFICERS

A. Nichols Heads Local Members for 1925, Succeeding O. White.

In the mess at the Armouries recently ex-members of the 21st Battalion gathered together to make arrangements for the battalion's reunion dinner which is to be held this year in Peterboro on September 18. Over fifty members were present, which goes to show the boys will never forget the battalion with which they fought. The vice-president, A. Nichols, read a report from President O. White, who was unfortunately absent on account of being called out of the city. This report showed the members the work that must be carried on in order to make the re-union a success. A vote of thanks was tendered the officers for their services during the past year, and after a very pleasant address by Dr. Ivison, the meeting proceeded with the election of officers for 1925, which resulted as follows:

Hon. President—Comrade Lieut.-Col. Pence.

Past President—Comrade O. White

President—Comrade A. Nichols.

1st Vice-President — Comrade G. Milton.

2nd Vice-President—Comrade W. Lyburn.

Secretary-Treasurer—Comrade W. G. Nicholls.

Executive—Comrades Hart, Hall, Maconomy, Pearce, Ivison.

A meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, when all ex-members will receive a hearty welcome.

OFFENDERS WARNED.

Police Are on the Look-out for 1924 Markers and Reckless Drivers.

Over twenty motorists have been reported for driving their cars with 1924 license plates and Chief Newhall wishes to warn them that they will be in court if reported again. The Chief also calls attention to the practice of bicyclist sand teamsters driving out from the curb, forcing the faster moving traffic over on the wrong side of the road to pass them. There are complaints of people parking their cars near intersections and hydrants and also leaving cars on the main streets longer than the by-law allows. Those who make a practice of this said the Chief, will be checked up as will those who make a speedway of Charlotte and George streets near the city limits.

Dogs at Large, Too.

The Chief would also warn dog owners that if they permit their dogs to run at large over gardens and upsetting garbage, the employment of a dog catcher will be necessary.

PACT ADDS TO GERMAN SAFETY

Territory of France and Germany Guaranteed Against Aggression.

IS BRITISH POLICY.

LONDON, March 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Britain's agreement to the five power pact, including Germany to safeguard the frontiers of Western Europe, means as implied in Foreign Secretary Chamberlain's speech, that when the terms of the pact are drawn up not only will Britain guarantee France against Germany, but also German territory against France.

If France wants Britain to agree to fight in her defence she might agree to Britain agreeing to fight for Germany if France tries to seize the Rhine, which Premier Herriot recently declared might be the ultimate security of France.

That is the inner meaning of yesterday's tremendously important pronouncement of the British policy although it will not be put so bluntly.

Telegram Says Highways Department Will Be Subject of Interest.

TORONTO, March 27.—(Canadian Press.)—According to the Toronto Evening Telegram, the Public Accounts committee of the Ontario Legislature which met for organization to-day, will probe very deeply into the affairs of the Provincial Department of Highways, particularly the finances of the Department during the Drury administration.

"While nothing of a criminal aspect has been found," says the Telegram, "it is expected that the audits will reveal an almost unbelievable state of affairs in the Department. At one time, it is stated moneys disbursed by the Department for which no vouchers could be found, totalled over millions of dollars. In the meantime these sums were covered by minister's warrants and eventually, as receipts and vouchers came in, the sum was reduced to a little less than a third of a million dollars.

It is not unlikely that there will be a number of dismissals from the Department arising out of the investigations."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Being met on Monday by one of the teachers of one of the adult classes in one of our Sunday schools who said that he read my recent letter on the way of the world and he said it was worth while and had cut it out and put it away. Now if any of my letters are any good to anyone, it is my pleasure to occupy my leisure moments in penning such. In this short letter it is my object to point out the great secular need of the Church to-day. That need is co-operation and concentrated energy on the part of the individual member that was listening (and it may be that some were not listening) to the reading of the Scripture lesson as was read by the Rev. Robt. Pogue on Sunday evening, March 22, at St. James' Church, Romans, 12th chapter, will realize in a moment the great foundation of a practical Christian life that is embodied in that chapter. The three great principles are being, doing and giving—the being by love, the doing by diligence and the giving by simplicity, and if those principles are interwoven in our lives in place of killing our neighbor's cat so to speak, we will be feeding his lambs in place of whispering little miserable yarns about others if we find them erring we will go to them in the spirit of love and restore them to the right. In the place of discouraging good we will encourage the smallest good effort. I heard of a Sunday school teacher at one time who had a beautiful class of girls around her that she wished to develop along the line of teacher-training (the very highest ideal of a Sunday school teacher), but she was so discouraged by those that should be her encouragers that she has not had any heart to teach since, and we should also abhor and protest against that which is wrong just as strong, but how are we to know what is right or wrong just by reading carefully and prayerfully Romans 12th?

Thanking you, I remain, yours, etc.,

W. H. MERRILL.

41,044 CANADIANS BACK IN 11 MONTHS

2,012 Returned from the United States During February.

OTTAWA, March 27.—Immigration to Canada during February amounted to 2,210, an increase of 203 over the previous month, according to an official statement by the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

Of the February arrivals 542 were British, 800 from United States, and 868 from other countries. Immigration from United States shows an increase of 168 over January.

Canadians returning from the United States after having been in that country for six months or over, and declaring their intention of remaining permanently in Canada, totalled 2,012. Since the beginning of the fiscal year the number of such returning Canadians is 41 044.

Immigration for the 11 months of the fiscal year to Feb. 28, has been 49,905 British, 14,521 from the United States, and 40,361 from other countries, a total of 104,787. These figures do not include the 41,044 Canadians who have returned fro mthe United States, and which, if counted in, would raise the total to 145,831.

ANGLICAN CHURCH IS OLD-FASHIONED

Bishop of Gloucester Thinks, Though, That It Is Intensely Loyal to Traditions.

LONDON, March 27. — Right Rev Arthur Cayley Headlam, Bishop of Gloucester, has written his second article in the Guardian, the weekly organ of the Church of England, concerning the Anglican church generally in Canada. Summing up the experiences of the Church of England in Canada as a whole, he thinks it is a body with a great deal of rather old-fashioned religious life, but intensely loyal to the traditions of the Church of England and to the motherland. Its clergy are hard-working and eager, but are often inadequately paid, he says. They have work to do almost beyond their strength.

The Bishop thinks that the defect of religious life in Canada, as in America generaly, lies on the intellectual side.

"The want of the Canadian church is men. We should send out more educated men."

RADIO HISTORY TOLD KIWANIS

J. J. Duffus Gave Complete History of Its Development by Marconi.

MISS KYLE SANG.

J. J. Duffus was the speaker at the Kiwanis Luncheon today, and chose as his subject a history of the development of radio. He said that he had been interested in the subject since 1902, when he had crossed the Atlantic to the Coronation of King Edward, and had spent all his time in the ship's radio cabin.

The first patent for wireless communication was issued to Guglielmo Marconi in 1898. As far back as 1840 Joseph Henry had produced oscillations, but had not followed them further. In 1873 Maxwell had shown that the oscillations would travel through the air, but it was left for Marconi to develop the first apparatus to produce and send out these radiations. Two years after he took out the patent he transmitted signals across the English Channel, and in 1901 the first signals were sent across the Atlantic. In 1902 the first intelligible message was transmitted from Poldhu to Glace Bay. The Canadian Government had seen the possibilities of wireless and had made a grant of $80,000 for the erection of suitable equipment at Glace Bay. In 1904 the first press message crossed the Atlantic by radio.

Marconi, said Mr. Duffus, was an example of the saying: "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country." He was unable to interest any Italian manufacturers or the Italian Government, so he went to England where Sir William Priest obtained support for his work, so to England goes the credit for starting him on his road to fame. King Edward made him a Knight of the Victorian Order, and the much coveted Albert Medal was conferred upon him. He was awarded the Nobel Prize and later on was given awards in Italy.

One of the greatest benefits of wireless, said Mr. Duffus, was for the protection of ship. He cited the case of the "Republic," which was rammed in a fog. Radio called other ships to her assistance and of the 1,600 people on board, only eight were killed and most of them died of shock.

Radio is uppermost in the minds of the people today. It provides education and amusement, and everybody is interested in it. Boys of 12 are experts in building their own sets, and with such interest the ultimate development cannot be foreseen. It is one of the world's greatest industries and some of the makers are planning to treble their output.

Miss Muriel Magerl Kyle of Detroit, soloist for the Male Voice Choir Concert, favored the Kiwanians and their guests with two solos which were very much enjoyed.

Carl Browne was the booster for the day, and the prizes were won by Dr. Ray Scott, H. J. McCannan and Tom Mark.

Amusement was caused when a bank messenger presented a draft to Roy Carmen for 75 cents, for his failure to attend the last meeting, as the rules call for the absentees to pay for their partners' dinners during the attendance campaign.

Catholic Women's League.

J. J. Duffus Spoke on Wireless Telegraphy—Pleasant Programme.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held last evening at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, the president, Mrs. C. J. Snider, in the chair. A very interesting talk on Wireless Telepathy was given by Mr. J. J. Duffus, and Mrs. James Lynch played an instrumental selection. Arrangements were made for a card party and paper collection, to be held in the near future, and an Irish evening in April or May.

L.O.L. 50 HOLDS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Seventeenth Anniversary of the Lodge Celebrated in Music and Speeches.

After a well attended meeting of L.O.L. No. 50, the members sat down to a wonderfully decorated banquetting table for which the ladies were responsible.

Bro. T. Sproats, W. M., cut the birthday cake, and Wor. Bro. F. Dunsford acted as toast master.

The toast to the King was proposed by Wor. Bro. Dodds who deemed it the most sacred toast of all, as through the crown of Great Britain could be seen the greatest nation of all times. He deplored the attitude of those not adhering to the British custom when "the King" was being played.

L. O. L. No. 50, was proposed by Wor. Bro. Hancock, P.M, of 1175, who very fittingly referred to different phases of L.O.L. No. 50, and was responded to by Right Wor. Bro. E. F. Reid, who gave a short history of his own in connection with L.O. L., No. 50, and then starting at the organization which Rt. Wor. Bro. W. H. G Armstrong (now organizer for Saskatchewan) was responsible for, followed down the line of Masters, giving them credit for carrying on the work of the order, and forgetting years of toil which he himself had devoted to the organization. He referred to the great war, and those who now sleep in Flanders, and hoped the association would carry on the work for which they gave all for civil and religious liberties.

Bro. Reid had great praise for the Orange Sentinel, and is a great believer in one Flag and one non-sectarian national school for all in the interest of peace and justice.

The toast to the Visitors was proposed by Wor. Bro. H. Freeman, who with his usual gift of humor, set everyone merry, and was responded to by Wor. Bro. J. J. Cunningham (County Master) L.O.L. 457, who touched on the subject of good will and fellowship.

The toast to the Ladies was proposed by Rt. Wor. Bro. George Porter (Past Grand Master Royal Black Knights of Ireland), and responded to by Wor. Bro. F. Brown.

Wor. Bro. J. J. Cunningham, in his opening address, gave an outline of the events of the recent Grand Lodge at Ottawa, mentioning the broadcasting of the principles of the association by some leading orators, and stated that he was proud to belong to an association that could broadcast its principles, challenging the world. He gave great praise to the three flourishing ladies' lodges in the city.

Speeches were delivered by Bandmaster W. Forde, Wor. Bro. S. Anderson, Wor. Bro. F. Dunford, and the present Wor Master Bro. T. Sproats.

The L.O.L. No. 50 Melody Band, of which the lodge is justly proud, gave several selections, which added materially to the evening.

A pleasing feature of the evening was a presentation to Wor. Bro. F. Dunford on the eve of his departure for other fields of employment.

Bro. A. Spencley also added materially to the success of the evening, he being a booster.

A vote of thanks was passed to the ladies for the unselfish interest they had taken in the evening.

MAHARAJAH WANTED HIS DANCING GIRL

Her Uncle Says He Was Offered Help in Finding Her.

BOMBAY, March 27.—(Canadian Press). — Prosecution in the trial of nine men charged with attempting to abduct the dancing girl, Mumtaz Begum, after her escape from the hold of Maharajah of Indore, to-day called to the witness stand the girl's uncle, Alla Wazir.

Authorities are endeavoring to prove that the affray on Malabar Hill, Bombay, on the evening of January 12th, in which the wealthy merchant, Abul Kadir Baula was killed, was the result of an elaborate plot to return the Nautch girl to the Maharajah, of whom she had been favorite.

Baula was with the girl when attacked by the gang, and in the ensuing fight in which knives played a part Mutas was slashed across the face and a British Lieutenant was injured.

Mumtas yesterday testified that she had gone to the Maharajah's court first as a singing girl and that later she became the ruler's mistress.

Her uncle testified to-day that after she had fled from the court, he had been called to Indore where he was told the Maharajah wanted him. Upon his arrival, he said, he was informed by two of the accused men that he would be given assistance if he helped to capture the girl. Returning to Bombay, he warned Baula with whom Mumtas had become friendly that he was being watched. Afterwards he learned that Baula's watchman had been bribed to leave the doors of the merchant's bungalow unlocked. Baula being appraised of this, dismissed the watchman.

"Your Money Back"

BUSINESS HOUSES of various kinds make great display of the line "Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back." The Capitol Theatre never has considered it necessary to thus publicly pledge adherance to a fundamental rule of modern business operation.

This Theatre's clientele knows, although it has not been told, that the management is not merely willing but anxious to refund ticket purchase price to anyone not satisfied with the entertainment offered.

Just bear this fact in mind when you are sitting in the Capitol to-night having the biggest laugh since "Three Live Ghosts." The picture you will be watching is "Lord Chumley," David Belasco's riotous play of the debonnair little English gentleman who took his fun where he found it, be it fire, be it panic, feast or famine.

I am only sorry that I cannot hold this picture over for an extra day or two, but the Toronto Hippodrome wants it for Monday and all week.

CAPITOL THEATRE,
A. G. Crowe, Manager.

TO-NIGHT'S THE NIGHT

IF YOU WINK YOUR EYE ONCE YOU MISS A LAUGH!

IT'S THE JOLLIEST BANG-UP COMEDY IN YEARS!

"Lord Chumley"

They didn't know whether to —Kiss him or kill him!
—Jail him or josh him!
—Maul him or marry him!

OPEN AIR JEWEL MARKET IN LONDON

Duke Street Houndsditch is Busy Place Every Sunday.

By JOHN GUNTHER.

LONDON, Eng., March 27 — (United Press).—London has a picturesque El Dorado all her own, with streets "paved with diamonds."

It is the Sunday open-air jewel market in Duke street, Houndsditch.

Here, in an obscure corner of London's east-end, are a row of carts backed against a curb. Outwardly, it looks like Maxwell street in Chicago or East Grand street in New York. But instead of old iron and cabbages—diamonds. Instead of ancient crockery and dried fish—solid gold.

When the market is held every Sunday the neighborhood is thronged with rich jewel merchants from the west end and wealthy customers in their motor cars.

The jewel market grew up from a group of foreigners who enlarged their original community pawn shop to include direct sale of jewels. It grew and prospered. Now it is one of the most characteristic of London street scenes.

Many of the famous jewels of the world have found their way to the little carts in Houndsditch. Many stolen jewels, too. The police and Scotland Yard keep close watch on the busy auctioneering and selling. The district hums each Sunday with prosperity, however, in spite of the close sarveillance.
